STEAMS ASHORE MAKES ESCAPE WITH PLANE'S AID

Koenigsberg Fires at Soton Which Refuses to Accompany Cruiser

CRUISER RETIRES

German Ship Fails to Score Hit With Shells

Bayonne, France, Jan. 2 (AP)—Dispatches from the Spanish city of Bilbao said the Spanish steamer freighter, Soton, had escaped capture by the cruiser Koenigsberg after a Government airplane forced the German warship to retire.

The Soton was reported to have escaped capture by running aground on the Spanish coast during a maneuvre in which the Koenigsberg opened fire on the freighter.

A government plane was said to have flown over the Koenigsberg which then retired, the dispatches said, outside of Spanish territorial waters.

The Soton was reported unmanageable and unable to continue toward Santander.

Reports Are Varied

Dispatches to European capitals had variously reported the capture of the Soton by the Koenigsberg and the sinking of the Government merchantman Aragon by the German warship, which did not float.

Whether the reported escape of the Soton gave rise to both stories or whether the Aragon actually had been captured was not known.

An official communique from Berlin announced the capture of an unnamed Spanish vessel by a German warship.

Signals From Cruiser

The Bilbao dispatches said the Koenigsberg was cruising along the coast yesterday when it signalled the Soton which was proceeding from Bilbao to Santander.

The Captain of the cruiser was said to have demanded that one of the Soton's officers come aboard the Koenigsberg and the second officer complied.

The Soton also was ordered to change its course and to go in company with the cruiser under escort of the Koenigsberg, the dispatches reported.

Full Steam Toward Shore

The second officer was said then to have returned to the Soton and ordered full steam ahead. The German man steamed whereupon he ordered the Soton's engines to be stopped and the freighter aground.

The Koenigsberg was said to have then sent a launch which immediately put sailed to shore a Mr. Thos. as a Spanish Government plane appeared over the Koenigsberg, the German ship's launch report said, steamed hither and put out to sea.

A few hours later the Soton succeeded in returning to deep water and continued toward Santander.

The Bilbao dispatches said the fact the Soton was able to run aground after two months after being accosted proved it was within Spanish territorial waters when attacked by the German cruiser.

Your Duty as a Citizen

It is your duty as a Citizen to vote at the Municipal Election Monday. The Good Citizen does not neglect his civic duties, onerous or otherwise, and surely the small exertion of going to the polls and recording his or her opinion on Candidates and Policies should not be overlooked.

IT IS YOUR DUTY TO VOTE, not the other fellow's, or your neighbor's only. YOUR VOTE is YOUR expression and YOUR privilege as a Citizen. If YOU are silent you have no representation and might as well be dead for all the good you are in shaping the destiny of Belleville.

THERE ARE VITALLY IMPORTANT QUESTIONS TO BE DECIDED by ballot, and no right decision can be reached without a full vote. YOUR OPINION IS IMPORTANT.

Several questions are to be voted on, aside from candidates, which may vitally affect the future progress and prosperity of Belleville.

RECORD YOUR OPINION AND BE A FULL-TIME CITIZEN.

MUNICIPAL APATHY HAS KILLED MANY COMMUNITIES. The voter with an axe to grind will vote in any event. YOU with the best interest of the city at heart —will YOU vote.

YOU WITH A HEAVY STAKE HERE and heavy taxes—will you vote.

YOU WITH A FAMILY GROWING UP will you vote for progress and prosperity, the making of a better city for your children. Dare you neglect to vote.

When all citizens entitled to vote exercise their franchise then the result, be it what it may, is the registered opinion of the majority and will be accepted in good grace by all.

VOTE AS YOU LIKE BUT VOTE

Are You In Favor of...

Five Bylaws are to be voted upon in Belleville on Monday in which voters will answer "yes" if they approve and "no" if they do not approve. These questions concern

Canadian Business in 1937 To Smash All Records

Babson Predicts Business Will Top That of 1929—Expects Gain With 8-14 Per Cent Over 1936 Figures

Mining to Reach New All Time Peak

Babson Park, Mass., January 1, 1937. I predict that Canadian business during 1937 will break all records, topping even the 1929 heights! The volume today is almost back to 1928 and 1929 levels and all fundamentals point upward toward new peaks in 1937. During the next twelve months I expect to see good gains in employment, wages, total purchasing power, retail trade, prices, and building. From this side of the border it looks as though the rapid improvement of 1936 will carry into 1937.

8-14 PER CENT GAIN AHEAD

This past year Canadian business totalled 16 per cent more than during 1935. Now that most economists have finally taken a definitely bullish stand on Canadian industry in the year ahead, I feel that it is time to warn business men and investors that the period of most rapid

POLICE ATTEMPT TO LINK SEAMEN WITH KIDNAPPING

Appearance of Suspect Tallies With Kidnapper of Mattson Boy

FORMER CONVICT

Came Located Where Parts of a Boy's Clothing Are Found

Trenton, Ont., Jan. 2 (AP)—A man identified by police as a former convict, resembling closely Charles Mattson's kidnaper, was questioned today in the city jail while Provincial investigation Bureau agents studied his finger prints.

Detectives arrested the man as he tried to sell a watch and a ring to a downtown grocer. He was unarmed and quiescent.

His appearance tallied so closely with that of the kidnaper boy's description that they took him at once before federal agents who questioned him behind closed doors. Finger prints, police said, were taken for a call.

Finger prints showed no hard record in Ontario, police said, but in the Washington State Reformatory, officers added.

Detectives, for investigation, he gave his age as 32 and said he was an actor. Police said he was known to Seattle police as "Curly" Gordon and to Portland police as Charles Griffiths.

After the arrest, Provincial officers were joined by Inspector Wilson of the Ontario provincial police.

The man was grilled and was led to the police station.

Chief Provincial Police Inspector Wilson, Toronto, and Detective Constable Alfred Cecil Speer, Toronto, left by motor for Trenton to question the man. Speer is a brother-in-law of Detective Sergeant Frederick Wilson, Toronto, who has been in charge of the Mattson case.

The man arrested and was identified by police as Gordon Stewart Fraser, 32, Montreal, was arraigned in police court here on charges of vagrancy and theft of a watch and ring.

Fraser was remanded for one week.

FATHER STANTON CRASH VICTIM

Former Football Coach Mourned At Chatham, Ontario

Chatham, Ont., Jan. 2 (CP)—Widely-known Roman Catholic Missionary priest, formerly a famous football coach at Ottawa University, Rev. William J. Stanton of Buffalo was mourned today following his death in an automobile accident near this western Ontario city.

The 56-year-old Provincial of the First Province of Oblate Fathers in the United States, was crushed to death in his wrecked automobile late yesterday on side road of Port Alma on highway No. 3.

No one witnessed the tragedy that occurred while Father Stanton was on his way to Detroit. Police suggested he suffered a stroke or fell asleep at the wheel. Rev. V. W. Whalen, Catholic priest, consulted with members of the Oblate Order Buffalo and took charge of funeral arrangements.

2000 LUMBERMEN IN ALGOMA

Sudbury, Ont., Jan. 2—(CP)—Lumbermen estimate nearly 2,000 men are employed at present in logging operations in Algoma district. The number of men in the woods is the largest since 1928. Thirty-two mills are employed as scalers.

Socialized 'Med' Care Cost Cut to Lowest by Village

Arundel (Que.) League Pay $5 Each For Year's Care

SPECIAL SCHEDULE

Arundel, Que., Jan. 2 (CP)—High cost of medical treatment, even the most minor, usually associated with childbirth, does not bother the residents of this Laurentian Mountain village, about 100 miles northwest of Montreal. Services of a skilled physician are available to the community at almost ridiculously low cost.

Banded together by difficulty of obtaining adequate treatment in their isolated district, residents decided considered their situation and formed a league to engage a medical man to operate in the Province of Quebec. Under the scheme each participant pledged a small amount annually, basing it on the number of children in the family or in the community and guarantees him a minimum income.

Members of the Arundel League pay $5 each for the year's Medical Care per $5 a year cash, or $15 for a family of three or more. In addition, the annual fee includes all medicines and drugs. Doctor visits are at any regular hour during the year. Cost of operations is also included in the annual payment and there is no charge for visits to the hospital at the rate of $2 during a year. $10 is required for maternity cases. Fifteen days time is allowed for payment and those who do not pay within that time are struck off the list. Fees are collected in winter, when travel is easy, by car and sleigh, the visit is 50 cents a mile.

NEW YEAR'S BABY BORN EARLY FRIDAY

New Year's baby has been minus the privilege of a real, but the city's first baby of 1937 arrived at 12.01 a.m. in the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Mc-Kinnon, Bridge street, Belleville. A girl arrived on Friday morning.

The many congratulations Mr. New Year's first night landed boy received by Dr. Ethel E. Dafoe, M.D., C.M., Belleville doctor, nurse of the local Salvation Army, Mr. New Year, and mother were "doing fine."

FIRE ORIGINATES IN INSULATION

Fire originating on alarm shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday morning destroyed the blaze to the insulation in the basement of a home on Franklin Street. The alarm was turned in from Box 24, fire started from boundary origin and attributed the fire to some defective wiring. Damage caused by the blaze was confined to the basement.

Two alarms were answered by city crews on Thursday afternoon, one at 2.30 p.m. and the other at 5.30 p.m., starting in a house on Franklin St., and the other in a building on Bridge street with little or no resultant damage.

QUICK RESPONSE TO FIREMEN'S APPEAL

Further evidence of the interest shown by the citizens of Belleville and those near Monday with their share of the world's goods, was evidenced in the receipt by the Mayor's Relief Fund Committee of a number of pieces of furniture and bedding for the homeless fire victims. Many have already forwarded a cheque of $5 to be used for the purchase of fuel, and Lynch gratefully acknowledges the receipt of these things, which will be placed where they are most needed.

ROTARY CLUB TO HOLD LUNCHEON AT ALBERT COLLEGE

Members of the Belleville Rotary Club insisted of holding their usual luncheon at Albert College (Thursday) this week at the hotel at 12 o'clock noon, and will proceed from there to the Albert College room where a special dinner will be served by the ladies of the Institution which is under the direction of Miss Judge O. E. Durocher.

TAKES SPECIAL COURSE

Acting Lance Corporal J.C. McPhee of the Royal Canadian Signals Corps, who has been in charge of the Belleville detachment for the past four years, left on Thursday's Headquarters train for R.C.M.P. at Ottawa, today where he will attend a special three months course in instructions regarding law procedure and presenting cases in court. This instruction is necessary for the R. C.M.P. in order to obtain and prosecute their own charges in court. During the absence of Lance Corporal McPhee, Constable Geo. Maurice will be in charge of the local "Mounties" detachment.

DECORATIVE LIGHTS STOLEN FROM FLORIST

A rather contemptable theft was reported to the police by Miss Dorothy Gould, florist, on Dundas Saturday. For the express purpose of adding to the season's festivities and gaiety of the city, Christmas and New Year's Eve, and the attraction of the downtown section, Miss Gould supported decorated the front of her business house with an evergreen arch, covered with glamorous electric lights when lighted. Stone thus over the New Year's holiday period were thoughtless persons removed fifteen electric light bulbs from the decoration of Miss Quirk's store. During the absence of Miss Gould the police and providing the guilty culprits are apprehended serious punishment has been promised. It is believed Miss Quirk merely wanted the colored bulbs to assist in the decorating of the city and their theft leaves her responsible for the return of the same.

Woodstock Wife, Jan. 2 (CP)—Henry Tapp, 91, started the new year with a fair to middlin' appetite. He won what was billed as a "mule championship contest" by eating 28 hamburgers and 10 hot dogs at one sitting.

Restaurant Window Broken in Scuffle

Although New Year's was ushered in rather serenely and in a quiet manner, Belleville had its breaks of fisticuffs, where general welfare seemed to be at stake. Called in two local restaurants, were reported to local police early Friday morning. Both cases had the setting of a plate glass window as the principal feature. In the first case apprehended a man who gave his name as J. Hill, 19 Victoria Street, Toronto. The man was taken before the cafe proprietor he was identified as the man who smashed and was arrested on a charge of intoxication. Upon the completion of arrangements to quit another outbreak of arguments at a Bridge street cafe, where words were over-turned and a general state of fisticuffs was in progress, the police were called in at this point, the matter still being investigated. Whether the instigators of the trouble beat a hasty retreat upon the arrival of police.

Nine transients welcomed 1937 in the cells, made at police station at midnight Thursday night and without ceremony. On Jan. 1st, 1937 a total of 14 transients were in the cells, the apprehended getting quarters in the police station. Only two drunks were arrested on the streets, a report on the current holiday activities.

Nonegenarian Keeps His Youthful Spirit

Hale and hearty with a springiness in his step of a man thirty years younger, John Barlow, 90-year-old resident of Tweed, enjoyed his New Year holiday with all the gusto of the younger generation.

Travelling the eight miles from his home to that of his son, Mr. James Barlow, of this city, the aged gentleman attended the merry at the occasion with the same feelings which have characterized his whole life.

Mr. Barlow was born in the city limits some ninety years ago he has resided for the past sixty years in the township of Thurlow and Tyendinaga.

James A. Moore Is Again Acclaimed

James A. Moore, veteran municipal servant of Queenston who has spent a quarter of a century in the Reeve's chair of Hagar Township, was again given accorded an acclamation for that office. Mr. Moore, who has been chairman of the Roads and Bridges Committee of Hastings County Council for a number of years enjoys well-deserved popularity both here and in his native township.

His colleagues in the County Council, it will be remembered, presented him with a leather travelling bag in recognition of nearly five years of faithful service during the December session of the council.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Jan. 3— High pressure covers Eastern Canada and the North Atlantic States. Also British Columbia and the Pacific States, while a disturbance of increasing intensity, centred over Iowa, is moving northeastward. Fair and somewhat colder weather has prevailed from the Great Lakes eastward and it has been decidedly cold over Manitoba and Saskatchewan with moderating temperature in Alberta.

Lake Superior—Strong westerly winds, unsettled at first, then clearing and becoming a little colder.

Manitoba, Sunday; with many moderating temperature and probably some snow in south portion.

Saskatchewan—Mostly fair today. Mostly fair today and Sunday with moderating temperatures.

CAR-MILK WAGON CRASH SERIOUS

Picton, Jan. 3 (Special)—A serious accident occurred on West Main Street, in front of the residence of Mr. Will Benson, at six o'clock Thursday morning, Dec. 31st, when a motor driven by Fred VanDusen, of the Adams and VanDusen Co., collided with a milk delivery wagon driven by Robert (Bob) Hill. The milk wagon was smashed, and the horse so badly injured that it had to be destroyed. Mr. Hill, suffering from bruises, shock, and possible broken bones was removed to the local hospital, where his extent of his injuries could not immediately be ascertained. Police are investigating the accident. Both vehicles were proceeding towards Picton, with the car in the lead. The milk wagon overtook it in a light, and the accident occurred opposite two lighted street lights. Although Fred VanDusen told the police that he did not see Mr. Hill until the accident occured.

FEW ACCIDENTS OVER NEW YEAR'S

"The Pre-New Year's eve advertising campaign through the columns of the press in Ontario was most successful and resulted in practically one hundred per cent co-operation among the city seeking to avoid the disasters of the holiday," stated Inspector Frank Gardner of the Ontario Provincial Police today after reviewing the activities throughout District No. 2 of the Provincial Police today.

"There was not a single fatal accident in this district while minor accidents in general and cross drinking seemed to be curbed to the minimum," stated the inspector. Provincial Police patrols, both motor cycle and car, visited and visited many places where intoxicating liquors were on full swing. "While some little drinking was in evidence, these were either travelling by taxi or in busses, we found," the inspector stated. He also referred to the co-operation of the citizens being appreciated.

No Accidents On Highways

"Not even a scratched fender," was the reply given to a Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervine, who patrolled Highway No. 2 during New Year's Eve. One arrest of a drunken driver was made by Traffic Officer Ervine when he placed Gerald Bandy, Shannonville, in custody on a charge of driving a motor car while intoxicated. The accused youth was taken before a Justice of the Peace immediately and held in custody until Monday's Police court, thus being the special instructions issued from the Attorney General's department. All leave for Provincial Police and Highway patrolmen were cancelled for the New Year holiday period, the only officers being instructed to patrol all highways from 7.00 P. M. Thursday until 4.00 a. m. New Year's Day. "Generally speaking we found motorists very careful and co-operating to the fullest measure", said Officer Ervine.

Car Hits Bicycle

In Belleville only one motor accident occurred and no arrests were necessary owing to drunken driving, it was announced today. Late Friday night Norman Masters, 12 Russell St., sustained a lacerated wrist and bruised leg when the bicycle he was riding was struck by a motor car driven by Arthur Clasie, R.R. No. 4, Belleville. The lad was knocked down at the intersection of Howard and Moira Sts. Mr. Clasie was making a left hand turn off Moira St. when he struck Masters's bicycle which carried no lights at night, police added. No charges are necessary.

...ition." I want you to know this, that I feel that I have done my best. I want to lose sight of one thing. We've got to protect the taxpayer, and I have and always will be on the other fellow's side. Further, in fairness, he called suspicion, I suppose.

"I'm making no wild promises, but if elected, I will give every one a square deal, and when I say this I mean every citizen, taxpayers and all.

"We've got a good city here and what we have to maintain and improve. I will consider it a privilege if you will elect me Mayor to watch its interests."

Street Lighting

Hydro Commissioner Geo. A. Reid, who elected by acclamation, declared he had a happy story to tell, a story of fact. "I have money in the bank of the local Hydro being paid for, and of a reduction in rates again this year. It all goes well."

In regard to street lights, over which considerable had been accused this year, Commissioner Mayor Reid pointed out that the local Commission was bound by hand and tied rules in every action and for these costs.

"Last year we were criticized because there were no street lights for Christmas. We were expected, and supposed, to furnish this free, which is 'against the rules'", declared Commissioner Reid explaining that in every other city in Ontario certain provisions are made to have the lighting done and paid for. Oshawa, it was shown, has a system whereby merchants assess themselves so much foot frontage, which is used for the purpose; at Whitby merchants pay the sum of $5 cents each month, while in Napanee it is also given by council; in Trenton, the local Chamber of Commerce pays the bill and at Kingston the same system is in effect as in Oshawa. Brockville charges it against street lighting. "But in Belleville not one dollar has been paid out, and no one for these costs", declared Mr. Reid.

"However, let us forget all this past history, and try to be happier next year and the best way to be happy is by making someone else happy", he added.

Question of Taxes

In the aldermanic candidate section, Alderman H. Y. Willis, chairman of the executive during the past year was given an ovation, Mr. Willis declaring:

"I've just tried to do the best I could during the past year, and I believe I've done well. Now, at the end of the third year in office, I am again before you for re-election, and if elected 'll try to give the same service as in the past.

"Turning to the matter of taxes, the chairman of Finance pointed out that he told the same electors the last time at a meeting that rate would prevail this year. We've did all in our power to keep it down, and I believe that under the circumstances it was a good showing. We will continue the same policy, during the coming year, as well keep the sale statutory, as a little better.

"We have so many expenditures forced upon us by law that after all it becomes a hard matter to do anything with. We have, also, the Parks Commission, the school board, the Hydro Board, and have no control over any of these, yet they all take up a lot of expenditure."

Gas Sale Issue

Alderman Willis interjected the gas question with the remark that during the past year Dr. Ash some regret for being in the minority a year ago in the gas sale, and questions that came up.

"I didn't think it wrongdoing re-sale, but there is one that has been regretted that three or four aldermen were responsible for the sale of the gas plant for the sum at $80,000. Before this sale could have taken place, a vote of the people would have had to go to the voters, and plenty of time for calling any deposit, of say, $5,000. The council, apparently, in committee went into a study of this plant. They reported back that the plant would return a profit to the city from seven to ten thousand a year. It seems that they were sold a bill that it would be absurd to rush into the sale of such a valuable property as high a return as that for a mere $80,000. It is not the way to handle stock. We did not want to rush through until something definite was found.

"Judging from the applause you received and the attention that has been given, you are right in line for re-election," assured Chairman Ostrom.

Ald. Sale's Farewell

Alderman Benjamin Sale who will retire this year on the completion of his term declared that in...smuch as he was not in the field for the next year he could not be more comfortable one than that of the others.

In thanking the electors for the confidence they had shown him during the past three years, declared that he had not sufficient time to devote to his duties at the office.

"During my tenure of office, however, the head of friendship has always been extended me. In the past three years I've always tried to take a stand on any matter that came up. Certain committees I've been enforced by me during that time, some of which, was the abolition of one office which now saves $1,500 a year. Services in the fire department is now in an efficient condition", declared Alderman Sale.

Ryder Discussion Suggested

Chairman Ostrom at this point brought out the fact that at the coming election several by-laws would be submitted to the people. "What is the feeling of the candidates on these. Does not one of them wish to speak on them?" he questioned.

Alderman Harold Armstrong, whose popularity is still strong, judging by the reception, declared that as everyone had been filled up with gas and hydro, he would devote his attention to the waterworks department of which he is chairman.

"There you have an investment of $600,000 and that the department means to Belleville is shown when it is revealed that during the first sixteen months of 1936, we pumped through our mains a total of 800,000,000 gallons of water. That means a lot of service", declared the speaker, and this point thanking the management and every employee for the efficient manner in which affairs of the system were conducted.

Waterworks Revenue

"The revenue from the plant has been $400,000 for the current year. Our debt today is $145,000. The plant was built at a cost of over $300,000, but this debt is being taken care of by profits already accrued and by our sinking funds, all without extra cost to the citizens. Our rates in Belleville are as low as they are in any other city like size in Canada. Our citizens ought to be proud of the condition their system is in today. We are gradually reducing the bonded debt, and putting a little by for needed repairs from time to time."

Alderman Armstrong voiced the hope of re-election if he deems it in the best warranted. He thanked the electors for the confidence he had shown him in the past and expressed the desire to serve in the same manner should re-elected.

Fire Chairman Reports

Alderman J. W. Barlow declared it was the third time he had been privileged to appear before electors for re-election.

"It has been a pleasure this year to have had a real one. During the past year I have acted as Chairman of Fire, Light and Water. We got a record for low fire loss but for one fire, Chairman of Fire, Citizens of Belleville think kindly of the local fire department. I, however, they know that every member is always willing to pitch in and help in any way he may be can. We have a department here in Belleville that can be beaten by any other in Ontario, even though we are under-manned and have to double up. Everything is done in a manner that is accepted cheerfully by the citizens.

"Last year we have had considerable trouble with the water, but these we expect to be well within control.

"Again I solicit your vote for the coming year. If you believe I have been attentive to the citizens' interests, then vote for me", requested Alderman Barlow. Referring to the other committees in council appreciation for their work had been voiced, he said. "We have had some hot arguments in matters, but when they were settled they were forgotten, and we've got a council that is a good one. Let us continue to do our best and we will not call it a good day's work until we do so."

How Flood Relief is Spent

Again came a shouted question regarding flood relief money. The Chairman left the floor momentarily to the front of the platform and answered the query.

"I want to know who got all the money," he demanded.

"Mr. Chairman", agreed Alderman Lewis.

"The flood relief money, raised by subscriptions of the people, was handled by a local committee of fourteen prominent citizens. I was one of the committee. We could not estimate for a shilling who had suffered the most damage; we made a careful and thorough investigation, to those who needed it most, according to the degree of need that existed. The judgment of this committee was excellent in my opinion, and you have a statement of what the money was given where it was needed most. I think it was a fair job we made. Does that answer your question?" he enquired, unidentified questioner smiled.

"If elected, next year at this time I hope to be through committees and may further be able to make that Belleville will be in a better position than she is today," concluded Alderman Lewis.

INDUSTRIES

Alderman Clifford Bongard, chairman of Industries and Publicity committee, was next called upon for a few remarks.

"What I've industries have we had during the past year," queried Chairman. "Any member of the subject of Industries will please say the Alderman.

Well, we have one in the old rubber plant building.....

"Again this year in the industry" also back the front row. "We still need in this city is an industrial commissioner.

"I agree, we do need a real live industrial man here, and if we get more industries we've got to be prepared to spend money to go out and get them", reminded Alderman Barager. "If the citizens with this in mind then all they have to do is indicate their desire."

"I heard no reflection upon any one in particular when I spoke," declared the questioner. "My contention is that there is not enough in the past to get smoke with a cheque for $5,000. One man refuses work because he thinks that when he is getting isn't enough. Belleville is not dead. We are in line with the present economic conditions that exist."

"Let us not have too much smoke optimism. There has been no real industrial development in the past warranted. He thanked the electors for the confidence he had shown him in the past and expressed the desire to serve in the same manner should re-elected.

SUPPORTING BAND GRANT BYLAW

The Ontario Intelligencer would ask the voters to give sympathetic consideration to the bylaw proposing a grant of $1,200 a year to the municipal band. A city without a musical organization of this kind is a sorry and risky one for the hand-in-hand use of the cultural factors in a municipality, and has a large part in the creation of the public spirit.

Therefore it is urged that the bylaw be given sympathetic consideration by the voters.

MONDAY'S ELECTION

"Are you in favour of an application being made to the Legislature to pass an Act empowering the Council to appoint and employ a City Manager, having authority to manage and control generally the administrative affairs of The Corporation of the City of Belleville and to perform such duties as the Council from time to time by By-law, may define?"

Above is the question on the ballot for an expression of opinion on the city manager plan in which the voters will vote on Monday. If you are in favor of an application being made to the Legislature to pass an act empowering the City Council of Belleville to employ a competent person to act as a manager in charge of city business put your cross opposite YES. If opposed put the cross opposite NO. The Act would in effect be a charter presenting in a general way the duties, powers and limitation of the city manager.

Besides the hundreds of municipalities in the United States which have city manager systems Canada has the following: Woodstock, N.B.; Chatham; Niagara Falls, Ontario; Grand Mere; La Toque; Montreal East, Outremont, Mount Royal, St. Lambert, Shawinigan Falls, Temiskaming, Westmount, Wilmes, Lethbridge, Alberta. In all these places the system has been found to be far ahead of the old system in point of efficiency, economy and a boon for taxpayers.

That the plan would work well in Belleville is confidently believed by those who advocate the city managership principle.

The alarming hogy that a city council of seven members would afford an opportunity for a majority to control has been raised. The majority always controls and if the electors put in good men, where is the danger? Electors are not in the habit of putting undesirables in office if they can help it. In any event a small council would be quick to resent and punish such actions as hinted at. In any event a small council is more easily controlled than a large council where the vote is so scattered that it is more easy to get elected.

With a small council, the voters can concentrate their strength and completely wipe out a condition if unsatisfactory. That is the reason that many favor the bylaw calling for a reduction in the membership of the council to 7 to seven, namely a mayor and six aldermen.

Thirteen aldermen are required for 1937 council. The bylaw on the question of reduction in council membership does not apply to this year of course.

The times demand that there be a full and complete expression of attitude.

Lack of attention to the civic duty in voting is something all too prevalent in many parts of the Dominion. Let Belleville voters show that they appreciate the privileges and duty which are theirs in the ballot.

REDUCING ACCIDENTS

Highway accidents over the New Year's holiday were fewer in number. The weather conditions were more favorable than at Christmastime when the toll was very heavy, some of the many accidents at that time no doubt being due to the condition of the roads.

But there is no doubt that the stressing of the determination of the authorities to have the laws regarding motoring observed, more particularly in respect to the driving of cars by intoxicated persons, has had a good effect. There is no reason at any time that a driver who is even slightly under the influence of liquor should drive a car. He should know before he takes the drink if he is going to drive or not. If he is going to drink he should make provision for conveyance of himself and car. It is said that at New Year's when the hilarity is usually high some persons took no chances with the possibility of their condition and so secured professional drivers, taxicabs, to take them from their homes to places of entertainment and thence back home.

That was a wise precaution and indicates that people had read and digested the statement of the Hon. A. W. Roebuck that every police officer would be on duty on the highways over the holiday to see that drunken drivers did not use the roads.

Such is the attitude which drivers ought to preserve at all times. There is no room for an intoxicated driver or for a driver who is inclined to become so engrossed in the plans of the occupants of the car that he may become careless.

The people should see that they can drive with a large measure of safety. They are expected to do so and must do so.

THE HOME FORUM

Discussion of the events of the day, based generally on the editorial matter as supplied by the home newspaper—under the pending heading of Sidelights Grave and Gay. — Supervised by The Lamplighter.

THERE WOULD NOT SEEM TO BE ANY NEED FOR MORE INFORMATION upon the city manager plan. The matter has been gone into very thoroughly in this newspaper and all information possible secured and published. A committee of the City Council enquired into the plan and found it good. Surely folks understand it now.

MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT under the city manager plan is so simple that a child may understand it. It is merely applying business principles to the business of the municipality. The city manager is appointed by the council and held responsible for the successful and efficient conduct of the city business. He is over all departments and under the direction of the city council. The difference with the present system is that the city manager has a head for each department who knows his own department only, but is supreme with no head but the Mayor and council. The new plan is one head of departments. Could anything be simpler? Just applying the best business principles to public business.

WHY HAVEN'T MORE COMMUNITIES CHANGED TO THE CITY MANAGER PLAN? Largely because of the apathy of citizens who realize that some change should be made but do not take the trouble to enquire into any other methods and express themselves at the polls in favor of a change. This apathy adds strength to the hostile vote and influence of those electors who oppose any change only for personal reasons. The negative vote is active, the affirmative vote is weak and difficult to get to the polls at all, while the negative vote has turned out to the last man being directly interested.

WHISPERS HAVE CIRCULATED THAT A SMALLER COUNCIL WOULD GIVE OPPORTUNITY FOR MANIPULATION, if not something worse. It is asserted that in a council of five or seven four could control it. Why not? Four is a majority and does not the majority always rule? That a council of fourteen is safer on account of numbers is hard to see. Rather the larger the council the easier for the unscrupulous element to get in. A small group of men in any council can practically dominate it, and if their domination is for the general good, what about it? There seems to be a captious criticism opposition campaign under way on behalf of those who do not want any change, figuring that no matter how bad the old system is it is good enough for them. A large council is obsolete, is out of date and so is the entire old system.

MUNICIPAL ADMINSTRATION JOGS ALONG IN THE SAME OLD WAY year after year, never improving. Modern business changes rapidly. Consider the automotive business, a comparatively recent industry. Every year has shown improvement in production methods, models and power, also sales methods. Model T, Fords and V8's are so different that they would never be recognized as cousins.

ELECTORS SHOULD EXERCISE THEIR FRANCHISE. While the council is practically picked, there is a straight contest for Mayor and the various ballots on which to record an opinion as to changes contemplated. Citizenship requires much at the most, but, at the least, demands that every elector record his or her opinions at the polls. Be a good citizen.

A NEW VERSION

Line from a writer vacationing at Palm Springs: "Having a fine time; wish I could afford it."

Band Grant Bylaw

126 Victoria Ave., Jan. 1, 1936
To The Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,
Dear Sir:

May I be granted a small space in your paper to explain the Band Grant By-Law to the people of Belleville.

For the past five years of depression your Band has received very little support from the city. In 1934, the Band received as a grant $300. In 1935 received $100. In 1936 nothing. I cannot speak for 1934, in May, 1935, I was appointed Bandmaster of the Municipal Band without money. At that time your band re-organized and became all that its name implied Municipal—in word and deed; every man pledging himself to serve without pay, and work for the cause of music in our community and to entertain those who had not the means to pay for any other kind of pleasure.

In 1935 we played for the V.O.N. carnival giving our services. The carnival meeting with success, they generously donated us the sum of $30.00.

We played seven concerts in the city parks, each one for one of the different service clubs, put on seven relief dances, and gave to the city in goods and money to the value of $700.00. I would like to ask the Service Clubs and the War Veterans organizations what they would do without us at their several functions. I wonder those who ask for the service of the band really know that every time your band turns out, it has to put into use nearly $5000.00 worth of equipment. I could go on to enumerate the many things your band has done but, what has been done has been done without recognition and with a desire to serve. The majority has been the kind and in the last twenty months, and I leave the listener to judge its value to the playing ability.

But all things that are not supported must fail. The band proper has come to an end. We are without funds, therefore, every member must either receive support or cease to exist.

In order that bands should be encouraged, the Ontario government passed a law whereby any municipality, may, by the vote of the people, grant up to 1-4 of a band. The amount for which your band is asking, namely, one hundred dollars per month, is not an exorbitant sum to ask for, when one considers the time which the individual members offer at a personal sacrifice to themselves and members of their family.

A great number of municipalities equal in size to Belleville or smaller, in fact for years made substantial grants for the upkeep of their bands, roughly in amounts from $500 to $2000.

I feel that the citizens of Belleville are as appreciative of good music as those of other cities, and I feel confident that they will show their appreciation by voting for the Band Grant By-Law. They go to the polls on Monday, Jan. 4.

Thanking you, Sir, for your courtesy, I am,

Sincerely yours,
Fred Johson, Lieut.,
Bandmaster,
Belleville Municipal Band.

SUPPORT BAND GRANT

Belleville, Ont., Dec. 31, 1936
Editor Ontario Intelligencer,
Dear Sir:

Our Municipal Band is asking for a yearly grant of $1200, the taxes for this would be infinitesimal and I do hope this by-law will carry because the record of the band in the past is one that Belleville should be proud of. The band is acknowledged to be one of the very best maintain it, and encourage its development.

A city of this size without a band would be retrograding. See the advertisement we get all over Canada. The band is an asset we can ill afford to be without, would we have the heart sitting of the martial and other music, I'll say No let's vote for it.

Yours truly,
Your Editor for publication.

Who's Who in Contests For Municipal Offices

IN MAYORALTY.

Mayor Harry Hill.

Who is seeking a second term as the city's Chief Magistrate, has a record of six years' service as alderman, and one year as mayor. During the past year the pledge of economy has been well enforced. Born in this section, Mayor Hill has been a continuous resident of Belleville for many years where he carries on the business of car salesman and dealer, representing a well known make. His chief job during the past year has been that of the mayoralty office upon which he spent much time and effort.

Alderman Richard Arnott,

Making his first bid for mayoralty honors this year, has served two terms as alderman, holding the office of Chairman of Industry during 1935 and Chairman of Tourist and Publicity during the year just ending. A barrister and attorney-at-law, Alderman Arnott is a native of Belleville, son of Belleville's late Mayor Arnott and a grandson of Mayor Payne and Arnott of this city. He graduated from Osgoode Hall in 1927 and has practised here since.

IN ALDERMANIC CONTEST.

Alderman Harold Aconmen,

Is one of the younger members of the present council whose seat was elected by acclaim. He has a record of five years in city council serving during the last term as Chairman of Water. His service to the city also includes a term on the Board of Education. A continuous resident of the city for the past twenty-five years, Alderman Aconmen is a valued employee of the Canadian National Railways. He has twice contested the mayoralty

Alderman T. J. Wallace,

Who is offering himself for the fourth term as one of the most important aids in council during the past year, that of Chairman of Finance for which he has kept control. One of city's best known barristers, his past experience has been a valuable aid in the deliberations of council during the years. A native of Belleville he is a son of the late Joseph Wallace, K.C., of this city. For seventeen years he served as secretary of the Belleville Harbor Board and has long been closely identified with many of the city's leading organizations. His policy of economy has been well recognized.

Alderman C. Gifford Barrager,

Is seeking re-election for a second term. During the past year he held the chairmanship of Industries, working closely between council and the local Chamber of Commerce. He has long been identified with numerous activities of the city and is past president of the Belleville-Kiwanis Club. Besides his keen interest in municipal affairs Alderman Barrager is an enthusiast of amateur sports. A native of Hastings County he has made Belleville his place of residence for many years managing one of the larger Auto service stations.

Alderman Thos. Cushing,

Who held the honor during part of Chairman of Market and City Property during the past year, is a well distinguished one owing to the many improvements which were made in city property. Alderman Cushing seeks a fourth term in city council where he has long been noted for his activity in the promotion of better facilities for the attraction of tourists to the city. He is particularly known for his effort in providing a bathing beach south of the city toward this end. A resident of Belleville for the past thirty-six years, he has a long record with the Canadian National Railways. His motto has been "A more beautiful Belleville".

Alderman C. B. Clapp.

Again puts himself to the electorate for a second term. One of the younger members of the past council he has been an active and keenly critical. A firm believer in amateur sports, he has always found every department of athletics at present prominent of the Belleville Baseball Club. During the year he held the chairmanship of Parks and Recreation and is manager of a large auto service station.

Alderman Laurie Lewis.

Who has served with notable distinction as chairman of one of the most difficult departments in the council—that of welfare—is again in the field. Through careful management of department Alderman Lewis has effected a saving of nearly one half over the previous year. One of the city's prominent merchants, Alderman Lewis has applied the same business principles to affairs of council. A close student of economics he has always been active and active part in municipal affairs since accepting his first civic appointed house several years ago.

Alderman Glen Thompson.

Is in the field for third time as alderman. During his first term he held the chairmanship of Labor, but during the term he held no civic office, working in conjunction with other councils. A keen student of affairs of city which has manifested itself throughout his term has been one of his most valuable aids as a proprietor of one of the city's largest garages Alderman Thompson has made his home in Belleville for many years.

Alderman T. Y. Wills.

Who is offering himself for the fourth term as one of the most important aids in council during the past year, that of Chairman of Finance for which he has kept control. One of city's best known barristers, his past experience has been a valuable aid in the deliberations of council during the years. A native of Belleville he is a son of the late Joseph Wallace, K.C., of this city. For seventeen years he served as secretary of the Belleville Harbor Board and has long been closely identified with many of the city's leading organizations. His policy of economy has been well recognized.

Alderman [illegible],

Kingston, is the past term for his advocacy of municipally sale of the city gas plant, securing a second for the furtherance of that project. A merchant of the city with him the same for the past two years as alderman. His past term has been unusually vigilant over [illegible] dent, that of gas.

[illegible],

Another municipal [illegible] his second bid to [illegible]. He brings with [illegible] municipal affairs [illegible] lengthy study [illegible] of economy. 55th ANNIVERSARY OF THEIR WEDDING MARKED SUNDAY

Mr. And Mrs. John Wallace Recall Events of Marriage Day—

Trenton, Jan. 9 (Special) — With a number of close friends and relatives attending Mr. and Mrs. John Wallace of Dundas Street east will celebrate their 55th wedding anniversary tomorrow (Sunday, January 3rd.). At Maple Hill, 1867 at the Anglican Church rectory the couple were united in holy matrimony by the Rev. Hansforth. They travelled to Deseronto by horse and buggy for a short honeymoon. "The roads were open and there was not a bit of snow anywhere fifty-five years ago tomorrow," Mr. Wallace said, "and the weather corresponded with the same type of winter we are having this year, up to date." The Wallaces resided in Prescott for four years and moved to Trenton where they have lived for over fifty years. They have resided at their present residence for well over thirty years. At the village of Trenton eighty years ago, Mr. Wallace was born, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Wallace. When 13 years old he was selling tea on the Great Lakes on a freighter and it wasn't long before he was a master mariner. After forty-five years of sailing the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence, Mr. Wallace retired in 1914, and, although he is over 70 years old, enjoys the best of health and is remarkably active. Each day he walks to the post office from his home, a distance of two miles return, and besides, he chops all his wood for the house and does all the odd chores. His wife, the former Annie Gooden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gooden of United Empire Loyalist stock, was born in Prescott and at 17 years of age was married. For nine years she and her husband lived on the Great Lakes and never became tired of the water and said she was homesick when it was time to discontinue sailing in the fall. Mrs. Wallace said she never was lonesick in her life and on the night of October 2nd, on the anniversary of the 14th, many years ago when 52 people were crowded on Lake Erie and 23 in a sack to a watery grave on all the lakes she was the only woman aboard and when D. R. Vandlan who weathered the entire storm. "I remember you would think the boat was going under when a large wave would sweep over her bow," Mrs. Wallace said, and said "I never expected to see the daylight again." When Fort Erie was sighted in the morning there was a big cheer and a joke on board and on land and a body of town people were out to greet us," she added. In connection Mrs. Wallace said "we have enjoyed married life greatly and credits their fifty-five years of happiness to satisfaction each other in every opportunity. Mrs. Wallace is still very active and attends to the duties of her home.

New Year's Eve Dance Well Attended

One of the gayest social functions of the year, the Annual Community New Year's Eve Dance was largely attended on Thursday night, and couples crowded the evening affair attended from Belleville, Brighton, Trenton and the surrounding district. The hall was decorated splendidly for the occasion and Warham's orchestra supplied the music for the many dancers. During the evening a prize was given for the lucky partner and Miss Rhoda Lee Dier was in charge of the dance were O. Newton and J. Kirkham.

The Hinde and Dauch Recreation Club accommodated two hundred couples in their hall and all the good cheer and five hours of lively dancing was enjoyed. Clyde Hartman's band supplied the music and decorations in green and red with the lighting effects all lent a perfect setting for the gay event. Balloons and noisemakers added to the merriment that ushed the New Year in with a bang. Committee in charge were George Belbin (chairman); W. Inglis, J. Groves.

Mrs. Rose Lamore, 91, wife of Amedee Lamore, Marmora Street, who resided in Mount Calvary cemetery yesterday, following services in St. Peter's Catholic Church. Rev. Dean J. J. O'Reilly sang solemn Requiem Mass. Pallbearers were J. Holmes, F. Bube, J. McNaughey, O. Allore, T. Quinn, L. LaBelle.

Stirling's Grand Old Couple Celebrate 59th Anniversary Of Their Wedding New Year's

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eggleston Spent The Day Quietly With Relatives

BOTH ARE WELL.

New Year's Day found a great deal more to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eggleton of Stirling, than to most people who considered it an occasionary somewhat celebration. For on that day, this very active and happy couple began their sixtieth year of wedded life together, celebrating their 59th wedding anniversary, they spent the day quietly, surrounded by their proud family. In the evening they were guests at a supper party given in their honor at the home of their son Mr. Irvine Eggleton and his family. After supper they listened to the radio, unmindful of the fact that prompty at eight the broadcasting station to which they were listening would broadcast a special message of congratulations and good wishes for the old Methodist Church. After all many long distance messages, now in his eighteenth year and one of Stirling's oldest citizens still enjoys the happy companionship of the one who has been near and dear to him for three score years. Passing through the happy moments together and comforting each other in the days of sadness. The two looked upon the incoming of 1937 with the vigour and anticipation of a couple just starting out together. Both smiled a modest greeting when the press offered his sincere good wishes for their future.

Looking into the faces of the sturdy couple one could not help but see a true picture of the sturdy pioneer stock from which they sprung. Mrs. Eggleton was formerly Miss Mary Carey, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Carey pioneers of Rawdon agriculture who farmed on the Ridge road. Mr. Eggleton's father, David Eggleton was born in Norfolk, England, and came here in his country when only five years old with his parents who were among the earliest settlers in Rawdon township in Hastings district which is so widely known as one of the best in the district.

After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Eggleton lived on a farm in Rawdon township until about thirty years ago when they moved with their family to Stirling where the family is now all grown up some having families of their own. Despite most are close by their parents together with families of their own. Ten members of the family are all alive and enjoy good health mainly; Mrs. Benson, Mrs. Hutchinson; Gilbert who resides in Brandon, Manitoba; Mrs. Egerton, Stirling; Mrs. A. Reid, Ottawa; Mrs. Phillips, Belleville; Mrs. Miskaly of Madoc; Irvine, Hector and Roy Eggleton of Stirling and Miss Ivy Eggleton of Belleville. Those are the children named according to their ages. They are also twenty-five grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Mr. Eggleton's fondness for children is apparent in the fact that he has officiated for many years as Sunday School superintendent of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church Stirling where he has been a valued member of the Kirk Session. Both Mr. and Mrs. Eggleton are active in the work of the church and their youngest son Mr. Roy Eggleton is a member of the Church Board. Other Mr. Eggleton Sr., conducts the lesson in the Young Men's Bible Class of which he is an honorary President, and all the young men of this organization speak with great pride of the interest shown by him in all their activities.

CATHOLIC CHURCH

their church go up in flames.

Blaze Spreads Rapidly.

Once the fire broke through the floor to the altar, it spread very rapidly. The altar itself, the floor fell into the basement, and shortly afterwards part of the tower came crashing down into the ruins of the interior of the building. At nine o'clock only the walls were standing and the ruins were smouldering as the fire burned itself out.

Father J. K. Malloux was in the sanctuary when the alarm was given. He had just entered the edifice to prepare for the morning Mass. A worshipper at Mr. Campbell was also in the church when the fire was noticed. They both made their way inside a desperate but vain effort to save the sacred Host and articles of the priest's vestments but the whole affair seemed to literally burst out into flames.

Residence Saved.

Fortunately the wind was in a favorable direction and the priest's residence, twenty feet on one side of the building was saved as well as the convent and school buildings.

Only one small hose, operated by electricity from the factory, was available for fighting the fire. This small stream was entirely inadequate to cope with the flames.

The loss includes all the furnishings of the basement, fitted up as a parish hall. It also contained a small altar, used on various occasions in ministering to the people of that district.

SMALL MARKET AFTER NEW YEAR'S

Scattered Crowd of Buyers Greets Few Vendors on Saturday

With the majority of the city population recuperating from the extravagance of the New Year Party, a scattered crowd of potential purchasers greeted a small number of farmers at the city market this morning.

The usual overflow from the geese and turkey market was conspicuous by its absence today as the only fowl on the market were a few scattered chickens which sold at prices ranging from 20 cents up. There were no turkeys, ducks or geese available at an early hour.

Eggs, however showed a marked downward trend over the holiday prices with "A" selects varying in price between thirty and thirty-five cents. One lady vendor with a supply of leghorn eggs which measured in the vicinity of eight inches in circumference offered her stock at 25 cents the dozen. "A" candlums sold at from 20 to 21 cents with the pullet variety being quoted at 25 cents.

Farmers butter held firm at the holiday prices of 36 cents for two pound rolls. Honey was quoted at fifty cents per five pound pail with lesser quantities selling at the same price scale. Whipping cream was firm at 15 and thirty cents per half pint and pint respectively.

On the outside market staple winter vegetables dominated a slow moving mart with varying prices being asked. One vendor set a flat rate of thirty cents the bushel lot for his stock of onions, carrots, turnips, parsnips and beets. Other vendors quoted their prices to the neighborhood of from forty to fifty cents the bushel lot. Potatoes were scarce and commanded the holiday prices of $1.25 per ninety pound bag. White cabbage was offered at five and ten cents the head with small-sized mixed squash being offered at the same prices.

Business in 1937 To Smash All Records

expansion is probably over. The past two years have shown steadily speedy recovery.

Hence, it is logical to assume that the rate of advance will gradually lessen. After a careful study of basic conditions, it appears that every one of the Canadian provinces will register substantial improvement during the coming year. The signals indicate that the 1937 total for quantity production will be as a whole will be from 5-10 per cent over last Year's figures. This would put Canada at a new all-time peak—well above the 1929 pinnacle.

FOREIGN TRADE OUTLOOK

One of the main pegs on which I hang my optimism is the outlook for foreign commerce. The Canadian-United States Trade Pact has been a big spur to Dominion business during the past year. Since the agreement went into effect back in 1935, Canadian exports have expanded steadily so that they are now at the highest point in more than seven years. Imports from the United States have also shown healthy growth. Latest figures record the largest monthly total since May, 1931.

England would undoubtedly like the majority of the concessions which have been accorded the United States at the Ottawa Imperial Conference to be held in London in mid-1937 should not, however, bring any major changes in the status of the Agreement. I confidently expect a further expansion in Canada's foreign trade over the coming year. The dominion's foreign customers, particularly wood buyers, are purchasing more freely than at any time since pre-depression days. It is likely that wood pulp and lumber exports in 1937 will average 20 per cent higher than in the past year.

HEAVY INDUSTRIES TO LEAD

Expanding commerce will force domestic industrial activity to continue its rapid expansion. At the head of the parade will be the heavy industries such as building and mining. Total building activity may increase as much as 25 per cent in 1937. The reaction which has been in evidence in this industry in recent months has now run its course. Residential building has already started total construction ever since 1933 but the gains during the coming year may push home building as high as 40 per cent above the 1936 average. The combination of Federal-Provincial housing projects operations will give a marked impetus to construction.

An improvement of as much as 15-20 per cent should be seen in the basic iron and steel industry during 1937. Structural steel, pig iron, heavy machinery and the automobile output declined slightly in the twelve months just closed, but this was chiefly due to a drop in automobile exports. Barring radical changes in the foreign situation, 1937 production of automobiles should show a slight increase over the old year since domestic demand is now on a rising scale.

MINING TO REACH NEW PEAKS

Even though the mining industry in Canada has been surging steadily ahead right through the depression, it does not yet seem to have reached its peak. Mineral output in 1936 will total to $325,000,000 and 1937 will be a year of extended increases. Not only will gold output in volume may exceed 1936 levels by 5 per cent.' Coal mines will be busy. There is a possibility of a gain in output of as much as 10 per cent during the next twelve-month period. Nickel and copper should all share in the betterment in production and prices.

Newsprint output is one of the most important barometers of Canada's business activity. During 1936 it hit new all-time peaks and showed an advance for the year of 16 per cent. Both the foreign and domestic markets for newsprint may be better this coming year than at any time in Canada's history! I look for new peaks in newsprint production and a further gain of between five and seven per cent. Textiles, particularly in Quebec and Ontario, should share in the boom which is in evidence in the States.

LABOR PICTURE UNCERTAIN

There is one dark spot, however—the labor problem. Despite our gains, we are still in a critical position in the business cycle. We cannot afford to have any serious labor troubles in 1937 on either side of the border. The labor situation may come to a head during the spring months when increased demands, because of the pressure of steadily higher living costs, will be brought to bear by workers upon their employers. If this situation is not understanding on both sides, however, could bring about peaceful and happy settlement without endangering prosperity.

How, what about the farm outlook? Even though crops should be relatively small, I feel that farm purchasing power will be greater than during the year just past. An analysis shows that fully 75 per cent of the people of Canada have greatly improved their economic condition since the pit of the depression. In other 25 per cent, who are still experiencing hard times, are farmers who have had hard luck with their crops.

GAINS IN BUYING POWER

Any iron-clad forecast of 1937 farm purchasing power at this time would be extremely hazardous. Agricultural income depends so heavily upon the weather that forecasts this far in advance are of little value. However, I can predict that greater purchasing power depends almost entirely upon an increase in crops for I do not expect grain prices to be much higher next Christmas than they are today. Other than national purchasing power should, nevertheless, improve for industrial prosperity should show a gain of at least fifteen per cent during the New Year.

STOCKS TO GO HIGHER

Progress is being made in the financial field also. Securities are continuing their strong up-trend. Bonds are nearing their ceiling and their national purchasing power in 1937. There will be an increase in company profits and dividends during the coming twelve months. I am still bullish on shares. The bull market in Canadian stocks is not yet over but some speculators are due to get their fingers severely burned unless they handle gold stocks with kid gloves.

In brief, as 1937 opens the outlook for the coming twelve months is bright. I sincerely believe that some of the greatest opportunities in the world today lie in Canada. Although temporarily held back by the great depression from which we have just emerged, as a nation you and now ready to push on to new peaks of progress and development. Any recession in business during 1937 will be but a temporary interruption in your basic upward swing. In the years to come, I predict that the New Year decades of 1937 will mark in your minds the opening of a new and great era of prosperity for the Dominion of Canada!

BEHIND BIG EVENTS

IN WORLD AFFAIRS

OH "GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENTS"

Not long ago, we were encouraged to expect that the conflict of interests between Great Britain and Italy at the eastern Mediterranean would be settled within a few days. It is to be regretted that the conclusion of a "Gentlemen's Agreement," as between Britain and Italy, would be so found as to relieve the other from anxiety and from precaution. And yet, what is the contrast in fact to such soothing power? And what is the reason for those that can conclude it?

One thinks of a Gentlemen's Agreement as contrasted with other forms of agreement in respect of that reliable honor which is supposed in characterizing gentlemen. Gentlemen not break their word, even though it be through keeping it is great, because more than any other loss to them would be the loss of honor. Unfortunately, as in the Spanish case, be such scruples to another class, whose members may with Mark Twiley that they have no personal acquaintance with what the feelings gentlemen.

x x x

It is this absence of guarantee that makes the difference. A note of hand, whether secured by stocks, collateral, or secured by adequate endorsement on the back, is no doubt a valuable document, and makes a gentleman, but it is not in the sense gentleman's agreement. Nor does one's bill at the bank, which he may fail under that designation, though one's wager on a horserace does.

x x x

Suppose, then that Fascist Italy (if it be Italy rather than its dictator) with no safeguard for fulfilment but the honor of the word, that she will respect the status quo in the eastern Mediterranean, that she will enter into conversations with Britain on Britain's tenure of Gibraltar, that she will continue to be barrier of all the marines and aircraft between the points in the Mediterranean named to each other—by which the interests of British ships to Port Said; on route for India, Australia, China and British people then rest in peace, and that Britain will not object to particular slam in past? One is tempted to say that Fascist Italy required such character to justify such trust in what bankers would call its "gentlemen's agreement."

x x x

And then there comes to mind various examples of Fascist Italy's conduct in the hotbed word in the past. Here is one, and there are many not unlike it. Oh, August 1935 a Gentlemen's Agreement was concluded with the government of Ethiopia, entitled "Treaty of Friendship and Arbitration," one article of which reads as follows:

"Both governments undertake to submit to a procedure of conciliation before arbitration all disputes which may arise between them and which it may not have been possible to settle by ordinary diplomatic methods, without having recourse to armed force. Notice shall be exchanged by common agreement between the two governments regarding the manner of appointing arbitrators.

As the old saying goes, comment is superfluous. We give the simple statement of that conclusion to produce its own effect.

x x x

Perhaps, however, while not an isolated case, this was the one of a group of cases (all isolated) which the perverse ingenuity of Mussolini's critics has induced them to bring together for his indictment? He had a long list. But they were not a few national leaders have done shady things when in a tight corner diplomatically, without having thereby their characters for all time to suffer. Let us look them over. He has anywhere told us of a higher principle which governs this for, in general, and from which this was but a single deflection.

x x x

We are fortunate in having Mussolini's explicit declaration on the basis by which his diplomacy is determined. He has told us that his fellow-countryman, Nicolas Machiavelli, about whom he has long announced his desire to preserve the guiding inspiration of his books in the whole Fascist regime; keeping the closest contact "between Machiavelli's thought and my thought on men and affairs; between Machiavelli's practice and my practice of governing." So our next move is to discover what exactly, this model of force, Machiavelli, has proclaimed in matters of statesmanship, particularly in respect of honor and good faith.

The annual for the statesman which has come to us from Machiavelli's pen is delightfully lucid on this particular section. Here is one paragraph:

Our experience has been that those princes who have done great things have held good faith of little account and have known how to circumvent the intellects of men by craft, and in the end have overcome those who have relied on fair dealing.

That last sounds like a description of what happened to Haile Selassie, does it not?

x x x

Still further, and more definitely, Machiavelli is an art of statesmanship, Machiavelli declares:

Therefore a wise lord cannot, nor ought he to keep faith when such observance may be turned against him, and when the reasons examples could be given showing how many treaties and engagements have been rendered void and of no effect through the faithlessness of princes; and he who has known best how to employ the fox has succeeded best.

x x x

Finally, it is pointed out that one must be very artful about the whole matter:

It is necessary to know well how to disguise this characteristic, and to be a great pretender and dissembler; and men are so simple, and so much subject to present necessities, that he who wishes to deceive will always find someone who will allow himself to be deceived.

Such is the advice given to rulers by the keen thinker whom Mussolini has taken for his pattern, declaring the closest confidence between Machiavelli's practice, and my practice of governing." So our next move is to discover what, exactly, this model of force, Machiavelli, has proclaimed in matters of statesmanship, particularly in respect of honor and good faith.

x x x

Is Hitler a suitable partner for such bargaining in another place? He too has produced his own literary handbook to his methods. In a later column I shall discuss the conclusions which suggest, and those which would rather discountenance, a Gentlemen's Agreement with Nazi Germany.

March of Modern Progress Beats Last Stage Driver

BY G. D. CARRUTHERS
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

"CAP" HOWARD

London, Ont. Jan. 2—When progress demanded the assertion, "Cap" Howard gave up his state coach and his team of horses and tried to be happy driving a less exciting high-powered car in Toronto.

But life had changed.

It's hard, now, sped. But the old friendliness was gone. People were in a hurry. "Cap" was the last active stage coach driver in the province and almost 60 years of age, has retired after 31 years. Driving. Perhaps he will spend his time to advance. Make that time he will search for another team and a stage coach that he like to take their time along a wide, open road.

"Cap" believes there are still those "drivers" who like their horses and their coaches for more buses. "Cap" will be among those who kept going.

While most of the time two horses pulled the coach, there was a period when a single team put into place between two blood horses.

"That mule taught me everything I know about driving horses," said "Cap" says. "I was afraid every time I took the reins, especially in the daylight out of the poor old mule. I'd be sure that something would have happened had that mule ever got loose with a bawl. Those horses knew more about driving than a customer who found a bottle of whiskey broken in his suitcase."

Not So Hot!

When the coach was overloaded, the driver had to perch himself on top. On these occasions "Cap" is sometimes a bit disloyal to his horses.

"I'd get perched up there with a load of 30 people, and the horses and them I'd wish I'd gone into the hotel business or something else not quite so chilly."

But these lapses were only occasional. "Cap" remained loyal through the years and now he has retired, perhaps to seek another with maybe a mule between.

The story of an uncommon journey, an unusual trip, is the one told by James C. Wilson in his book "Three-Wheeling Through Africa."

The author and his friend, Francis Flood, were taking a trip around the world to complete their education. They were graduating from the University of Nebraska. They were caught in the spell of the Dark Continent and left shipboard on the outskirts of Cape Town, South Africa. Here they decided to attempt a rush journey, never before attempted, from the Cape to Cairo. Every odyssey commences with the one commencement. "One impossible" and "one" greeting on arrival at the completion of their journey, so the commencement of the narrative would be unbelievable but

EXPERIENCE OF CHATHAM WITH CITY MANAGER PLAN

BELLEVILLE CITY COUNCIL FOR 1936, in an effort to promote efficiency in municipal government, appointed a committee to investigate the city manager form of government which is rapidly becoming the most favored municipal institution in Canada and the United States. The aldermanic committee found that the city manager plan had been tried in the world first in 1914 and has since grown in favor very rapidly. Believing that there is considerable merit in the city manager system over the present system of municipal government the committee recommended that the question be submitted to the ratepayers at the municipal election and this was arranged for. Now it is up to the electors. If they are satisfied with the present system they can retain it. If they think the city would profit by a change they have only to say so. To bring the city manager system into force it will be necessary, once it is approved by the electors, to have a special act passed by the legislature. The nearest place to Belleville having experience with the city manager system of government is Chatham, and this newspaper wrote the editor of the newspaper there asking for information as to the working of the system there, and here is the answer:

CHATHAM'S EXPERIENCE

For many years prior to 1922 the City of Chatham was "investigating" the Council-Manager form of government. A delegation from Oshawa, Texas, after a municipal disaster formed a Government by Commission. Chatham had two newspapers, The News and The Planet — which have since been amalgamated into The Chatham Daily News — and when I tell you that both papers at that time were strong advocates of the Council-Manager plan, you will realize that it must possess some merits, for in those days newspapers just looked for an opportunity to get on opposite sides of the fence.

In 1922 the Council-Manager plan was adopted. There has been no "experimenting" with the plan. It was first adopted and has been in force since — and as far as anyone knows is likely to continue.

It reduced the representation on the city council.

It provides for the election of seven aldermen and a Mayor, by popular vote (not the ward system). The aldermen are elected for two-year terms, three go out in the second year and four the next. The original plan provided for the election of the Mayor for two-year terms, but it was found that when a Mayor was not being elected there was a small vote, so the plan was changed to provide for the election of Mayor for one-year terms. This was the only reason for the change — to get out the vote and keep alive public interest in elections.

The Council and Mayor act as a "board of directors" controlling the policy of the city government, and issuing instructions to officials.

DUTIES OF CITY MANAGER

POPE DISCUSSES CHURCH AFFAIRS

Is Weak From Lack of Sleep and Faces Danger of Gangrene

Vatican City, Jan. 2 (AP)—Weakened by lack of sleep and facing the danger of gangrene in an infected wound in his left leg, Pope Pius Ia-sisted today discussing church problems with a French Archbishop.

The Pontiff, again suffering pain from circulatory obstruction in his leg, received Archbishop Jean Chollet of Cambrai, temporary administrator of the diocese of Rouen.

Physicians labored to build up the Pope's resistance to gangrene by special medication as the possibility of infection in the wound brought fresh fears to attendants.

The Pontiff was declared to have slept only a few hours last night although his pain was less sharp than previously.

Weekly Livestock Report

Toronto, Jan. 2 (CP)—Calf prices up $3.50.

Butcher cows ranged from $2.50 to $3.75 with tops at $4. Bulls sold between $3 and $3.50. Choice fed calves went at $7 to $7.50 and medium graded down to $5.50. Stocker trade was slow at $3.40 to $4.10. Milkers and springers showed little action.

Keen export demand added the calf section. Choice vealers were priced from $10 to $11, common ranging downward to $6. Good heavy calves brought $4.50 to $6 and Waugh who was electrocuted in a coal mine at Nanaimo when he touched a high tension wire. In Vancouver, William Jones died from injuries received in an automobile accident.

Icy roads raised driving dangers in Ontario and two fatalities were reported. Charles Murphy, two, died from burns at Orillia, Sask.

Blinding Sky Dweller

Guelph led Ontario's death list with two. Six-year-old John Thompson drowned when he skated through the thin ice of a pond in the Canadian National Exhibition grounds. Thompson, William Simmons, 30, died from a bullet wound in the head. Police reported Orietta Murphy, two, died from burns at Orillia, Sask.

Blinding Sky Dweller

Guelph led Ontario's death list with two. Six-year-old John Thompson drowned when he skated through the thin ice of a pond in the Canadian National Exhibition grounds. Thompson, William Simmons, 30, died from a bullet wound in the head. Police reported Orietta Murphy, two, died from burns at Orillia, Sask.

Rev. William J. Stanton of Buffalo, well-known Roman Catholic missionary and former athlete, was killed when his car overturned near Chatham. Robert Cleland, 57, died at Listowel in the Stratford district from injuries received in a truck-buggy crash. Toronto's one fatality occurred when Mrs. Ida Mae Daniel-Carthy, 45, from injuries received when struck by an automobile. Jean Hyde, 12, was killed by a train near Perth.

Dies Under Truck

Mrs. Edouard Groulx, 30, was killed near Montreal when pinned beneath a sign overturned truck. Rosario Fontaine, 66, died in hospital in Montreal, victim of a hit-and-run driver.

Drivers, warned of penalties for handling cars while under influence of liquor, apparently obeyed. Western police said they were called upon to make few arrests on drunk charges. Ontario arrests were said to show no startling increase. Police in Montreal reported that the situation as quiet, similar reports came from the Maritimes.

STEAMS ASHORE

Aboard the cruiser, the reports said, the officer was asked to sign a declaration, stating the fo-tion had been halted in retaliation for the seizure of the freighter Palos by Basque Nationalists off Bilbao.

In Reprisal

These measures were ordered, the Blockade Committee said, announced, "with full realization of what the international repercussions may be."

The "measures" not explained in detail, but it was stated two Spanish governmeni submarines and one patrol boat which have been stationed at Bilbao, would be withdrawn to prevent a recurrence of the Soton incident.

The Soton was fired upon and forced aground by the German cruiser Leipzig, which reported "in retention of part of the cargo of the Soton, which the Basque captors of the German freighter Palots. The Palos herself was freed.

GERMANS

"However the whole case can be quickly liquidated by prompt restitution of the officials" statement added.

The Soton incident of yesterday was described officially as "absurd."

"In pursuance of retaliatory measures forbidden to German vessels as a result of the withholding of a portion of the cargo of the passenger of the German freighter Palos—which the seized outside the three-mile limit by Red Spanish naval forces—the German cruiser Koenigsberg ordered the search of the Spanish steamer Soton' to halt.

Blank Shots Fired

"Inasmuch as the steamer failed to obey the order, the German cruiser first fired two blank shots and then —when these produced no results—fired another shot close to the steamer.

"The steamer, still attempting to escape, ran aground outside Santona Harbor, and was voluntarily deserted by her crew. The crew was taken to land in a Spanish fishing vessel.

"The Koenigsberg then resumed her course. No members of the Soton's crew are aboard the Koenigsberg."

German "Volunteer" Reply.

At the same time, the foreign office asserted Germany's reply to the Franco-British plea for a stoppage of volunteer aid to Spain, which it would be delivered "probably early next week."

The Italian Ambassador conferred with Konstantin von Neurath, German Foreign Minister, the report said, preparatory to a meeting of the powers presumably in connection with hardening British, French and Italian replies.

Spanish moves to submit the Palos incident to the London non-intervention committee were said to have been halted by the seizure of the Soton, leading to the belief Hitler was determined to settle the matter directly with the Spanish government.

Diplomatic circles were puzzled whether the German punitive action foreboded an unfavorable answer to Franco-British demands that the flow of German volunteers to the Spanish insurgents be halted.

In Paris the Spanish ambassador was reported to have termed it "an act of war" and "the most serious incident" of the conflict in Spain).

The hog division opened steady but softened. Off truck barons closed at $8.65 to $8.75 with bids lower for week end deliveries. Car hogs were quoted at $8.40 f.o.b. and $8.15 off cars.

Good ewe and wether lambs limited the period at $9.25. Heavies and bucks sold from $7 to $8 and culls brought $7. Sheep were steady at $1.50 to $4.50 cwt.

WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 2 (AP)—The stock market inaugurated the New Year today with generally declining prices.

With motors and steels in the lead, losses of fractions to two or more points were recorded by a wide assortment of issues.

The long-looming conflict in the automobile field, threatening a tie up of all General Motors plants, helped to chill speculative and investment sentiment. The activity was small, however, transfers approximating 700,000 shares.

ANCIENT HOCKEY RIVALS TO USHER IN LOCAL SEASON

Trenton And Belleville Pry Off Lid at Belleville Arena

Three wonderful theories of the ice hockey game, who for years have writhed apart from of this district, will be united at 8.30 o'clock sharp next terms down through the years, will usher in the current hockey season at the Belleville Arena on Monday night when the Trenton Intermediates will meet in the first game of intermediate O.H.A. series. Whenever Trenton and Belleville play, there's always some sticks and pucks with on the ice a steady fire and peppery action that is bound to be worth a lengthy period of pre-season training behind them. Reports from both Belleville and Trenton say the players are ready for the fray.

This season Belleville and Trenton are included in an intermediate O.H.A. "A" grouping along with the Oshawa Generals and the Peterboro Hockey Club, but the former two have only an intermediate history behind them.

At the termination of the recently drafted schedule Belleville and Trenton will cross sticks on the ice a total of six times, three games being played on each of the two home-and-home series. Whether the locals will continue into the intermediate "B" series or not will depend largely on the showing they make in the opening games of the four-game schedule between Trenton and Belleville is of vital importance.

On Monday night the visiting Trenton sextet will present Manager Norm Johnson, Ken Davis, Bowman Savage, Ken Wright, Bobby Orr and many other puckstars who are well known throughout Belleville and district. Trenton sticks are outstanding intermediate players. Manager Thomas has the services of the Deseronto trio"—Tompkins and the Jackson brothers, Dorothy and Dandy St. Louis, Carl Morgan, Jimmie and Freddie McGuire, Bailey and one other player. Trenton Service, Buster Writtle, Harry Ingram, Thomas and Donald Risdale and Fred Bentley are all available for the guard duty to protect Don Morton in the Belleville citadel. The O.H.A. will appoint a neutral referee.

'PANTHERS' GAIN SWEET REVENGE

Pittsburg Win 21-0 Over Washington at Rose Bowl Classic

Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 2 (AP)—The University of Pittsburg Jo Koger will try to avenge the only defeat suffered when the Panthers meet Washington at the Rose Bowl is mentioned. A powerful array of football talent from both teams will be on hand, a lot of old scores and old scars in the New Year's game which finds the University of Washington, best in the west, was rated 21 to 0. A crowd of 75,000 packed the Pittsburgh had the better football but Washington. The Huskies from Seattle never gave up, but the Panthers from Pennsylvania had too many big guns for them. Pitt's great line opening big holes for its backs displayed some of the fine-line play the Rose Bowl has seen.

BRONCOS WIN SUGAR BOWL

New Orleans, Jan. 2 (AP)—Santa Clara's sturdy Broncos rested today on laurels well-earned in a 21-14 victory over Louisiana State University in the third annual Sugar Bowl football classic.

Dashing in the speedy and beautiful red-shirted backers from the West struck a fitting climax to a stirring season by passing their way to a clear-cut triumph before a record bowl gallery of 43,000.

Led by Hollis Dial, Santa Clara's hearty, hard-blocking field general, Santa Clara displayed a masterful defence and an alert attack.

EAST BEATS WEST 2-0

San Francisco, Jan. 2 (AP)—Eastern college football stars carried home today a 3 to 0 victory over the best of the talent of the west in the annual Shrine football game, great Princeton quarterback, Kinnan Dodds.

Some 40,000 fans turned out in dismal weather here yesterday for the 13th renewal of the charity game which saw the eastern team battle the western warriors through a scoreless first half before Sandbach's third-period field-goal turned the trick.

The east proved itself the superior team in the wide-open second half, but on a slippery, muddy turf. The easterners knocked at the western goal in the second period and again a few moments before the final gun.

THREE COUSINS STAR WITH WIN DIFFERENT TEAMS IN NATIONAL HOCKEY LEAGUE

Murray Murdock Syl. Apps Andy Blair

Whether you believe hockey skill runs in families or not, you cannot deny that this trio of puckchasers have left their mark on the ice sport—and they are cousins.

Left to right we present Murray Murdock, 26, Iron man of New York Rangers; Sylvanus Apps, rookie centre of Toronto Maple Leafs, and already accredited with high hockey machting, and "Handy" Andy Blair, great ex-Winnipeg centre, who now plays defence for Chicago Black Hawks. Hawks got Andy from Toronto, where he played most of his pro. career up front, where Apps and the indefatigable Murdock perform just as capably in passing, note the similarity of their styles.

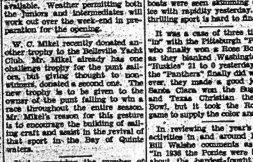
Sport Callings



By Ken Colling

AL Eddie Thomas and George Gay, the latter is manager of the arena by the way, wanted for New Years was a little more cold weather. Providing the mercury hovers below the freezing point over the week-end, the O.H.A. tilt will be kicked off on Monday night when those ancient enemies of the ice lanes, Trenton and Belleville interests, will clash once again. It is four years since Belleville and Trenton intermediate hockey clubs have met in grim competition and the return of these arch enemies should bring out a large following of patrons for the opening game of the season. Ken Davis, who is starring in the Trenton District loop with Carrying Place, Barney York, Bennie Bowen, Norm Johnson, Gord Bowman and other veteran puckstars are with the Trenton team and should make a good combination to stack up against Skipper Thomas' charges.

Incidentally Eddie Thomas informs us he intends to break up his Deseronto "kid line" of Tompkins and the Jackson brothers. Seems Tompkins is still of junior age and Eddie intends to use him as a junior as long as possible. Of course Tompkins is eligible to play two games of intermediate hockey without jeopardizing his junior status, however, added Jim. Cy Barrington's patrol, the right boards along with the Jackson boys. Manager Thomas has a little sky on right hand shots for both his junior and intermediate sextets. The local intermediates are well fortified with defencemen this year, including Harry Ingram, Ahmnis and Gerald Ethier, Fred Bentley of Napanee and Buster Writtle all available. Weather permitting both the Juniors and intermediates will get out over the week-end in preparation for the opening.

W. C. Mikel recently donated another trophy to the Belleville Yacht Club. Mr. Mikel already has one challenge trophy for the past season, but giving thought to non-winners, donated a second one. The new trophy is to be given to the owner of the punt failing to win a race throughout the entire season. Mr. Mikel's reason for this gesture is to encourage the building of sailing craft and assist in the revival of that sport in the Bay of Quinte waters.

It is surprising the number of adults who avail themselves of the out-of-doors skating facilities at the Yacht Club rink on the harbor. Incidentally the Yacht Club officials . . . The Peterboro' scribe laments the fact that Tommy Foley has failed to put in an appearance between the goal posts for the Petes thus far this season. . . . In the Lindsay City hockey practice comes down in front of public skating—the other night the Junior Petes took to the ice at seven and the intermediates at 8:00 bells.

NAPANEE WINS KINGSTON LOOP

Youthful Napanee Squad Win by One Goal Margin

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 2.—Napanee's sensational young team last night won the championship of the Kingston Junior City Hockey League by holding the Doc Myles Club to a 3 to 3 draw in the second game of the finals. Napanee won the opener 3 to 2, and took the title by a single goal.

Napanee players gave full value for their margin in the first period, when they scored their three goals through C. Jackson' Gerow and Tompkins. They had to play defensive hockey to hold Doc Myles scorers in the second period, but it was a terrific battle in the last frame, when Doc Myles scored three goals and was pressing hard when the game ended.

L. Crawford scored the three goals. Napanee kept its regular line of C. Jackson, W. Jackson and Tompkins on the ice for nineteen minutes of the last period and it was only their superb defensive play that held out the determined attack of the Kingston team.

Teams—Goal, Curry; defence, Oliver and Murphy; centre, C. Jackson; wings, Tompkins and W. Jackson; subs, Lessy, Evans, Gerow.

Doc Myles—Goal, Hewitt; defence, Acton and Mooney; centre, Partis; wings, Powell and Burtch; subs, L. Crawford, McColm, Clark and D. Crawford.

Referee—Smith and Watts.

Texas C. Wins Cotton Bowl

Dallas, Texas, Jan. 2 (CP)—Two consecutive post-season "bowl" triumphs were boasted by Texas Christian today—the latest conquest by 16-6 over Marquette in Texas' inaugural Cotton Bowl classic.

The winning Sugar Bowl college a year ago, fired to the limit by "Slingin' Sam" Baugh, passed and smashed yesterday in a thriller witnessed by 30,000 fans.

Baugh, dial of Southwest Conference fame, shared individual honors with a spindly little substitute end, L. D. Meyer. The 196-pound wingman scored every Christian point by bagging two touchdown passes, kicking a field goal and adding an extra point after touchdown.

STILL ACTIVE AFTER 22 YEARS OF SERVICE

Allen Shirk Never Missed a 'First Hockey Practice' in 22 Years

PRESENT GAME FASTER

Kitchener, Ont., Jan. 2 (CP)—Twenty-two years have slipped by since the night young Allen Shirk first skated out to play centre for a Kitchener junior O.H.A. team and since that time, year in and year out the same player has responded to the call of "first practice" without a single break.

Today, now 40 and wearing the 300-mark in goalscoring, Shirk is still active in the game without any thought of retiring. Of late years he has been manager of the Waterloo club in addition to attending to defence chores.

Compared with the brand played in his early years in the game, and in the post-war period, present-day hockey is much faster, said the veteran. One drawback of this forward passing, forechecking era, however, is the absence of the pinched-in neat passing that prevailed before blue-lines were heard of.

"Such passing was an art in itself," he said.

Shirk has no fault to find with the new Canadian Amateur Hockey Association rules governing transfers. It enables a player to capitalize upon his ability to the extent of obtaining a job. Although he said it did work a hardship on the smaller centres competing against larger towns and cities on the player market.

In developing players and teams he had played with and against, Shirk revealed the first year he played in the O.H.A. his club was managed by Frank Selke, and some of the greatest duels that year were with an aggressive centre on the University of Toronto sextet by the name of Conny Smythe.

'Hawks' Win over Detroit

Maroons 3, Toronto 1, Wings 4, Americans 2, and Boston And Rangers Tie

HEAVY WEEK END

Some Clubs Play Three Games in Four Nights as Schedule Advances

Like headwaiters, National League hockey players find some of their busiest moments around the New Year holiday. Rarely rested after four games Thursday and last night, they swing into heat's dozen more over the week-end. Some teams will have played three games in four nights when the pressure eases on Sunday.

Chicago Black Hawks brightened New Year's night by whipping Detroit Red Wings 4-2 and making the United States division a three-cornered affair in the second straight win for the Hawks, something they didn't do in the title season.

Paul Thompson and Pete Palangio gave them a lead in the first period and Johnny Gottselig and Glenn Brydson added to it in the third. Hobs Goodfellow and Larry Aurie produced the Wing counters.

That made it two New Year's Eve wins for Marcons defeated Toronto 3-1 in overtime at the Montreal Red Wings beat New York Americans 4-3 in Detroit and Boston and Rangers battled to a 2-2 tie in Madison Square Garden.

Marcons In Second Place.

Marcons' win, gained on overtime goals by Johnny Gagnon and Bob Gracie, shot them into second place in the Canadian section, two points up on Leafs and Americans. Herb Cain scored in the first period on the final, well-played goal and Syl Apps tied it up with only four minutes of the title left.

The Detroit win over Red Dutch Leon Bram broke their streak in Boston for second place to Rangers, sending them a point ahead of the Bruins. They staged a fine rear guard by Syd Howe, Johnny Sorrell, Wally Kilrea and Harry Jackson while Art Lesmb and Lorne Carr scored for the Americans in the game.

Boston came from behind to win the tie verdict with Rangers. Max Colford and Bill Cowley gave the Rangers a two-goal lead before Bun Cook and Eddie Wiseman rallied for Boston in the third. Thousand Rangers and fans saw the New York combine add 6,000 attendance the Detroit game and 5,000 were present at Montreal, all paid crowds for New Year's Day.

Toronto, Maroons, Americans and Detroit will play their Dominion games in four nights on Sunday. Marcons play Leafs in Toronto tonight and then the teams meet in Montreal next week. Leafs dropping off to play Detroit on Sunday while Marcons go on to Chicago for a game with Hawks.

American Association schedules play in Montreal tonight and then go to New York for a return match Sunday. Rangers entertain Montreal Canadiens on Sunday in Boston where they left off Thursday in New York.

Caddies Get A Big Break

London, Jan. 2 (AP)—Tompers Herbert Henry Dodd, who has held links a scalded dog today as news that the Royal and Ancient Golf Club would not admit caddies to the club's fourteen, but the majority of British clubs accepted the ruling calmly.

The feet of Pudgham, who won the Belfast open, added a new suggestion that they make it ten clubs instead of fourteen.

All the "old guard", including John Henry Taylor, five times open champ, Jim Braid and Alex Herd, greeted the edit joyfully as acceptance of their views has been approaching for years.

The general opinion was that the reduction would work to the advantage of British players who never have been in heavily for bulging bags and at the time time handicap the Americans who have been "spoiled" by the tremendous choice of clubs handed them by caddies was the lone top-notcher to voice strong protest.

"The rule was entirely unnecessary," he said. "Any man should be at liberty to please himself in the matter. As for the caddies, the rule will affect them only in their earnings. If a player nowadays has a heavy bag he usually pays the caddy more."

AT THE BELLE

"Libeled Lady"

Jean Harlow, William Powell, Myrna Loy and Spencer Tracy come to the Belle screen yesterday.....all in one picture ..... and that picture, "Libeled Lady" is not a grand field day of hilarity, glistening personalities and an entertainment packed plot.

We haven't had a "Grand Hotel" or a "Dinner at Eight" in a long while, but here it is ..... another of those exceptional narratives which provide are roles for every star concerned. And in their case one of their respective best portunities!

Four headliners have the thrilling role of her career as the dashing spitfire Gladys who loves Spencer Tracy so much that she's even willing to marry another man in order to help Tracy out of a hole. William Powell and Myrna Loy, fresh from their joint triumph in "The Great Ziegfeld" are again irresistible engaging as the respective roles of a reporter who schemes to compromise a lady in order to force her to drop a libel suit, and the lady herself who really turns the tables when the man who seeks to victimize her falls in love with her instead!

Heigh ho summery! As the plot: In order to block a libel suit by a wealthy society girl Jean Harlow the managing editor of the Star (Spencer Tracy) hires a smart reporter (William Powell) to trick her. The smooth newspaper worker, Bill Chandler himself is not a good guess of Miss Loy's father, Warner Gennochy and sends out his efforts tremendously. He and the wealthy father of the society girl are about fishing enthusiasts which provides the ground for their friendship. When the girl learns that Bill is supposed to be married the situation becomes more complicated, even eventually the libel suit is called off and the respective romances are adjusted satisfactorily to all concerned.

The picture would be no little entertaining had it but one of the distinguished stars heading its cast; with four it quadruples its potentialities and provides one of the best delightful screen programs the screen has presented in many months. Not to be overlooked are the sparkling lines and delightful situations created by newsmen Maurice Watkins, Howard Emmett Rogers and George Oppenheimer from the original story by Wallace Sullivan.

Summed up, "Libeled Lady" is one of the most brilliantly cast and diversingly written screen stories in many months. It's a definite hit! The entire program will be repeated again Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, matinee and evening. You must not miss this top-notch Paramount Laugh feature, a plus a varied and entertaining program of Features.

Harness Turf Faces Year With New Interest Assured

ROSALIND, YEAR'S GREATEST TROTTER, BEN WHITE UP

By Central Press Canadian

New York, Jan. 2.—Proof that the harness turf is now established on perhaps revived as a major sport is indicated by a review of the 1936 season which saw purses throughout the country gain 25 per cent. in value; yearling sales at the Old Glory dispersal advance $46,925 over 1935; old time speed marks fall before both trotters and pacers, and a new, steady stream of novice owners and drivers rapidly becoming enthused about the sport.

Greyhound Rosalind, the filly winner of the Hambletonian stake, stood out as the champion of the year. Not since 1894 had a trotter in competition been able to beat 1.50, the record of Tilly Brooks. That is, until Greyhound, pounded out a mile in a race at Springfield, Ill., and was clocked in 1.3914.

Rosalind Earns $43,278

Rosalind rates foremost honors for 1936 as the Hambletonian winner; top money earnings of $43,278; her mark of 2.01¾ the fastest time made by a three year old trotter in competition, and her spectacular string of seven victories out of eight starts.

The new year will see Greyhound and Rosalind, and other aged stars, battling for a series of new, rich stakes specially prepared by the Trotting Horse club for both trotters and pacers and beyond the two and three year old colt division. Stakes worth approximately $60,000 will be offered in the filly, two and six year old classes. These events, rapidly filling, promise a great season for aged performers as well as colts.

Much can claim honors in driving, since James Jordan of Lewistown, Mo., captured distinction as winner of 59 races. Dr. Hugh M. Parshall, veterinarian and expert reinsman of Urbana, O., was second with 47. Last year Tommy Berry led all equine pilots.

That purses are definitely up over a year ago is indicated by Rosalind's winnings. She captured $15,- 086 more as a three year old in 1936 than when the famed Greyhound could acquire at a similar age in 1935.

The creation of a new mile track, exclusively for trotters, at Aiken, S. C., by Dunbar Rockwell, noted pilot of Old Westbury, L.I., shows the trend of youthful eastern sport enthusiasts toward the harness turf. They have found that a greater amount of personal participation can be enjoyed in trotting than in any other horse sport, since both training and racing are open to them, men and women.

Grand Circuit Spreads

On the Grand Circuit of 1936, 10 cities comprised the major loop and presented 11 weeks of racing. This compares with the nine cities and ten weeks of racing in 1935. R. R. Harriman, president of the Grand Circuit, declares he thinks the 1937 schedule will easily surpass the last season's, in view of the many requests for membership in the loop. The increase in yearling sales at the Old Glory sale here Thanksgiving week, totaling $47,925 over 1935 figures, was regarded by horsemen as a good sign. The purchase of Mr. McElwyn, noted sire, for $15,500 by Lawrence R. Sheppard, master of Hanover Shoe Farms, Hanover, Pa., famed nursery, indicates that the breeding end of the sport is confident of the future, too.

Canadian Sport Highlights of 1936 in Review

The Champions and Near Champions Who Graced the Dominion's Sport Pages During a Year That Featured the Olympic Games

Here are highlight performers in the Canadian sport circus of the year that is passing on. Each represents one star in the athletic firmament of 1936. In the TOP strip left to right are Ormond Smith, hard plunging backfield ace of Sarnia Imperials who won the Dominion championship by default when the west failed to defend the honors; Dr. Phil Edwards of Montreal, veteran trackman who came home from Germany's Olympiad with his glory undimmed; Goalie Hercules, pet fender of the Allan Cup champions; Sparky Byrne, milers and "Bolch" Bestiger, outstanding player with Orillia Terriers who took the Mann Cup and Dominion lacrosse title for the third consecutive year Johnny Leaning of Windsor starts the CENTRE strip (left to right) and he, Ric Edwards, Canadian cricket team to England for the first time in many years which produced an amazingly successful stand against Old Country opposition. Lawson Little, the flying Texan who won the eighth consecutive golf championship victory, scored with an eight-stroke margin. Golfers also dominate the LOWER strip. Left is Fred Haas of New Orleans, Canadian amateur golf champion of the year and runner-up in Mrs. A. S. Darling of Montreal, the ladies' open winner. At the right is the country's top cricket quartette, the Watson trio from Winnipeg, holders of the Macdonald Brier trophy. The broomsmen are Ken Watson, skip; Grant Watson, third; Marvin McIntyre, second, and Charlie Kerr, lead.

Ringdoms Old "Hard Rock" Has Found Peaceful Haven In Rocking Chair Retreat

By BILL BRAUCHER,

Central Press Canadian Sports Writer.

They tell me the old Hard Rock from Down Under is living the soft life now . . . in a little stone and stucco bungalow on Hialeah Park . . . the warm ocean at Miami Beach, Tom Heeney's retired to spend the rest of his life in peace . . . a ship that has been through many storms and found a quiet haven.

Tom spends a lot of time in a rocking chair on the front porch, looking out over the sea . . . the Hard Rock is retired, been for eight years . . . his big interest is the racing he built and loves . . . and he operates a cafe on one of the main streets . . . he never smokes or seldom drinks.

Whenever Charley Harvey is in Florida he drops in to see Thomas . . . Old Jasmine Ginger brought Tom to America from Australia . . . and always sincerely thought the square-jawed chap was a great fighter . . . it was Charley's gift of persuasion, plus Gene Tunney's wish to retire gracefully from the ring that won for Tom his biggest shot, nine years ago, a match with Tunney for the heavyweight championship of the world.

He Was Overmatched

In reality it was no fight at all, of course, and Tom was vastly overmatched . . . Tunney cut him to ribbons . . . in the eleventh round, with Tom's eyebrows hanging down on his cheek, the carnage was stopped . . . but Tom was still on his feet, walking in, flailing away and he had the heart of a horse, that's certain . . . endurance no end.

Tom was 27 or 28 when he came to the United States, about 10 years ago, lowed by enthusiastic Uncle Charley . . . he was stared out in life as a plumber's helper, but didn't like it . . . Tom was handy with his fists, and his brother was middleweight champion of New Zealand . . . Tom was a heavyweight, and after he had been fighting four or five years he won the heavyweight championship of New Zealand.

For seven years the barrel-chested, iron-muscled battler held the title. Then he won the South African championship in 1926, by knocking out Johnny Squires . . . recently were Squires down in 18 rounds.

Tom Heeney . . . Hard Rock lives soft life now

When Tom landed in America, they gave him fellows like Jim Maloney, Johnny Risko, Bartley Madden and Jack de Mave to "build up on" . . . he knocked out Maloney and beat the others, though Johnny Risko gave him a tough tussle.

When Blood Flowed

One of his toughest fights, however, was a frenzied races in 15 rounds with Paulino Uzcudun . . . those were two very tough pachuca, throwbacks to the days of Tom Sharkey, Jim Jeffries and others of tremendous stamina . . . plenty of blood was spilled that night . . .

By Central Press Canadian

Toronto, Dec. 31—A year of sport highlighted by the Olympic games, in Garmisch-Partenkirchen for the winter section and in Berlin for the summer, leaves Canada with much to be desired in the realm of international competition. Loss of the Olympic hockey championship, Canada's own especial pride since the ice sport was first introduced to Olympia, was followed by a disclosure track and field showing at Berlin. Stacked up against the rest of the world, the Dominion must admit that she failed to "click".

During 1936 however there was a brighter side to the picture, a side that provided within the Dominion some thrilling sport dramas and the lesson learned in Berlin—that a hastily planned and gathered athletic team has no chance in competition with the carefully nurtured athletes of other lands—perhaps the year's greatest gain. That Canada will plan and plan well before 1940 roll around is a foregone conclusion—unless the Dominion forgets her lesson.

One Gold Medal

To Frank Amyot of Ottawa, Olympic athlete canoe champion, must go the palm for bringing Canada's only gold medal home from Germany; to Dr. Phil Edwards of Montreal, the veteran of three Olympic expeditions, and to Johnny Learing of Windsor who staged some sterling performances to mark up points in the hurdle and middle distance events must go added praise. Loaring was the first athlete to register at Berlin for Canada and though he went to the games without much consideration as a possible point scorer, Learing proved that he has the stuff to make him one of the world's outstanding men.

Edwards' brilliant showing in smashing the world record for the 1,500-metre event against such stars as Lovelock, Cunningham and Beccali, must be classed as one of the year's finest individual efforts. Edwards was off to a bad start in that race yet he more than justified his Olympic selection. The genial Montreal doctor will not be around for much more international competition perhaps but the Olympic year uncovered another promising track star. It was Howard McPhee of Vancouver, the boy who cracked the native record for 100 and 200 metres in the Canadian Olympic trial events only to fail at Berlin through "tightness". More experience should help McPhee develop the ability that he proved is his.

Thrills At Home

At home Canadian sport many a thrilling team and individual duel from season to sport season. Kimberly Dynamites took the measure of hockey championship and the Allan Cup in the Ontario town's first year. Sudbury Falcons, first time that a squad from British Columbia took the Dominion senior amateur hockey award. Detroit Red Wings annexed the Stanley Cup, Lord Bessborough's trophy for professional supremacy, the individual professional scoring honors. The loss of the Olympic championship by a Ritchie team studded by Canadian stars and headed by Sunny Peter Jackson, Canada's goaltending, followed a record-breaking period of years over the perennial that would make up the Canadian hockey squad.

During 1936 lacrosse had its full banner years; the former might be better called as a season of added impetus with a young man's rink that Watson crew from the Winnipeg Shamrock club takes the MacDonald Brier award, highest honor in the Dominion sport that once was reserved for retired doctors and lawyers. Anyone who witnessed the hectic lacrosse playoff series between Vancouver North Shore Indians and Orillia Terriers, finals to the east-west series for the Mann Cup, will not question the statement that the gutted stick pastime is back on the map. Both the Pacific coast and in the east lacrosse had a good year with Orillia Terriers, twice champions, carried to the limit to stave off the western Canada challenge.

Cricketers Scored

Overseas once more, the year 1936 will go down in Canadian cricket history as an epoch-making season. Led by the Hon. R. C. Mathews, guardian angel of Canadian cricket and "Bolch" Bestiger, outstanding player with Orillia Terriers who took the Mann Cup and Dominion lacrosse title for the third consecutive year Johnny Learing of Windsor starts the CENTRE strip (left to right) and he, Ric Edwards, Canadian cricket team to England for the first time in many years which produced an amazingly successful stand against Old Country opposition. Lawson Little, the flying Texan who won the eighth consecutive golf championship victory, scored with an eight-stroke margin. Golfers also dominate the LOWER strip. Left is Fred Haas of New Orleans, Canadian amateur golf champion of the year and runner-up in Mrs. A. S. Darling of Montreal, the ladies' open winner. At the right is the country's top cricket quartette, the Watson trio from Winnipeg, holders of the Macdonald Brier trophy. The broomsmen are Ken Watson, skip; Grant Watson, third; Marvin McIntyre, second, and Charlie Kerr, lead.

Canadian Boxer Steals Show As Steele Defends His Crown

Bill Marquardt, Winnipeg, Picks Time to Strut Stuff, Champion Wins Easily

Milwaukee, Jan. 2 (CP)—Fight experts looked over Canada's latest ring sensation today and pronounced him good.

Little Billy Marquardt from Winnipeg picked the right spot to explode his sixth victory in his United States invasion yesterday.

Before the crowd that gathered for the Freddie Steel-Gorilla Jones middleweight title fight here, they tossed Ray Hunt of Jamesville, Wis., in with Billy.

And before the second round of the scheduled ten-rounder over they practically carried Blum out. He had been dropped three times. Referee Freddie Adams decided that was enough.

Marquardt, weighing in at 138, a bit heavier than when he bossed Al Ostendo's amateur battles a few years ago, tried hard to land a knockout in the first round.

He was a bit wild then but went to work in earnest in the second. Blum went down for an eight-count and a left hook sent him to the floor again before Andrews stepped in to lift Billy's hand. Blum weighed 125.

Thus the Canadian Olympic boxer recently turned professional added to the hopes of his followers that another Jimmy McLarnin is coming over the border.

In this country he has defeated Walter Mallya and Sammy Scoglio of Chicago and Al Manriquez of Stour City by knockouts. Earlier, before he warmed up, he took two fights on points.

Steele Counts Home.

Freddie Steele, young champion of the world's middleweights, took his mother out today to help him spend a piece of a fresh $15,000 bank roll, the reward for retaining his title against Gorilla Jones, Akron, O., negro.

Steele, a serious, businesslike workman at his trade, made his first appearance east of the Rocky Mountains one of pretty unfamiliar by whipping Jones, a former holder of the title, with a minimum of trouble, in Milwaukee's annual New Year's Day boxing program.

Steele was all but one of the ten rounds and scored the only knockdown of the fight. After a slow start, marked by an edge in the first round and the loss of the second, Jones' best session, Freddie worked up steam and reached his peak in the seventh when he broke up Jones' rallies by knocking the negro challenger down for a three-count with a short, powerful right to the jaw.

Cuban Weather Tough on Gridders

Havana, Jan. 3 (AP)—The football players of Villanova and Auburn, all-even after their Cuban gridiron battle, were agreed on one thing today: if you want to stay thin, come to Havana and play football.

They battled to a 7-all standoff in the closing feature of Cuba's international sports week yesterday, under a blazing sun, and with 86-degree temperature slowing action to a walk, they lost an average of 9½ pounds per man through the sixty minutes of muggy mauling before a crowd of 6,000 fans.

Auburn showed in the first quarter and generally was superior in the early going. The Villanova Pennsylvania came from behind to even the count in the final chapter.

Canadian Sport Highlights of 1936 in Review

The Champions and Near Champions Who Graced the Dominion's Sport Pages During a Year That Featured the Olympic Games

By Edna Robb Webster

CHAPTER XIV

The city swarmed with people. Streets were like torrents of swirling humanity. Motor horns blared. Public processions for those who as children had lived the last year would venture beyond the grounds of their living quarters, provided the weather had been mild, for their imagination and fancy was stretched protectively over the busy world they lived in, while at all other times covered the floors and was strewn with confetti and bits of colored paper.

Costumed revelers thronged the elevators, also riding up and down and stopping on the upper floors only long enough to harass the operators. Even their good humored tolerance embraced every prank and impudence. The spirit of carnival prevailed everywhere. Rooms were filled to suffocation, all doubled rates. In-coming trains had to be added to every day in two and three sections. A continuous stream of motor cars, bearing license plates from every state, blocked streets of the city by the Jefferson Highway, Magnolia Highway and the Old Spanish Trail.

Horns blared, laughter echoed, whistles screamed. Confetti was discarded on main thoroughfares and stopped traffic. The bright sun was obscured with confetti and serpentine. Masked children in fantastic dress darted between the milling throngs; negroes assumed good-natured liberties which were prohibitive for the rest of them the year. Revelry reigned supreme for those four hours in the day of Mardi Gras.

The one single note of sobering resentment was expressed in anxiety regarding the weather. Every eye scanned the bright blue sky hopefully and every person who could, looked at his watch, at home or on the street, remarked churlishly, as a unanimous spirit of discontent, as if clapped the evil disaster, "I hope it won't rain for the parade."

And why shouldn't they be anxious? Ever since the closing hour of the previous night, Mardi Gras, the army of artists, designers, mechanics, carpenters, and skilled workmen, of every trade had been perfecting for this day. The floats upon which would precede the long pageant of austere solemnity of self-denying, with fasting and prayer from the dawn of Ash Wednesday until the dawn of Easter Sunday.

Visitors arrived to watch and admire and to see the floats that would not be imbued with that inconceivable spirit of carnival which transformed the entire city for a day; Lynn was excited and felt like a lonely child among grown people. She could not acquire Doll's complete abandonment to gaiety.

Lulu, who was Doll's personal maid, sketched Lynn's room early that morning with her usual fast, free, and reckless of her fingers' movements. Her entire motion than her body moved.

"Mornin' Miss Martel. Dey yoh all rest right comfohtble las' night?" Very well, thank you."

"Ah reckon so, she say I' tell yoh all di' ain too early t' disturb yoh but nobody ain't gwine t' sleep dis week, nohow, an' she reckons you all want t' git ready foh de parade."

"Indeed, I don't want to miss a thing; that is one of the most delicious food," her eyes scanned the geometric tray of coffee, hot beaten biscuits, broiled ham, guava jelly, cereal with heavy yellow cream and fresh fruit.

"Yas'm, dey is time, itg yoh all wait foh dat." Lulu's white mouth grinned encouragingly. "Mattie, she say to tell yoh dem's her special biscuits and she sho' made foh yoh."

"Thank her for me, will you, Lulu? I'll thank Mattie personally, just as soon as I have time to see her. In fact, I'll see her at lunch and ingest hung-h mid-air, as the door to her room's closed and she can't see me feed there in bright red satin pyjamas and tooled black hair to greet her guests.

"The top o' the mornin' to you! Lulu will be up to help you dress, so we can talk while we eat? We may not have another chance all day."

"Fine, Lynn approved. The guest should be the first one to come but Lulu just propped me all up with pillows and left me. Then she went across my knees, and I don't dare to move. Where shall you sit?"

"Right here," she dropped into a deep blue moire chair and drawing it up to the table, as Lulu left, she appeared with a tray as sumptuous as her guest's. "I'm going to be downtown early, so as not to miss a thing. The King of the Zulu's parade is always a surprise, and I don't have time to see that before I have to get back home for the ball for the guest of honor."

"Oh, I'm so happy, I can't taste a thing!" she declared, helping herself to thick black coffee. "It's like being a bride, you know, in a way. It's even more thrilling because almost every girl expects to be a bride for once in her life, but there are only a few girls who have the experience of being queen of the Mardi Gras."

"You deserve the honor, if anyone does." Lynn admired her pretty little cousin.

"Not all the girls think so," Doll shrugged. "I don't suppose they'll worry the sort very much. But they're pretty good sports about it, at that. Of course, more of them have a chance to be maids of honor, and that's almost like they reserve handsome gifts, too even if they aren't as gorgeous as the queen's."

Lynn raised her eyebrows with surprise. "Is there an end to this lavish affair? Gifts, also?"

"Oh, yes, they are exquisite creations made by the finest New York jewelers. Both the king and queen are presented with a gorgeous mantle and crown jewels. These are a crown, a sceptre and a necklace which are worn with the costume. The maids receive necklaces and jeweled pins and bracelets. It is any wonder we are entitled to?"

"I should say, you reap one through it all. When did these festivities begin?"

"The third day of January, the Twenty Night Revelers open the season with the first ball and banquet, and others follow more and more frequently until Mardi Gras itself. It's a hectic time for the debs, and really fortunate that Lent follows after, to give us a breathing spell before the summer opens. But we must hurry, darlin'. Jack will be here for us at nine, and we haven't an hour to dress."

She dashed away as unexpectedly as she had appeared, like an elfin creature of magic, and Lynn laughed off the high, tinkling of his royal canopy, to prepare for the parade.

Thoughts of Dewy Condon flitted through her mind, but she dismissed every other impression. She had decided not to permit his interest to disturb her, as she could not dismiss him from her mind. Other thoughts intruded, also, but they concerned a tall, dark-eyed youth who had been the King of Hearts when he attended the ball on the previous night. And she thought how natural was his air, that he was the King of hearts, as he was idolized by all women. Then chided herself severely for allowing such fleeting thoughts were unfair to Doll who had been so kind and sweet in bringing her here for this joyous week.

Lulu, who was Doll's personal maid, sketched Lynn's room early that morning with her usual fast, free, and reckless of her fingers' movements. Her entire motion than her body moved.

"Mornin' Miss Martel. Dey yoh all rest right comfohtble las' night?"

DAILY SHORT STORY
NEW LOVES
By H. Irving King

Miss Selina Briggs lived on Cape Cod. To be precise in dandy post. The house she lived in was the real thing in early Colonial architecture—it had a "lean-to." The family was small, consisting only of herself and her orphaned niece, Henrietta. Miss Selina had quite a bit of savings in giving Rita an education, even sending her through Wellesley.

And now Henrietta was twenty-two, proficient in all accomplishments but conversant with no calling that would bring in money. She held a grudge against her for becoming a ware-earner, but her aunt "put her foot down" on every one of them. Rita fretted—but what could she do? She would not forsake Selina, even if she could get employment somewhere else—which was extremely doubtful.

"I wonder if I shall ever be married," thought Rita.

That summer there returned to his boyhood home Frank P. Ellsworth, a millionaire from New York. Frank P. had not been seen in Sandport for forty years until he had suddenly appeared there, bought the old Smith Grandal place, and began the erection of a great stone mansion. He had been twenty-five when he had gone away and, by consequence, was sixty-five now.

There were plenty of people who remembered him as the tall thin, scraggy young man, full of ambition and a hard worker, whose parents were among the town's poor whittlers. But not one of them would have recognized in the large, portly, prosperous-looking, autocratic and reserved plutocrat, the Frank Ellsworth of long ago.

Every man and woman in the place, it seemed, who was old enough to make out a colorful case, greeted Frank P. with a long pal brother and intimated that they had been his earliest friend and benefactor. Rich—the gentlemen from New York was not an easy person to "get hand to."

"I wonder if he will go and see Miss Selina?" was the query people whispered to each other. For between Frank Ellsworth, the struggling and low-born youth, and Selina Briggs, the pretty daughter of one of the proudest of the "old families," there had been, it was rumored at the time, a little love affair—which, of course, came to nothing on account of the vast difference in its social status of the lovers. Some said that was why Frank had suddenly left Sandport.

He that as it may, the golden returned wanderer did not call upon Miss Selina and Miss Selina appeared to be only languidly interested in his return. By the following summer the new house was completed and furnished regally by the millionaire and his family. The only son, Egbert, was only twenty-five, just the age his father had been at the time of his flitting from Sandport. By the time fall was beginning to draw to its end and the summer folks were departing, Egbert and Rita were fully aware that they loved each other—and so was the rest of the community.

It was the second Sunday after he had taken possession of his new house that Frank Ellsworth, coming out of church with his wife and son, real plump into Miss Selina coming out with Rita, and for the first time for forty years lifted his hat and spoke to his boyhood "flame". Introductions naturally followed—and that's how Egbert and Rita became first acquainted. As for Selina and Frank after that when they met they spoke of course—generally about the weather—but that is all they saw of each other. Nor so Egbert and Rita—they were together with an increasing frequency from their first meeting on.

Miss Selina watched the growing intimacy between her niece and young Ellsworth approvingly. Frank watched it disapprovingly. Mrs. Ellsworth, being a model wife —old style model—was prepared to think just as her husband thought. Egbert saw matters drawing to a crisis, felt the coming storm and talked it over with Rita, who talked it over with her aunt who said: "If you two want to be married why don't you do so? You are both old enough to know your own minds if you are ever going to. But what shall I do when you are gone?"

"Oh, we shan't go away, auntie," replied Rita. "Egbert likes Sandport. He wants to fix up the old house and live here."

"All right," said Miss Selina.

Egbert told his father in a most offhand manner what had been decided upon. The old man made his fortune by his quick decisions. He looked at Egbert, saw that square-set jaw, and knew that in this he could not move him. "Very well, said he. "Family not good enough for me once!" and then grimly, "it will be a bit of revenge for me, anyhow." For a full hour after Egbert had left him Frank sat there musing.

Possibly Selina mused too. But if they mused of what might have been neither Frank nor Selina ever spoke. What was lurking in their minds as they watched the happiness of Egbert and Rita no one ever knew.

Magnet Eight Inches Long Has Power to Light Town

The bronze enclosed magnet, developed by Dr. Francis Bitter, the most powerful ever designed, is seen here undergoing an inspection from its designer.

By Central Press Canadian

A compact magnet, capable of producing a magnetic field of an intensity of 150,000 times greater than that of the earth has been developed at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology by Dr. Francis Bitter of the department of mining and metallurgy.

The magnet itself is only eight inches long and six inches in diameter. It is housed in bronze shell through which water is circulated to dissipate the enormous heat generated by a power load enough to supply a small town. The energy poured into this small assembly would be sufficient to operate 10 automobiles or 20 horsepower each.

Study Below Zero

It will be used for fundamental studies of the effects of intense magnetic fields on matter, especially at low temperatures, especially around absolute zero, or 459.69 degrees below zero (Fahrenheit.)

Next step for Dr. Bitter will collaborate with Dr. Frederick G. Keyes, of the department of chemistry, in a program of research, employing the whole range of existing substances, organic and inorganic. Their reactions will be observed in the intense magnetic fields created by this new device. The value of the results obtained will be, according to officials, in revealing inadequacies in present theories of the structure of matter.

Huge British Plane Program Revealed as Well Under Way

New York, Jan. 2nd.—England's traditional habit of ruling the waves has definitely and finally been translated into the air, with a tremendous program of building and subsidy now under way which will cancel the score with British airpower, according to W. R. Courtney, aviation editor of Collier's, who has just completed a wide survey of the international aviation situation both in Europe and America.

"England's plan," he reports "is that with her resources and society she can outbuild any combination of enemies and either threaten them how ruinous armament races are or smash them down by overwhelming numbers if force is substituted for reason. Her factories are now singing night and day; you can buy a commercial plane in England today."

The only exception to the rule which now has all British airplane plants turning out military ships exclusively, Courtney reveals is the Short Brothers plant at Rochester, England, which has been given a special dispensation to proceed with its Imperial Airways contract for planes to be used in the North Atlantic trade.

"This is because of the importance of the commercial phase of co-operation with the United States," he says, "and of fostering good-will among the English-speaking peoples. England is speeding the day when you can fly the Atlantic because this line has taken on its full value in the Empire air chain."

While in England Courtney was privileged to see the latest development in the England to America transportation—the Short-Mayo Composite aircraft. Designed only for mail, the Composite is made up of two planes, one on top of the other. The point is that the huge and powerful lower plane, lightly loaded, can lift the smaller upper plane, heavily loaded, and then release it after good altitude and flying speed has been attained. Thus overcoming the danger of taking off with the great load of gas needed to cross the Atlantic.

Another new plane which the British are building in the greatest secrecy, Courtney reports, is known as the Albatross. While details of the ship are closely guarded, he says, it is known that the Albatross is a huge land plane capable of carrying a ton load of mail and passengers non-stop from Ireland to Newfoundland. In this connection there have been suggestions, he adds, that it will be possible to have Ireland at five o'clock in the afternoon and arrive in Newfoundland at three the same afternoon, due to the four hour time difference.

However, the first ships to make the trans-Atlantic run will be the Empire Flying Boats, 26 of which are called for in the first contract, and some of which already have been completed. They will be flown on to Bermuda leg, the first over-Atlantic line to reach the United States. They are four-motored ships with accommodations for 24 passengers, and will make connections with Pan-American at Hamilton, the run from there to the mainland being on a co-operative basis.

Courtney was critical of the lack of any definite national aviation program in the United States.

"America's history in the growth of international transportation," he says, "once shown to be repeated," he says, "Once United States clipper ships held dominion over the seven trade routes. American steamboats first conquered the Atlantic. Lack of a national merchant marine policy, of peaceful governmental support like the advantage down; ever since our merchant shipping has fiddled away in the background. In modern years, 'clipper' ships of the air have pioneered and dared and led above the oceans, with second place the best reward in sight at the moment."

MINK BREEDING SHOWS INCREASE

More Fur Farmers Turn to Mink to Increase Returns

Winnipeg, Dec. 31 (CP)—Thousands of little dark brown animals running about in pens of Manitoba fur farms attested today to the belief of fur farmers mink will soon surpass silver fox in popularity and value.

There was a time when fur farming was the thing to do. Prince Edward Island breeders passed on their secrets to fellow breeders in other provinces and for years the fox was king. Today, the mink is threatened to oust the fox from its popular position.

Next May's coronation in London has had no little to do with the growing popularity of mink. Prices for the fur have been steadily rising as demand in London and New York for luxury furs increased. Milady finds mink the thing to wear this year.

In 1928, the latest figures available, 8,125 silver fox were marketed in Manitoba at a price of $267,413. The 4,720 mink sold brought $44,372. With 516 breeders in the provinces, total fur production was valued at $351,078.

Though figures for 1936 will not be available for some time, indications were that fur farmers more and more were turning to mink to increase their returns. The number of breeders increased. Many of Manitoba's youth left to the cities to seek their fortunes on mink farms.

Herb Amer of (361 Bannerman Ave.) Winnipeg, is an example of youthful determination. With an older and experienced partner, he purchased a number of mink to make a start on a small farm. The 22-year-old Dibb was not disheartened when disease wiped out most of the young. He began anew.

Dick selected a quarter-mile stretch of lake front on Lake Winnipeg near Gimli, 60 miles north of Winnipeg. He and his bride—he plans to be married in February—will operate a mink farm there. Dick has a job, but he thinks the money to be made from mink will justify his resigning it.

Prices paid at recent auction sales here bolstered Dick's determination. One lot of 132 milk sold for $38 each.

Passengers Control Air Supply

INDIVIDUAL control is a feature of the air-conditioning of Canadian National Railways sleeping cars. The passenger has an inlet by means of which the volume of tempered and filtered air is controlled in each berth. Air-conditioning equipment on Canadian National trains has worked to the entire satisfaction of passengers and car designers alike and has provided "June in January" comfort throughout the year.

TARZAN AND THE LEOPARD MEN (National Newspaper Feature Service)

Kal Ivana was stunned into immobility by the sight of the big leopard. As the beauty yellow eyes discovered her, it dropped to its belly, its face grimacing in a horrid snarl. Then it started to creep cautiously toward her, its tail weaving sinuously.

The leopard could have charged and destroyed her without these preliminaries; but it seemed to be playing with her, as a cat toys with a mouse. Now it crept nearer and nearer. The girl carefully picked up the crude, unfinished arrow and fitted it to her bow.

She knew how little a gesture it would be to launch that tiny missile. Even if she scored a lucky hit, it would only wound and enrage this juggernaut of the jungle. But she was courageous and she would not give up her life without defending it to the last.

The beast came closer, preparing to charge. Many things passed through her mind; but outstanding above all the rest was the image of Old Tibar, whom she believed dead. She pictured him now, welcoming her to the shadow land of death!

GERMANY MAKES THIRD SHOW OF NAVAL FORCE

City and Rural United Church Congregations Welcome Moderator

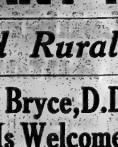
Rt. Rev. P. Bryce, D.D. Moderator, Is Welcomed By District Churches

City And Rural Congregations Join at Bridge St. Church

MESSAGE OF DAY

Greetings Extended to Moderator by Congregations And Mayor Hill

Rt. Rev. Peter Bryce, D.D., Moderator of the United Church in Canada, was welcomed at Bridge Street Church, Belleville, Sunday evening by a very large congregation, representative of the United churches in the immediate district, the four Belleville churches of the denomination and all the churches in the district bordering the Bay of Quinte. To the congregation Dr. Bryce spoke of the meaning of the worship of God today as one of kindliness and sympathy, faith, the sense of sin, the need of forgiveness, the message of power, comprehensively with God, and the message of immortality.



Dr. Bryce said in part:

"The church has a message of tenderness, sacrificial power, a message for the wide world, a message for the age of life, as he added.

The head of the United Church of Canada, Newfoundland and Bermuda was extended a civic welcome by Mayor Hill, Bridge Street Church was filled to the doors and welcomed Dr. Bryce to one of their first visits to Belleville.

The Moderator

Rt. Rev. Dr. Peter Bryce, head of the United Church in Canada, is welcomed officially at Bridge Street Church by all the United Church congregations of the city and district on Sunday, his base a quarter of a century ago when United Church came its inception and was elected Moderator at the first meeting.

During his previous career, Dr. Bryce was engaged in pastoral work and in the management and direction of social service enterprises in the city and province of his adoption. He was born in Blantyre, Scotland, the home of David Livingstone, and came to this continent in 1903 as a missionary to Newfoundland. In 1906 he entered Victoria College, Toronto, in preparation for the Methodist ministry.

Work at Earlscourt

While at Earlscourt, Dr. Bryce began a pastorate which continued for thirteen years in the industrial parish of Toronto known as Earlscourt. There he built seven churches and organized eight Sunday Schools. In the Earlscourt centre, church there was at the time the largest Sunday School in Canada. He was the founder of the Earlscourt Children's Mission.

HON. MR. BENNETT NOW AT LONDON

Had "Glorious Trip" And "Almost Too Much to Talk About"

London, Jan. 4 (CP Cable) — Premier Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett arrived in London today after a lengthy Empire tour that took him to Australia, New Zealand and South Africa.

Looking hearty and in excellent spirits, the Conservative leader was greeted at Waterloo Station by Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner, and Rear Admiral Arthur Ramsay, Secretary Dominion office, after a train journey from Southampton, where he disembarked from the liner Edinburgh Castle.

Mr. Bennett said he had had a glorious trip" and had "almost too much to talk about." He said he was anxious to return to Canada, and would remain in London for only a few days.

Babe Born on Boat as Mother Hurries To Kingston Hospital

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 4 (CP)—The stork beat the steamer Wolfe Islander into the city's harbor this morning. While the Islander was making a special trip to Kingston from Wolfe Island a baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Henry James Jermany of the latter.

Mrs. Jermany was being brought over to the Hotel Dieu Hospital, but the stork won the race when the boat was ten minutes from dock.

The sea was rough and the Islander was having a hard time getting across the bay.

It was reported at the hospital today that mother and son were doing nicely.

Mother and Princess Progressing Favorably

London, Jan. 4 (C.P. Cable) —A final bulletin today declared the Duchess of Kent and the infant Princess born Christmas Day were making "very good progress."

It was stated no decision has been made concerning the child's name. Special precautions are being taken to guard the infant against the influenza epidemic sweeping the country and consequently no outsiders have been given the opportunity of seeing the new Princess.

BRITAIN DEMANDS AN APOLOGY FOR STOPPING VESSEL

Spanish Insurgents Halt Vessel Off Europa Point

DESTROYER AT SCENE

Spain Now Battleground of Fascism And Communism

By GEORGE HAMILTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 4 (C.P. Cable)—A British destroyer raced into Cadiz last night to demand an apology from the Spanish insurgents for stopping a British vessel off Europa Point.

The vessel was the Strid, bound from Haifa for Liverpool with a cargo of oranges.

The British destroyer, which has not yet reported the result of its mission, was instructed to ask that there be no recurrence of the incident.

The naval position of the Strid when stopped is not clear.

While Britain has not granted belligerent rights to the Spanish insurgents, it is recognized that they have certain de facto rights in the territorial waters they control. Any interference with British shipping on the high seas will, however, be resisted.

British authorities view the whole Spanish scene with anxiety. Christmas eve appeals to both Germany and Italy to check the flow of volunteers to Spain remain unanswered. Meanwhile the Spanish war has received official advice that on the eve of Christmas volunteers landed at Cadiz from transport Cambarda. Previous advices reported some weeks ago revealed the arrival of 5,000 Germans at Seville.

Spain a Battleground

The Spanish conflict has ceased to be a struggle between the Spanish government and the insurgents. Spain has become the battleground of Fascism and Communism with democracy threatened on both wings.

The Anglo-Italian agreement, it is pointed out in British circles, does not affect naval strengths in the Mediterranean. The British defence program in the Middle East will not be continued. Great Britain communicated the text of the agreement to Greece and Turkey, not only to France but also to Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey as Mediterranean sea powers. The Spanish government, for a reason which was not indicated, has not done so.

Rome, Jan. 4 (CP)—The press ministry today denied "entirely and qualifiedly false" reports that a British warship had landed at Cadiz, Spain.

The reports could be "denied with tranquility," a spokesman said.

DUKE OF WINDSOR MARRIES IN MAY

Ceremony With Mrs. Wallis Simpson To Take Place in Vienna

Paris, Jan. 4 (CP)—The Duke of Windsor will marry Mrs. Wallis Simpson in May in the little Austrian Church next to the British Legation in Vienna, the Vienna correspondent of the Paris Journal Intransigeant reported today.

The ceremony will be private, and only a few friends of former King Edward will be present, L'Intransigeant said. After the marriage the Duke and his bride will leave for Dalkeruth, on the Tyndale road, the newspaper added.

London, Jan. 4 (AP)—Former King Edward's subjects are "united in their sympathy for one young king in exile," Very Rev. S. H. Lovy, Archbishop of Bradford, declared here in a letter published in The Messenger.

"We shall often send up a prayer for that lonely, pathetic figure in exile," the Archbishop wrote. "If he marries the one he says he loves (Mrs. Wallis Simpson), I hope they may be very happy and she will make him a good wife."

The Archbishop is the subordinate of the Bishop of Bradford who three weeks ago brought before the public the controversy between King and cabinet over Mrs. Simpson.

"An Insult to the Queen" Netherlands Term Action

Protests Holding up of Passports for Juliana's Bridesmaids

The Hague, The Netherland, Jan. 4 (CP)—The Netherlands government protested formally to Berlin today against what it termed "an insult to the queen" because of the alleged holding up of passports for Princess Crown Princess Juliana's bridesmaids.

The protest climaxed German-Netherlands friction preliminary to next Thursday's wedding of Juliana and Prince Bernhard Zu Lippe-Biesterfeld of Germany. The friction arose from Germany's action in ignoring Nazi national flags and anthems in the pre-marital activities.

Bernhard, by requesting that only the Netherlands national anthem be played at the wedding, tried to quiet the controversy somewhat.

Six of Queen Wilhelmina's nieces Siegilinde and Elizabeth Zu Lippe and Sophie Zu Sayn-Weimar-Eisenbach are among Juliana's chosen bridesmaids.)

It was authoritatively reported the Prince's mother might not be able to attend the wedding because her recent poor health had been aggravated by worry over troubles with the German government.

Queen Gravely Disturbed

Queen Wilhelmina, Juliana's mother, was reported to have been "gravely disturbed" and Bernhard, it was said, appealed directly to Chancellor Hitler to sanction his German passports.

(In Berlin, a member of the household of Prince Philips of Hesse said "the passport of Princess Sieglinde of Lippe was demanded by officials January 1, but suddenly returned January 2.")

The Princess was said to have left yesterday for The Hague. The propaganda ministry said it was unaware any German bridesmaid had had passport difficulties.)

Mother Juliana, born at the same hour of the same day 27 years ago as the Crown Princess will be the only other girl to wed next Thursday in all Holland. An exception was made for her from an order prohibiting any other marriages on the royal wedding day because of the mutual birthday and correspondence between the Juliana.

The other wedding will join Julius van der Meer and Martinus van Stolk, both postmen.

London, Jan. 4 (CP)—The Duke of Kent will attend the wedding on Thursday of Princess Juliana of Holland and Prince Bernhard of Lippe-Biesterfeld, it was announced today.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 4 (CP) — Mayor-elect Charles F. Dalton started the new year off by visiting every public institution in the city, and all police and shore headquarters. He also visited the heads with all inmates. He found all duty calls included House of Refuge, Mercer Reformatory, Hotel Dieu, General Hospital, Orphans' Home, Salvator Mons and St. Mary's-of-the-Lake Orphanage as well as each of the fire halls.

Detroit, Jan. 4 (AP)—An allowance of $25,000 a month for Mrs. Margaret A. Cousens, widow of Senator James Couzens, has been authorized by Probate Judge Thomas C. Murphy.

The widow will receive one-third of the $20,000,000 estate of her Ontario born husband who left no will. The petition for allowance said Mrs. Cousens has to maintain several residences and finance the education of a daughter, Edith, 19.

New York, Jan. 4 (CP—Matthew Broderick, 43, was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct when he refused to leave a railroad station.

Railway police Sergeant Charles Vetter told Magistrate Mark Sonnett Broderick had been drinking.

Broderick added he took refuge in the station to get away from the cold.

"You see Judge, I only drink on holidays," he pleaded. "Give me another chance."

The judge suspended sentence after Broderick promised to keep away from stations.

Beaumont, Tex., Jan. 4 (CP)—In an open letter to a burglar who broke into St. Mark's Episcopal Church recently, Rev. George C. Cameron offered $5 for advance notice of the marauder's next visit.

The rector wrote that since no money ever is left in the church, everybody would profit by the offer.

The $5 "is ordinarily required to repair the damage you do," the letter stated, and "also will leave you opportunity for happier pursuits."

THREATS CHILDISH STATE GERMANS OF SPANISH NOTES

Claim Germany Will Cease Measures if Satisfaction Given

HITLER'S REPLY

Hints Given That it May be Lecture For Diplomats

Berlin, Jan. 4 (AP)—Germany backed its insistent demand for Spanish marine "satisfaction" with a third show of naval force today and laughed at "childish threats" of Basque resistance.

Twenty-four hours after it had been a matter of public knowledge, the government announced the seizure of the Spanish merchantman Maria Junquera off the northern Spanish coast on noon Sunday by the German cruiser Koenigsberg, officials said subsequently there would be "no details."

Threat Called Childish

Basque government orders to its patrol boat to fire on any ship menacing Spanish merchantmen drew this reply from the Berlin Nachi Ausgabe:

"Announcements like that issued by a group of Bolshevist criminals at Bilbao, don't interest Germany."

Der Angriff, organ of propaganda Minister Goebbels, called the Basques "a rabble" "a childish threat" by "the Terrorist Soviet of Bilbao."

Officials declined to disclose whether their "reprisals" for Basque detention of part of the cargo of a German freighter Palos and a Spanish passenger were sended with the firing of the 6200-ton Maria Junquera.

Alarmed Moore Comment

It was formerly stated, however, that "just as soon as the violation of German rights has been atoned for by liberation of the passengers and restitution of the remaining cargo, a command of further counter measures by Germany will follow."

The Basques have refused to release the cargo of Bilbao, although the Palos herself has been liberated.

Meanwhile, the question of when and how Germany will demand to pay to Franco-British pleas for stoppage of volunteer departure for the aid of the Spanish insurgents remained a mystery.

Lecture For Diplomats?

Hitler was at Berchtesgaden. Diplomatic observers believed he might give an indirect reply to the British and French ambassadors when he addresses the diplomatic corps Jan. 11.

Prior to the Maria Junquera capture, German warships off the Bay of Biscay had seized the Spanish merchantmen Aragon and Palos and the notes accompanying them. Italian guarantees to keep "hands off" Spanish ligerents of Great Britain's behest.

Ambassador Ended

The past, which also ended anti-muslim over sanctions against the Italian campaign in Ethiopia, was signed in Rome on December 31.

Informed sources believed the British government's pacific promises by had frowned on any foreign fraternizing over the Italian policy disposed toward a plan to send money to Italy to permit British investors to participate in Italian development of East Africa's resources.

Some circles expressed the opinion as "unofficial" that part of the Mediterranean "handshake" covered a loan to Italy.

None has been seeking a solution to an apparent shortage of gold in Italy's treasury, caused by heavy expenditures for the Ethiopian campaign.

It was believed the loan question would be examined at proposed semi-formal trade talks.

Trade circles said British commercial war eager that British interests centred in Ethiopia be prevented from getting inroads on Egyptian trade with Italy and East Africa.

It was said strings might be attached to an Italian loan insuring the present status quo in the Mediterranean.

British financial circles have shown easiness to revive foreign trade with Italy which was throttled by sanctions. Several trade missions already have gone to Italy seeking orders, especially in coal.

Well-informed sources also said trade discussions might include foreign exchange restrictions, French commercial credits and currency stabilization.

4 Small Indian Boys Found Frozen to Death In Snow Near Fraser L.

Children Left School on Friday to Visit Reservation

DETAILS MISSING

Fraser is 60 Miles West of Prince George, British Columbia

Vanderhoof, B.C., Jan. 4—(CP)—Word reached here today that the bodies of four small Indian boys had been found in the snow near the east end of Fraser Lake Saturday night. The children apparently had frozen to death.

Details were not available.

It was believed the boys, attending the Indian school at Lejac, on the south side of Fraser Lake, left that institution Friday to visit the Nautley Reservation at the east end of the lake.

Two of the boys, whose names were not given in first reports, were of the Nautley Reserve. The others, were from an unnamed reserve on the south side of the Fraser Lake.

Fraser is approximately 60 miles west of Prince George in the northern interior of British Columbia.

British Money for Ethiopia Seen as New Accord Result

Britain Reported to Look Favorably on Aid For Development

By RADER WINGET
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 4 (AP)—Financial quarters viewed a British loan to help develop Ethiopia and a new Anglo-Italian trade agreement as possible results today of the Mediterranean accord.

Publication of the terms of the treaty between Great Britain and Italy, accompanying declarations, Italian guarantees to keep "hands off" Spanish ligerents of Great Britain's behest.

JOHN AND ELAINE PART IN A HUFF

Barrymore And Recent Bride Separate After a Quarrel At a Cafe

Hollywood, Jan. 4 (AP) — John Barrymore was placed on probation today by Elaine Barrie, his bride of three weeks because "the trouble me up a bit."

Told then to go to his trainers home and stay there until he decided to make amends," said the dark-eyed fourth wife of the actor "While I don't anticipate any serious developments, I'm not sure it's the reconciliation depends on John."

Meanwhile, genial elopement to Yuma, Ariz., allowed to be a "honeymoon" which included a cross-country chase by train and plane with Barrymore outdistancing his New York process.

Their latest quarrel started while they were welcoming the New Year in jubilant fashion at a fashionable cafe, Miss Barrie said.

As a finale to the scene at the cafe, she said Barrymore drove out on the floor in true, imperious Barrymore fashion.

To Decide Final Date For License Purchase

Toronto, Jan. 4 (CP)—A cabinet council meeting was called for mid-afternoon by Premier Hepburn to discuss, among other things, a final date on which motorists reasonably certain must have purchased their 1937 licenses. It was believed the deadline might be set at Jan. 15.

VOTING SLOW; QUIET ELECTION

Up Till Noon Many Polls Reported Few Registering Franchise

Belleville electors went to the polls today in one of the quietest civic days in the history of the city. There was no excitement; no street corner wrangling or debate which usually mark days of this nature. A pall of quietness almost approaching a gloom settled over the city as an early hour today. From all over reports generally observed with the usual quota of morning shoppers being conspicuous by their absence. Traffic was slow with parked automobiles having their choice of spots.

A brief check on the majority of the city polls shortly after noon today brought varying reports. While some of the polls reported a very slow influx of voters, a few of them stated that the polling was brisk. Lady electors were slow in polling their votes in the morning but in all probability will mark her ballot this afternoon, while on the daily trip downtown.

COBOURG CHURCH FIRE SPECTACULAR BLAZE

Commenting on last night's disastrous fire in Cobourg which put St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church out of commission for a time, a local resident, who was an R.A.F. in the whole town of the most incredible sights he had ever witnessed. "Flames shot high in the air," he said, "while millions of sparks were whipped in all directions by the strong prevailing winds. It was a wonder home like whole town was not burned down as the strong breze blowing at the time was in all directions. The arrival of the Port Hope fire brigade assisted materially in the extinguishing of the fire but not until after a stern fight," he stated.

MRS. HARRY HILL DISLOCATES ANKLE

Wife of Mayor Hill Suffers Fall on Way To Church

Sunday evening shortly before seven o'clock Mrs. Harry Hill, wife of His Worship Mayor Hill, slipped upon the pavement on John Street, south of Church and sustained a severe dislocation of the left ankle. Mrs. Hill at the time was only a short distance from her residence at the John Street entrance proceeding to attend the evening service at Bridge Street United Church, where Mayor Hill had preceded her and where he was to extend an official welcome to the Rt. Rev. Peter Bryce, D.D., Moderator of the United Church of Canada, when Mayor Hill was informed of the accident which had befallen Mrs. Hill, until after she had been conveyed to the hospital by ambulance and medical attention given by Dr. V. Malahie.

Passersby were attracted by Mrs. Hill's call for help and her cry of "Mac" Hill, who was at his father's residence at the time, was informed of the accident and he arranged for the conveyance of his mother to the hospital.

Some years ago Mrs. Hill met with a similar accident when she fell on Front Street, a short time before Christmas and sustained a broken right ankle.

The many friends of Mrs. Hill will sincerely sympathize with her in her misfortune. She will be confined to the hospital for some time.

Letters to the Editor

More Interest Needed In All Civic Affairs

To The Editor,

Dear Sir—

As a young citizen and one interested in all phases of civic affairs I write this letter, hoping that more people will form and circulate their opinion, for the betterment of Belleville and our city as a whole.

A few days ago in a daily publication there appeared a letter which of what the artist termed in the footnote as "Belleville's Future" a word bird perched straddle a fence. This in a concise way seems to describe the position of many of our laymen as regard issues vital to the welfare and function of our civic life. Points of such importance cannot be decided to the greatest advantage by those in such a manner.

The writer's wish is not to cast criticism upon any in like position but to call on such a sense of responsibility in every man and woman who has a vote, that they will study such matters and act on "intelligent" ballot. It is plain, that cannot be done if they are ignorant of two opinions and as responsible citizens it is their duty to take a firm stand based upon such study returning their votes only after careful consideration.

This is addressed to every taxpayer hoping that having had this query brought before them at such an early date they will resolve not to be idle and then waiting for a better understanding of city management and all it phases.

Yours for fewer Mug Wumps and more intelligent voters,

Sincerely,

A Reader.

The death occurred at St. Joseph's Hospital, Toronto, on Saturday, Jan. 2nd, of Kenneth Seabrooke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Seabrooke. Interment will be made at Trenton.

DRUNKEN DRIVER GIVEN 15 DAYS

Magistrate Butler Declares Offences of This Kind Must Cease

"There will be no more sewn day sentences for drunken drivers, who are found on this court's seat," sentence you to 15 days in the common jail and cancel your driving permit for a period of three months," was the stern sentence handed out by Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., to Harold Bardy, Shannonville, after the latter had pleaded guilty to driving his automobile while intoxicated on New Year's Eve.

Bardy was arraigned in court by Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Irvine on three charges, one of driving a motor car while intoxicated, second of driving an automobile without the necessary three lights, displayed and lighted after sundown, and thirdly of operating a motor car with defective brakes. Bardy pleaded guilty to all three counts. In the matter of inadequate lights a fine of one dollar and costs or seven days in jail was imposed, the defective brake charge brought a ten day sentence to the accused, while on the day sentence, the most severe ever handed down in the local court for such an offence since the pins of guilty to the drunken driving charge, all sentences will run concurrently.

"This man was arrested during the "special detail of New Year's Eve" explained Crown Attorney B. O. Donnan, K.C., at the opening of the case.

"Drunken driving is going to be stopped in this district. It is getting to be much too common-place and to commence the campaign against this evil the court sentences the accused to 15 days in the common jail. If this does not reach with sufficient warning to the public, we'll have to increase the punishment to drunken drivers," stated Magistrate Butler. The latter declared war against the infringements of the L.C.A. and H.T.A. regarding drivers, and motorists in this district while intoxicated. It was an open warning.

Arthur Brack, Trenchtown, who was found in Bardy's automobile by Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Irvine was charged with Intoxication. The charge will be held in "few drinks and was guilty." The conventional "I'll be more careful next time" pay the fine if you'll give me a few days," pleaded Brant.

Brack's license and his bicycle in order to buy grocering on Saturday, was suspended Patrolman Irvine.

"Five dollars and costs or ten days forthwith," concluded His Worship.

Several Reeves Are Acclaimed In North Twps.

Very little election talk was heard in the north townships of Hastings last. However, quite a number of candidates were nominated for the offices of reeve and councillors. Bancroft village apparently taking the lead in the number of candidates, was nominated for the various offices with four nominations for Reeve, eighteen for Councillors and eight for School Board.

For Reeve—Jos. E. Lamb, W. E. Wiggins, F. A. Towle and Frank Donovan. For Deputy-Reeve—F. A. Towle qualified, thus an election for the Reeveship only, the Council receiving an acclamation. Two members of last year's Council, Jos. E. Lamb and Dr. Rogers remaining on the Council with D. Vaughan and Alex. Tynan as the two new men.

The three members of last year's School Board failed to again qualify their places being filled by the following: Fred Perrin, John Vance and Herman Hawley.

POLICE COURT

"This is too serious a matter to allow it to be kept in the dim twilight," His Worship Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C. assured Harry Reid, 19 year old youth, who appeared in today's local police court, on the charge of being found guilty to forgery and fraud in a previous court. A sentence of three months' imprisonment and a further indeterminate sentence of six months' Ontario Reformatory was given the accused youth.

"I am sorry that a boy of this young man has ever been in trouble, but he knew his grandfather, Mr. Reid, was ill and was going around the county lecturing on temperance," stated the Magistrate. Why nearly all of her bank account is gone as the result of the cheques this youth has signed in his name.

Crown Attorney B. O. Donnan, K.C., prosecuted.

"These cases are becoming too frequent. I will take a firm stand any longer. I hope you have learned a lesson, young man," addressing the youth, "and remember the three months determinate term.

A number of counts and cases were held in camera, following the youthful offender. Efforts to straighten out family difficulties were made by His Worship. Three children, all relatives of the accused, are wards of the Children's Aid Society by Investment. Motion and Fines. Two drunks appeared, one openly stating he could not raise the amount of his fine and the other in default. The other two asked for time in order to raise the fine imposed.

POLICE BLOTTER

"Apparently all 1937 New Year's resolutions were made in Belleville are to be strictly adhered to this year, that is if the past week end is to be any criterion," said Mr. Marc Richard Chief Kidd today as he reviewed the week end's work. Not around local police circles, during the past week end, but the week end was necessary, that being on Sunday, when all citizen imbibed freely, but not well enough to lay charges of intoxication in the police court on the results of New Year's Eve Day.

Police were called to Holton's Store, Ameliasburg, on Sunday, as the Catholic picnic grounds, where it was reported that persons were cutting down trees. On the arrival of the officers four teen-aged boys were found in the woods in front of north woodsmen. The youths had cut down a tree and were proceeding to trim and cut it into stove lengths on Sunday. The names of the boys were taken and the youthful woodmen dismissed with instructions to remain away from that grove in the future.

The boys stated they had intended to take the wood home for fuel.

Eggless omelets were afforded warm sleeping quarters at the police station over the week end, left on Sunday and night the previous night.

During the year 1936, while making their nightly rounds, the police constabulary found a total of 56 doors and windows insecure. In each case the owning was advised and the merchant notified of the incident.

Traffic was very light over the week end and no serious accidents were reported on this district," stated Patrolman Sam Irvine this morning.

Throughout that period, the young minister was in direct contact with the social needs of a great and growing community. After founding the relief work necessary in the depression years and the difficult years 1917-18 he became more widely known as a public speaker and was made first president of Toronto's family welfare organization. He was instrumental in the Federation for Community Service, he was made the first president. Two years he advocated the formation of a national Reverend board for the Province of Ontario and was made the first chairman of the body when it was formed by the Provincial Government.

Social Legislation

In this period, Dr. Bryce studied and worked out the original forms of social work and legislation, and has continued his activity in that direction throughout his life. He was also the representative of the Province of Ontario at Child Welfare Conferences in London, England, and Brussels, Belgium.

From time to time Dr. Bryce was called upon to assist the Methodist Church and later the United Church in arious important conferences. He was director of the financial drive in connection with the Methodist National Campaign in

Suspended Chief Asked to Return

Kingsville, Ont., Jan. 4 (CP) — After two break-ins within a week, Kingsville citizens have brought suspended Chief of Police J. O. Babcock back on special night duty over the week end, during the week-end term of suspension for firing his revolver in the effort to scare youths ringing the curfew bell Christmas eve concluded today.

Local merchants followed break-in of a restaurant Saturday and theft of $5. Last Monday intruders attempted to carry off a department store safe containing $100, after breaking into the store. They fled on the appearance of four policemen.

ROCCO ESPOSITO TO FACE CHARGE 30 YEARS OLD

Kirkland Lake Resident Taken to U.S. to Face Murder Charge

WAIVES EXTRADITION

Calabria, Italy Setting For Strange Drama Now Enacted

Toronto, Jan. 4.—(CP)—While a wife and four children waited anxiously in a small northern Ontario cabin, Rocco Esposito prepared today to leave Toronto to stand trial in Newcastle, Pa., for a murder committed 30 years ago.

Arrested at his Kirkland Lake home as he prepared to celebrate New Year's eve with his children, Esposito accompanied officers quietly on the 55-mile journey south to Haileybury where he waived extradition on appearing before Judge Henry Hartman. The fact their father had been arrested was not revealed to the children until the Haileybury proceedings. The arrested man was determined his daughter's birthday on New Year's Day should remain unmarred.

The family name is Strange as far as the folk in Kirkland Lake, 136 miles north of North Bay, are concerned. Esposito was known as Rocco Strange throughout the Northern Ontario mining fields and he was known also as a hunter of criminals, responsible for bringing to justice one man wanted for murder, the charge he's now en route to United States to face.

Convinced of Fair Trial

Birthday celebrations for the daughter were staged in the cabin home New Year's Day, while the father awaited extradition hearing. On Saturday the 55-year-old miner declared he would go south to stand trial, convinced he would obtain a fair trial and be returned a free man.

Benoit Strange, eldest son, learned of the arrest Saturday when fellow workers in a Kirkland Lake mine divulged the story. His mother was told by a neighbor.

Mrs. Strange quickly declared her faith in her husband, firmly convinced he was innocent of the crime, which police believe had its root in blackhand activities in Italy many years ago.

It is alleged Esposito or Strange killed Francisco Romeo, a cousin, in Newcastle, Pa., Oct. 7, 1906. Dominico Cale stood trial for the murder but was freed. Police then started on Esposito's trail that led they claim, back to Italy, then to Belgium and Northern Ontario.

Unmasked in Community

Frank A. Costa, special investigator for Pennsylvania State, traced Esposito to Kirkland Lake and with Constable Alex Wilson of Ontario Provincial Police made the arrest, which startled the mining community, where the prisoner was known as a prominent figure for 23 years.

Reggio, Calabria, Italy, was the setting for the initial play in the drama, United States police maintain. It was there that Romeo as a policeman shot a blackhand compatriot of Esposito who then started on the trail of his cousin. The short, stocky Italian is alleged to have roamed with Romeo for several months when he located him in Buffalo, N.Y. He invited Romeo to Newcastle to help him in a fruit business.

United States authorities claim Esposito and Calo greeted Romeo as he landed in Newcastle. The next day Oct. 7, 1906, Romeo's body was found in the railway yards, riddled with bullets, but police maintain in a dying statement he linked Esposito with the shooting. Depositions carried by G-Man Costa were said to carry this alleged statement.

Trashed Down Highgraders

During his years in the north, Esposito ran down a number of highgraders of the gold camps for the Ontario Mining Association. A Russian, named Ivanchuk, was hanged in Haileybury jail yard for the slaying of Provincial Officer Harry Constable in Cobalt ten years ago, and police stated Esposito's sleuthing brought about the Russian's arrest.

Esposito is believed to have been married in Belgium in 1913, coming to Canada the following year. He lived in Montreal, Cornwall, Smith's Falls, St. Catharines, Cobalt, Sudbury and Toronto before coming to Kirkland Lake.

Benoit, the eldest son, is adopted by a farmer near Cobalt. Esposito had two sons now in Italy. One of them Guiseppi, recently wrote to his father, his letter telling of his return from the Italian campaign in Ethiopia.

Besides Benoit at the Kirkland Lake home there are Madeleine, 22, Pasquelino, 20, and Juliette, 14.

Increased Tension Seen As Basque Gov't Holds Another German Boat

1,406-Ton "Pluto" is Taken By Armed Patrol-ship

SHIPS RANGE WIDE

Freighter Palos Interned as Carrier of Contraband Materials

Bayonne, France, Jan. 4—(AP)—Reports circulating in shipping circles today said an armed patrol-ship of the Basque government of Northern Spain had "provisionally" captured the 1,406-ton German steamer Pluto.

Although the reports were unconfirmed by Basque officials, incoming vessels reported swarms of small patrol boats were clustering just outside Bilbao and Santander.

The German warships Koenigsberg and Admiral Graf Spee were reported to have retired from their close watch of the Biscay coast and to be ranging at a greater distance from shore.

The Basque governmental order for its patrols to fight off any German warships and sets German steamers after the Nazi fleet battle-ship Deutschland.

Official Spanish advices said the sniper Koenigsberg held the Spanish steamer Marta Junquer, after halting it off Cape Ajor.

The steamer Aragon was reported by Basques still to be held captive by the Admiral Graf Spee while the Seton, forcog aground by the Koenigsberg after being fired on, was refloated and reached Santander safely.

Palos Interned

The German campaign of retaliation followed the internment in Bilbao harbor by the Spanish Basque government of the freighter Palos as a carrier of contraband war materials.

Although the ship had been freed, Basque authorities refused a German offer to exchange its cargo for the Aragon. A similar refusal by the Central Spanish government at Valencia created an absolute deadlock in the warlike waters of the Bay of Biscay.

The Basque government refused to treat with the German warships carrying out what is called a campaign "aggression" and ordered its fleet to fire on any foreign ship attempting to molest Spanish government shipping.

The potential dangers of the situation were considered to have been increased by the number of vessels flying flags of several nations, which are plying the coastal zone.

The crew of the French steamer Roche Rouge, returning from a voyage along the coast, said it had been halted off Santander by government ships. They were permitted to proceed, the crew said, after questioning.

ALL BOATS RELEASED

Moscow, Jan. 4—(AP)—The Soviet government announced today seven of the freighters had been detained at the Spanish insurgent port of Ceuta, Spanish Morocco, since Dec. 26, but all were subsequently released.

BRITISH SHIPPING GIVEN WARNING

Advised to Navigate Bay of Biscay Coast With Care

London, Jan. 4—(AP)—British shipping was given advisory warning today by the Basque government of northern Spain to navigate the Bay of Biscay coast with care as it was uncovering coast batteries for long range artillery fire.

The friendly notification said firing of practice rounds would start at 3.30 Tuesday afternoon and would extend from Cape Machichaco, west of Bilbao, to Santona, midway to Santander, on the east.

The zone of fire would cover roughly the area being patrolled by the German battleship Admiral Graf Spee and the cruiser Koenigsberg.

The two warships have been halting Spanish shipping in the coastal waters as a retaliatory measure for the seizure by the Basque government of German freighter Palos and internment of its cargo at Bilbao.

Ordered to Fire

Basque authorities have ordered their fleet of small patrol boats to fire on any foreign vessel molesting Spanish shipping.

The British government, concerned lest international incidents over German and Spanish steamships hamper moves for non-intervention in the Spanish civil war, ordered a formal protest lodged over interferences with its own ships.

The government instructed Sir Henry Chilton, British Ambassador to Spain, to protest to the insurgent Junta at Burgos the shelling of the British merchantman Blackhill.

A statement of the Basque government said four Spanish insurgent trawlers had fired 18 shots Friday in unsuccessful pursuit of the Blackhill seven miles off the northern Spanish coast.

Informed sources indicated an inquiry would be made at the same time over the reported hailing of the British steamship Etrib by Spanish insurgent trawler.

3 C.N. EMPLOYEES KILLED IN WRECK

Investigation of Collision at St. Hyacinthe, Que., is Opened

St. Hyacinthe Que., Jan. 4 (CP) —Double investigation went forward today into the Saturday night train wreck that took the lives of three Canadian National Railways employees three miles from this town.

While a railway probe went on, a coroner's inquest was opened at St. Rosalie Village, 20 miles east of Montreal, where a Montreal-bound passenger train sliced into the rear of a slow-travelling freight in the thick of a snowstorm.

The collision killed W. H. Carwell 43, Montreal, engineer of the passenger locomotive; J. E. Brady 50, conductor of the freight, and Felix Cheney, 45, freight brakeman, both of Richmond. Clyde Cheney, found alive near the wreckage of the caboose he had been riding with the conductor died soon after.

Brady had been riding in the observation tower of the caboose, and his body was dragged along the passenger locomotive in a pile of debris when it sheared off the top of the caboose. The engineer was flung into the tender of his locomotive.

Fireman T. Johanson of Montreal leaped from the passenger engine and escaped with a cut forehead. A woman passenger received a cut forehead and a man was bruised about the knee as four passenger cars followed the engine off the track but remained upright.

3 of 6 Condemned To Ask for Clemency

Canning, N.Y. Jan. 4—(AP)—Three of six convicted murderers who are sentenced to die Thursday night in Sing Sing prison's biggest mass execution in more than 30 years said today they will ask relatives and friends to appeal to Governor Herbert Lehman. The others apparently are making no such attempt.

Unless the Governor intervenes, the men will be executed within the next three weeks, another record for the state prison. Four are down to die a week from Thursday and five on the third Thursday.

The six will be strapped in the electric chair in rapid succession three days hence were convicted of slaying Joseph Esposito, holdup slaying of Edmund Esposito, young Brooklyn subway cashier, which netted them about $50 each.

The three who asked friends and relatives to appeal to the Governor are Dominick Zisolo, 27, Eugene Brumo, 23, and Sam Rommani, 22. POROUS DISC SEEN AS REVOLUTIONARY

Disc Increases Efficiency of Chemical Stills

Ottawa, Jan. 4 (CP)—Invention of a porous disc that looks like a tin waffle and may revolutionize branches of the oil refining and synthetic chemical industries was disclosed today by the National Research Council.

The disc, developed in the Council's laboratories by Dr. D. S. Stedman of the Chemistry Division, increases the efficiency of chemical stills nine to ten times and has made possible the first practical separation by distillation of one part of "heavy water" from 6,000 parts of ordinary water.

Dr. Stedman's discovery, in effect provides industry with a new still but the principal change is in the form of the rings arranged in the chimney-like columns to provide contact between vapor rising from the boiler and part of the distilled liquid which drops back without reaching the condenser that cools it and passes it off as a finished product.

The ring, or disc, is made of fine wire gauze and contains a great number of coils, each in the form of two four-sided pyramids set one on each side by a common base. The cells are perforated at the corners with small holes to allow the rising vapor to bubble through.

Greater Contact

Their arrangement provides greater contact between the rising vapor and falling liquid than was hitherto possible, resulting in more accurate partial distillation and separation from a complex liquid of components having boiling points not more than one degree centigrade apart.

Dr. G. S. Whitby, chief of the Chemical Division, said application of the principle in industry will lie chiefly in the possibility of obtaining an increasing number of chemical raw materials from petroleum and coal tar and development of reactions with higher anti-knock ratings.

Such new gasolines, he said, should benefit the aviation industry, giving more power and making it possible for planes to be flown further on given weights of fuel load. Application of the device to coal tar distillation, he said, should prove of high importance to the dye industry and partial separation from coal tar of useful substances hitherto unobtainable in that manner.

FIRE DESTROYS COBOURG CHURCH

$150,000 Loss Sustained by Presbyterian Congregation

Cobourg, Ont., Jan. 4 (CP) Fire destroyed the 100-year-old St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here last night with a loss of $150,000, including a $60,000 organ. The wind carried blazing embers to roofs of six residences, but firemen aided by the Port Hope department, were able to confine the fire to the historic thurch building.

Flames arose from an overheated furnace, it was believed, and rapidly spread into the body of the church. A raging wind fanned the fire and offered difficulties to the combined fire-fighting forces of Cobourg and Port Hope. As small fires broke out on the roofs of adjacent homes, firemen decided to devote their efforts to curbing those outbreaks.

ONE DEAD, FOUR RESCUED, AS SHIP GUTTED BY FIRE

One man died as a result of this fire, which destroyed the S. S. Belinden as it lay in Sydney harbor, Australia. Four other men were rescued from the ship's blazing engine room by firemen clad in asbestos suits. The fire, which also damaged the wharf and a portion of the shipping company's storage building, spread over the ship in less than half an hour.

LAST OR FIRST CHAPTER

The last chapter of the old book 1936 or the first chapter of the new book 1937 is being written today with the municipal elections. The election is the last event in the way of the work of the new year, the last obstacle to hurdle.

Most individuals have struck their stride for 1937 with little or no change in their attitude. Resolutions have been made and are being kept or broken. Some persons refused to resolve, thinking that if resolutions were made to be broken they might as well not be made. Those who took this view of course have lost the opportunity to try out the inspiration of a new year in striving to do something new for the sake of improving selves or helping others. So much for the individual sphere.

Today's decisions are made collectively and not that the voters must stand by. It decides a number of matters for a year at least.

In a short time the new organizations will be fully at work undertaking their duties for the coming year.

SUDBURY MEMORIAL LINES

There has been much talk about the verse on the memorial at Sudbury. The late poet Rudyard Kipling, whose muse knew how to write the most perfect verse fitting such a memorial occasion, was asked to write an inscription for the Sudbury cenotaph to the Canadian dead of the Great War. Like all good poets he asked that he be given time to write the lines and in delivering the verse it was said that if the lines did not appear appropriate to the authorities he would understand.

Kipling wrote:

"We, giving all, gained all;
Neither lament us nor praise;
Only in all things recall,
It is fear, not death, that slays."

These Kipling lines never reached the stone. The authorities in the Northern Ontario town went elsewhere. Somebody wrote a variation of lines by A. E. Housman, whose death occurred only recently. The corrupt lines as they appear on the war memorial read:

"They buckled their belts about them,
In ships they crossed the sea,
They fought and found six feet of ground
And died for you and me."

Housman's lines originally were:

"They braced their belts about them,
In ships they crossed the sea.
They fought and found six feet of ground
And there they died for me."

This indicates what has happened with the Housman verse. The purpose for which it was written was entirely different from that which proved to be filled by the city fathers at Sudbury, for placing on the memorial. Anyone who knows Housman's work such as "The Shropshire Lad" knows that it is a poet's record of musings on the sadness and tragedy of life. It is an individualistic attitude. The mood is entirely different from what Kipling saw as necessary. Kipling saw the great principle of sacrifice the supreme gain, won without lament or thought of praise and teaches the awe-inspiring lesson that fear is the supreme foe of life. His verse is marked by brevity of expression, like that of the Greek poets. Kipling's lines are true of the spirit of Kipling and of the many who died in the war. The Housman lines originally did not refer to such a situation at all as the people of Canada or Sudbury saw it. Housman's attitude is that of a boy who saw visions of being a soldier; when he grew up and when the time came, others went and he did not. It had no reference to the Great War as the lines were written long before 1914. That is what he meant in the line "And there they died for me."

The Housman lines have been changed and the spirit of the verse altered. As has been pointed out in the Hamilton Spectator the Housman verse is in a lilting measure at variance with the spirit demanded by an epitaph. Kipling wrote a verse for a memorial, it must be admitted it, of course, cannot equal some of his great work, yet it is fitting for the occasion.

The whole matter shows that it is very difficult to wrest verse or prose from its original association and the occasion of its inspiration and try to pour the thought into a new occasion. The writing of memorial verse and epitaphs is not easy. Trying to change verse written under another inspiration to suit a new mood is impossible. No wonder Kipling asked time to find the inspiration.

Housman's lines as they were written are superb poetry for the Housman mood. The Sudbury-Housman lines do not hold all that sacrifice of Sudbury's young men meant.

THE BATTLE OF CHANTILLY

RECENT REFERENCE TO ARTHUR BRISBANE, noted newspaperman, recently deceased, in this column, brought several interested comments. One of my sporting friends who keeps official records for all sporting events, dating back fifty years, phoned that we were mistaken as to the number of rounds of the Sullivan-Mitchell fight in Chantilly, France, as reported by Arthur Brisbane, when a reporter for the old New York Sun. When writing the paragraph referred to we sought to check up on the records but could not lay our hands on the article sought. However, it has turned up since, and our friend was right. However, we note from Brisbane's report that the battle lasted over three hours, London prize ring rules, bare knuckles, one round lasting over 20 minutes, fought in the open in a cold rain, that Mitchell was knocked down fifteen times but, game little Englishman that he was, came up smiling every time.

Sullivan Changed Style

Brisbane blamed Sullivan for changing his style and trying to box with Mitchell, a superb boxer, instead of slugging as was his usual custom, before which no boxer had ever been able to stand. The contest was declared a draw by mutual agreement, which left Mitchell and the English contingent mightily, but to the Sullivan forces it was a defeat, a heavy blow to the prestige of the Boston Strong Boy. Both fighters were arrested after the fight. Brisbane concludes his report by saying:

'A Foot Race'

"The fight proves that Sullivan who can whip a big slow man, or any man in the world in a small ring, where he can't get away, has mistaken his powers in undertaking the task of chasing a small man around the big space inside of a 24-foot circle. A detailed report of each of the thirty-nine rounds taken by me shows that out of more than a hundred wild rushes made by Sullivan, and of which any one would have been followed by a knockout in Madison Square, not a half dozen resulted in anything."

Features of the fight as recorded by Brisbane at the time included the frequent slips of Mitchell, who was knocked down more than fifteen times and was charged with taking several more dives to avoid punishment. Sullivan's record included several fouls but the Big Boy wouldn't have it so, saying he didn't win his fights that way.

Bare Knuckles

Being fought under London Prize Ring Rules the fight wasn't governed with any technical knockout rules. There was no count of ten—"long count" or "short count". Both men fought until one man found it impossible to go on or both agreed on a draw. When Mitchell was knocked down as he was repeatedly, he seconds carried him to his corner and worked over him. When he was readied he returned to the wars.

First Blood

Mitchell claimed first blood, his finger nails having scratched Sullivan's face. Mitchell had a saucy tongue and was always ragging John L. Even when being carried to his corner for repairs after being knocked cold by Sullivan's mighty fist he would call out: "Not yet—you haven't whipped me yet."

Longest Round

Rounds did not count as we know them for Brisbane records that the thirty-second round lasted 21 minutes and 45 seconds. Such were the vagaries of prize fight rules those days. Like a cock fight the scrap continued as long as both men were able to stand up, and if knocked out temporarily were still in the fight if they could be brought around sufficiently to continue.

Marquis' of Queensbery rules, in use today, have softened the game considerably.

No Million Gate

When the combatants reached the ring there were only forty people present, which shows that the box office did not govern the show.

The battle was in the open, in the rain and mud, and the spectators were augmented by a hunting party of French peoples while the fight was on. Afterwards the gendarmes arrested both principals and a fine was administered when court was reached, for disorderly conduct or conducting a private war on sacred French soil, or somepin', as Andy would say.

Brisbane has now joined his old friend John L. Sullivan, Charlie Mitchell and a host of old sports Over Yonder.

DUCE AND SON DISCUSS TRANS-ATLANTIC FLIGHT

Premier Benito Musolini of Italy discusses, with his son, Bruno, the latter's plans for a transatlantic flight. The youth, a member of the Italian air force, hopes to establish a new record with a special Reeda Caproni aeroplane, which is capable of a speed around 300 miles an hour.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

JANUARY 4, 1917

At the close of business on Dec. 30th, at the Ritchie Store the employees gathered around Mr. S. A. Barclay and presented him with a handsome Gift Box. Mr. Harry Bryant made the presentation and in a neat speech referred to the fact that Mr. Barclay had been with the firm over twenty years. Mr. Barclay, although taken completely by surprise, made a very pleasing response. The hearty singing of "He's a jolly good fellow" told in no uncertain way the high esteem in which Mr. Barclay is held by the entire staff.

Belleville Juniors were defeated by Kingston at the arena here last night, the score being 8 to 4. Belleville showed remarkable stability throughout the game, but the ice soon began to melt and a double Belleville would have won. There was some rough play at times which referee Bobbie Hewston tried to eliminate by heavy penalty. The following composed the teams: Belleville—Conley, G.; Arnott, Lynn, L. Arnott, Kent, Green and Whalen. Kingston—Walsh, Evans, Hall, Hume, Sewell, Grattan and Stinson.

Mr. Louis Pringle of the Ontario staff spent New Year's with friends at Kingston.

Dr. Speer has arrived in the city to take over the practice and residence of the late Dr. A. E. Mather.

Mr. Ragan Cook is home on a visit from Western Canada.

JANUARY 4, 1907

The first City League hockey match of the season took place last evening. The Bankers, who won the trophy last year, came out with their old time team. Owing to the mildness of the weather the ice was soft and prevented good hockey being played. The game resulted in victory for the Bankers, the score being 4 to 2. The following composed the teams: Bankers—Phillips, W. Hamilton, Taylor, Allan, Ilsey, R. Hamilton, Cronyn. City—Thompson, Boland, Pepper, Connolly, Storms, Connell, W. Gerow, D. Gerow. Referee Sandy Burrows was the referee and he was compelled to put many of the players off the ice for rough playing.

Mr. W. R. Adams spent New Years in Toronto.

Mr. Clifford Walker spent New Year's Day with friends at Toronto.

Mr. Percy Coen returned to the College of Pharmacy, Toronto today.

40 YEARS AGO

JANUARY 4, 1897

Mr. Madonna Howell is in Montreal.

Mr. J. M. Squier of Wallington, was in the city today.

Mr. W. D. Robb commenced his new duties with the Grand Trunk Railway at London, Ont., today.

Mr. S. A. Lockwood has returned to the city after visiting his brother at Lindsay.

Mr. Robert Gordon of Tweed, spent yesterday with his son, Mr. W. H. Gordon, Church St.

Mr. Abel Pinkle has returned to Toronto after visiting relatives here.

Mr. Will Matheson of Montreal, son of Mr. Matheson, Bursar at the D. and D. Institute, is home to spend the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. London are spending a few days with friends at Kingston.

50 YEARS AGO

JANUARY 4, 1887

Last night was the coldest of the season; the thermometer registered 20 degrees below zero.

The Billiard one which has been the cause of the lively contest among the pool players at the Conservative Club rooms, was won finally by Fred Henderson with a score of 14 balls. Bert Irvine made a score of 13 balls, but he struck the cue ball with the last shot, which lost him the game.

Mr. William Templeton has sold his grocery business on Bridge Street, opposite to the entrance to the footbridge, to Messrs. Henderson and Clarke. The transfer took place some weeks ago, but the purchasers are now taking charge of the store. Mr. Templeton has interests in Vancouver, B.C. and will make his home in that city. Mr. Templeton has built up a business which was founded over twenty years ago by the late Sandy Burrows and which he has since carried on. Messrs Walbridge and Clarke will operate two stores here.

STRATEGY BOARD OF WORKERS MEET

Authorized to Call General Strike in 69 Plants of General Motors

Detroit, Jan. 4 (AP)—A board of strategy, authorized to call a general strike in the General Motors Corporation if 69 plants throughout the United States, convenes here today to determine the course of action of the United Automobile Workers of America.

The automotive industry watched this meeting and the scheduled reopening of motors and parts plants today after a three-day holiday to ascertain the effect of strikes which already have closed 19 of the company's branches, leaving at least 28,000 workers idle.

The board of strategy was given mandate authority to extend the strikes or call a general strike against the entire automobile corporation at a meeting in Flint, Mich., Sunday, or under the call from General Motors' plants in 13 cities.

The U. A. W. A. representatives endorsed the eight principal demands of the union officials for a collective bargaining agreement with General Motors and adopted a resolution pledging "wholehearted and loyal support in their efforts to bring about (even) through the method of a general strike of all General Motors employees if its executive board considers such method results collective bargaining between the General Motors Union, the U.A.W.A. and the said General Motors Corporation.

MARSHAL CHANG RECEIVES PARDON

Ten Year Sentence Revoked And Full Civil Rights Restored

Nanking, Jan. 4 (AP)—Marshal Chang Hsueh Liang was pardoned unconditionally today by the Council of State for kidnapping Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, ending the standard of revolt in an attempt to force China into war with Japan.

The pardon was made effective immediately and, in addition to cancelling his 10-year prison sentence handed down by a military court, restored to the young soldier-statesman his full civil rights.

Chang was expected to go into immediate retirement after his release from limited custody at the home of Dr. H. H. Kung, Minister of Finance.

The Council's action, writing the end to a chapter of China's history that threatened to embroil the entire country in Civil War was believed to have been taken as a result of Generalissimo Chiang's petition for leniency for his erstwhile captor.

Chiang was understood to have great personal faith in the marshal who captured him Dec. 12th, on a setting coupe at Sianfu, remote capital of Shensi Province.

BLOCK HIGHWAYS IN KIDNAP HUNT

Report Two Men With Matteson Boy Seen Near Tacoma

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 4—(AP)—Highways of southwestern Washington were blocked by hundreds of armed men today in a spectacular police effort to capture two men suspected in the kidnapping of 10-year-old Charles Matteson.

Governor Clarence D. Martin, summoned personal direction of the hunt which closed all roads around Shelton, where a lumber mill watchman reported the boy's father told him to tell the boy's father "everything is well."

In Tacoma, 50 miles northwest of Shelton, Department of Justice agents took official charge of the kidnap hunt which they unofficially have had almost from the time Charles was stolen from his home eight days ago.

A reliable source disclosed they had sent a telegram to Washington, D.C., for further study.

Reports of rumors that the kidnapper and of doubting the demanded ransom of $50,000 were not be confirmed. The original kidnap note stipulated the ransom would be delivered with the boy. Matteson family failed to contact the kidnapper. It first called for $30,000.

All Machines Stopped

Department of Justice agents gave no indication of what importance they attached to the Shelton report but they joined the manhunt with State police, sheriff's officers and police from half a dozen cities.

Automobiles were halted with sawed-off shotguns, sub-machine guns and rifle stocked by police machine on all roads leading to Shelton, a town in a heavily timbered section within half an hour's drive of Mt. Grubbe, the mill watchman, reported the two men and gave him the strange command last night.

He said they drove on to a private cabin where ordered him back into the mill office, and told him to tell Mr. W. W. Matteson, the boy's father, everything "is well". Sheriff Grover Starrett of Mason County said he had every confidence in the man's report.

On the other side of Tacoma, a farmer reported seeing two men in an automobile with the boy. C. M. Beson, a farmer, said he was "positive it was the kidnapped boy".

He saw them on the road between Shelton and Bordell, about 30 miles from Shelton. If it was the same machine the normal route would have led them through Tacoma on its way to Shelton.

COLLAPSES ON STREET

Toronto, Jan. 4 — (CP) — An aged woman who collapsed on a transient is in hospital here today suffering from prolonged malnutrition. He was admitted to hospital last week after collapsing on a street car. She was unable to establish identification of the man they said was wearing a fair-haired wig and moustached and about five feet, eight inches tall.

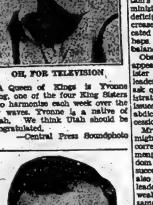
LADY HOUSTON BURIED

London, Jan. 4—(CP—Havas)—Lady Houston, millionairess who died Wednesday, was buried in Marylebone Cemetery, East Finchley, today.

A white brass plate at the grave was inscribed: "Fanny Lucy Houston, at rest. Aug. 26, 1936."

Hundreds of people she had befriended attended the funeral.

SLEW SON'S SLAYER



Mrs. Viola Wickitne shot and fatally wounded Johnny Shepherd, 18, in the courtroom in Jackson, Ky., as the youth was being tried for the murder of Mrs. Wickitne's son, Harvey Caldwell, 17. The woman fired four shots; two of which wounded two other men.

BALANCED BUDGET IS IN PROSPECT

Undoubted Betterment of Financial Picture is Seen

Ottawa, Jan. 4—(CP)— Prime Minister Mackenzie King today launched a series of cabinet councils to be continued frequently for the next two weeks until parliament meets, with the intention of having a legislative program as fully prepared as possible.

The government will work at full speed until a week from next Thursday when Lord Tweedsmuir will finally open the second session of the nation's 18th parliament.

Observers expected a short but important legislative program with early estimates, giving members opportunities of studying proposals for disbursement of national money in the new fiscal year.

One of the long-awaited communications, was expected to be disclosure of the government's defence projects, a national defence expenditures.

It was believed also Finance Minister Dunning will present an early budget in keeping with the government's reported intention of ending the session by April 30, thus permitting members and some other parliamentary members to attend the coronation of King George and the Imperial Conference scheduled to follow that event immediately.

Possible Surplus Budget

Mr. Dunning's hope of presenting eventually a balanced budget, it was believed, would be encouraged by undoubted betterment of the nation's financial picture. The finance minister estimated for 1936 a deficit of about $100,000,000 but increased government revenues indicated a better picture, leading perhaps to his projected picture of a surplus.

Observers awaited with interest appearance of the prime minister R. B. Bennett, Opposition leader, when they expected, would ask questions regarding the administration's handling of constitutional issues arising from Edward's abdication and King George's accession.

Mr. Bennett, it was believed, might demand production of all correspondence between the government and that of the United Kingdom regarding the abdication and succession, but there were reports also that James S. Woodsworth, leader of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, might ask the same thing.

However, the possibility was seen that the government might find publication of such documents would not be in the public good. It was said the attitude of other dominion governments regarding similar disclosures was a strong influence on the question.

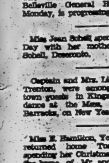
Committee Proposed To Preserve Beauty

Washington, Jan. 4 (CP)—An International Commission to preserve the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls will be proposed to the United States Congress by Representative Alfred L. Bulwinkle, Democrat, of N.C.

Bulwinkle made public today the text of a draft of a Bill for a commission of three Americans, to be appointed by President Roosevelt, and Canadian members.

The Commission would study the whole Niagara Falls problem, and report how the beauty of the Falls might be preserved, how further duty erosion might be overcome and whether further hydro-electric power should be permitted.

The Bill would direct that American half of the Commission would consist of an army engineer, a civilian engineer and an expert on scenery.



President Roosevelt has indicated interest in the problem, both in messages to and in talks with members of Congress, and the State Department has been in communication with Canada, it is understood, this regarding an international agreement.

Better said he believed negotiations must be speeded for the Falls' preservation.

"Congressional action would prod the Canadians into doing something, something which, I feel, must be done some time," he said.

A Journey to Florida

Mrs. Matilda Arthur Writes of Her Recent Trip South to The Land of Sunshine And Flowers

"St. Petersburg, Florida, "The Sunshine City."

"For the Ontario Intelligencer, "Belleville, Ont.

"We left Belleville on the afternoon of Tuesday, December 1st. It was a cold, raw day, with a heavy fall of snow. The following Saturday's storm had been taken from the highway, which left it safe and passable for awhile. A sleet storm commenced while we were travelling near Kingston and it was still snowing when we left Toronto. We found the roads very icy and treacherous and we stopped early at Grimsby for the night. In the morning they were out sanding the roads which were passable until we reached Niagara Falls, where we struck out across New York state. Here the snow was deep in the fields and the curves and hills were perilous, but there were long stretches where the ice showed under the snow and others where the snow had been cleared off and left a hard surface. If we had not had chains and adjusted them in the back tires, this story would never have been written. We drove all the day and stopped at the Big Elm in Batavia—a tourist home, where we had stayed before. We could not turn back. Our only hope was that, when we reached Pennsylvania, the roads, being seals protected, would be all right. We could not make much headway but pushed on and reached Lawtonsburgh on the border of Pennsylvania the next night, where Mrs. Butler received us and said, "Tomorrow you will find much better roads and you will be through the mountains by noon."

"We were cheered as we went on next morning by the fine roads we bare as in summer. All over those mountains not a bit of snow or ice on the highway. About noon we passed the highest point, Kane Summit, 2,140 feet high. That was the only real nice day we had. The next day the roads were clear sides and over good roads. We followed the Lincoln Trail and drove for miles along this great river, and, as night came on, looked for a stopping place. By this time, a straggling village with the river running through it. We could find no hotel sign. It proved to be a fine hotel, and a very hungry crowd. The lady gave us breakfast. The proprietor told us, the night before, that if we did not get enough to eat, we need not pay. We had porridge, bacon and eggs, pancakes and maple syrup, warm biscuits, corn jam, prunes and coffee—more than enough and all so fresh and clean. We were surprised to find the name of the place was Liverpool. We read in the morning paper and it said "Rain today". We had not gone far on the road before the rain came down in torrents, on the windshield so that it was impossible for the wiper to remove it. But we stopped at a garage to see if the manager could help us. He could do nothing but sell us a clamped wiper that would remove the ice. We gladly bought it and we found it to help us that day and the next. We passed though Harrisburg and Gettysburg. When nearing Washington the fog was so dense that it was dangerous driving. In the car had headlights on. The fog lifted, however, and we were only 3 miles from Washington and the rain stopped. At a garage at Frederick, Maryland, where we stopped for gasoline, a very kind proprietor gave us a map of Washington and readily "mapped with his pencil the easy way to get through it. The driver understood the route perfectly and we had not the least difficulty. We thanked the obliging garageman in our hearts when we so quickly reached No. 1 Highway.

"In Alexandria, Virginia, on the south side of the great Potomac river, we had supper and when we came out found the traffic heavy, the night dark and the rain pouring down. The glowing lights so studied us that we thought we could drive on and find the way. So we stopped at a great place called Jack-in-the-Box, eight miles south of Washington. Here was a great restaurant filled with people from the city. All came to have Sunday evening dinner at this famous place. We secured, much to our joy, air apartments with a garage building in a separate building, where we were so comfortable and quiet. They sent us up a fine breakfast the next morning and we were loath to leave and go out into the cloudy, damp, atmosphere, but we must reach Florida.

"We did not make much headway the next day. We ran into a heavy sleet storm on driving out of Richmond. We had thought to pass the next night at our old stopping-place, Mrs. Wartman's at South Hill, Virginia, but could not reach it, so stayed at Northside Inn, a fine old Southern mansion in Virginia—very accommodation and a colored boy to help us with our bags. The cabins of the colored "help" could be seen on the hills to the east of the house. We met there two ladies from Ottawa, who had been in Savannah, but were called home by bad news. They had heard about the storm and said they might put in there on their way train and return that way themselves. A lady was there at supper from New York and had been many some cars in the ditch as she passed along. She was going to meet her husband at West Palm Beach and had as her only companion a pretty little dog. We up and away at 8 a.m. next morning. A gentleman from New Jersey, with whom we were bound for St. Petersburg

"The next stop was at Aberdeen, North Carolina, near that famous Southern Pines district. Here we went on through South Carolina, and had the usual delicious dinner at Hotel. We stopped at Leesville, with a fine hotel, and then on to Columbia with blasting logs, was very cheerful after a day of fog and rain. In this place we found a hotel at Folkston in a large and grand old mansion, and then on through to Invernese, Florida, to Orlando, where we had the pleasant to hear her call us by name and say she was glad to see us. Then on to Tampa, our journey our destination when we were within a few miles of Tampa we stayed Sunday afternoon and evening with Dr. and Mrs. Walker and had a fine visit with them and their nearby, and a pleasant chat about the fireplace with our host and hostess. The next morning we drove into St. Petersburg and were so thankful to and a most unpleasant journey, all owing to the fact that we delayed our starting too late. I would advise anyone contemplating this trip to start not later than the middle of November. We had a very hard time driving here on the American Thanksgiving Day.

"We have had wonderful weather since we arrived here—the beautiful sunshine and blue skies, the foliage, the of the trees, the flowering shrubs and flowers, the warm and clear air. It is certainly a grand life. We have a verandah where the sun shines in for all day and a hedge with beautiful hibiscus flowers all along the side. It does seem like a paradise to those coming out of snow, ice and frost. Christmas was not at all like dull. We decided to have dinner at the Tourist Centre at noon preparatory. I do sincerely hope that next year I have a great crop this year for some parts had a wonderful crop and other years. "When we think of prosperity, don't let us forget the thousands of unemployed in Canada. Don't be impatient because they can find no job.

"Has the church a message for this life or the future?" I once asked the Moderator. He told how he had grown more and more as the years passed to appreciate the sorrows of life and its perplexities. "Has the church a message that really helps the world today?" he repeated. "It cannot give you the whole message of the church but I hope to refer to some points which touch problems of the day.

Message of Kindness

"The message of the church is kindly and simple. How simple was the message of Christ. When you examine the teaching of Jesus, you wonder how kind and how simple it is. The teaching of the church is that we should be kind to one another. When we find how often spoken of in the Bible! God is love, and the teachings of Jesus and the teachings of the church, you find this message all through. It is a terrible thing that we are so ready to speak unkindly of one another and that this has been so. It is a trite saying that so often the unkindest cut upon the eye is closed in death, the kindly word spoken when the ear is closed. How much better were this kindness shown during lifetime.

Faith and Hope

"There is also a great message of faith. I do not believe God blames us if we fear. Let us not fear. Let us have faith and not troubling. God's message is, Fear Not. To every heart that may be troubled here, may I bring the message of faith and hope and courage and trust in God and in the right. Trust in God and fear not. Fear distorts and adds to life's difficulty. Faith expands and adds to life's. We walk by faith, not by sight.

Love

"There is the message of sin. The young people here will forgive me if I refer to them. They are not. The older people will understand. But young people often learn though at a terrible experience. My message is plain, sin surely brings its punishment. The wages of sin is death. Any doctor will tell you about some of these ills. His cures fails and however dazzling it may seem, beware of it, because he has sweet to the flesh, shall of the fruit of the spirit. Right cannot be formed cannot cayley be broken.

Immortality

"My friends, there is another message I would bring to you tonight, a message of life and hope. Let us look at home here tonight. Life is very beautiful and at rest in very many of us. Yet I would not wish to go back to be a boy. Ah, there is the hope beyond.

Dr. Bryce told the story as related to him in Newfoundland by a nurse of a Highlander who was dying. She was reading to him from a dish of homely Scots porridge, and to hear some one sing in Gaelic a paraphrase of the twenty third psalm in Gaelic. He brought a vision of the Lord in the bracken, and his face glowed with a rapt vision as he passed away.

The church has a message of hope, a message of peace, a message for all ages.

RT. REV. P. BRYCE

After the church service, a reception for Rev. Dr. Bryce was held in the church rooms when representatives of Bridge Street, Methodist, John Street and Holloway Street congregations of Belleville and the rural churches at Cannifton, Foxboro, Redersville, Shannonville and Shorts Hill gathered together, to the moderator, Rev. Dr. Bryce spoke on the subject, "Yesterday and not Figures." Mr. H. W. Ackerman was chairman at the reception. Mrs. Stobbs sang a solo, and Mr. Jack Deacon rendered a vocal solo, Mrs. J. Deacon acting as accompanist.

Rev. Mr. Boothouse of Redersville pronounced the benediction.

Rev. Dr. Bryce is no stranger to Belleville where he has appeared on numerous occasions, notably at these being on visits to Albert College.

At the church service, Rev. Dr. Semple and ministers of the rural churches occupied the platform with the Moderator, Rev. W. R. Merrick opening the service. Rev. Mr. Plant taking the lesson and Rev. Fred Horton saying the prayers.

Civic Welcome

Mayor Hill who sat with the united choir brought civic greetings to the Moderator, expressing the hope Bryce was no stranger here, but an old and valued friend. His work with the church in many spheres had been crowned with success. His fame extended beyond the bounds of the denomination. He is a great churchman, a distinguished citizen of Canada and a great public benefactor.

The Moderator's passion for social righteousness has been recognized by citizens from New York state, Dr. Semple noted. He prayed that Rev. Bryce might have strength and vigor unimpaired to carry out the duties devolving upon him as Moderator. This was not Dr. Bryce's first visit to Belleville as a minister but it was his first visit as Moderator that reason the churches in this section had united for hospitality.

A Kindly Utterance

The head of the United Church, looking tall, stately and yet kindly in his robes of office, was received by Mr. Merrick in a happy and graceful manner. He said that Dr. Bryce was no stranger here, but an old and valued friend. His work with the church in many spheres had been crowned with success. "Libeled Lady" Setting a New Box Office Record

With so prepossessing an array of talent at its disposal as that offered by the Hollywood studios, the name of William Powell, Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy and Jean Harlow, it is small wonder that Manager Conrad the triumphant "Tale of Two Cities." It was a foregone conclusion that "Libeled Lady" now in it's third day at the Belle, and establishing new records everywhere would be a picture above ordinary standards.

It is all that and more. Played to the hilt by its celebrated personnel with a roles which couldn't have been more becoming if they had been made-to-order, directed with deft touch, spirit and intelligence, and unfolding a plot which keeps its audience in constant laughter, "Libeled Lady" comes from the studios of Metro Goldwyn Mayer as a fitting successor to such as its recent hits as "Great Ziegfeld" and "San Francisco."

As the title indicates the story of "Libeled Lady" concerns a girl who sues a New York newspaper for one damages . . . five million dollars worth, to be exact. It is this role which Jean Harlow plays and one of the best she has ever attempted. Miss Harlow is equally well cast in the sophisticated and racy sweetheart of the libeled newspaper's publisher editor Spencer Tracy while Powell has a humorous peck-a-boo characterization as the irate star reporter hired to block the libel suit.

Powell's idea is to squelch the suit by making Miss Loy fall in love with him, and succeeds in the first part of his plan only to discover that the girl is already in love with the bewitching Miss Loy. An earlier "marriage of convenience" to Miss Harlow to make matters more quite a bit but all is ironed out delightfully and everybody and the heroines winning the men of their hearts.

The story moves at lightning pace. The dialogue is constantly entertaining and the climax of "Libeled Lady" is topnotch. "Libeled Lady" is playing today and will be missed!

The Belle Late News Flashes, and a funny Toonerville Trolley kartoon in color complete the feature attraction.

Performances start daily at 2.30, 7.10 and 8.10. "Libeled Lady" starts at 2.50, 7.30 and 9 p. m.

The entire program will be repeated again Tonight and Tuesday, matinee and evening, and a good wholesome entertainment that will please every member of the family.

"Dodsworth," Wednesday

Walter Huston, Mary Astor, Paul Lukas, Ruth Chatterton and David Niven are featured in Sinclair Lewis' grand romantic story, "Dodsworth," announced for presentation at the Belle beginning Wednesday, matinee daily.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Boris Karloff"

The first night of our new season hits comes today and tomorrow with "Boris Karloff in "The Man Who Lived Again."

Boris Karloff delves into the mysteries of the human mind and solves the riddle of eternal youth in "The Man Who Lived Again" with Anna Lee.

Karloff plays a famous doctor whose researches in the scientific world bowed until he started talking with Frankenstein's monster into which he called the thought-control of the brain, from one body to another. He was driven out of Geneva for his crazy ideas, and to Switzerland he went and indeed so loudly that they drove him out of there. He began to doing terrible things to human beings to prove to them that he was sane and what he had accomplished miracles beyond the ambitions of man.

A beautiful young girl doctor is Karloff's assistant in his scientific experiments. She sees him change the minds in the bodies of two criminals—one, in his madness, he desires her and tells her that he has changed the brilliant mind from his bent old body to the young criminal's body and the youth she loves she knows that finally can do this terrible thing.

And he succeeds in a way by killing the father of the girl's sweetheart, and the circumstantial evidence that will inevitably convict the girl of the murder. Just in the time he is arrested for the murder he will be the boy's mind in his body.

"The Man Who Lived Again" presents the thrilling and suspense that characterize a Karloff picture. Boris is a master of the weird make-up for the role. The prologue exists only in the mind and the embellishments of the brilliant scientist whose madness finally drive him to his tragic end.

Shown with this mystery Thriller beautifully scored with a number of comedies, musical comedy, delightful novelty. Last complete show at 9.00.

On The Stage

On Tuesday Mile only we are featuring on our stage Tommy Mahon and His Rhythm Kings in a delightful half hour of music, songs and dance. "The Passing Hits of 1936", played in musical terms. This is not an amateur show and no intrusion.

Coming Wednesday

One-Armed French Hero Quits Paris Army Post

GEN. GOURAUD WAS WELL KNOWN TO AMERICAN "DOUGHBOYS" IN FRANCE.

By Central Press Canadian

Paris, Jan. 4.—Gen. Henri Gouraud, one-armed hero, governor-general of Paris, and to American doughboys a beloved friend, has retired.

After 50 years of service, during which he fought side by side with the British at the Dardanelles and with the Americans in Champagne, he has withdrawn to his estate here on the outskirts of Paris.

So far no successor has been named to his post, it is expected, however, that either Gen. Garchery, military governor of Lyons, or Gen. Mitelle, a member of the supreme military council will be appointed shortly.

With his long, luxuriant beard, his one sleeve and the row of brightly colored decorations across his tunic Gouraud for years has been one of the most picturesque figures of France.

He visited the United States with Marshal Joffre's military mission and later returned as military governor of Paris on a post-will tour; he received kings and rulers given by his former comrades in arms.

In later years as Paris' chief soldier, Gouraud has shared with the American Legion and the American embassy the honor of being the idea dear memories at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, under the Arc de Triomphe.

A true Parisian; Gen. Gouraud was born in this city 70 years ago, and was a general of division when the Great War broke out.

At the Dardanelles he lost his left arm and was wounded in the legs that made his gait uncertain in after years.

In 1918, in July, Gen. Gouraud was the commander of the French forces which opposed the Germans in the Champagne and stopped the last desperate German advance.

Observe Golden Wedding at East Seymour

Dec. 29th, 1936, was a special occasion for Mr. and Mrs. William Rannie (nee Hunnie Hume) of Isleraman St., Campbellford, it being their 50th wedding anniversary and their 50th wedding anniversary and their immediate families viz.—Mr. and Mrs. Roy Walker, Marion and Donald; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rannie and little Jean; and Mrs. Earl Johnston, Alex and Betty, together with Mr. and Mrs. Alex Hume, Hall, W. A., Supreme wife, Miss Alice Hume of Burnbrae, Mr. William Hume, Campbellford, brothers and sisters, nephew and nieces of the bride of fifty years ago, with other friends of the happy couple.

Relatives and friends to the number of forty-one gathered to do honor to the worthy couple.

The home was redolent with profusion of flowers, the gifts from Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Bissonnette, nephew and niece of Toronto, who were unable to be present; "the neighbors - Mesdames F. Menzies, Plumpton and K. Campbell, Mrs. (Dr.) Douglas, Maritime Prov.; W. White, Roslin and C. Nelson, Burnbrae (nee Mason Sisters), Mrs. J. Steel and the Misses Neil.

The dining room was lavishly decorated with gift hearts as was the dining table also arranged with yellow candles, this work was beautifully arranged by Mrs. J. Glassford.

Opposite the honored couple at the dining table were Mr. and Mrs. Neal, their pastor and beside them Rev. J. C. Black, Lindsay (a former pastor) and Rev. and Mrs. Hugh Shaw, Menie, cousins of the groom. In the centre of the table reposed a beautifully iced three-storied wedding cake baked by the bride. When all had done ample justice to the tempting viands, a toast to the happy couple was proposed by Rev. H. B. Neal to which Rev. J. J. Black replied.

Later, a varied program was given, Rev. Neal being Master of Ceremonies. Rev. Black spoke in a happy mood, largely reminiscing of the years he was minister of Burnbrae and the hospitality extended to him by Mr. and Mrs. Rannie.

Mr. W. S. Milne read a letter of congratulation from the Menie Women's Institute, of which Mr. Rannie was president from its organization until he retired to Campbellford five years ago, also one from the Session of St. Paul's United Church, Campbellford, whether from Mr. Neil Mascouche, B.A. Queen's and Knox College, Toronto; her telegrams from the Misses of Goderich; and from Mr. and Mrs. Alex Hume, Jr., Ottawa, read by Rev. Neal. Mrs. A. Hume also read Mr. Roy Walker respectively A piano solo entitled "A Delightful Day" was given by Miss Marion Rannie, a reading "The Old Log Cabin" by Mrs. Alex Hume, and a reading entitled "Dreaming" by Miss Fern Wentzell. Brief addresses of a humorous character were given by other ministers on by the following gentlemen:—Messrs. Alex Hume, John Rannie; Alex Hume; Roy Walker; Ed Rannie. 'STREET' TRADING AT NEW HIGH Unlisted Mining Market Trading Increased 1936 Trading by 30 P.C.

Toronto, Jan. 2 (CP)—The unlisted market for mining shares, which reflects fairly closely the pioneer spirit of mining, the prospector's activities and the tempo of development in new fields, confirms, by its 30 per cent. increase in trading, that 1936 was a red letter period in the upsoiling of potential producers.

According to brokers consulted by the Canadian Press, there were periods in the year just closed when share trading was almost equal to, if not greater on the unlisted market than on the exchange market.

The new fields in Quebec, Saskatchewan and far north around Great Bear and Great Slave lakes along with Red Lake, Little Long Lac, Sturgeon River and Beaverlog River district all helped swell the list of stocks traded over the counter.

Some of the advances registered by unlisted stocks in the year were almost as sensational as any during the mining boom days of the exchange. The year saw MacLeod-Cockshutt gain a few cents and end its dollars before the exchange took it over. Gold Eagle, Thompson Cadillac, Lamaque Mines and Horseshoe were other high lights.

BRITAIN, ITALY RESPECT RIGHTS

Accord Includes Mutual Assurances of Regard For Other

BY GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 3—(CP Cable)—Signature of the Anglo-Italian agreement was welcomed here today as paving the way for more wide settlement.

The three main points of the agreement are believed to be:

(1) An exchange of assurances in-volving maintenance of the status quo in the Mediterranean;

(2) Withdrawal of troops and communication in the Mediterranean;

(3) Assurances the agreement is not directed against any third party.

Reaction from Germany is now awaited. There have been a number of signs recently that co-operation between Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini over the Spanish adventure is weakening. With a new Rhineland pact in the offing, Hitler had big hands full.

It is expected that negotiations will open shortly for conclusion of a similar agreement between Italy and France.

In a letter to preferred shareholders of Goodyear This and Rubber Company of Canada Limited accompanying dividend cheques for the first quarter of 1937, A. G. Partridge, President, says: "We are pleased to report that the twenty-sixth year of your company has been profitable and that its company continues to hold a strong position in the Canadian rubber industry not only in time but in all lines which it manufactures. Sales for 1936 show an increase which has enabled us to maintain a more uniform production providing for steady employment throughout the year." Mention is made of the annual meeting to be held in February at which a complete statement on the company's operations for the past year will be presented.

"THE HOUSE WILL COME TO ORDER"

With a large and important legislative agenda facing its membership, the 74th Congress of United States opens in Washington, Jan. 3. Here Representative William B. Bankhead of Alabama, the Speaker, arises to call the House to order. Congress will tackle the year's legislative program after receiving President Roosevelt's message on Jan. 5.

Skier's 'Heaven' Covered by Heavy Blanket

This sanctuary for skiers in Yosemite National Park in the Sierra Nevada Rockies is practically buried in snow, but depth of the white blanket is no deterrent to the ski bug. They throng to Yosemite, where the weather is always attains a great depth. Many parts of Canada would like a little of Yosemite's surplus to spread on bare ski runs.

BACK TO SCHOOL

City, town and hamlet rang today in a new accord, that of the school bell as the youth of the country trooped back to their desks. Record enrolment was noted today as they made their way schoolwards. "Yep," one of them cried, "it's back to work or nothin'. The snow has all gone and there don't seem to be any fun anywhere."

In the local public schools the increase in pupils corresponded with that of a year ago with the exception of King George public school, which approximately one dozen dropped to two this year. Queen Alexandra School showed a new faces with more expected to appear tomorrow. Other schools showed slight increases over the arrivals registering twelve to fifteen more expected. Queen Mary had two new names added to the roster with no pupils expected.

Obituary

JOHN H. ETHIER

The death occurred at Kingston on Monday, January 4th, of John Ethier, a former resident of Belleville. He was in his 63rd year. Mr. Ethier was the son of Mr. Michigan, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ethier. At one time he resided at Montreal and prior to going to Kingston, he had made his home in Belleville for twenty-five years. He had been in failing health for about a year. He was a member of St. Michael's Church, Belleville, and respected by all who knew him.

Surviving him are four brothers, Joseph Ethier, Wm. Ethier Ahler, both of Montreal; Edward Ahler, Belleville, and Alfred Ethier, Detroit, two sisters, Mrs. Romeo Mercier, Montreal, and Mrs. J. O'Connor, of Belleville.

The funeral announcement will be made later.

Livestock

Toronto, Jan. 4.—(CP) — Cattle receipts today 2,500; 26 cents higher in active trading on the Toronto livestock market. Choice steers were strong and 50 cents higher in some trades. TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 4 — (CP) — Base Metals came into prominence again on the floor section of the Toronto Stock Exchange today and substantial gains were recorded by Ventom, Sherritt, Aldermac and Walle-Amulet. Eldorado traded heavily at a gain of 10 cents and the oils were mainly higher.

Mining shares held the golds with an advance of 70 cents to 6.30. Macassa reached a new high at 9.45 and Hollinger passed the 14 mark. Hard Rock, Kirkland Lake, Sylvanite, Lake Shore, Kirkland and Consolaurum were strong and active.

WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Motors and steels reflecting a possible general labor tie-up in the former industry, led a recovering move in today's stock market. Some coppers and specialties rebated sufficiently to post gains up to a point or so. Power and light issues fluctuated narrowly.

Rails held their own although the effect of heavy transportation taxes for the week ended Dec. 26, disclosed a non-committal reaction for the holiday period.

Mailtrips got up slightly among Canadian, Cuban and Mexican issues appeared in International Nickel, Radiators, Corn-Seagrams and Dome Mines, a the curb Lake Shore ruled about even. Canadian government issues were firm at fractional point. Canadian dollars were unchanged at $1.00 1-32.

Conspicuous on the losing side were Chrysler, General Motors, Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, U. S. Pipe and Foundry, Yellow Truck, Montgomery Ward, Westinghouse, J. I. Case, U.S. Rubber, Goodrich, Goodyear and Phillips Petroleum.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, Jan. 4.—(CP)—Industrial stocks on the Toronto Stock Exchange today opened the week's market firm to strong prices, and at an active tempo. Base Metal shares were also spotty with the utilities, building shares and the non-ferrous group general strength and the interlisted issues slightly heavy. The early afternoon saw some heavy sales in every group crowding into the spotlight on the up side.

International Petroleum was the feature of the day's trading as it nearly a point to 35 3-4 and British American added a small fraction. Shawinigan was also conspicuous with Nickel lost ground and Ford A firmed up.

Issues trading in good volume at higher prices included the Abitibi issues, Loblaw A Fanny Farmer, Massey Harris Common, Cockshutt Plow and Walkers.

HOG QUOTATIONS

Toronto, Jan. 4 — (CP) — These points reported higher dockside hog prices today with other markets unchanged: Gains of 10 to 25 cents for live and dressed weights were reported at Strathroy and Chatham.

Live: Strathroy Barrie $8.15; Brantford $8.40; London $8.25; Hull $8.30; Peterboro $8.15; Stratford $8.25; Kingston $8.25.

Dressed Weights — Kitchener $11.80; Barrie $11.75; Hull $11.80; Peterboro $16.30; Stratford $11; Chatham $10.90; Barrie $10.85.

Grain Markets

Winnipeg, Jan. 4.—(CP)—Wheat prices started out briskly at the opening of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today but faltered as liberal selling orders came in.

Values near mid-session after being nearly a cent higher at start, were only a fraction to two changed, May at $1.38 3-4 and July at $1.34 3-4.

Liverpool closed 1-4-1-2d lower. Buenos Aires fell off from early 1-4-1-2 cent gain to case inactivity.

DRILLING FOR OIL

The drilling syndicate, which includes in its personnel Mr. Nelson Wallman of town, is said to be making satisfactory progress in an endeavour to find oil on the farm of Mr. Wm. Hinsz, just west of the village and south of No. 7 highway. The drilling rig has been set up on the swamp and the derrick can be seen from the highway. Last week a depth of over 400 feet had been reached and the drills were still in the favorable limestone formation, which ordinarily overhangs the oil deposits.—Havelock Standard.

"KING of HEARTS"

By Edna Robb Webster

"Another celebration! Lynn sighed with relief, as the last guest left to go all any of you do down here, is celebrate."

"That happens to be a funeral, but that's about all they really enjoy more than anything."

"A funeral!" Lynn's eyes were wide with astonishment.

"Sure, it's about the only occasion when they all get together and shout and moan to their heart's content. A negro funeral is one public occasion."

"Come down to the kitchen with me. I want you to see Mattie, and she seems to see you. She has lots to tell you, and I have several dishes for your pleasure, because she 'brer and loved your mother. Although she hasn't been doin' much of the cookin' for years. She is very old now."

"I'd be delighted." Lynn agreed. "I've wanted to see her and thank her."

She was surprised to find that the kitchen was not in the house at all but a separate building connected with the main house by a covered passage. It's air of covered invitation was irresistible, and the old plantation mansion was built in the South, with the kitchen always in the rear for kitchen and slave quarters. This is one of the few which has survived in the state. It was best preserved, built by our great grandfathers, and is a credit to the planters in the War Between the States.

"You lookin' the Civil War."

"We never call it that down here." Dodi replied laconically, and her bright red lips drew together grimly. Lynn looked back with a little attitude of resentment which was an attitude to be found in the South, and which, after all, was only natural, ambitiously, several times before, and said no more.

They entered a low cottage that was shaded heavily with honeysuckle vines, and a sweet and pungent odor of clean, white, soap from an antiquated stove. The floor was bare than a man arose from a table where he had been eating, and Lynn saw that he was a negro of middle age, with a fringe of white hair around his head, and a face that was sprinkled with white, like soft snowflakes on black wool, but he wore a rusty black swallow-tail coat.

"Mahnin', Miss Dodi," he bowed solemnly, and' old' old Mattie Davis was refused a grin that once would have revealed a row of white teeth. Now there were only three stubs. But her eyes twinkled in a pleasant manner, and she smiled.

"Ah declah, she's taine Miss Mahnin', herse'f come o' Ella' her old withered hand made a motion toward before Lynn. The black eyes glistened with pride and affection. "Ole, yuh shuh is fah yuh mothah, de Lawd rest huh poor soul, Amen."

Lynn moved and bowed her head in speechless reverence and fear. But Dodi filled the silence.

"Mattie, I've brought Miss Lynn wanted to see you and thank you for the delicious supper you've been cookin' for her."

"Ah reckon she'll have a pleasah fuh me, honey chile."

CHAPTER XVIII

"Brotiah Tweahs, heah, he fo' come in t' see me 'bout Tim's habitancy, 'cause he's gwine t' leave Tim's mo' anyone hereabouts."

"Tim, he writin' yuh 'bout Tim's habitancy," the preacher verified gravely, with proud emphasis on the erroneous word.

The girls suppressed a smile, and Dodi replied with the courtesy that one happened to Tim, Mattie? I'm sho' him a day before Christmas, happy and busy as ever."

"Yas'um," Mattie turned head wagged sadly. "De Lawd dropped dah' lak' dah' " her bony fingers snapped loudly. "Ah reckon some of her habits were knocked and shaken out de way of old parochials."

"Ah done tol' him he was too old t' be chasin' cotton in de hot sun, but ah reckon he felt lak a man, he's too old jish nothin'," she grinned and rolled her head toward the Brother Towers, whose pious expression never weakened visibly.

"Too bad about Tim," Dodi sympathised, and they listened to Mattie's rambling reminiscences for a while. Then she concluded, "We shan't be here long, Mattie, but in the mornin' you might give Lynn some of your hot cannon jam for breakfast, with corn pone."

"Tha'm, ah will. Dat's jes' what Miss Mahnin' need t' lak mos', Honeysuckle an' cannon preserves, dat befoh, ah'd lak t' know?" she added herself disgustedly. "An' yuh think ah anythin' mosh I forgit, yoh jes' be tellin' me pretty quick, Miss Dodi."

Lynn wondered what she could possibly have missed in the shadowy meals which had been served her, and marveled at the completeness of these as she looked about the inadequate kitchen. It would not have been tolerated in the cheapest northern tenement. A lumpy coal range seemed to be trying to fit itself to the wall more than it was its proper place, and the sun climbing higher in the cloudless crystal sky revealed the hook objects were in evidence everywhere. If so pretentious a home be called a kitchen. It would have been an electric range and other modern equipment, and the whole bath rooms had been modernized in the old southern mansion. She remarked about this to Dodi as they returned to the house.

"The colored people wouldn't have the slightest idea how to use electric equipment, Lynn. Besides, be scared to death of them, and things would always be out of order. Anything swift and orderly completely bewilders them. They'd break it more slowly and work harder. Perhaps some of the younger ones will learn in another generation.

Lynn drove into the Bayou Teche country was one of the most delightful experiences of Lynn's visit. Only Dodi and Jack accompanied her. How they had swapped the old-time Ford, Lynn did not guess, but she was grateful that Jack had arranged somehow for their trip. Dodi would have been content to drive slowly, in the middle of the road, and Lynn would have been bored to death with the scenery. But Jack, with a flick of sadness so alien to her nature, drove with a speed that was tragedy to real about, but think if you had to live it—wandering all over the world in search of your lover. Oh! Jack, how could you? How could you go on with you?" she pleaded with a half hysteria and shudder as she clung to his arm.

A queer gray shadow clouded his face for a moment, then he laughed with hollow mirth. "Oh, that couldn't happen to me, Lynn. I've lived now, they would find each other in no time at all."

"Jack, you're serious!" Lynn's face was a study. What they gained, literature, knowledge, and the world would have been no heartbreak."

Dodi continued blithely, as if there had been no thing in the world, any more.

And we've quite a few miles to drive," said Jack.

"I'll be ready when twas a good week's trip t' bring ourselves t' see the Bajun. "Now, y'all lin be home and sleepin' fore midnight."

CHAPTER XIX

The car sped along the white unpaved highway of highway as if propelled by wings, with only the sound of the motor breaking the intervals, there floated to them as they passed dark cabins, from which the negroes singing their strange spirituals to the accompaniment of the banjo and guitar. Dodi's garrulous instinct seemed to be stilled by the enchantment of the night through which they passed. And presently, all around them, the dark trees gave way to flat prairies, plains of light. To Lynn, it seemed like if they had suddenly sown into the sky among millions of twinkling stars.

"What are all those little flash-ing lights?" she gasped, with childish admiration.

"Fireflies," said Jack. "The swamps around here are full of them. Pretty, aren't they?"

"Like fairyland." Lynn sighed and was silent. "I didn't know there was any place in the world which could be so deeply delightful suggestive. Why, I've lived a year of days in every one I've been here, and every minute of them has been enchanting."

"I'm so happy that you have been happy," Dodi said fondly. "But why can't you stay here with us?"

Lynn shook herself back to work, and I suppose that is one reason why I am here. Great scott, if white angels trumpets filled the air with heavy fragrance. The roaring surf, foam-crested on blue waves, pounded the glistening white beach. White gulls circled and dipped above the blue water.

Jack had stopped at a weathered cabin, where, he explained, lived an old couple who were his father very well. How well, their cordial, flustered greetings showed. Their admiration for the slim, fragile young amounted almost to reverence, for some recognition of the fact that he passed on no small portion of it to that gentleman's son and his companion. Their humble hospitality extended even to the evening meal, which they insisted that they must share.

"I'm a jest stretchin' the butter an' all but ready t' lay supper on the table." The dark-eyed little woman assured them. "We ain't got much, but you're most welcome t' share what we've got."

"What do you mean—stretchin' the butter', Jack's eyes twinkled at the quaint colloquialism, and he wished at Lynn. He had known she would be curious about the phrase.

"Why, that's how we manage t' make the butter go further, by mixin' a pint o' milk into every pound o' butter, Mother Jewel' tries an' much. Honeyboy, An' Ma, he's, she's thrifty as right," the man boasted.

The meager fare was transformed by the humble invitation into a delicious banquet. Lynn thought it developed to be a generous bowl of gumbo and crevises which rivaled Mattie's own pride, a succulent caper on pastries, and hot biscuits and corn syrup with corn pone and the inevitable coffee. Everything was cooked to perfection, and there was cooler now, and their hosts appeared to have been after the long day's work. Lynn thought they were simple.

When they had finished and were lounging on the porch, which was formed by the roof of the house, in a pleasant zigzag of safety, the little woman came out with the guitar and in the twilight carrying a polished guitar which she handed to her husband.

"I thought mebbe you'd like t' pick a tune for the young folks there in your honor," she suggested wistful, as if she solicitated the pleasure for herself.

"Aw, I ain't much of a musician," the grizzled man drawled, but he took the chair she selected in his eyes a gleam of pleasure, and his fingers touched the strings with a lingering caress as their mellow tones floated reminisnly on the soft air.

"Please do," Dodi insisted, and Lynn, too, added her quiet word of persuasion.

"Ah shuh'll y'all have" he squirted their heat, as if his reperation embarked all the compositions he knew.

"Oh, night pick, 'Following' she suggested, and he began to sing mechanically, in the moment of silence which followed.

"What sounds okay," Jack agreed with enthusiasm. "Let's have, "Following" by all means."

So the old 'Cajun swung into the pleasing refrain of the sentimental song and flung his throaty bass into the throbbing stillness of the moonlit night. Lynn was told a musical legend of the Bayou country, and the plaintive, sentimental melody was so far removed from this place and time that it seemed unreal, as they never had been when the highest paid orchestras entertained them. Only the low murmur of the surf filled the silence between the verses, and presently the old man had finished, and then his guests applauded with ardent appreciation.

"That was grand!" Dodi declared. "Sing another, Mr. Jewel, please."

"Tell yuh what. I'll pick wan fuh each of yuh. Then one'll do foh the young man. Whutd you say I do foh you, Miss Lynn?"

The woman responded eagerly again, and the old man's face warmed two which obviously had stirred her romantic heart when it was young.

The ballads were shorter than the first, but each a beautiful, haunting melodies. The girls expressed their gratitude with glowing words, and then Jack suggested that they must start for home.

"Oh, I'm so sorry," Lynn and the couple protested, loathe to lose him.

"And we've quite a few miles to drive," said Jack.

"I'll will be lovely," Lynn cried. She was so grateful to Dodi for all this pleasure. That was the last day, and she was extremely guilty about Jack. If he had been lonely for her.

They motored to the wharf where the glamor of the industry centered in Lynn for the first time of Chicago. Not the same haste, of course, but the same feverish activity. The odors of rotting wood, oily rope, and fish and river sewage were the same. The harbor was filled with all kinds of water craft, even a colored boat with a sail, and her lounged beside the dock. Its owner, a negro in overalls, was indeed dejected and pathetic beside the trim sleek hull of the enormous boat that lay at the adjacent docks.

It seemed to Lynn that the more she tried to forget Jack, the more she found herself beside him. It was the first time she had been so deliberately and pointed out the various points of interest for her attention: the big dredging machine which was stretched over vast acres along the river bank, the docks, the U. S Naval Station and various other industries and commercial activities. No one seemed to notice their absorption in the scene or the length of time.

Jack was wearing a white linen suit and was bareheaded. Lynn usually wore a linen dated not look at him, yet she wanted every little picture of him to remain with her to carry in her memory. She was interested in the negroes and was interested to incorporate upon it, but it was difficult to keep her thoughts and words in the channels she planned. She wanted to forget everything except Jack and to look at him and hear him lean hands which gripped the rail or reached out to point an index finger to the distance.

Then they had left the city and its struggling industries and were in great river traffic, and were sailing straight down the middle of the great yellow flood of water. Green levees and vast green meadows stretched to the horizon on either side and at intervals bright villages with white houses and church steeples towns in a toyland. People and vehicles moved about on the distant land, and the sunlight was intensely bright.

The ship's movement created a stiff breeze which fluttered scarves and coats and unguarded hair. But Lynn's hair was as straight and shining and unruffled as though she had just stepped from where she went to the forelock with Jack and stood there. Only he left alone. But when she went to her room, she did not turn on the lights. She sat for a long time beside the open window in the mellow flood of moonlight, striving to glean on the tangled string-ring leaves of the magnolia trees and inhaling the fragrance of the night while she meditated upon the strange events and revelations of the day.

One more evening, and she must return to that world of reality, that world's away and separated by a millenium of time. Tomorrow, the night Chopin and violin-playing Mr. Petri were more than a few hours away, and Jack was a little time apart. Could it be that her meeting and parting with Jack Allerton were of the same generation? Was it possible that Dodi and Jack were products of the same machine-age, and that life in Chicago was the same as it had left it six days before? It was incredible.

Life in Chicago would not be the same as she had left it. It would be even more full and exhilarating when she returned. Though she took no part in the gaieties and parties of these days, the mere knowledge that they were going on would be more bleak, the days more monotonous. Her imagination was ineffectual for the revelation of that which she had known. A shining hope would be only a memory also.

Then, which to Lynn had been a beckoning mirage on the distant horizon, had become a reality, the distillation of loneliness sky. It had come, dazzling and glorious, and it was gone forever. She knew. Until now, she had told herself that she was only fascinated by Jackson Thorpe, because he was the man she loved and could not have. But Dewey was a fascinating man—and left her cold as ice. Jackson Thorpe was different. There were others of Dodi's friends who were charming, but they were men in the north. But Jack—of whom the merest thought made her pulses pound—was different. Even his slightest thoughts or him crowded into every waking moment. His personality overwhelming. He was outstanding.

She understood now why her mother had left all this comfort and beauty for John Bartel. How strange that she had ever drifted far away from the same things—not taking her away from them, but leaving her in the midst of—to leave it all with Jack. Gladly, then; all with Jack. Gladly, even as Jack had left it all for Lynn's sake.

But she never must let him know. She never must let Dodi suspect. She wondered if she could remain with them for two more days without betraying to them that one fatal thing which held her in its tenacious grasp.

The following days was even more difficult. Lynn discovered. Once she had mastered the technique of concealment of her love for Jack, and significance of her love for Jack, she felt very proud and glazes betrayed her. For that reason, she was adversely indifferent, and Jack suggested that they should not contact with him at the same time they were never of her clamored for his company.

They went in the morning on a steamer which down the river for several miles, returning by bus. We couldn't go by car, as the ferry cans by boat. It takes so much longer to come up against the current," Dodi explained. "But I want you to see the plantations and the old homes. They're all very interesting."

"I'd love to," Lynn replied, and looked toward the distant shore. "What's that, Jack?"

"The ring?" vaguely.

"Yes, the one I gave you?" He looked down at her. "Don't be he finish jealous of that?"

She reflected that that would be a good way to say him. "I suppose so," she managed to smile.

"Then I'll keep it," he said, and looked toward the distant shore. "What's that, Lynn?"

"Yes, the one I gave you?" He looked down at her. "Don't be he finish jealous of that?"

She reflected that that would be a good way to say him. "I suppose so," she managed to smile.

"Then I'll keep it," he said, and looked toward the distant shore. "What's that, Lynn?"

Toronto Leafs Tie and Lose With Maroons and Red Wings As Canadiens Increase Lead

Montreal Teams Pick up Seven Points Out of a Possible Eight

72,600 FANS ATTEND

Maroons Defeat Chicago While Boston Bruins Take Rangers

(By A. K. Fulford)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Quite definitely, this was a Montreal week-end in the National Hockey League. Canadiens and Maroons picked up seven points from a possible eight, which must have satisfied even those ambitious gentlemen, Messrs. Selke and Gorman.

Hart's happy Habitants defeated New York Americans 5-1 and 4-2 in games at Montreal and New York while Conacher's Maroons played Toronto Maple Leafs a scoreless tie in Toronto Saturday night and whipped Black Hawks 3-1 in Chicago last night.

Canadiens lengthened their lead atop the Canadian division from five to six points. Maroons but Gorman's men stepped up their advantage over Toronto Leafs to four points. Toronto's points from the tie with Maroons prevented the gap out of the collar tie with the skidding Americans.

Red Wings defeated Toronto 4-2 in Detroit last night to go into a tie for fourth place with Montreal Maroons with New York Rangers, who were beaten 3-0 in Boston Saturday, when Eddie Shore scored two goals.

72,600 Fans at Games

In attendance, it probably was the best week-end the National League has ever staged. More than 72,600 saw the six games with the biggest crowd—14,000—at Boston and the smallest—5,000—at Montreal for the American contest. That crowd however was big compared with recent ones in the Forum.

Canadiens continued their fast, crowd-pleasing type of hockey to win the contest with Americans. The New Yorkers were without Harry Oliver and Eddie Wiseman, both of whom are ill. Canadiens bit they picked up Roger Jenkins from Maroons' Shamrock farm and after Jenkins had played Sunday, George Mantha suffered a possible shoulder separation. He is in bed and didn't play the Saturday game with Canadiens Sunday.

After Nels Stewart scored Americs' only goal in the first period Saturday night, Habitants came back with Howie Morenz evened counting. Then bill Miller ran Canadiens' lead to two in the second and Paul Haynes rapped in two in the third.

Last night Stewart again gave the New Yorkers a lead with a first period goal but Johnny Gagnon and Leping put Canadiens up to the middle. Lorne Carr tied it in the third but went off on a penalty and Canadiens had the man advantage to score through Leping and Pratt, former Toronto Montreal amateur playing his first game in the big time.

Toronto Game Listless

Maroons and Leafs obviously were saving themselves for the Sunday games, when they played their scoreless tie. The game at times was listless and the crowd didn't like it a bit. Lionel Conacher, Maroons' defenseman, was a standout with his blueline goalkeeping and smart rushing.

All four goals in the Maroons-Chicago game were scored with one team a man shy but the penalty was split 50-50 between the two when their own players were serving time. Baldy Northcott and Lew Hayes left Robinson scored in the final period.

Then Pete Palangio tied it up for Chicago, when Jerry Carson got a penalty in the third. Before Carson, returned Northcott had put Maroons up ahead again and when Palangio was penalized Robinson made it 3-1.

Palangio Straight For Wings

The Red Wings win over Leafs was their highlight this week-end. Herb Lewis scored for Wings and Mick Mosie for Leafs in the first period. At the end of the first. A penalty on Jack Gill carried over from the first game Detroit scored for the goals by Larry Aurie and Johnny Sorrell early in the second. Then Primeau and Red Horner scored in the third.

Rangers were leading Bruins 3-1 on goals by Butch Keeling and Cecil Dillon to Boston's one by Flash Hollett, when Shore broke up the game at Boston with two smart counters. He teamed up with Red Stanley for the first and in two minutes later scored alone.

There were two penalty shots during the evening, one at Boston and the other at Chicago. Bruins were awarded one when Neil Colville tripped a likely scorer but Bill Mosienko failed to beat Dave Kerr. Lionel Conacher held the puck at Chicago and Hawks were handed one. Alex Connell stopped Paul Thomson's try.

Real Whiskers Carry Man Mountain Dean To Fame and Fortune

(By Paul Mickelson)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Real whiskers that shook when they laughed made Man Mountain Dean, one the mountain to foolishness and riches.

Wrestling fans poke fun at Man Mountain. They figure he's just a ham actor. But he's a mean man.

"What a crazy guy, wow," they shout and deride.

But old Man Mountain takes it even like that. He gets the buffoon on the mat is right down his alley. His making him just as crazy as a certified chimpy.

He's getting rich.

But, about whiskers.

When the Man Mountain, who's really a west side New York Irishman named Leavitt, was in his prime and a good wrestler, he had no beard. Then he grew one.

Matches were scarce. Then Count Potzki, a wrestler in the days, took the 230-pound Man Mountain over to England, hoping to do him one or get him a few matches.

One day Man Mountain made a chance to double for Charles Laughton in a wrestling scene in King Henry VIII. His were false whiskers but he perspired so much they fell off. He acted so well the director gave him a few weeks to grow a real beard. Mail Monday and Saturday is beauty. Nothing, that even the hard boiled movie hands snicker at their antics in laughter, Man Mountain decided to let his whiskers grow. He became one of the big money earners in the game.

In Big Money

"Funny as everything," mused the Man Mountain. "When I was a kid wrestler I always starved to death. Then I lost my hobby, grew whiskers and now I'm in the money. For a couple of years," he puffed between his dense growth of facial hair, "I'm going to make my pile. Then I'll have my annuities all paid for and get $270 a month for the rest of my life."

Any clown can laugh with that deal.

All the holy alarming and tono ha-ha-ha stuff is not for Man Mountain. Most of the time, he wrestles in dead earnest and jumps on his prostrate opponent with all his weight, hoping for the pinfall.

In a match with Hans Steinke, Man Mountain landed on Steinke so hard that the German was laid out for six weeks. Some time after he got out, he went to Hollywood to do a bit for a movie. The director told him to act down low by Man Mountain, thought of a quick stunt.

Would Man Mountain and Steinke duplicate their last match?

"Nothing doing," said Steinke.

The director hired his cash offer him and again.

"I wouldn't let that Mountain fall on me again for $10,000," said Steinke walking off the set.

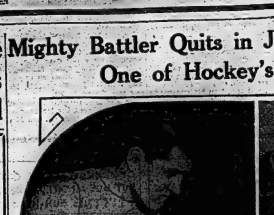
So Man Mountain used a dummy it is said, and the dummy never was the same.

N. H. L. STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Walter Broda, Toronto, and Alec Connell, Maroons, who turned in shut out each as they goal-tended for their teams against each other Saturday night.

Paul Haynes, Canadiens, who started the goal rush as the Habitants scored their 5-1 Saturday night victory over Americans.



George Brown, Canadiens, who married his first professional hockey game with a goal as Canadiens defeated Americans 4-3 Sunday night.

Eddie Shore, Boston, whose two third-period goals brought Bruins from behind and enabled them to defeat Rangers 2-1.

Earl Robinson, Maroons, who scored two of the Canadiens' three goals in a 3-1 win over Chicago.

Larry Aurie and Herb Lewis, Detroit, whose combined accurate sniping brought them each a goal and half of the Red Wings' total as they whipped Toronto 4-2.

Mighty Battler Quits in Jean Pusie One of Hockey's Colorful Stars

By PHIL WARWICK
Central Press Canadian Sports

Toronto, Jan. 4—Monsieur Jean Pusie is through. You ask why? The greatly idol of many a French-Canadian hockey fan closed his playing career with a fight in which he reportedly broke a hockey stick over the skull of Referee Billy Cook.

During a game between Providence and Springfield in the Cleveland arena night Pusie got mixed up in a fight which ended with his crowning the arbiter with his stick. He paid a $100 fine imposed on him suspension. He decided to retire from active hockey rather than take the penalty. An old incident is brought to mind in this case. Cowboy, when a player, was also suspended for the N. H. L. for an alleged attack of Referee Jerry Laflamme. Later Cowbo was reinstated. Jean hasn't waited for reinstatement. Perhaps he's tired of fights.

Big Pusie, one of the most colorful players the ice game has seen, also played for more teams than a hockey expert could name off-hand. He is not only a hockey player of no mean ability, but has tried his hand at wrestling, boxing, umpiring baseball games and many other stunts and wash the blood off his face.

"Blood on Pusie's face?" bowled Jean. He touched his cheek, gazed at it a second, flipped the "Those pegs," he shrilled, dashing back on to the ice and charging the white Buffalo team. This time he was removed to the basement and the game proceeded.

Holds Scoring Record

He holds an unusual scoring record, that of scoring 30 goals and registering 22 assists while playing defence. He was playing for Vancouver in the Western Canada Hockey league in 1935-36 when he accomplished this feat. The league schedule only called for 48 games, which means an average of a goal a game for Jean. Not bad, for a defenceman.

Pusie was born in Chambly, Quebec, and started his hockey career in 1928 with Laval college. In 1930 he turned professional with Montreal Canadiens and has since seen service with other teams in the east and west.

So, after a hockey career packed with fights and glowing records, coupled with Jean's own burning desire to please the fans, he quits the hockey wars due to a fistic brawl. The same case hits a $100 fine plus suspension. Sherman Pusie prefers to quit.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

The National Hockey League scoring aces did some heavy firing over the week-end but Detroit's Larry Aurie and Toronto Schriner of Americans still were 1-2 with Aurie in front 22 points to 21. Wingers Aurie also made himself recent scoring splurge with his first appearance in the Big Ten marking up a goal and two assists for a 17-point total and a share of a three-way, fourth-place tie. The leaders:

7TH CONSECUTIVE TIE GAME PLAYED BY THE FALCONS

Little Results From Efforts As Team Still in The Cellar

STARS ADD TO LEAD

Syracuse Just Coasting in Their Section of Int-Amn.

(By The Canadian Press)

Playing overtime seems to be a habit with Cleveland Falcons but the extra efforts aren't producing dividends. The struggling Buckeyes played their seventh consecutive overtime tilt in the week end and after a two-game stand finished wallowing in the International-American League's western section, cellar.

The extra-time duel was with Springfield and although goalie Moe Roberts was aided by Indians scorers, the game ended in a tie. Falcons broke their string of overtime woes Friday night but it failed to change their luck and the Buckeyes lost 4-3 at the hands of New Haven Eagles.

The single point gained by Cleveland let the team 10 points behind the league-leading Pittsburgh Pirates, who were beaten 4-0 by Syracuse Stars, section leaders, in the only game played in that club. Springfield's even break with Falcons gave the Indians the same point in front of Philadelphia Ramblers who added three.

Rosbelt's Goal Wins

Lloyd Rosbelt's unassisted goal in the second period gave Ramblers a 1-0 win over Quakers Saturday night after Murray Patterson and Ken Doraty, followed by Eagles' Polly Drouin. They had to rally to get a 3-3 tie and a point Sunday night at Providence as Reds remained a single point in front of Eagles, who dropped into basement dwellers.

Again it was a game stand at New Haven as they bowed to the up-and-coming Stars. Three goals down midway through the second period they furiously threatened to overcome the lead. Emory Hanson put Cleveland in the running after 12 minutes of play in the middle period and with six minutes play remaining in the final session, Chet Bartholomew ended the scoring.

Again it was Art Jackson, second Syracuse Stars, now six points up on Pittsburgh. He started the scoring splurge in the first period, when he scored unassisted goals in the first and second. Then 2 tals in the second period. Stars' other two goals were by Bill Cookies from South Porcupine, Onl. Mike Miller and Basil Doran.

Fred Perry to Play Pro Game Wednesday

New York, Jan. 4 (AP)— Fred Perry of England, who has been ranked the No. 1 amateur tennis player of the world when he decided to turn in on the professional ranks ago, and Ellsworth Vines, topranking American amateur, will be at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night in their first professional match to a world championship match which will be played on indoor canvas up the simple pure steel.

The pro-amateur argument has kept over about the heads of the player-pay ranks big Bill was on the downgrade again. Perry established himself as a threat before he became the pro jump, but Vines has been a big favorite.

The show will be completed by a doubles match in which Perry and will team with George Lott against Jack Kramer and Frank Parker. The Garden has been scaled to net $53,400 and a capacity crowd is expected.

Sport Callings

By Ken Colling

Tonight sees the innovation of a new season, and we hope a new era, of hockey in Belleville O.H.A. hockey circles. Practically since the time hockey was first organized as a Provincial sport, Trenton and Belleville have been natural adversaries on the ice. Despite the fact the town along the shores of the Trent River is somewhat smaller in population than our own city does not alter the fact that Trenton has always have been born and groomed in both centres. As Trenton has only been a few better pucksters in any stage of the game than the Ameliasburg section of 20 years ago, or so. Although neither community has ever won an O.H.A. title, some really sterling games have been played in the past and with Trenton being promoted in Trenton this season it is safe in assuming Bill Hogan's fellow-townsmen will be well represented both on the ice and in patronage when the black and white clad Trenton squad take to the ice warms the hearts of the arena tonight.

The management of the arena, and more especially the players, are earnest in their request to have the fans refrain from smoking during the progress of the game. Not only does the accent smother one call it quits for a 15 minute rest period, but the fumes also saturate room to permit smoking in the lounge during the game being conducive to the gaining of a better view of the ice. Not only does the absence of smoke in the arena add to the comfort and breathing of the players, but it also helps to keep the ice surface in better condition. The fans owe it to the players to refrain from "lighting up" for the short time of 30 minutes. Let's make the opening game of the season of a better hockey game. If we go to Toronto or any other large city we are by the rulings of the arena. When the signs are hung out "No Smoking" the smoking please. We as Belleviteans, above all people, should obey these arrangements—let's give it a try at least tonight.

We are not any too sure as to who this evening's referee will be but we must bring to the attention of fans, that the Intermediate men's instituted rules are being put into effect this year. Manager Trumpour is quite willing to have Joe Smith, well known Belleville ball, but regardless there will be certain callings and decisions made by the night's officials that will be entirely new and untried locally. Do not look severely critically at the official or the local players for infractions of the new rules. Remember neither contesting team has had an opportunity to get into competition under the new rules and regulations for those who have witnessed the opening games in the O.H.A. Senior ranks. Remember these are merely tutorial. Doubtless after the initial period of play every fan will be quite conversant with the new playing rules and then a rousing rollicking time can be had by all.

Naturally many local hockey fans are paramountly interested in the outcome of the municipal election. For the convenience of those interested the arena officials have completed arrangements to have the results of the civic election broadcast through the loud-speaking system at the arena. Naturally with such a lengthy agenda, or perhaps we should say so many ballots, it will take some time to tabulate the numerous votes. When the results are in they will be announced at the arena.

It was like old times at the arena Saturday night. Apparently many Belleville hockeyists were in attendance, that is if the 1,500 to 2,000 from the increased numbers, who were present, were members of the skating facilities at the Belleville arena this season. Let's make it a point to attend all day Saturday. In the morning it was free skating, in the afternoon it was for the afternoon and evening capacity crowds enjoyed themselves on the blade. Owing to the prevailing temperature the ice surface at times was rather soft and sticky on Saturday night, making progress a bit difficult. After the ice has had the increased crowds, especially they anticipate that seems to be switching back towards a trend, of less skating, we wonder if the fans is not close at hand when an artificial ice plant could be installed at the arena and to the mutual benefit of all concerned. Unless we are mistaken the Belleville arena has a really good season of hockey in store for the fans of the hockey equally promising. Of course the Intermediate O.H.A. entitled to be placed depends largely on the interest shown by the fans and the attendance at the games. Let's not meet the opportunity that presents itself.

Les Canadiens continued their forward march over the week end with dual victories over the Americans, winning 5 to 1 on Saturday and 4 to 2 on Sunday in New York. A total of 72,600 fans took in the N.H.L. circus proves the Canadiens' great drawing and scoring power, which some stated would be their undoing. The Habs have played the Maroons a scoreless tie on Saturday, but ran afoul of the Red Wings and lost 4 to 2 on Sunday. The Maroons gained two points by beating the Black Hawks on Sunday, however, while the Leafs were certified their hold on third place in the Yankee section of the N.H.L. when they downed the Rangers 3 to 2. Eddie Shore's two last period goals won for the Bosun ite entrée.

According to the O.H.A. bulletin issued today Joe Smith of Kingston has been officially appointed as the referee in charge for tonight's O.H.A. tilt at the arena. Joe has been refereeing considerably under the new rules in the Kingston City League and should have sufficient knowledge of the regulations to keep the game moving along.

"There will be no election this year in Tweed village or Hungerford township," said Reeve Sills, "Tweed Council will be the same as last year, Reeve Sills, Deputy Reeve Councillors E. Myles, J. W. Kingston C. E. Way and Napoleon King. The Police Village of Tweed consists of a corporation of Joseph Rashotte and Harold Rathbun, collector, Malcolm H. Kerr, member for the past two years. General appreciation of the salaryman follows the return of the old council, most of whom have served the municipality well and faithfully for several of the most difficult years in the history of the village.

Hungerford Township Council is also intact, the nomination—Reeve, George Jordan, former deputy reeve and ex-warden of Hastings County, who succeed, D'Alton Clark, retired from municipal circles. Deputy Reeve, Charles Rush, councillor for two years. Councillors Elmer Hamilton, Stanley Tufts and Simon Geneve; all new men, succeeding Bernard Howe, Thomas McGrath and Charles Rush.

Joy rode of the past few days are responsible for several motor accidents. A card driven by Hugh Miller of Marlowe with Mr. Charley Scott a passenger, colliding head on with one driven by John Dawe, 116 Craighurst Avenue, Toronto, on No. 7 Highway on Tuesday. Mrs. Scott suffered a cut lip and bruises, Mr. Barnes was cut about the face while Mr. Miller escaped with minor bruises. Both cars were badly damaged and towed to Tweed for repairs. Constable Hayes who investigated found that no blame could be attached to either driver.

A Perth resident, Thadeus Rama was painfully injured when his car overturned on No. 7 Highway east of Tweed, Deloro Station. The car was badly damaged. Rama with his brother Donna, was on the way to Ontario when the accident occurred. The latter suffered a leg injury. No charge was laid by Constable Hayes who investigated.

The mild weather and rain of the past few days has caused a sudden rise in the water in some parts of Tweed village. At Mr. A. Bradley's residence near the park, the water has risen to a depth of 2 feet, as last springs abnormal level and has overflowed the road and sidewalk. It inundated this area for many hours but rapidly subsided with the drop in temperature on Thursday night.

TARZAN AND THE LEOPARD MEN

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

As the leopard crept closer, Kali Bwana saw a figure emerge suddenly from the jungle—a giant white man, naked except for a loincloth. He ran toward the beast, which did not see him, for its eyes were on the girl. To her horror Kali Bwana saw that the man was unarmed.

The leopard raised its body slightly from the ground. It let its tufted feet beneath it. It was about to start the swift rush that would end in death for her. Then the man launched himself through the air straight for the back of the grim beast. The girl shuddered.

Kali Bwana's impulse was to close her eyes to shut out the horrible scene she knew must ensue as the ferocious leopard turned and tore its rash antagonist to pieces. There was a swift intermingling of spotted hide and brownish skin, of legs and arms, teeth and talons.

Above all rose the hideous growls of the blood-mad belligerents. And the growls of the man were as savage as those of the beast. Kali Bwana's anticipation of only one possible climax to that elemental conflict of the jungle—death for the man, then for her!

Election is Quiet But Vote is Normal With Other Years

With each poll adding to the total Richard H. Arnott, young lawyer and native son of Belleville was elected Mayor for 1937, over Harry Hill, incumbent of the office in 1936 by a majority of 1377; the vote being Arnott 3011 and Hill 1174. It was the quietest election held in this city in years yet there were 7726 votes cast for the Mayoralty, a fair comparison with other years but not more than 50 per cent of those entitled to vote at a municipal election. The electors were also given an opportunity to express their views on a few by-laws and questions and they gave unanimous voice to all but one sub-mitted. Most of the by-laws were defeated although the question of employing a City Manager was in a measure anti-climax last poll was received shortly after ten-thirty this morning. Up till this time the vote was against the City Manager by-law but with Ketchenson 7 reporting, the by-law was given a majority of 30.

COURT VISITOR HELD ON CHARGE

Charged With Receiving Goods Stolen From Garage

Brantford, Ont., Jan. 5 (CP) — Thos. Bullock, a specialist in court, was arrested yesterday and charged with receiving goods stolen from Garage, Waterford, December 1.

G. Shrimpley, crown witness who had bought stolen auniforms, was the star witness in the trial of Earl Butler. Butler said he was with another man, a "stranger," when the articles were sold to Mr. Shrimpley.

Crown Attorney F. R. D. Wallace turned to Mr. Vandenkop on the witness stand and said:

"I put it to you in this court the man who was with Butler?"

The witness looked hesitatingly about the court room.

"I am informed he is in here," the Crown Attorney said.

"Can you point him out?"

Vandenkop turned to Rice, seated in the back of the court room near a window.

"Stand up Roe," the Crown Attorney said.

Roe did and Vandenkop made positive identification of him.

The prisoner was then in the arrest made a short time later.

Mastoid Operation On 2 Year Old Boy

Orangeville, Ont., Jan. 5 (CP) — A two-year-old boy, son of Angus Cole, recovered in the farm house here Monday today after undergoing a difficult mastoid operation in the kitchen of the farm house last night.

Dr. L. T. White who performed the operation with the assistance of Dr. C. L. Scott and T. A. W. Leach, was unable to remove the child patient to hospital here because it has no hospital facilities and the boy was suffering from scarlet fever.

A sewing-machine top served as the operating table and a neighborhood gangsman set up an automobile light in the little room for the convenience of the physicians.

The operation went off without a hitch and the child's condition became better a few hours after.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Quebec, N.H., Jan. 5 (AP)—Indian service agents reported by telephone last night they had reached another band of 21 snow-bound Nevada Indians, including a five-weeks-old baby while 45 in a nearby encampment.

The Indians were near starvation and ill from exposure to subzero temperatures in the mountains of western New Mexico plateau. Hayes, including the baby, were rescued. An Indian service agent was reported ready to evacuate the other 39 today.

Montreal, Jan. 5 (CP)—The voter in Notre Dame De Grace ward didn't think much of any of the candidates. Tabulators in Montreal's current mayoralty election recorded 1,000 votes spoiled across the ballot: "Nuts."

New York, Jan. 5 (CP)—Miss Ben Wey, who was born in San Francisco Francisco resident and a United States citizen, married Antonio Armstrong Semple Fell of Belem, Portuguese East Africa, when she was 16 years old, she said today.

So she sent a five-foot crocodile back to the new Staten Island Zoo in the hope of interesting the children there in her pet.

The radio operator of the S. S. City of New York, who characterized Jack somers as "a plain dirty man Wey's passport and other identification papers were destroyed by a fire in 1936.

Forth Worth, Tex., Jan. 5 (CP) —Dad Bennett Texas prison agent, decided to take his plead before the boss—he was going for a load of tough prisoners.

Shortly after he left, Mrs. Bennett telephoned the county jail. Keeper Guard Ed Hall came to the radio dispatcher.

"Where do you want look for Bad Bennett and tell him his wife called and tell him he forgot to load his pistol."

Albuquerque, N.M., Jan. 5 (AP) —Frank Dewey, 11, climbed an apple tree tied a rope to a limb, put the rope around his neck and shouted to a chum:

"This is how cowboys hang cattle thieves!"

Then he jumped. His foot touched the ground.

Leaving him half an hour later with an inhaler and artificial respiration, the chum said: "A little stretched, but none the worse."

Maryville, Mo., Jan. 5 (CP) — Mrs. Mary Crow Trevelin and movie writer who claims he is the only author able to write about the old home and then come back to it, stopped here enroute from Hollywood to New York.

Croy explained he came back to "see whether fried mush is worth off the evil influence of all that fancy food and corny juice I had eat in Hollywood."

PETE THE COP ASKS CHILDREN TO END STRIKE

Scholars Had 'Struck Because of His Dismissal From Force

HIS SIMPLE PLEA

'Your Education Means More to Me Than My Job'

Deerwater, N.J., Jan. 5 (AP)—Pete, the cop, made a personal appeal to his schoolchildren friends to go back to their classes today and thus partially broke the strike they called to protest his dismissal from the force Pennie Neck Township Police force.

The brief, excited plea was made as he stood in the centre of the group of children before Deerwater Public School. Two-thirds of the 300 pupils in the school answered the call and answered school roll call.

"I appreciate what you're trying to do," said the dismissed patrolman, "but I'm asking you to thank you and I know you're all my friends still. I'm your friend. But your education means more to me than my job. You're causing your teachers trouble. I want you to go back to school."

YOUTHS SENT TO FACE TRIAL

Document Purporting to be Confession Read to Pet-erborough Court

Peterborough, Ont., Jan. 5.—(CP) On the evidence of three crown witnesses in each case, John Mc-Cann, 19, and Gordon Dunn, 19, today were committed for trial following the preliminary hearing of charges of attempted armed robbery and assault. Through their counsel the two, H. Gordon K.C., the accused elected jury trial, but did not call witnesses.

In the case against McCleman, Chief Constable Hall produced in evidence a document purporting to be a confession signed by McCleman.

Statement is Submitted

In the statement McCleman was quoted as declaring that he and Dunn planned to hold up the grocery store of Edgar D. Carson of Benson and Aberdeen Avenue.

According to the statement McCleman entered the store on the night of Nov. 28 last and, using a cigarette paper on the night of Nov. 28 last and, using a cigarette paper on the night of Nov. 28 last and, using a dirty handkerchief to mask his face entered later and produced a gun at the clerk, ordering him to "stick 'em up."

The statement grabbed a pair of goods from the shelf which he hurled at the head of Mrs. Golding then, and Bruce is stated to have then opened fire with a .45 calibre revolver.

The bullet pierced the left upper arm of Mrs. Golding and lodged deep into the side and abdomen.

After the shooting, McClemen's statement indicated both he and Bruce fled from the store.

McClemen returned home and was subsequently arrested by city police He had a loaded revolver under his pillow.

MAYORESS ARMS FOIL CS TO DEFY GOVERNOR

Mrs. Irene Armstrong, woman mayor of Daytona Beach, Fla., with in her fist skirmish with Governor Dave Sholtz, who is attempting to oust her administration, has turned to the courts in an effort to maintain her office. She stood her ground when the governor ordered her from power on charges of exceeding expenditure and of incompetence, arming city hall employees with sub-machine-guns. Above is Mrs. Armstrong at her desk in the city hall directing the fight against the governor.

Newly Elected Mayor Arnott, Members of '37 Council Given Rounds of Applause at Meeting

Mayor Harry Hill, Defeated in Contest Absent Through Injury to Wife

BAND SERENADES

Elected Members of Municipal Body Promise Good Legislation

Twelve hundred exuberant Belleville electors gathering from the polls after which characterized their efforts in the earlier part of the day turned out en masse last night at the conclusion of the 1937 municipal elections and gave the newly elected council one of the most vociferous ovations ever accorded an incoming municipal body in the history of the city. From the various wards of the city they came, a truly representative crowd. Men and women, youths and maidens and boys and girls packed and jammed their way into the City Hall at an early hour to give their favorite candidates a rousing welcome. They filled the City Hall Auditorium to capacity. They sat in the seats; they stood in the aisles; they sat on each others' laps and some daring youths stood on window-sills. The stirring band strains were packed with a rolling crowd and during the ballot-counting the hallways and stairways were filled with laughing people.

Some, however, took their municipal politics in a more serious vein. They stood and conversed in low tones in small groups of three and four.

But the majority of the gathering were in exuberant mood. In the auditorium they amused themselves with good-natured banter, laughter and merriment rang out as some amusing anecdote were unfolded

Proposed Conference May Be Postponed

Toronto, Jan. 5 (CP) — Proposed conference between Premier Hepburn of Ontario and Premier Duplessis of Quebec, may be postponed due to the early session of the Ontario Legislature which will open January 19, it was learned today.

The two premiers had intended to meet in the near future to discuss in greater detail plans for closer co-operation in the development of natural resources in Ontario and Quebec.

The Militial conference was held several months ago following which a tentative scheme for northern development was announced.

"I may not be able to see Mr. Duplessis as soon as I expected because of the early session," Mr. Hepburn said.

AIRPORTS BUILT UNDERGROUND IN L. CONSTANCE AREA, REPORT

Strikes of Germans Hold up Work at Rockets Along Border

TO HOUSE 30,000

PARIS, Jan. 5.— (CP-Havas)— Construction of German military barracks and subterranean airports in the Lake Constance area has been seriously hindered by repeated strikes of German workers demanding higher wage scales, Genevieve Tabouis, political commentator, reported today in L'Oeuvre.

Workers have been confined to large numbers in concentration camps at Dachau and Neuffassen when they struck on work vital to Germany's program of militarizing the Franco-Swiss frontier region, she said.

Strikes reported have occurred at least as existed prior to 1914, Mme. Tabouis asserted.

Strike reports that seeped across the border brought the first hints of the extensive works in progress on the north shore of Lake Constance, at Wehmatingen, Radolfzell, Donaueschingen, Willingen, Singen, Hattenberg, Waugen and other towns, the commentator declared.

Barracks housing a total of 30,000 men are under construction at these points, Mme. Tabouis said, as compared to a pre-war garrison of 5,000 in the whole region.

At Neuffassen, according to Mme. Tabouis, an area of 15 acres was converted into a completely equipped underground airport, with digging going on at the rate of roughly 12,000 cubic yards daily.

10,000 ITALIANS LAND IN SPAIN LONDON HEARS

Move is Considered Reply to Plea For Neutrality

MOVE AND ACCORD

Pressure May be Brought to Bear on Berlin For Arbitration

Paris, Jan. 5.—(AP)— Sources close to the foreign office said today the reported landing of 10,000 Italian "reinforcers" as did Spanish insurgents was considered Rome's "answer in fact" to pleas for non-intervention in the civil war.

These sources interpreted the Italian action and possible hailing of Spanish Government ships as actual indications the two Fascist countries would refuse to comply with France-Britain proposals to keep the conflict local and halt the flow of aid to insurgent Generalissimo Franco.

Well informed diplomatic circles said 4,000 Italians arrived by rail at Cadiz, Spain, on New Year's Day from Italian military transport ship Lombardia.

Another contingent of 6,000 "volunteers" previously had been landed at Cadiz December, 28, these sources said.

This action, Foreign Office circles said, coming almost in conjunction with the signing of the Anglo-Italian "Peace pact" may be the status quo in the Mediterranean, was taken to mean Italy did not consider the accord opposed such a move.

Although "grave" it was believed would be the result of additional British interference with Spanish shipping.

Germany's communication, Valencia says the regional Basque regime until 8 a.m. Friday to remove the acquisitorial portion of the cargo of the German freighter Palos, said to include the unidentified Spaniard taken from the ship before Christmas.

The Basque spokesmen, only a few hours after the message was received, announced it had been rejected by Valencia.

It was further learned because it was not forwarded through the proper diplomatic channels, the Spanish government would not accept it, Valencia says (Germany recognizes only the Insurgent regime in Spain).

Bombardment

Odherwise, the Koenigsberg's commander said, the seized Spanish freighters Aragon and Maria Gorgen would be "disposed of" and turned over to the Spanish Insurgent regime.

The Basque spokesmen, only a few hours after the message was received, announced it had been rejected by Valencia.

It was further learned because it was not forwarded through the proper diplomatic channels, the Spanish government would not accept it, Valencia says (Germany recognizes only the Insurgent regime in Spain).

STIR UP THE FIRE FOR THE ARCTIC WINDS TO BLOW

Weatherman Forecasts Two Days of Sub-zero Weather Starting Tonight

NO SNOW DUE

Toronto, Jan. 5 (CP)—Residents of Ontario had better reach for their warmest winter woollies if the provincial weather man has the right dope.

A cold wave of pronounced severity, says the forecaster, is moving from the Arctic regions today and will hold Ontario in an icy grip for two days, starting tonight. Sub-zero temperatures threaten. The wave is moving now from the north and northwest by way of Manitoba and Northwestern Ontario.

Snow is probable around Georgian Bay and Lake Huron, but none is expected for in the rest of the province.

Britain's Influenza Epidemic at Peak

LONDON, Jan. 5.—(CP-Havas) —Britain's influenza epidemic, the most serious in years, was believed today to be rapidly reaching its peak. Hospitals were forced to capacity, with many doctors working day and night. The flu is of mild type, however, and the death rate is not alarming.

Cases of 94,000 post office employees, 5,000 were down with the flu.

Butter is Forbidden to German Folks

Berlin, Jan. 5 (AP)—Germany was told today—by official decree and a newspaper editorial—thereby building up a reserve for butter, and use street cars in preference to gasoline.

An official decree prohibited advertising agents from making reservations for butter and other fats—of which there is a shortage —by picturing mouth-watering scenes.

Efforts to win new customers must be confined to such commodities as sugar, margarine, fish, potatoes, cottage cheese and barley, the decree ordered.

Editorially, the newspaper Zwoelfuhrblatt urged greater use of the street cars instead of buses to save gasoline, another commodity on

DUTCH TO HEAR FOUR ANTHEMS

The Hague, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Hastened Dutch authorities changed their "strike up the band" orders today to include a few strains of Wat Germanye's anthems as they intended to iron out one of the three rough spots in royal wedding plans.

At tonight's gala festival attendant upon the Thursday wedding of Crown Princess Juliana and Prince Bernhard of Lippe Biesterfeld, bespectacled German nobleman, the military band will play:

1. The Dutch National Hymn. (Willhelmus Van Nassouwe Ben Ik Van Duitschen Bloed.)
2. God Save the King.
3. Deutschland Uber Alles.

Just two verses of "Das Horst Wessel Lied", the Nazi marching song.

Seething the Germans

In this way the Dutch Government hope to soothe German feelings without endangering its own prestige or giving the impression it had yielded to German demands.

BASQUES REJECT SHIP'S DEMAND

Message Turned Down Because Not Sent Through Madrid

Bayonne, France, Jan. 5—(AP) —Spokesmen for the Basque regime of a German freighter's cargo announced late today the Spanish Basque capital at Valencia already had turned down the German crusier Koenigsberg's demand that the sequestered material and an interned Spanish passenger be released.

The spokesmen further warned that "grave" consequences would be the result of additional German interference with Spanish shipping.

Germany's communication, Valencia says the regional Basque regime until 8 a.m. Friday to remove the acquisitorial portion of the cargo of the German freighter Palos, said to include the unidentified Spaniard taken from the ship before Christmas.

MOTOR COMPANY REFUSES TO PERMIT UNION HEADS TO DICTATE LABOR POLICY

Will Not Recognize Any One Union as Sole Bargaining Agency

LITTLE VIOLENCE

Three Only Are Injured—Big Loss to Company and Workers

Detroit, Jan. 5 (AP) — The General Motors Corporation and the United Automobile Workers of America prepared today for defendant their divergent views on collective bargaining today as the far-flung United States automobile industry and other unit of the motor industry's biggest producer.

On bulletin boards in the corporation's 98 odd company plants appeared a notice stating that General Motors "will not recognize any one union as the sole bargaining agency for its workers." The U.A.W.A. had been building up a membership to represent General Motors employees.

The statement bore the signature of Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president, Walter Reuther, R. S. Martin, president of the Union, addressed a new request last night for a conference on "fundamental issues for which there must be a national policy fixed by your corporation."

Sloan describing the "real issue" of the controversy between General Motors and the union as being: "Will a labor organization-plus the plants of General Motors Corporation or will the management continue to do so?"

Then, answering the question, he said:

"Have no fear that any union or labor dictator will dominate the plants of General Motors Corporation. No General Motors workers need join any organization to get or keep a job."

With conciliation, the strike in General Motors division have been conducted without violence. Two persons were killed and the union was hurt slightly in a scuffle yesterday at the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Corp. plant in Cleveland.

50,000 Idle

Slightly under 50,000 employees of the huge corporation were idle due to the strikes and shutdowns which closed 15 plants.

Strike headquarters at Flint, Michigan, estimated that 2,100 men were inside the two Fisher Body plants there, but company officials said the number did not exceed 1,500.

The union employed a chet to direct the task of preparing meals for the "sitdown" strikers.

General Motors officials estimated the financial shortages of materials would find 136,000 of its employees idle by the end of this week. The corporation said this would mean a daily wage loss of $1,000,000 and a daily net profit reduction of $230,000 to the firm.

The 98 domestic plants of General Motors are located in 26 cities in 14 different States. More than 300,000 employees in the United States

BURNING ROOM FUNERAL PYRE OF 3 CHILDREN

Mother Escapes From Cottage in Night Attire in 10 Below Weather

FOUND IN BEDS

Father, Truck Driver, Passed Fire Brigade While Hurrying to Work

Calgary, Jan. 5 (CP)—In a fire-swept room, the three children of Mr. and Mrs. John Taylor died today while the mother, escaping pale 10 below zero weather, suffered frost bites and shock. A fireman was injured.

The dead:

Noreen, aged 2½ years; John, 3½ years, and Donald, one year.

Bodies of the children were found in their beds by firemen who smashed a window in the Taylor cottage and entered the smoke-filled bedroom.

The two elder children were sleeping in one bed, the youngest child lay in a crib nearby.

Father Passes Fire Brigade

John Taylor, the father, who is a truck driver, was hurrying to work and passed the fire brigade as it speeded to his home. He had started a fire in the kitchen range before leaving the cottage.

Fire Chief Cruickshank told Mrs. Taylor, sleeping in a front bedroom and separated by the kitchen from the children's room, he made a vain attempt to enter the flame-filled kitchen, and then, shrieking for help, rushed from the house in her night clothes.

A neighbor, seeing an "orange glare" in the Taylor kitchen, came out to investigate, brought the frantic mother into her home and called the firemen.

C.N. SWITCHMAN FALLS OFF CAR

William Young, Pine Street, Suffering From Fractured Sacrum

William Young, 51, yard switchman at the C.N.R. at this terminal, lies today in Belleville General Hospital suffering from a fracture of the lower region of the spine as a result of a fall from the top of a freight car which he was breaking in the yards this morning.

After crashing heavily to the ground, Young was removed to the hospital under the care of Dr. Kennedy. An X-ray examination was made and the extent of his injuries ascertained.

Mr. Young, married sixty early this afternoon, that Mr. Young was suffering with a fractured sacrum, and while the injury was serious the injured man was in no immediate danger. Young resides at 4 Pine Street and has been an employee of the railroad for a number of years.

LARGE EXPANSES OF OPEN WATER IN BAY

Due to the combined action of high winds and warmer weather today large expanses of open water were noted in the Bay of Quinte, on the breaking up of the ice in the continuous thaw. Skating has not been possible since the recent cold spell, and the action of the ice and the open patches is of value.

OWNERS LIKELY GIVEN TWO-WEEKS GRACE

Though no official word has been received from Queen's Park car owners of this district as well as throughout Ontario will be given a period of two weeks' grace in which to purchase needed licences. Delay for their automobiles it was intimated at the office of the local bureau this morning. It was announced by the Government yesterday through newspaper reports that the period would date until January 18.

With the steady tax of eight cents now tinkling to a smaller stream at the local office, it was revealed that over 700 more plates had been given out so far this year over the number for the same period last year. A steadier sale this year was the result of the earlier issue of the plates was made.

FURS HIGHER BECAUSE OF CORONATION YEAR

Because a King of England is to be crowned this year, fur trade nationals of Hastings County are finding the year 1937 is going to be a strenuous one at the present time.

Due to the demand for furs of all kinds due to the coming Coronation prices for pelts of all varieties have sky rocketed; while the greatest number of professional and amateur trappers are now engaged in the woods, it is reported by Mr. Harry Tanner of this city, head of the district's leading fur buyers.

The scarcity of skins-in-the-raw being made to the east, from where they are being transferred to England.

PAYMENT OF FINE ADJOURNED MONTH

Fred Hill, Tyendinaga Reserve, was found guilty of the possession of intoxicating liquor upon the Indian Reserve when he appeared before His Indian Agent, H. J. Rede at Deseronto yesterday. A fine of $10.00 and costs was imposed. Hill was arrested by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police following a search warrant by which a quantity of alleged home brew beer was found in the vicinity of the accused the payment of the fine was adjourned for one month.

CITY MARKET IS A QUIET PLACE

What a difference a few days "make". Not so long ago the city markets rang with the buyers' hurrying feet; with the cries of vendors as they offered choice Christmas fare for sale. Geese, turkeys, geese and ducks were everywhere in evidence, while vegetables and winter fruits were offered in a host of splendid purchasers. But the holiday season is over and things have changed.

This morning, the city market presented a deserted appearance. Yes a chair here and there was in sight. Gone were delectable table goodies of a short week ago. Not a vegetable nor the colored rosiness of red apples greeted the eye. The plump whiteness of chicken and turkey was missing.

A lone vendor paraded slowly up and down the square, his only offering a small load of stovewood. Shortly he walked, eyes appraising approaching people in the hope of a potential buyer. At a late hour he maintained his vigil with his wares still intact in the small truck.

GULLS DRIVEN OFF BAY BY HIGH WINDS

As one indication of the strength of the wind this morning, a gull, which had been vainly trying to breast the air currents in the vicinity of the city mill this morning was caught in a sudden gust of air and flung against one of the corners of the building. The big fell to the platform of the tower apparently dazed, when reported. Hundreds of the gulls, apparently driven in from the lake by the high winds congregated at the mouth of the Moira, now practically cleared of ice.

Roller Skates Are Supplanting Ice Skates

The best evidence regarding the change in weather in this district during the past few days is noted by the fact that roller skates have supplanted ice skates even though the month is January, and the streets and roads and wind-blown dust instead of the usual snow has resulted in more than an ordinary amount of minor illness, and colds at present prevalent.

ELECTION NEWS EAGERLY HEARD

Telephones in Ont. Intell. Office Ring Till Late Hour

Any ideas, which one may have had regarding the indifference to municipal elections on the part of Belleville electors were rudely dispelled last night, when not only a large crowd thronged the City Hall to celebrate with the victorious candidates but telephones in every place, which had access to the returns were kept working overtime. Five telephones in the Ontario Intelligencer started ringing as early as six-thirty and from that time until an early hour in the morning were kept constantly ringing. Bell telephone operators were also kept busy all evening with calls constantly coming in and the service was prompt with little delay.

Many and varied were the calls, which flowed in a constant stream to this office. Some people as early as seven o'clock demanded the return for the aldermanic elections. And while in the main, inquiries were about the mayoralty results, the by-laws came in for their share of the public interest.

Shortly after nine-thirty with the count practically piling up steadily, interest in the mayoralty race began to flag. It was then a question of how many Public interest began to turn to the aldermanic race and the standing of the various by-laws.

One skeptical gentleman could not believe his ears when told, that Mayor-elect Arnott was leading by a substantial majority. "Are you sure?" he asked. "Don't you mean just the reverse?" It was finally made audible, sigh came over the wire and a short "Good" ended the calm of the receiver.

"Victory" called another voice, when told of the final returns. And evidence of the interest taken by the public in the returns was revealed in the number of calls received from the country. And they appeared to be as excited over the results as did the man of the specie.

Late or early as one thirty this morning telephone calls were trickling in with callers wanting to know the final standing. But even reporters must sleep and another election passed into the lumbo of wherever elections go, shortly after that time.

Pontiff Hopes to Send Message To Assembly

Vatican City, Jan. 5 (AP)—Plans for inauguration of the new Pontifical Academy hold the attention of Pope Pius today despite recurring pains in the Holy Father's paralyzed hand.

Vatican sources asserted the Pontiff hoped to send a personal message from his sick bed when the Academy assembles for its initial session February 6.

The Pope spent another restless night, sleeping only slightly despite sedatives administered to relieve his neuritis.

CHARLES W. COX GIVEN 4 TH TERM

Mrs. Barbara Hanley of Webbwood Elected Again

(By The Canadian Press)

Lively balloting marked the majority of elections which brought to an end municipal campaigns in which will handle municipal affairs in Ontario for 1937. Cities, towns, townships and villages yesterday picked their administrative bodies and decided on a number of by-laws.

Cities where ballots were cast included Port William, Port Arthur, Sault Ste. Marie and Belleville. Alderman Dr. R. C. Hardiman was chosen Mayor of Port William, succeeding R. J. Low who did not enter the fray. Mayor-Charles W. Cox, Minister without Portfolio in the Ontario Cabinet was elected Port Arthur's mayor for a fourth term by a 1,824 majority over Alderman M. J. McDonald.

Sault Ste. Marie chose Alderman W. J. McMeeken as Chief Magistrate and Belleville elected Mitchie D. Arnott, Barrister-at-law who defeated Mayor Hill, standing for re-election.

Mrs. Hanley Wins

In Northern Ontario Canada's only woman mayor, Mrs. Barbara Hanley, was given a second term as mayor of Webbwood, 28 miles east of Sudbury. She scored a victory over Robert Streich by a majority of 20, polling 97 votes to her opponent's 66.

In one of the closest votes in the history of the village of Portsmouth, Reeve Frank Hill lost out to Alderman G. Johnston after spending 31 years as Reeve. Johnston's majority was only seven votes.

Some Acclamations

Acclamations included A. S. Hughson as Mayor of Napanee; James Gardiner as Mayor of Kingston-on-the-Lake; Paul Kennedy as Mayor of Ridgetown; J. J. Shaw as Mayor of Meaford. Shaw defeated Mayor of Preston; Herbert G. Zilliax by a vote of 1,000 to 900.

H. G. Taylor won his 10th consecutive victory as Reeve of South Dorchester when Wallaceburg Mayor K. V. Dickenson was returned by acclamation.

Preston electors turned down Daylight Saving Time. Belleville electors approved a city manager and formation of a Public Utilities Commission. Both by-laws carried number in the City Council to six aldermen. The Mayor, Belleville in future will have a Board of Education with nine members instead of 30. They will be municipally elected and not by the Ward system.

POLICE BLOTTER

"Generally speaking it was very quiet in the city during the month of December," Chief Ponton of the department was on hand at the City Hall last night but "my men were apparently was not required as comparatively few returns are recorded" in the month's report.

Considering the results did so in an orderly manner and the arrests were few in Belleville yesterday," stated Chief Hicid today while reviewing the police report for December the past 24 hours.

Only two charges were laid last night, however, the front door of the local business men's club was a lively rendezvous. Upon the arrival of the proprietor nothing was found to have been disturbed, the only having been inadvertently left unlocked at closing time.

H. Howard, Holloway Street reported the loss of his brown colored spaniel puppy to the police last night. An area down Queen branches were provided with warm sleeping quarters in the cell block at the police station last night. No major motor accidents were reported in the vicinity of Belleville during the past 48 hours.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Jan. 5 (CP)—A moderate depression is centred this morning over Northern Quebec, while high pressure and decidedly cold weather extends from Lake Michigan northwestward over the western provinces to the Yukon. Snowfalls have occurred in northern portions of Ontario and Quebec, also in Alberta, though in other districts the weather has been for the most part fair. Temperature has been above normal in Eastern Canada but it is now colder in Northern Ontario.

Lake Superior—Northwest winds; mostly fair and decidedly cold today and Wednesday, probably snow flurries near the Soo.

Western Provinces—Fair and decidedly cold today and Wednesday.

Extends Good Wishes To Mayor-elect

Far from being down-hearted from his defeat at the polls yesterday, Mayor Harry Hill in his exercise office at the city hall this morning was receiving the hand shakes of his fellow councillors and ordinary citizens with a beaming smile.

"I feel this morning, that I have been relieved of the biggest load I have ever been called upon to carry," confided the Mayor. "Now all I can do is to wish the new Mayor-elect the best of luck and assure him of all the support I am able to give.

"My past seven years in council have been most happy ones. I have been glad to serve Belleville as alderman and later Mayor, and in that time I have tried to carry out my duties to the best of my ability. I've given the job every hour that I could.

"My only regret is that the papers of this city are not aware of the fact, that the unemployed and those in need in Belleville come dangerously close to determining the political municipal management in Belleville.

"Those bought I am no longer in council, I have by no means lost my interest in municipal affairs, and am willing to assist in any manner, that I can the progression of the welfare of this city".

MAYOR-ELECT IS A NATIVE SON

Member of The Law Firm of Porter, Payne And Arnott

Richard D. Arnott, the new Mayor-elect, is a local native son of Belleville.

He was born here in 1904 and received his earlier education in Belleville Public School. He won Governor General's Medallist ten years ago, his entrance examinations for the Collegiate Institute in 1917 when under thirteen years of age. He was the brilliant learner of public and high schools. Graduating, he was articled as law student with C. J. Butler, K.C., and later the legal firm of Porter, Ailler and Payne.

After serving articles he attended Osgoode Hall Law School and was graduated from there and called to the Bar in June, 1927. Upon his graduation he entered the law firm of Porter, Payne and Arnott.

His municipal record includes two years spent as Alderman in the City Council. In 1935 he laid the Chairmanship of Industry and in 1936 he held the office of Tourist and Publicity Chairman.

One of the younger members of the council he has been noted for his keen interest in municipal affairs and management.

Co-eds Skeptical of Beauty Budgets

Toronto, Jan. 5 (CP)—There must be gold at "that star-coast," the University of Toronto co-ed say of British Columbia reports are true that the average coast co-ed spends $5.75 a month on beauty treatments.

Interviewed today, girl students made such comments as extravagant, out-of all proportion and absurd. They said a local girl can make good on $1 to $4 a month.

"It depends on whether you go out much," said one young person, "most girls can't afford to spend much money on beauty treatments."

For $1, she explained, she could have her hair cut and shampooed; for $1.50, a cut and finger wave—$3 to $10 permanents would last six months. Most girls did their own manicuring and eyebrow plucking. One makes a bit of money by cutting other girls' hair for a quarter.

Rural Homes Favored For Veterans of War

Ottawa, Jan. 5 (CP)—Establishment of rural homes for Canadian war veterans who are physically unfitted for occupational employment was urged upon the War Veterans' Allowance Committee at a public session here today.

Col. J. G. Bastien, C.M.G., Chairman (absent), presided and evidence was heard from officers of the Ottawa branch of the Canadian Legion.

WOMAN APPOINTED GRAVE DIGGER

St. Charles, Mo., Jan. 5 (AP)—Seventy-year-old Mrs. Lena Breuning believed today she was the only woman officially holding the office of city grave digger.

The city council appointed Mrs. Breuning, at a salary of $75 a month to fill out the unexpired term of her late husband, Henry Breuning. She had been sexton at the cemetery for 20 years.

Wished For Returns

Good-naturedly the crowd sat and waited for the returns to come in. Rumors of various candidates being elected brought a fresh, appreciative cheering. The offices of the City Clerk, City Engineer and Public Works Commissioner were filled with a tensely interested crowd patiently waiting for returns. Many brought pencil and paper and took down information as it was given in a methodical manner. In the outside halls and stairways a milling crowd jostled and jammed together. But there was no resentment. Everyone was good-natured, happy and humor flowed from one part of the crowded hall to the next. Everyone had apparently had a good time, and then cheered as a rumor became rife that someone had been elected.

Intermittent cheering rang through the building as the steadily mounting Arnott majority became known. Cheers for the mysterious mayor-elect were called for and lustily given. And still the large crowd sat and waited. Time and time again the cheering broke out as the returns were awaited with good-nature the final result.

Shortly after when it became known that the Band Parade Committee with the approval of the electorate, the stirring strains of the National Boyer March" rang out in the streets. The crowd cheered itself hoarse as the members of the Belleville Municipal Band paraded up the stairs of the City Hall and on the platform in the auditorium. They stood up and fairly howled as the popular airs on the familiar military marches rang out in the hall as the bandsmen, who received thunderous applause in an effort of apparent appreciation, gave one of the best performances of their career.

Electors Thanked

More cheering ensued as Lieut. Fred Jobson, Bandmaster, of the Belleville Municipal Band held up his hand for silence as he strode to the front of the platform. When quiet had been restored, the genial Bandmaster, his features lit with appreciative smile cordially thanked the electors of the city for what they had done for the band. "I think", he said, "that whatever the finest band in Ontario and I know the boys appreciate what you have done for them, for they as a band will live up to all you expect of them and give you more music and the best music in the City in Ontario," (Cheers).

The almost drowning out the familiar strains of "Hail, Hail, the Gangs All Here," Percy Hamilton rose as one in a perfect bedlam of applause. Mayor-Elect Richard Arnott and the members of the Belleville Council for 1937 slowly filed on the platform.

"Are we proud of our new Mayor?" someone yelled, and a tremendous cheering rang out.

"Bring on the rest of the wait 'em all", sang out another.

Dr. J. W. Kinnear, who acted as Chairman of the impromptu meeting, held following the announcement of the returns was drowned out in a roar of cheers. Mayor-Elect Arnott rose to his feet and asked the audience, that they give him a hearing.

When quiet had been restored Dr. Kinnear stated that "This spontaneous reception by your interests in municipal politics. Turning, he said, "I do not believe, that Mayor Hill is here. We all know that Mrs. Hill is ill and we sympathize with her day or so ago and we all sympathize with her. Hill and her family in the city. I do not think he came here. But here is your good-looking new Mayor," Kinnear said, pointing to Arnott.

The noise was deafening as the new first Magistrate of the city rose to his feet. It was some time before he could make himself heard.

Mayor Elect Thanks Electors

In his quiet manner Mayor-Elect Arnott thanked the assemblage and the electors of the city for the honor bestowed upon him. He said, "I assure you that to the best of my ability, I will carry on the affairs of the city to the advantage of every citizen. I am going to try to give every one a square deal," he said. "It was with extreme regret, that it was found necessary which befell Mrs. Hill and I am sure you will extend to her every sympathy in this misfortune. It took all the sap out of affairs for me when I heard of the accident."

"Now the election is over," he continued "let us forget, what has happened and pull together for the advantage of the best interests of the city. We will need your sympathy and support and I am sure you will give it to us. I am sure the Council will work in accord together for the good of the city."

He closed with further appreciation of the honor conferred on him and a generous greeting to all.

"That a boy George," greeted Hydro Commissioner George A. Reid as he rose to his feet. "You didn't vote for me today," he said amid cheers, "You voted for me a week ago. But now", he said, "you have a good-looking mayor and a fine council. You have been lowered to them, today. Be sure you are loyal to them during the next 365 days." He closed with an expression of sympathy to Mayor Harry Hill and his injured wife.

"This is the first time you have placed me at the head of the polls" said Alderman Harold Armstrong as he voiced appreciation of his re-election for his 5th term.

"Oh, you're a pretty good boy" sang out a lady in the audience.

"We as a council will need your support and help in the future," he said. "Give us that and we will do our best for the citizens of Belleville". He then thanked the electors for his fine band and concluded his remarks by saying, that he would do the same for the electors as the Council.

Alderman Cleo Thompson in a brief statement said, that this was his 3rd election to Council and each year finds him one notch closer to the top. He thanked the electors for their support and whatever the compliments of the season.

"My services are yours, whenever you need them," said Alderman Jesse Barlow, And I assure you Mayor and council I am behind them in everything that is for the good of the citizens of Belleville."

Loud cheers greeted his statement that he advocated, that pressure be brought to bear upon the government that the money spent on relief be used to supply work for the men of this city.

Another cacophony of mixed sounds greeted Alderman Laura Lewis as he rose to his feet after being introduced by the Chairman. Mayor-elect Arnott asked the audience, that Alderman Lewis be given a hearing. "I thank the 1,500 electors who placed me in sixth position on the electoral list today", he said "and for those who voted against my policy, I say that I was motivated by a sincere feeling that I was doing right, and to those who were victorious in their declaration of my, I say, you will get justice and nothing more".

Elected Heard Briefly

Alderman C. B. Clapp in a very brief statement said, that he would give the electors the same service in the coming year as he did in the past and closed with the compliments of the season.

Alderman R. F. Jennings hoped that he would justify the position accorded him on the Council and trusted, that he would work hand in hand with the new Council. He also wished the gathering a Happy New Year.

"Thank you for the confidence placed in me", said Alderman Baggley, and I assure you, that I will try to serve you as well next year as I did last".

Alderman Thomas Cushing also voiced appreciation of his re-election and the confidence placed in him by electors. "The increased support I got this year is very encouraging", he said "and it will be a pleasure for me to serve you".

Cheers and shouts of "Come on Bill", greeted Alderman Harvey as he rose to his feet. "I know you are sincere in your applause" he said, "and I want to be worthy of the confidence you have placed in me. I am in favor of the working man 100 per cent. and am also in favor of work and not the welfare plan". (Cheers.) I appreciate what you have done for me and will co-operate with the council in everything for the good of the city".

Alderman Greenleaf and Kennedy made brief speeches in which they thanked the electors for the honor bestowed upon them and wished everyone the compliments of the season.

Bedlam Breaks Out

Bedlam broke out again as Alderman Malone was introduced by the gathering "Now watch the fur fly", shouted a woman. "Give it to 'em, lad," yelled a hoarse voice. Cheers and yells rent the air for seconds as Alderman Malone arose to speak. "It will be a pleasure for me to work with the new Mayor and council", he finally made himself heard, "heartily thank those who voted for me and to those who didn't I say, that they will be out to get me next year".

Mayor-elect Arnott again addressed the gathering by which he stated that four of his big-name had passed with the fifth one in doubt.

The National Anthem brought the large crowd to its feet and when Belleville Civic election passed into history. As the last notes of the Anthem the crowd surged to the platform to shake hands with the popular new Mayor.

One lady grasped him by the shoulders and executed a war dance in her excitement. Alderman Baldwin was clbrried shoulder high from the auditorium by a group of enthusiastic admirers, People crowded around the newly elected council and Mayor shaking hands and offering congratulations. Gradually they good-naturedly left the building and returned to their respective homes.

Little Benny's Note Book

This morning during the Sunday school period Miss Kitty told the class about overseeing being had for the holiday of the body, and she said the perfect ideal time to get up from the table was when you was still a little hungry, instead of waiting till you was so full you couldn't eat another bite even if you was starving, and my cousin Artie came home with me, for lunch, being hamberger steaks and mash potatoes, me saying, Sis, Artie, let's start practicing getting up from the table while we're still a little hungry.

And we each ate 4 hamberger steaks and 2 medium size spiakins of mash potatoes, me saying, Maybe we better stop now, I'm still a little hungry, and him saying, So am I, but not little enough. There's no use suffering about it, he said.

And we each had another hamberger steak enough mash potatoes to keep it company, me saying, Maybe this is a good time to quit.

Well, maybe, Artie said, and just then Nora carried in 2 pieces of ginger cake apiece and 2 cups of tea, and then there wont be any room left for a hungry feeling.

Which they hardly wasn't anyways, and Artie says Well let's take a chance and eat half.

Which he ate, but at that half less than we would of ate ordinarily, I said, and Artie said, Well that's a fair compromise.

And we each ate half kind of slow, either being the best ginger cake we ever tasted or else just tasting as if it was, and we both ate our 2nd half kind of absent minded, Artie saying, O well what's a use, I wonder if there's any more pie.

Which there was, and we each ate another hunk and got out from the table feeling in a ways full but wonderful.

Proving there's such a thing as being too young to stop eating.

ple occasions and was also a candidate for Mayor on two occasions but lost out for Aldermen with a comfortable lead of more than 1,000 votes. Cleo Thompson who served two years in the council was elected with 1,670 votes and the others elected were William Harvey 1,794, Wm. Wills 1,860, W. Barlow 1870, Laurie Lewis 1920, Thomas Cushing 1956, Harry W. Greenleaf 1,970, Harold Clapp 1435, Burton F. Jennings 1,988, Cliff Baldwin 2,001, Arthur E. Kennedy 1279, and E. J. Malone 1065. Isaac Thompson, Conservationist man in the field was only defeated by 13 votes and it was a race between him and Cushing, but who would be the thirteenth man in the council and the candidate who decided until the last poll was received.

By-Laws Carried

Belleville in the near future will have a City Manager, Public Utilities and a City Manager if the council is elected contrary to the wishes of the electors. From the very first poll received, which was forgotten conclusion, that the Public Utilities Commission by-law would carry. As the vote counted it steadily was only added to and when the final result had been received the vote stood for 1655 and against 1304 as a majority of 351 for the establishment of the city under a City Manager was close all through the voting.

At one time the by-law would have defeated, but the tide began to be over the top. Before the last poll was received, Leslie M. Ketchenon No. 7, the by-law was behind but with the last poll received the by-law was given a majority of 48 and a total majority of 351. Previously the Public Utilities by-law had carried was expressed by the vote, present, however, the action of a Board of Education received the highest majority of any by-law submitted. It was generally agreed according to the vote that the reduction in the Board of education was too unwieldy and that the reduction should be followed by a smaller body. The vote on this by-law was 1796 for and against 1000, a majority of 796.

Reduce Council

The electors were also in favor of reducing the number of members of the City Council. The by-law as submitted set the figure at six Aldermen and a Mayor. The vote on this by-law was 1740 for and against 1419, a majority of 321. The grant to the band by-law probably received the most votes, as any one submitted and the issue was in doubt until more than three quarters of the polls had been received. Lieutenant Fred Jobson, musical director of the band, was one of the most interested spectators in the crowded Clerk's Office and when it was definitely decided that the band received its grant, the Bandmaster rushed out to gather up his musicians and instruments and street and also into the auditorium of the City Hall, playing appropriate airs. The bandmaster pledged his support and that of the musicians to the newly elected Mayor, R. D. Arnott. The vote on the Band grant was for 729 Against 557 or a Majority of 172.

Clerk's Office Crowded

As usual the Clerk's office was a crowded place, but with quick returns and the telephone the electors were soon informed as to how the vote went. The large crowd had gone home long before the last returns had arrived at the City Hall and only the Clerk, a couple of elected Aldermen and the members of the Press were on hand to see the 1937 election pass into history. Many of the newly elected members were serenaded by their supporters after the results became official. The newly elected Mayor was busy all night receiving the congratulations of his many friends. "Dick" is a Belleville boy and received good support in every poll except one in the city.

STIRLING VILLAGE

Stirling, Jan. 5 (Special)—Thomas Cranston was elected Reeve of Stirling Village on Monday, gaining a majority of 29 votes over Ex Reeve W. C. Wood in the first municipal election held in the village for the past four years. The election in default ing ex-Commissioner C. N. Baker by over one hundred votes. Mr.

THANKS

To my friends and supporters in the Municipal Election I wish to express my hearty thanks for the splendid vote of confidence manifested in me.

HAROLD ARMSTRONG

THANKS

I wish to express my thanks to the electors of Belleville who favored me with their votes at the municipal election and trust that my service in the City Council will justify their confidence.

WILLIAM HARVEY

Ernest Bailey, candidate for the Board of Education, headed the polls with the largest number of votes, 181. Dr. R. J. Dickson and Dr. H. H. Alger also being elected to that governing body. Mr. Ernest Munro was the defeated candidate for the Board of Education. Messrs C. R. Sellins; D. A. Bartrift; Jos. Whitehead and Frank Stapley were elected to the council by acclamation. Parades and demonstrations climaxed the election which created keen interest throughout the district.

Reeve Thomas Cranston

In electing as their Reeve, Mr. Thos. Cranston, Stirling selected a man who has been associated with municipal affairs for a number of years. Since coming to Stirling from his farm in Rawdon Township, he has had a wide range of business experience, entering into many fields of business with unusual success. For a few years he operated a grinding mill and feed store, he also directed one of the largest chicken hatcheries in this part of the province. He was engaged in both the restaurant and hotel business and was the founder of the Stirling Fruit Growers' Association and operated by W. C. West. At the present time he is engaged in the auto buying and real estate.

Mr. Cranston first entered the Stirling Council in 1932 and was defeated in a contest for the Reeveship in 1933 by ex-Reeve C. N. Montgomery, Sr. Again in 1933 he accepted a nomination for the council and after election served in that capacity until the present time. He has headed several committees with marked success and reputed to be one of the best business men in the district, his record on the local Council is an enviable one.

Mr. Cranston, who will succeed Mr. C. N. Baker as local Hydro Commissioner, piled up the largest majority of the election. Although a resident of the village for many years, this is the first time he has been in to accept a nomination. His knowledge of municipal affairs is based on a keen observation and the interests of the corporation will doubtless be his first consideration as he performs his duty on the Hydro Board. Dr. R. A. Carleton, also seeking office for the first time, on the Board of Education was second in the voting to Mr. Ernest Bailey who headed the poles. Dr. H. H. Alger, a veteran of long service on this governing body was re-elected with Mr. Ernest Munro the defeated candidate, only thirty-eight votes behind.

Parades and Demonstrations

Shortly after the official results were made known, several of the citizens, led by Stirling Citizens' Band, serenaded the homes of the victorious candidates. Later; the successful candidates led a parade through the main streets. Brief speeches were delivered by several members of the Council, Reeve Thomas Cranston, Mayor C. F. West, who displayed excellent sportsmanship in congratulating heartily in the demonstrations.

MONDAY'S ELECTION

Belleville voters supported smaller City Council and Board of Education, approved the creation of a public utilities commission, favored a grant of $1,200 to the Municipal Band annually and lent the stamp of approval after the closest voting of all to the city managership system, the majority in this regard being thirty. In early returns the fate of these bylaws was in doubt but as later returns came in there was no doubt as to the verdict except in the case of the city manager bylaw, the voting on which was in doubt until one thirty this morning when the final poll was reported. In the aldermanic bracket interest was more in who would be defeated than who would be elected, Ernest Baldree and Isaac Stephenson contested the thirteenth position but the former won out in the final returns.

In the mayoralty Alderman R. D. Arnott won by the large majority of no less than 1377 against the present holder of the office, Mayor Harry Hill. Mr. Arnott is only thirty-two years of age and has been member of council for two years. While he is not the youngest to hold the post, he is the youngest ever named to that position.

Ex-Mayor Gresnleaf is back in council, along with ex-Alderman W. Harvey, former chairman of the Board of Education, the two newcomers are Andrew Kennedy, retired C.N.R. engineer, and Ernest Baldree, salesman. The 1936 council is intact except that Alderman Arnott becomes mayor in place of Mayor Hill and Alderman Safe, Domenico and Bateman did not run.

The city managership plan has long been talked of in Belleville and has been attracting strength year by year. Here's support gives an opportunity for the testing of the system, which according to report has proven successful in Canadian and United States cities. GOOD PRINTERS NEVER DIE—they may be translated, but they go on forever. William J. (Bill) Reynolds, is a case in point. Bill has been sixty-three years with the Brockville Recorder, continuously, and can make up a form as quickly today as any of the youngsters. Sixty-three years at the case and on the stones—early to work and late to leave—almost never missing a mail or failing to have the forms on the press in schedule time—few holidays and very few days off for indisposition—that's Bill Reynolds, dean of all composing room foremen in Canada and with a record which few could hope to equal much less surpass. Bill's hobby has always been fire fighting and for years he was prominent in the volunteer fire brigade which made Brockville famous internationally in the days when it was a feat to throw water fast and far from a hose while perspiring red shirts worked manfully at the brake-beams. Hose cart races were also great sporting events and the Brockville volunteer fire fighters used to go far afield to win prizes and add to their laurels. Watertown, New York, was a pie for the Brockvillians and they made pie for the Brockvillians and they met went as far as Albany both. Here they met a whole in a water-throwing contest for the wily Albanians dropped a stone in the intake pipe of the Brockville machine and no amount of pumping could get the would cast water more than a few scant feet. When they found the stone they threatened to annex the United States to Canada and use it as a fifty-first state. However, Bill Reynolds is still going strong although most of his fellow firemen of the glamorous days of the past have turned in their earthly helmets and axes. Another pie for the Brockvillians and here they met a whole in a water-throwing contest for the wily Albanians dropped a stone in the intake pipe of the Brockville machine and no amount of pumping could get the would cast water more than a few scant feet. Starting sixty-three years ago in the printing business under Col. David Wylie, Bill Reynolds has continued ever since in the same office, rising to the position of foreman which he still holds. There must be something decidedly healthy about the atmosphere of George Graham's beloved paper for old Recorder-ites never die and no one ever quits his job or gets fired.

THOUGHTS AFTER THE HOLIDAYS, includs the story which Sir John A. McDonald used to tell on the hustings when heckling was heavy and jeering rife. "Its the tree with the best fruit in the orchard that the most sticks and stones lie under." Municipal officials recently heckled in public meeting might get a crumb of comfort out of the story if any were needed—but, gosh, all hemlock, it really can be taken as a compliment this heckling. Shows that the heckler and the heckled one is important enough for their attention. However, heckling is one thing and booing another. Booing is bad manners and bad business. Anybody can boo—Colosseum and pigs. But to belittle themselves when they descend to booing.

STANDING ON THE THRESHOLD OF THE NEW YEAR, as the orators say, we can definitely bid farewell to the standstill, retrogressive era. It is full speed ahead. Confidence has returned and folks are showing the effect of it. Notice how many folks have blossomed out in new clothes—and gosh, do we need a whole parcel of them after making the old things do until we found which way we were going? Diamond Jim Brady said that to make money a man had to look like money—and Jim made plenty money, and spent plenty money. Shabby genteel won't get you anywhere—look prosperous and it's surprising how soon you will feel prosperous—waves of confidence and self respect just pep up the whole human frame and difficulties and problems fade away before that self respect rekindled by good clothes and better prospects.

IT MAY BE A BROMIDE TO SUGGEST THAT CITIZENS TAKE A DEEPER INTEREST IN MUNICIPAL MANAGEMENT this year. No matter which way the electors voted Monday there is still room for municipal education. When it became apparent how little the general mass of citizens knew about the city many eager plan of municipal administration it was evident that citizens do not take enough interest in municipal affairs to keep up with progressive movements in civic management. This might be a fruitful field for service clubs—suggest that they devote one meeting a month to progressive municipal management.

LOOKING BACKWARD
GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO
Jan. 8th, 1917.

Mr. A. W. Buchannan, 22 Frank Street, this city, has twenty six pens of the bred-to-lay single comb Rhode Island variety, which laid 206 eggs in November and 204 eggs in December of the year 1916. He expects that the pullets will eclipse this record in January.

Great honor is due to Mrs. James Weben of Wallbridge, who at the age of 80 years, has knitted 160 pairs of socks for the boys in the trenches. Her only regret is lady has done her bit for the soldiers.

Mrs. J. B. Gibson of Yorkton, Sask., is visiting her parents, ex-Mayor Vermilyea and Mrs. Vermilyea, West Bridge Street.

Mr. Fred Black of Kingston spent New Years here with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Brown and family spent New Years with friends at Trenton.

Mrs. J. Garrett of Toronto is visiting friends in the city.

Mr. Fred L. Deacon of St. Thomas spent New Years here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Deacon.

30 YEARS AGO
Jan. 5th, 1907.

The princely Hotel Quinte, the pride of our citizens and the theme of praise of everyone who entered its hospitable doors was destroyed by fire last night. The fire was detected first by a smell of smoke on the second floor near the elevator shaft. It seemed to be between the floors. The fire alarm was sent in at 3.46 o'clock and the firemen arrived promptly. It was soon apparent that the fire had worked its way under the flooring from room to room and was ready to burst out in different places almost simultaneously, which it appears to have done. The building was completely gutted, only the walls standing this morning. The hotel which is supposed to have been the cause of the fire, the 1340 o'clock last night a tremendous crowd had gathered at the scene and Bridge Street, the principal street in the Pinnacle Street were packed with spectators. The Hotel Quinte was first opened on Feby. 26th, 1893, with Mr. Charles P. Hunter as the first manager. Mr. J. T. Hoskins assumed the management of the hotel on May 1st, seven years ago. The hotel had a staff of 40 employees. The splendid, stately built Hotel Quinte was composed of the following: Messrs. H. Corby, W.H. Biggar, D.B. Thomson, Thomas Hilchie, John Bell, D. M. Waters and Col. Lasler.

Picton and District

Obituary
Mr. John Carter

At his residence, Fairfield St. on Friday, Jan. 1st, death occurred after a lengthy illness of a widely known, and highly respected resident of Picton, in the person of Mr. John Carter, aged 77 years. Born in Picton sixty-three years ago, a son of the late Harry Carter and his wife, Martha Clark. For many years he was associated with his brother the late Wm. Carter in the Carter Bros. Hardware. A few years ago he retired to a farm near Green Point, and later moved again to Picton. Surviving are his wife and two sons, Harry of Picton, and Jack of Oshawa. The deceased was a member of the United Church and the Masonic Lodge. The funeral under Masonic auspices was conducted at his late residence, by his pastor, Rev. David Wren, on Monday afternoon, January 4th, with interment taking place in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Sean Burns

At the home of her daughter, Mrs. Orval Ward, Trenton, where with her husband, she was spending the winter, the death occurred on Sunday, Jan. 3rd, of Matilda Shaw, wife of Sean Burns, in her seventy-eighth year. Mrs. Burns was born in Picton, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Shaw and her wife, came Welsh, and has spent all her life here. She is survived by her husband, one daughter, and three sons, Bert of Picton, Ralph of Petawawa and Orval of Trenton, and one brother Sam Shaw. The body was brought to the home of her son Bert Burns, Picton, from where the funeral will proceed to St. Mary Magdalene's Church on Wednesday afternoon, where the service will be conducted by Rural Dean G. C. Winter and interment made in Glenwood Cemetery.

On Saturday morning, January 2nd, a short service in Glenwood was attended by many friends of the late Grover C. Allison, a former resident of this district, whose death occurred in Oshawa General Hospital after an illness of only two days with pneumonia. Mr. Allison was forty-five years of age, and with Mrs. Allison, had made their home in Oshawa for the past twelve years. Many friends here regret his early passing.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kearney of Wampum were visitors here late last week, owing to the death of Mr. G. C. Allison.

On Monday evening, December 28th, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Lendt, Cherry Valley, motored to spend-ours home for a community party honouring on a recent bride and groom Mr. and Mrs. John Bentley Haggerty, (Ruth Hawkins) who had returned from a wedding trip to Florida. More than sixty neighbors and friends gathered to spend a pleasant social evening with cards and dancing. Later Mr. Lendt acted as address to the guests of honour, while Mr. Phillip Dodds presented them with an end table and a silver pitcher from those present, while many pieces of bright kitchenware were also presented by some of the guests. Mr. and Mrs. Haggerty thanked their friends for the lovely gifts and invited all to visit them in their new home. Delicious refreshments were then served by the ladies.

Mr. and Mrs. Bentley, of Bentley's Corners has gone to reside with his daughter Mrs. Arthur Haggerty and Mr. Haggerty at Cherry Valley and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Haggerty will reside at Bentley's Corners.

Mr and Mrs. Will McKenna entertained at dinner on Christmas Day and on New Year's Day when covers were laid for twenty-two. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Rogers Keogh and family, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Keogh and family, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Keogh and family, Mr. and Mrs. T. P. McNahon and family.

On New Year's eve, Picton residents had little more than gone to bed when the clock struck the New Year in, when they were awakened by the siren. The firemen discovered that the alarm had been sent in because two street wires were sparking badly and endangering the home and after notifying officers of the disturbance, returned.

Mr. Mark Bailey of Toronto is spending a few days with relatives here.

Skating on Picton Bay has been a wonderful success all the week and the crowds, owing to the presence of airholes, Master Laurence Wren received a bump on the head when he skated into one of these on New Year's Day, but fortunately escaped the worse for the experience.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers Keogh entertained at a neighborhood party at their home Black Creek, on New Years Eve. Dr. Greer and Chas. Carter in the village of Wellington. Goodmurphy was returned Reeve by a majority of 34 over his rivals. Councillors elected there—A. Rush, Clair Plain, Carl Bryant and Albert Sanders.

Reeve Kenneth Cranston was re-elected in North Marysburg Township getting a majority of 141 over Thomas Slater. Councillors elected in this township were: Ross Hinton, Wm. Fires, Malcolm Hicks and Samuel Martin.

In Athol Township former Reeve Hawkins, who was warden of the 1936 County Council was defeated by Willis Sills for the Reevship by a majority of 38. Councillors elected—Ernest Brooks, Samuel Dodds, Jr., Earl Brymmel and Harvey Cole. The last named and Mr. Reeve are the only officials elected with any previous municipal experience.

Roy Hutcheson of Sophiasburg was elected to the Reevship of that township over Flavius Gerdine by a majority of 21 polling subdivision No. 4 went almost solid for the new Reeve giving him 189 votes out of 191 polled.

The largest majority of the county was recorded in Hillier where Reeve Murray Parks was re-elected to the office over W. D. Redall by a majority of 231.

Gordon Bliss Dies On Scaffold Today

Port Arthur, Ont., Jan. 5—(CP)—Gordon Bliss, 27, convicted murderer of Mildred Johnson, 19-year-old telephone operator, last March 26, was hanged in Port Arthur jail early today.

Announcement that sentence of death, passed upon Bliss by Mr. Justice Nicol Jeffrey at the trial of the Port William youth last October 23, had been carried out was made by Sheriff Thompson who said "no untoward incident" had occurred.

Miss Johnson was found strangled in the home of Bliss after the two had attended a dance. A necktie belonging to Bliss was twisted about the girl's neck.

After death of the girl, Bliss called police and, according to evidence at the inquest, told them "I did it". At his trial, Bliss pleaded guilty, believed only in exceptional circumstance a murder trial in a British Court.

Arraigned in court, Bliss, after his guilty plea, was asked by Mr. Justice Jeffrey:

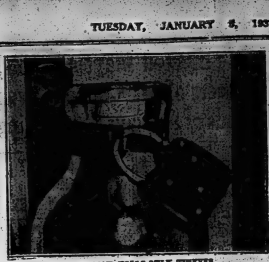
"Do you understand what you are pleading guilty to?"

The answer was in the affirmative and the Justice said:

"Do you realize there is only one possible result to your plea of guilty?"

Bliss again replied "Yes", and the presiding Justice then said:

"In 1927 in a justice then said: not often an accused pleads guilty to such a charge. . . . A plea of guilty is not always accepted if there is doubt remaining in the mind of the court that the accused does not understand the nature of the plea. The accused at once has admitted his guilt. . . .



"Under the circumstances, I cannot refuse to accept the plea. . . . The sentence I am to do so."

The justice then passed sentence of death upon Bliss. The entire court proceedings took less than a half-hour.

WARM ELECTION IN WELLINGTON

Arthur Goodmurphy Defeats E. D. Greer For Reeve By 24

Picton, Jan. 5, (Special)—Prince Edward County electors went to the polls yesterday in four municipalities in the village of Wellington. The remainder of the voting section of the county returned municipal officials by acclamation a week ago. Members of the Prince Edward County Council for 1937 as a result of the election yesterday are:

Ameliasburg: Reeve, Jas. Barber; Deputy Reeve, S. Pess, Jr.

Athol: Reeve, Willis Sills.

Bloomfield: Reeve, E. R. Furnish.

Hallowell: Reeve, Bert Pearsall; Deputy Reeve, Dwight Rowbotham.

Hillier: Reeve E. M. Parks.

North Marysburg: Reeve, Kenneth Cranston.

Picton: Reeve, Noble McAlbon; Deputy Reeve, Ross Owens.

Sophiasburg: Reeve, Roy D. Ketcheson.

South Marysburg: Reeve, Howard Bell.

Wellington: Reeve, Arthur Goodmurphy.

Perhaps the hottest election of the day and one which afforded a surprise to county officials was the victory of Arthur Goodmurphy over Reeve E. D. Greer and Chas. Carter in the village of Wellington. Goodmurphy was returned Reeve by a majority of 24 over his rivals. Councillors elected there—A. Rush, Clair Plain, Carl Bryant and Albert Sanders.

Reeve Kenneth Cranston was re-elected in North Marysburg Township getting a majority of 141 over Thomas Slater. Councillors elected in this township were: Ross Hinton, Wm. Fires, Malcolm Hicks and Samuel Martin.

Denies Woman's Death Affects British Fascists

London, Jan. 5 (CP-Havas)—Sir Oswald Mosley's British Union of Fascists formally denied today the death of Lady Houston, eccentric millionaire, would affect the financial status of the organization.

It had been reported that Lady Houston contributed large sums to the Fascist "war chest."

It was stated plans of the organization to put up candidates at the next general election still stood and that an increase in the number of candidates already about 100, was envisaged.

Weddings

PHILLIPS—SMITH

The marriage took place quietly in Toronto on January 2nd, 1937, of Miss Bubie A. Smith to Mr. Albert Phillips, both of Belleville. R. H. Cole officiated. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's sister, by Rev. J. S. Chute.

FOX—BROWN

On Saturday evening, January 2, 1937, a quiet wedding was solemnized in Trinity United Church, Belleville, by Rev. G. G. Wright, when Miss Hazel Beatrice Brown, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter O. Brown, Foxboro, Ont., became the bride of Mr. Norman Garnett Fox, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. George Fox, R. R. No. 2, Belleville, Ont.

The bride was becomingly attired in a brown suit with blue shoes and hat, with matching accessories. She was attended by Miss Irene Fox, who wore a dress of blue crepe, blue shoes and hat with matching accessories. Both ladies carried bouquets of pink carnations, violets and baby's breath.

Mr. Thomas Vannott supported the groom.

Following the ceremony, a reception was tendered them at the home of the groom's parents, Foxboro Stock Farm, at which about thirty guests were present. The rooms were decorated with white bells and festoons of pink and white, the bride's table being centred by a beautiful bridal bouquet.

Rev. H. A. Mellas, as toastmaster, proposed a toast to the young couple which was heartily responded to by all staging "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." After a pleasant evening of social enjoyment the guests departed to their homes, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Fox many years of happiness.

Career Counts Says Eltzine

Hollywood, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Youthful Hales Jarris, separated from 54-year-old John Barrymore after a stormy year of married life, all over his ultimatum that she choose her a career or him, said her career comes before anything else".

The 22-year-beauty, star of the color added adamantly:

"While I hope John will be sensible about this thing and will return home, still is by career that counts.

"I'm still young and have my whole career before me. My action here less than two months ago, maintained a public position. I'm not thinking of two documents in the County Registrar's office. One is a deed to property, the other a power of attorney, the other revoked the same authority earlier and to Aaron Sapiro, Miss Jarris's attorney.

A Great Physician A Real Christian Is Doctor Kelly

Maintains Summer Camp In Ontario Near Radium of Quintuplets — Amazing Charity

"A whole service club wrapped up in one man" was the phrase used to describe a great physician by Judge Deroche in presenting a sketch of a man who combined the characteristics of the great surgeon with outstanding qualities as a humanitarian, philanthropist and all the qualities of charity and tolerance which become of them under the name of Miss Galileo.

The great speaker before Belleville Rotarians at their weekly gathering held Monday at Albert College, in Honorary added to his already exalted honours as an after-dinner speaker of eminence, when he had been said of the Judge that he always had some interesting story to tell or object to present at the re-sult of his travels and observation, bringing in wide variety from the great Napoleon of Versailles and St. Helena to the lowly Pennsylvania Dutch of the Southern United States. Hence when Judge Deroche introduced to the Rotary gathering the name of Dr. Kelly to few of the members but with world-wide fame in medical circles, Dr. Howard A. Kelly, M. D., LL.D., Hon. F. R. C. S., he was only enhancing the already bright reputation as a very pleasing after-dinner speaker, entertaining with a full of pleasant humor and bubbling over with cheerful optimism from his own subject, and an attractive way of presenting his subject.

Self Canadian

Canadians can take a proprietary interest in Dr. Howard A. Kelly because he has maintained a summer camp at Magnetawan, north of the Muskoka district in the region becoming the Mecca of the clever, the famous and the well-to-do. Dr. Howard A. Kelly, M. D., LL.D., Hon. F. R. C. S., is the only child of Irish parentage, and skilled botanist. Dr. Kelly gets a great thrill out of his summers spent in the Canadian woods.

Great Banker

One of Dr. Kelly's hobbies is the banker and financier and shows this when he demonstrates these to a medical class most of the audience are there to see the operation. Each summer the doctor brings some of his medical students to Canada, and one which cannot possibly be mistaid and introduces them to his Canadian friends. Judge Deroche, who has a camp on the Magnetawan River, was instrumental in bringing make parties and prefers to view the demonstrations from a distance in the canoe. Dr. Kelly is also quarters the boat and wherever of snake culture.

Judge Deroche at the outset described the wonderful career of Dr. Kelly from humble beginnings to the position of chief surgeon of Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, and famed throughout the world for his contributions to the most advanced medical knowledge. Such a many-sided man as Dr. Howard A. Kelly could not be dealt with adequately in volume to describe his many philanthropies and the large part of humanity, philanthropy which knows no national bounds and finds useful work in the cause of humanity.

Head of Johns Hopkins

Some of the highlights of Dr. Kelly's life and work as revealed by Judge Deroche show what manner of man he is. When he was a young man just graduated from medical college he was head of the hospital in the house of a working man. This soon became too small and a building had to be secured for the work. It kept on growing and developed into the Kensington hospital, supported by voluntary contributions. In 1889 at the age of 31 he became professor of gynecology and obstetrics in the Johns Hopkins University, and as gynecology and obstetrician-in-chief to the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, from the doctor's name and fame has become world-wide and he has been invited to visit medical centres in Austria, Rome, Berlin, England and Scotland to consult with the greatest doctors and surgeons in the world.

Many Numbers

No busier man than Doctor Kelly could be imagined, as the speaker told of the hundreds of books he has written and contributed to the field of the great library he had created to hone thousands of volumes, of the thousands of patients he has operated on, the number running into the hundreds of thousands, of his gifts of 28,000 volumes to one library and donations of hundreds and scores of thousands of books to help other growing libraries.

Caring Burglars

Although born in 1858, Dr. Howard Kelly is still active and alert, and shows little signs of the advancing years. One instance of his Christian charity, related by Judge Deroche, concerned the burglarizing of the doctor's cottage at Magnetawan during his absence in the winter. Two young married men found residence were found involved. Instead of having the men arrested, Dr. Kelly took them to his home and talked the matter over with the families. One of the men is now employed by Dr. Kelly, the other has been helped to a position in Toronto.

Radium for Quints

Another Canadian touch revealing in part the kindly qualities of the great doctor. When one of the Dionne quintuplets at Callander developed a sore on the wrist, canker was feared. Dr. Kelly, who has made a close study of cancer and the treatment of cancer, has sent to Baltimore to fly at once to Magnetawan with a supply of radium. Fortunately there was no cancer.

Without Fees

Of the many gifts of money for philanthropic objects there amounted to $6,000, including playgrounds endowed and maintained — besides some half-dozen of these in recent years in an effort to curb gambling and public evils, as well as providing paying for the education of a number of children in Baltimore and Canada. Another philanthropy of Dr. Kelly was the purchase of abandoned farms for the benefit of recreation as a playground for boys, also paying for the support of the boys on the farm at the rate of a month for shoes and clothing for Baltimore boys, as well as providing fresh milk as nourishment in typical of the many charities practised by this great physician whose love for humanity is as wide as the world as His charity, for it knows no evil, were possible.

Introduced to the club by Past President Ross Thompson, Doctor's appreciation was expressed by extending thanks to Judge Deroche and a fine presentation of a very interesting gentleman who is doing the tremendous amount of good in this world.

MRS. B. HANLEY IS RE-ELECTED

Runs Mayor's Office The Same as He Does Her Home

Welbwood, Ont., Jan. 5.—(CP)—A matronly housewife, who believes women office holders are more resourceful and economical than men, was elected to the mayoralty of the affairs of her northern town today backing by 57 per cent of the votes of Welbwood electors.

Mrs. Barbara Hanley, seeking her second term, defeated Harry Longed by Robert Strelch. In yesterday's voting she was returned to office by 1,200 votes to Strelch's 900.

Since taking over leadership of municipal affairs last January, the mother of the 9-year-old daughter has found herself in the public limelight she did not expect. She has been hailed from town to her borden, her household tasks and her duties as the wife of a busy husband who is a locomotive fireman.

She runs her office just as she would her home, and last year's record is her testimony, she says she knows what it is all about.

Rocking in First Fourteen

The New York Sun, which publishes annually a list of prominent women included Mrs. Hanley among the 14 named for 1936. The list was headed by Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt, wife of Sodbury wasn't fail-ferred by the unusual burden of worry and care.

She didn't fancy being in a list, that emphasized the fact that she was the woman who rocked the empire throne. Mrs. Roosevelt, she thinks that they were of the same type.

"We're not the same type of people at all," she explained, "I don't understand it.

"Maybe I didn't mind so much because I'm used to it. They were quite sure I wasn't-in her words.

There are no apologies forthcoming from this northern mother before the public eye, and no excuses for the jobless. And as far as women politics are concerned she has this to say—

"A woman is more resourceful. Her economical, has fewer bad habits and is more interested in her home."

Just look at a household, she states. If proof is required as to what a woman can do.

SHEI YVONNE IS THINKING—

She's going problem affecting perhaps only quintuplets must be perplexing little Yvonne. It is the period of deep meditation upon her.

Career Counts Says Elstine

Hollywood, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Vonthiel Blake Barrie, separated from 34-year-old John Barrymore after a quarrel, is not a bit afraid all over again that she chose him or a career and —My career means more than anything.

The 21-year-old fourth wife of the actor added emphatically:

"While I hope John will be sensible about this thing and will return home, still it is my career that counts.

"I'm still young and have my whole future ahead of me, but John is—well—" her voice trailed off with a sigh.

"Artist," who married the actor less than two months ago, maintained polite silence on "Oelihan's" filing of the petition in Superior Court Recorder's office. One cancelled his writing of a telegram, the other revoked the same authority extended to Aaron Sapiro, Miss Barrie's attorney.

A Great Physician A Real Christian Is Doctor Kelly

Maintains Summer Camp in Ontario—Flew Radium to Quinsquets and Amusing Charities.

"A whole service club wrapped up in one man" was the tribute accorded a great physician by Judge Deroche in presenting a sketch of a man who combined the cleverness of the great surgeon with the outstanding qualities as humanitarian, philanthropist and all the qualities of charity and tolerance which become gospel when taught by the Man of Galilee.

As guest speaker before Belleville Rotarians at their meeting held last night in the Dominion Hotel, Judge Deroche introduced to his already enthusiastic audience an after-dinner speaker of unusual charm. It has been said of the subject of the address that some extraordinary person or object was born every day, but that is not all of his travel and observation, ranging in wide variety from the Pyramids of Egypt to Paris and Athens and Rome to the lovely "Cruckens" of the Southern United States. Recently Judge Deroche introduced to the Rotary Club a person from the far off mountainous country of Wales, one of the outstanding if not world-wide faces in medical circles, Dr. Edward A. Kelly, M. D., LL.D., Hon. F. R. C. S., he was only exhausting his already full vocabulary of eulogy in describing after-dinner speaker, a pleasing delivery, full of good humor and a wealth of anecdote and interest in his own subject, and an executive way of presenting his subject.

Hair Canadian

Canadians can take a proprietary interest in Dr. Edward Kelly because he has maintained a summer camp at Magnetawan, north of the Muskoka district in the region bordering on the Nipissing district. Being a great nature lover and skilled herdsman Dr. Kelly gets a great thrill out of the cattle and the fish that swim in the lakes and streams.

Great Healer

One of Dr. Kelly's hobbies is the collection of venomous snakes, and that is only surpassed by some of the medical class most of the audience sit up on the backs of chairs. Every summer he has a number of specimens sent to him from all parts of the world to his camp at Magnetawan, mostly big rattlesnakes, which he milks and feeds and introduces them to his Canadian friends. Judge Deroche, who has been on the Magnetawan, has participated in these thrilling struggles with the snakes in the demonstration from a distance that no human being at close quarters but the wary and wherefore of snake culture.

Judge Deroche at the outset described the wonderful career of Dr. Kelly, who has risen consistently in the position of chief surgeon of the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore and the highest honor that can be given for his clevereness as a surgeon and humanitarian, honorary membership in the Quinsquets Society. Such a many-sided man as Dr. Howard Kelly would require many large volumes to describe his many philanthropies and the Christian charity which seems always finding some new outlet for the benefit of humanity. His philanthropy has brought no national bounds and finds useful work in many countries.

Head of Johns Hopkins

Some of the highlights of Dr. Kelly's life sort work as surgeon to Judge Deroche show what manner of man he is. When he was a young man just graduated from medical college he started a private hospital in the home of a working man. This soon became too small and a building had to be secured for the work. It kept on growing and developed into the Methodist Episcopal Hospital supported by voluntary contributions. In 1889 at the age of 31 he became professor of gynecology and obstetrics in the Johns Hopkins University, and as gynecologist and obstetrician-in-chief to the Johns Hopkins Hospital. Since then some world-wide and he has been elected by his medical confreres in Austria, Rome, Berlin, England and Canada as one of the world's great doctors and surgeons in the world.

Many Manhonors

No busier man than Doctor Kelly could be imagined, as the speaker told of the number of books he had written upon medical subjects, of the great library he had created to house thousands of volumes, of his study of mushrooms and fungi and the collection of 12,000 species of his botanical discoveries and his fame in gathering rare books and pictures and everything that great collectors, of his gifts of 10,000 volumes to the library and donations of hundreds and even thousands of books to help other great libraries.

Curing Burglars

Although born in 1858, Dr. Howard Kelly is still active and alert, sent cheer little signs of the advancing years. One instance of his Christian charity, as related by Judge Deroche, concerned the burglarizing of the doctor's cottage at Magnetawan during his absence in the winter. Two young married men local residents were found involved. Dr. Kelly visiting the homes and talked matters over with the families. One of the men is now employed by him and the other has been helped to a position in Toronto.

Radium for Quinis

Another Canadian touch revealed by the many-sided qualities of the great doctor. When one of the Dionne quintuplets, at Callander developed a sore on the wrist, cancer was feared. Dr. Kelly, who has made a close study of cancer and radium treatments wired his son at Baltimore to fly at once to Magnetawan with a supply of radium. This done both doctors flew to Callander where during the surgeon performed the necessary operation and the cancer scare was defeated.

Without Fee

Of the many gifts of money for philanthropic objects there seemed no end, including plans for a hospital founded and maintained — besides spending $6000 a year for three years in the Johns Hopkins Hospital in Maryland and Delaware, besides caring for the educational and welfare of children in India and the Malay States. One philanthropy of Dr. Kelly's was the establishment of sixteen cots for $53,000 and its present-day value in saving lives he has also paying for the supervision. Paying the cost of the Kelly Golf Ball for charity and collecting for Baltimore candy children, as well as providing a milk station for children, are but a few of many charities practised by this great humanitarian whose love for humanity is as wide and deep as His Master's. He was introduced to the audience by the club by Past President Harry Ackerman, Rotary Representative Ralph Bonter and Mayor Morley Duff, for a rare treat in store for Rotarians and their guests. Interesting gentleman who is doing a tremendous amount of good in this world.

POPE PIUS XI IS SOMEWHATBETTER

Pontiff's Illness Diagnosed as Hardening of the Arteries

Vatican City, Jan. 4 (AP)—Reports from the sickroom where Pope Pius XI has been confined for 10 days indicated today the Holy Father was holding the improvement he had made.

The pain in his legs was said to be somewhat less than usual, allowing him to get a fairly good night's sleep.

The Holy Father's sister, Countess Camilla Ratti, staying at the convent of the Sisters of Good Hope since illness, corroborated reports of the improvement in his condition but added he still was in almost constant pain.

The Pope has refused to call in physicians other than Dr. Aurelio Milani for a complete examination, she said "because he knows his own illness is arterio-sclerosis (hardening of the arteries) complicated by weakness of the heart and irregular heart action.

"During the first days of December, this disturbance was heightened by decreased circulation, which required the Pope to remain in bed because of obstructions in the veins of the legs.

"With rest and treatment, the heart action has improved although pain has increased in his left leg, which is the seat of sciatica often developed in the right leg.

"There is reason to hope that the local disturbances can gradually continue to improve and possibly be completely removed. The heart condition calls for prudent treatment owing to the nature of the illness and the patient's age."

DRENCHED THOUSANDS PRAY FOR POPE'S RECOVERY

A heavy downpour of rain in Vatican City failed to dampen the fervor and anxiety of this huge crowd, pictured outside historic St. Peter's praying for the swift and speedy recovery of Pope Pius XI.

INSET is the latest photograph of Cardinal Eugenio Pacelli, papal secretary of state, who early recently succeeded a tour of the United States, and who is considered a possible successor to the pontiff.

Tweed and District

Tweed—Stone Lake was the centre of an attraction on New Year's Day for skaters. A large crowd attended by the fine brilliant sunshine, crisp air, and a perfect sheet of ice to enjoy sports, especially among children, one death, resulting from exposure. The extremely variable weather is taking its toll. New Year's Day was ushered in very quietly in Tweed. No ringing of bells or other of the customary methods of welcome heralded the coming of 1937.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Elliott of Toronto were week end guests of relatives in town.

Mrs. David Johnston, and her daughter, Mrs. Robert Hanna of Belleville, are spending a few weeks with the former's daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) M. G. Dales.

The funeral of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Lucas was held on Saturday, Dec. 26th, Rev. Nicholson, pastor of Tweed United Church, had charge of the service. The child, who was but a few days old, passed away in Belleville General Hospital, a victim of pneumonia.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Varty of Hungerford Township, born on January 1st, 1937, passed away on the same day. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. R. B. Nicholson on Saturday, January 2nd.

Tweed High, Separate and Continuation Schools remained for the winter term on Monday, January 4th. Some of the pupils were quite small owing to the prevalence of colds.

The annual meeting of the ratepayers of Tweed Consolidated School Section was held in the schools on Wednesday morning at ten o'clock for the election of one trustee to represent the village portion of the Section and to receive the financial report for the year 1936. Mr. Fred Blakely, who has represented Chapman on the school board, retired after twelve years of efficient service. His decision to retire was the cause of much regret to the other members of the school board, the ratepayers and the members of the teaching staff of Tweed Consolidated School. Mr. Blakely had an excellent grasp of educational and local issue matters pertaining to the conduct of public school affairs and his counsel was greatly appreciated at all times. His successor, Mr. Herman Tucker, has had a great deal of experience in municipal matters, and will be a most capable addition to the school board. The members of the Board for 1937 are: C. B. Martin, Sec.-Treas.; H. E. Myles, T. C. Graham for Tweed; Lloyd Elliott, Jas. Farnsworth, and Herman Tucker for Chapman. The chairman will be chosen at the first meeting in January. Inclement weather kept the attendance of the annual meeting down considerably below the figure of other years.

Miss Mavis McGuire, B.A., Sid Arber and Harold McCutcheon have returned to Queen's University after spending the Christmas holidays at their homes.

Misses Marion Nicholson and Gladys Gordon have returned to Toronto University and Miss Elizabeth Ketchison to MacDonald Institute, Guelph, after the Christmas term after holidaying in Tweed.

Miss Hinsbeth Lunn, B.A., and Miss Hazel Grindell, B. A., of Tweed High School Staff have returned to Belleville after their Christmas vacation in Cascade Station and Guelph.

Misses Isabelle Campbell, Florence Nancey and Grace Houston, of the Collegiate Institute staff, have returned from their holidays in Ottawa, Merrickville and Belleville.

Dr. A. C. Locke who spent the Christmas holidays in Tweed with his family has returned to York.

The Brotherhood Class of Tweed will hold its election of officers at the Sunday School Class on Sunday, January 10th at 3 p. m. The Class has been functioning most successfully under the capable presidency of Mr. T. C. Graham, and its organization about three months ago with an average attendance of about twenty-five.

Rawdon and District

Rawdon — Mr. and Mrs. Fred Martin entertained on Christmas Day Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Latta, Cecil and Jack, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Preston and family, Bethel; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Spencer and junior, Detroit; Mr. and Mr. Alex Martin, Stirling; Mr. Robert Cassidy. This is the first time the entire family of Mr. Alex Martin have met together during the past sixteen years and needless to say it was a happy Christmas gathering.

GERMAN CHIEF PREDICTS DRIVE

'Major Hans' Near Madrid Refuses to Reveal Identity

Madrid, Jan. 4 (CP)—"Major Hans," German commander of the 11th Foreign Volunteers Brigade, predicted today that government forces would soon launch an offensive outside Madrid.

"After the rebels' preparations we are strong enough to attack," he said.

"Major Hans", who refused to reveal his proper name because his family lives in Germany, succeeded to his present command when General Emil Kleber, naturalized Canadian, was appointed to head the international volunteer force fighting for the government.

Kleber, who makes his home in Toronto when he is not fighting in foreign lands, became a naturalized Canadian several years ago. He was born in Austria and after service in the Austro-Hungarian army during the war went to Canada. There he joined the Canadian group that went to Siberia to join the Allied forces fighting Communists.

Kleber will be fought with the Red army and still later commanded a Communist force in China. Then he returned to Canada, remaining until a year ago when he left for Europe. He joined the Spanish government forces soon after the civil war began.

CANADIANS AND THEIR INDUSTRIES.... AND THEIR BANK.

MINING AND METALLURGY

Mining in Canada, now second largest of the country's industries, gives employment to 80,000 workmen and has a production value of over $500,000,000 per annum.

As an accompaniment of this great and growing mining industry, Canada is building up a smelting and refining industry of world importance. There are now huge plants in Cobalt, Deloro, Nova Scotia, British Columbia and Manitoba. These plants produce:

Copper — Nickel — Zinc — Lead — Cobalt — Iron
Ferro-alloys — Gold — Silver — Bismuth — Cadmium — Selenium — Aluminum — Platinum — Uranium

The plans give direct employment to 10,000 workers, and indirect employment to many thousands more; have a production value of $200,000,000 per annum; purchase coal and electricity to the value of $12,000,000; pay for equipment, supplies, freight, etc., some $40,000,000 per annum; and add some $100,000,000 to the export value of Canada's mineral products, without counting the value of the gold recovered from base metal ores.

Fronteously identified with the upbuilding of the smelting and refining industry of Canada from its inception, the Bank of Montreal gives this industry financial service through every stage. Thousands of Canadians in all sections, dealing in the safety and facilities of this Bank with their employing companies.

The Bank's services include: Commercial accounts; foreign currency accounts; financing of shipments; loans and discounts; collections; trade and credit information; safekeeping of securities; savings accounts; money orders; travellers cheques; banking by mail; personal loans.

CONTACT MADE WITH KIDNAPPER

Advertisement Appears in Seattle Daily Times

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 4 (AP)—A new classified advertisement indicating that contact has been established contact with the kidnapper of Bobby Greenlease appeared today in the Seattle Daily Times.

The advertisement read:

"Mother received your communications. Police have not intercepted them. Please write privately clear. Your instructions will be followed. Bobby is safe."

The new ad appeared in the "Personals" division of the newspaper's want ads, following still another "contact" advertisement, which was not considered valid to appear today.

The other ad, second of a series, was first inserted in the paper last Tuesday for three days. It read, "Mother will be glad to receive you. Am."

NATIONAL REVENUE FOR 1936 IS $370,000,000

Ottawa, Jan. 4.—(CP)—Canadians are paying into the national treasury at the rate of $1,000,000 a day, or $365,000,000 a day, for every day of the year. Income tax, national revenue for the current fiscal year indicate total collections in the neighborhood of $370,000,000, a record national revenue department figures.

Income tax collections account for much of which will, when the books close on March 31, show a marked increase over last year, and will probably the best year since before the depression.

Excise tax collections this year will be close to $100,000,000, a boost of about $30,000,000 over last fiscal year. A larger item, however, is the sales tax, over which the increase is to bring in about $105,000,000. This will be approximately $25,000,000 more than last year.

Customs duties and customs receipts will probably each reach to between $80,000,000 and $85,000,000 with a gross total of $165,000,000, falling little short of the $370,000,000 mark.

FRESH INTEREST IN RELIGION SHOWN BY CENSUS IN RUSSIA

Moscow, Jan. 5 (AP)—Masses of Russian citizens are professing fresh interest in religion, authoritative sources reported today on the basis of indications shown during the first days of the national census.

"Do you believe in God?" is one of the questions census-takers ask each citizen in the gigantic canvass of the Soviet union.

Although returns are official secrets, many government officials were reported surprised at the religious trend being shown. Some expressed belief many persons are taking advantage of the New Constitution which provides for complete freedom in religious worship.

75TH CONGRESS OPENED TODAY

Questions of U. S. Neutrality And Relief Outlays Loom Large

Washington, Jan. 5 (AP)—The 75th United States Congress opened amid a quickening tempo of National prosperity today to face a batch of problems embracing labor strife at home and war rumbles abroad.

Sharp gavel raps—by Vice President Garner in the Senate and Speaker Bankhead, elect, in the House —officially began the organization chores of the third Congress of Franklin D. Roosevelt's Presidency.

These were but prelude to lively legislative tasks ahead. The big lawmaking machine, tuning-up, oiling and renewing acquaintances in crowded Capital corridors and the more sedate cooling-chamber bars, looked to Mr. Roosevelt's annual message tomorrow for guidance.

What the Chief Executive will ask to help guarantee United States neutrality in the face of foreign conflict, expenditures, and possibilities of a constitutional amendment covering both powers and working hours were foremost in the thoughts of legislators.

WOUNDED MAN CHARGED TODAY

James Bullock, Sr., Lies in Hospital as Result of Bullet in Abdomen

Brantford, Ont., Jan. 5 (CP)—Already under guard and charged with attempted murder in the recent Plattsville hold-up, James Bullock, Jr., today was charged with shooting Clark and Grant's general store at Plattsville, Ontario, in which robbers a bullet wound in his lower abdomen, his condition is serious.

The Teeterville robbery warrant, issued at Simcoe, was executed at Bullock's hospital bed by Provincial Constable Carl W. Farrow and Detective George Kerr. He was charged last week with assault and attempted robbery in connection with Plattsville shooting in which Melvin Lachman, garageman, and William Love, 14, were seriously injured.

On the morning of the Plattsville affray Bullock staggered up a flight of stairs to his mother's apartment and was brought to the hospital. He maintained during a period of unconsciousness he was shot at a bootlegger's, but police charge he received the wound in the Lachman hold-up, in which four men took part.

Lamaque Report, Increase in Ore Reserves

In a progress report to shareholders of Teck Hughes Gold Mines, Ltd., president D. L. H. Fortee reports Hedley, on Lamaque Gold Mines, Ltd.—

The work in connection with the sinking of No. 7 shaft (the new vertical shaft for deep mining) has progressed in accordance with plans. The shaft was deepened to 362 feet before sinking ceased, the erection of the permanent headframe. Installation of the Nordberg hoist for No. 7 shaft was completed. The erection of the steel headframe, the ore and waste bins has been nearly completed and will be ready for the resumption of shaft sinking before January 15.

Market Comment

A buoyant session prevailed locally on the initial trading period of the year, with the gains by far outnumbering the losses. Needless to say, majority opinion favours a rising market during the first quarter of 1937 at least.

The recent rise of domestic copper to 12 cents was entirely unexpected in Wall Street. Many in the trade believe that still higher prices for metal will be seen early in 1937. Private cables from London suggest that price there will continue to be influenced by the artificial situation and outlook as strong as ever. New York believes that industrial activities, as well as companies manufacturing commodities and equipment, are going to be busy in 1937, all of which points to steady consumption of red metal. The armament race the world over also makes for a comparatively stable trend for copper shares on the part of traders.

The Most Promising Industries in Bond Issues

The following list is a tabulation of the most promising major industries in the United States, as compiled by Standard Trade and Securities, in this group are placed those industries which do not rate a satisfactory earnings basis and which are expected to increase their relative positions, as well as those industries which have not yet reached the point where improved earnings showing, but are expected to show a better than average increase.

Aircraft (manufacturing); Auto Tires, Rubber Goods, etc.; Building (equipment, supplies and construction); Electrical Equipment; Finance; Household Equipment (floor coverings, refrigeratory (agricultural, industrial); Metals (copper, lead); Office Equipment; Oil Producing and Refining; Railroads; Railroad Equipment; Restaurants; Steel and Iron; Textiles (cotton, rayon).

Lake St. John Paper Company

The Canadian Stock of the Lake St. John Paper Company is in brisk demand on the "over-the-counter-trading", it is currently quoted at 1½ bid, 2 asked. The reason for this is that the Company is a very low cost producer of newsprint, and in view of any bank loans, has a net working capital position of roughly $1,250,000, equal to $10.00 per capacity until September, 1938. A favourable report would enhance the earning power of Lake St. John very materially.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 5.—(CP)—A few selected stocks pushed forward in heavy volume but these gains were matched by losses in most of the issues in stock that advanced in recent sessions. Base metals and oil shares mainly higher and the secondary gold issues quite strong.

Kirkland Lake Consolidated, McIntyre and Dome sold down, the latter to about a point each. Among the gold gainers were McKenzie, Francoeur, O'Brien and Pioneer.

McWatters advanced about 20 cents. Fred Orville was a firm spot in the base metals. Coniagas traded in volume at a narrow gain.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, Jan. 5.—(CP)—The industrial section, Toronto stock exchange, was under controversy threatened a shut-down in many plants. The General Motors' defy to the unions, however, was followed by improvement in this company's stock. Chrysler edged higher.

Amusement shares were again in lively on reports of widely expanding box office receipts. Paramount issued PfcL put up about a point at the best and the common was ahead 1-4 here and Warner Bros. were leaned forward.

Among Canadian stocks, International Nickel touched a fresh high. Dome and Canadian Pacific held steadily while McIntyre and Distillers Corp.-Seagrams lost small fractions. On the Curb, Lake Shore pushed slightly ahead. Dominion Government Bonds were quiet. Canadian Dollars ruled unchanged at 100.03 1-8 cents.

Trading upward most of the time were Dy. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Eastern Rolling Mill, Vanadium, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, J. C. Case, Westerin Union, Wilcox & Co., Armour & Co., Consolidated Edison, Western Union and American Water Works. 15

Belleville "Redmen" Defeat Trenton 8-3 in First Game in Intermediate O. H. A. Loop

Locals Display Too Much Speed And General Ability

NEW RULE TRIED

Deseronto Line Looked Good as Well as All The Team

King Hockey was auspiciously ushered in at the Belleville Arena last night, when the Belleville Redmen showed superior condition and staged a shiny period rally to defeat the Trenton Intermediates 8 to 3 in the opening game of the Intermediate "O.H.A." series. The clubs battled at rather even terms through the first two periods, only to have the Redmen rush wild and score four goals in the final period. The score by periods was 2 to 1 and 4 to 3 and as all these in favour of the home team, which thickened the count of over 750 hockey fans present.

Manager Mike Thomas introduced many new faces to the local fans, all of whom proved highly satisfactory. Starting with Ken Watt in the nets the fans saw the return of Lorne Rubber to the defence. Rubber teaming splendidly with Hap Barrage, one of the best in defence, that commanded the respect of the Just-dashing Trenton Hornets. Watt, a former Albens lad who has been employed at the Brewer's Warehouse, Belleville, for the past few months. Using his berth-mate's left leg instruments. Manager Thomas introduced Clayton Jackson at centre, flanked by Bill Jackson on left and Ken Stanley at right wing. Despite the fact this trio is a rookie outfit, each in stature, they carry plenty of speed and combine well together, which is proved in the fact they figured in three goals last night. "Buster" Whitton, from Campbellford star, was 20 a Belleville uniform as a newcomer, and Thomas and Bert Orire shoot out as the best of the alternates tossed over the boards by Manager Thomas.

Veterans in Trenton Lineup

A number of veterans were invoked in the Trenton line-up, all of whom are well known locally. Gord Rowan, husky defenceman, who shirty Ken Johnson said, the speedy Norm Johnson carried the bulk of the work for the regulars with Art Coy and Ken Hardy turning in good efforts. To open honours the latter was in fine condition, but as the game progressed the surface became soft and slicky, making combination and the use of Bill Jackson with a brace sag Cy throughout the final period.

"Speedy" St. Louis with two goals, Bill Jackson, Jackson and Hap Barrage with two goals led the scorers of the night.

Play opened with Jackson having the first shot on net, Gray saving. Both squads displayed plenty of fighting season with a fast brand of hockey. Twice Mister was through to lead, but off target with his shoot. Chayt Jackson opened the scoring early in the initial frame when he took brother Bill Jackson's pass, skated in close with a clean shot, scored into the upper right hand corner of the net. Belleville's second line of Stanley, Barrage and McGuire we pressed into service soon after and they immediately set in evidence to the delight of the partisans. Davis and Johnson tested Watt during the first stanza, only Gord Rowan lifted a long one from outside line and the period ended the count. Bill Miller was through in fine style at the Trenton goal mouth and Tompkins raced the length of the ice to miss an open net by the proverbial inch. Barrage drew a penalty for throwing the puck and Gray successfully stopped St. Louis' penalty shot. Barrage went in to flash the red light, when he drifted home by Johnson received and Carl Morgan waltzed in with Ingram's pass to make the score 2 to 1. for Belleville as the bell sounded.

Gray Beaten in Second

Watt beat Bowen to open the second frame and Trenton were on the offensive. Davis and Johnson were repeatedly in on "Red" Gray's net results. Gray turned back Barrage and Whitton and then McGuire and Ingram in turn. On a beautiful combination play Bill Jackson broke Tompkins' pass and scored. McGuire drew a penalty and Whitton proved his worth by having possession of the rubber for fully a minute. Trenton finally found possession and bombarded Watt, who beat Johnson from close in, but Lott was unaccented. Watt was forced to go sprawling into the open net. Barrage tripped Johnson and saved a score, Bowen shot wide on the penalty shot as Belleville left the ice victors.

With the score standing 4 to 2 the final stanza opened with Barrage and Stanley serving time and Trenton gaining. The ice was soft and slicky and resulted in the players having difficulty in carrying the puck. Either was penalized and Trenton moved five up without results. Bill Jackson was accidentally struck over the eye with a stick and was removed from the game bleeding profusely. McGuire sailed in to rifle home Tompkins' pass after all were even. Jack Kidd batted in Lotty rebound to make the score 5 to 3 when Belleville suddenly went on a scoring rampage. Barrage scored on a nice combination play from Whitton, St. Louis drifted one from centre ice, that Gray failed to see or stop and then St. Louis scored the final goal when he raced in on Gray to pick the right corner and make the score 8 to 3.

The line-ups—

Belleville— Goal, Watt; defence, Ingram and Rubber; centre, Barrage; wings, W. Jackson and Tompkins; subs, Barrage; Whitton; Miller; Bolter; St. Louis; Stanley; coach Duffield; sub goal, Miller.

Trenton— Goal, Gray; defence, Bowen, York; centre, Davis; wings, Johnson and Lott; subs, Miller, Kidd, Baker and Kerr.

Fliers Taste First Defeat

Prescott Downs R. C. A. F. 3 to 2 in Sterling Tussle

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 5 —(CP)— In the first game of the season for both before a big crowd, Prescott defeated Trenton Air Force 3 to 2 in the first of the Yeo Street Memorial Cup finals here last night.

The Fliers, undefeated this season, was literally checked off its feet for the first time. Prescott showed surprising condition to come from behind and tie the score twice and then win the game in the last 60 seconds of play. Sensational goalkeeping by Dingle Gosse in the nets.

The initial period was scoreless, while each team notched a counter in the second stanza. The "Fliers" moved into command at the opening of the last period when Crowley scored, LeCompte having scored the initial goal for the Airmen. Prescott immediately took counsel again while only ten seconds before the final gong Dingle scored the winning goal. It was the first defeat for the "Fliers" in the Kingston loop this season. The final set-up found Prescott and the R.C.A.F. in the finals in the home and home series, the second game slated to be played on Wednesday night.

Line-ups:

Prescott — Goal, Cooke; defense, McKeown, Dingle; centre, Gosse; wings, Farmer, Fisher; subs, Kennedy, Fralick, Steven Christie.

Trenton Air Force — Goal, Gilbert; defense, Adelaide, Beck; centre, LeCompte; wings, Erle Crowley, Whingate; subs, Ernie McNeely, Dorvey, Cowley, Kelly.

Referee — Dougall and Watts.

First score — Bill Jackson.

First goal scored by Jackson.

First penalty—Gord Bowen.

First penalty shot—"Speedy" St. Louis.

First substitution on the fly, when Barrage was in penalty box.

First time-out was for Watt as St. Louis came in.

First save at goal on penalty shot by Watt.

First interference of referee's whistle—by Referee Jos Smith.

FIRM DRIVE TO OBTAIN UNIFORM PLAYING RULES

Western Rugby Union to Bring Matter up at Annual Meeting

EQUAL REPRESENTATION

West Union Will Break Unless Demands Are Met

Winnipeg, Jan. 5.—(CP)—Final drive to obtain uniform playing rules in Canadian Rugby and equal representation for east and west on the National governing body will be made at the annual meeting of the Canadian Rugby Football Union in Toronto, Feb. 27.

Failure to reach an agreement will result in the formation of a "Canadian Football Union" in the west with its own constitution, rules and regulations, according to W. H. Hainsill, Calgary president of the Western Canada Rugby Football Union.

Author of a new constitution, supported by the Western Union, Hainsill will recommend:

A Board of Governors consisting of twelve members, six from the east and six from the west; a Rules Committee of four—two from the east and two from the west—and a secretary-treasurer and assistant. The Rules Committee, he suggested, would be appointed and would have its say.

The principle of "equal representation" must be maintained, Mr. Hainsill declared, but added that the W.C.R.F.U. would not object to the appointment of a western member on the Board of Governors or Rules Committee, if the east desired.

Proposal for Affiliation

Every equal representation, he said, the west is prepared to "abolish the W.C.R.F.U. and have our clubs seek direct affiliation with the O.R.F.U. and to pay affiliation fees and take proportionate share of the cost, and play according to the code and regulations of the O.R.F.U. respectively."

Under the western plan, the cost of operating the W.C.R.F.U. was $1,700, including general and executive meetings and those of the union committees.

Recommendation will be made, that a cash percentage be taken from each game played inside of 50 miles of the chamfions of the various associations, according to bear the whole cost of operating the O.R.F.U.

Copies of the proposed constitution and recommendations have been mailed to all officials of the Canadian Union.

"Failure of the C.R.F.U. to give favorable consideration to the views of the western President, "or the presentation of a further ultimatum for our recommendations, is going to force me, additionally with my position, to recommend to the West disassociate itself with the C.R.F.U."

"The West wants to play the game fairly with the East, as we have always literally checked off its fees for the privilege. Prescott showed surprising condition to come from behind and tie the score twice and then win the game in the last 60 seconds of play. Sensational goalkeeping by Dingle Gosse in the nets.

The initial period was scoreless, while each team notched a counter in the second stanza. The "Fliers" moved into command at the opening of the last period when Crowley scored, LeCompte having scored the initial goal for the Airmen. Prescott immediately took counsel again while only ten seconds before the final gong Dingle scored the winning goal. It was the first defeat for the "Fliers" in the Kingston loop this season. The final set-up found Prescott and the R.C.A.F. in the finals in the home and home series, the second game slated to be played on Wednesday night.

Line-ups:

Prescott — Goal, Cooke; defense, McKeown, Dingle; centre, Gosse; wings, Farmer, Fisher; subs, Kennedy, Fralick, Steven Christie.

Trenton Air Force — Goal, Gilbert; defense, Adelaide, Beck; centre, LeCompte; wings, Erle Crowley, Whingate; subs, Ernie McNeely, Dorvey, Cowley, Kelly.

Referee — Dougall and Watts.

Sport Callings

By Ken Colling

No. 1 in the bag.

A good crowd of hockey fans was on hand to welcome the 1937 hockey season at the Arena last night when Eddie Thomas' gang downed the Trenton intermediates 8 to 3. For two periods the patrons saw some fairly good hockey, considering all concerned, but the ice became soft and slicky in the last stanza, the players experienced no little difficulty in carrying and passing the puck. They would have willingness to pass the puck and play combination hockey wherever possible, but the ice was to blame for the mounding of the score to some extent.

There are four players or names to know who and where the Redmen's new goalkeeper was and came from. His names is Ken Watt, he hails from Albens, Ontario, and has been employed at the Brewer-Warner Alcohls plant for some months. Reckoned as a fair goalkeeper he had a lad named Dettield, an employee of the C.N.R., as the substitute goalie. It was a treat to see Ronnie Ebbler back in a scholastic fray. Miller is a good hockey, carries the puck well and checks back well. He seems particularly wily fighting men and they will pass a tough defence to pass before Spicer.

X X X

Jimmie McGuire's back-checking brought comment from the patrons as did "Buster" Whitton's short-handed rushes. Manager Thomas' decision to forward Lorne Rubber with Hap Barrage, St. Louis and Morgan, although a new combination, netted some good results, while Morgan scored once.

The Trenton boys seemed to not the conditions at all and were not cope with the terrific bursts of speed shown by the Belleville squad. Their weaving and zag for from eliminated just because they couldn't get started. Bill Jackson was left in sparkling form all night. Gord Bowen played a smart game on defence, but poor support. Ken Davis have showed up considerably. Both are apt to be playing for fellow team mates. Art Coy looked like nothing to boast about once. Ken Hardy turned in a pretty consistent game.

Prior to the game Referee Joe Smith visited both dressing rooms and explained as to the penalty rules and regulations, just pointed out, however, the folly of body-checking in the attacking zone. "It is permissible to body-check in the defensive zone," he explained to the boys, the rules say body-checking and all forms of roughness unless standing still or moving very slowly. If you body-check in the attacking zone, the centre ice zone is constituted charging, so we must call it." It is easier to say than do, but as near as possible," Referee Smith pointed out. His advice was taken by both teams. Failing everything into consideration, the game was a good one. The goals was very clean throughout.

In reality what the Redmen need most is some good cold weather to harden the ice now available for practice. If Manager Thomas can get the ice, he can get a team capable of practicing himself a large slice of a record league. Should the cooling weather tomorrow night, says too much winter tennis is one of the big troubles with Trenton's hockey chap this season.

Before going out yesterday to get in a few practice licks against Eddie Thomas's big squad, another big feature match tomorrow, the British star pointed to too long a tournament season as one of the causes as the principal reasons why the Belleville Redmen failed to annex the trophy.

"If the winter tennis may catch up with them in the one big match they want to win," he said. "Donald Budge may not be there, but they have more reserve had he taken it easier in the off-season.

"When I played him in the final match at Forest Hills last year, Budge was over the edge and I knew it and ran him. If he had been seen his form in practice, he'd be in that last set, but he didn't know what to do when he got ahead. Budge's defeat was due to his being over-tennised."

The Davis Cup teams, Perry added, "don't always pull together because they are not friends. Your players should keep in more in mind that they are playing for their country and not for themselves."

SCHEDULES IN INTERSCHOLASTIC SPORTS DRAFTED

Bay of Quinte, Group. Embraces Six Senior Schools in Hockey, Basketball

With representatives present from six schools in the Bay of Quinte area, hockey and basketball schedules, for that district in the interscholastic O.S.S.S.A., were drafted at the meeting held in the Collegiate Institute at School last evening.

Five senior teams in the boys' hockey group entered for competition namely—C.O.I., Y.C.I., Picton Collegiate, Napanee C.I., V.C.I., and Albert College, while the matter of junior interscholastic group, to be formed within the jurisdiction of the Bay of Quinte area was left in abeyance by Chairman McKeown of Trenton. In basketball circles both senior boys' and girls' teams were entered from Trenton, Picton and B.C.I., while Albert College boys have senior and junior boys' representatives with Napanee sponsoring junior girls only.

The schools represented last night, in the basketball categories in which they will play, were—B.C.I., V.C.I. senior and junior boys and girls; Trenton H.S.—senior and junior boys and girls; Picton—senior and junior boys and girls; Albert College—senior and junior boys and girls; Napanee—senior and junior girls only.

Albert College given a one year's leave of absence from the group, which finds the Bay of Quinte area represented, but will compete in the North Hastings C.O.S.S.A. basketball series. Inspector Hamilton, Bishop of Albert College was also present at the meeting. Taking everything into consideration, the meeting was one of the best the area has very clean throughout.

ART ROSS BOOSTS N. H. L. REFEREES ESPECIALLY ION

Considers Mickey Ion, One of The Best Handling a Whistle

GORMAN FIGHTS ON

Says Smythe Should Not be Allowed to Wander Around

(By A. N. Fulford, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Conny Smythe can't get a nose ahead of Art Ross. The Boston Bruin manager is determined to stay out in front of the Toronto pilot in all things even if he has to go to the length of tossing Referee Mickey Ion to the wolves.

Their rivalry used to take the form of telling statements about each other's players and recently the type of referee familiarly known as "homer" has been charged all that and Ross was quick to take the charge and move a step further than the Maple Leaf manager.

It all started in Toronto Saturday night when referee Mickey Ion had a penalty for Smythe on the bench. With only the millest flow of each and continuously Smythe went. Customers gasped and sports writers threw up hands when Conny had gone soft.

The news must have reached Ross' ears for the next day he got in a boost for National League officiating in general and Ion in particular.

He was loud in his praise of the Ion handling of the game and as one of the men, who had interviewed Mickey, Ross quoted as calling Ion a "new" referee.

That will go over with everyone but Ion when he reads the account. Smythe says the boss is going soft on officiating in his theory this season.

He even went further than that. He claimed Ion considers it a privilege to be allowed to officiate in the National League.

Ross' boost and Smythe's gibe is the latest thing in stiffs a rough and tumble fighter left in the ranks of the game. Tommy Gorman general manager of Montreal, Tommy took time off from handling his team last night for tonight's game with Canadiens to suggest that if Smythe is going to feature such a player as Conacher they should give him a whistle.

Gorman's remarks were within Maroons played Leafs a scoreless tie in their last meeting and Gorman hasn't been so pleased with a game since Canadiens and Maroons played a scoreless tie in Montreal early in the season.

The antics of the managers served to draw attention to Ion's handling of the attendance tonight. Besides the Maroon-Canadien affair Boston Bruins and Rangers battle in New York.

FOOTBALL IS FEATURED AS COLLEGESPORT

Attracts Largest Crowds of Any Sport—Commercialization Relative to Play Systems

(By John L. Griffith)

(President, National Collegiate Athletic Association; Commissioner of Athletics for the Western Conference)

Chicago, Jan. 5.—(AP)—At the close of each year it is customary for those who are interested in any sport or group of sports to prophesy that the next year will be better than the year that has just passed.

This is because we all indulge in wishful thinking. It is safe to say, however, that 1936 saw the attendance at United States College games considerably greater than ever 1935.

When we think of attendance we usually think first of football, so it may be pertinent to call attention to the large crowds that generally spectacular, attended the College football games last season. There is no other game that attracts so many spectators as does college football each autumn Saturday.

There have been many arguments this year between those who favor the open game and those who believe that runs and bucks constitute fully 90 per cent of college football. The majority of teams have swung definitely in the direction of the open game, and among the 10 best in the country we both the passing and running attack. Each of these coaches employ passes and tricks as a means of making the running attack more effective.

Football has come of age. We need not expect startling innovations each year in the future. Football, coaching techniques has been developed to the point where most of the officials more difficult. Especially have the rules been forced to make a great many close decisions as forward passes and fumbles are involved. There are, however, that the forward pass will be retained and the rules governing the fairness of the game will not be materially modified.

Basketball is now looked upon as a major college sport in most sections of the United States.

College baseball in 1936 held its own and the attendance reports indicate there was increased interest in this fine game.

ETTORE WINS DECISION OVER JOHN HENRY LEWIS

Philadelphia, Jan. 5 (AP)— Al Ettore, Philadelphia heavyweight knocked out in the fifth round of the ten round scheduled go back in the front row of fistiana, clutching a unanimous decision verdict over John Henry Lewis, of Phoenix, Ariz.

Ettore ignored both the bell and the referee's warning to break from the battering he took in the early rounds. He started his comeback in the fourth, carried the fight into Lewis again in the seventh, and had most of the 12,000 spectators standing on their seats as he hammered the light-heavyweight champion in the 10th. Ettore weighed 191 1-2 and Lewis 182.

"KING of HEARTS"

By Edna Robb Webster

"I had a vague idea that the word indicated colored blood."

Her candor left Dodd with suppressed protestations. "Oh, no! quite the contrary," he rehearsed, suggested horror.

Lynn sensed her displeasure, so she changed the subject quickly. "But what else is there to know about Andre? He is a distinguished Frenchman, an artist and he has a new book coming out."

"Heavens, isn't that enough for one man?" Dodd laughed. "Well, I suppose the next important thing is that Vera has a lot of money and that's going to help Andre immensely."

"I thought he was a prosperous artist."

"He has talent, but art is just like any other business or profession. It thrives better with capital. I'll concede it, all attic sheiks of genius to the contrary. Take Andre, for instance. For five years he's been struggling along in that little seven plane of his in the suburbs on Jackson Square, squandering his talent on transparent artistic experiments and whatnot, to eke out a mere existence. Then he brings Vera home for furlough from New York. Poor thing, they do over the studio to look like a section out of the Quarter. Vera has brains enough to see that it is a good background for Andre, and not insist upon dragging out to some more fashionable suburb.

"Then her Park Avenue social prestige scores a goal and Andre is dreadlessly forced with what had spaned creative ease to be known before that. It's been a regular bloodgame all the way, and the important thing is a year in Paris and they will return with an aesthetic fancy dictatus. In fact, they are selling next month for Sicily and Corsica and Italy."

"I should say it was fortunate that Andre has met up with Vera and what use could I have been to him?"

"That's true, too. Andre was wise. And I think he's in love with Vera, besides. Which makes everything just grand. Now, what you need is a good, handsome husband. Vera, to take care of you. Hasn't Dewey come back from Europe yet to marry him?"

"No, that! But how do you know he is a serious boy?"

"I don't think Dewey Condon ever will be serious about any girl, for very long. He doesn't have the interest in the least, Dod. I appreciate your concern, honey, but don't think you must find a husband for me. I have my friends, just because you brought me here for this perfectly wonderful visit. I'm not a bit worried about Dewey. Dod. You'll never know how much it has meant to me. How much happiness and how much of tragedy, she knows."

Dewey and Jack and the others were, with them in that last glad day. It was late evening when they drove through the narrow cobbled streets of the old Spanish section, to the famous apartment building which is pointed out with pride as one of the oldest in America and had sheltered many famous folk of the old regime. The two red brick structures faced historic Jackson Square on either side, three stories high and reaching the entire length of the block. The elaborate grill work of the balconies and cornices was the pride and gram of Miss. Pontalba, who had erected the buildings almost a century before.

They entered through one of the dim archways and passed between tall iron gates into a stone-paved court where a surprising combined greet them. An old cannon sparkled against a background of purple bougainvillea which clambered over the ancient gray walls and hovered above the banners of yellow Jasmine and white moonflowers. The party trailed up a winding stone steps which had been worn in grooves by the passing of countless feet, to be confronted near the top of the gallery by the smaller iron grille that was locked.

But by this time their disturbance had aroused the household and a servant was hastening forward to admit them. Recently he had hind them came Andre, smiling and gracious and hospitable, to greet them. Lynn saw at once that Andre was no ordinary man. His dark eyes were quick and impressive, his smile was spontaneous, his slender hands restless and alive and emphatically. His manner was courtly, and he greeted Lynn as if he had discovered something new which he admired very much.

CHAPTER XXII

They entered a small corridor which instantly resolved from an ancient passage into a handsomely appointed room. The hall, the recesses of pink azaleas stood on a pair of console tables, where two men left their hats and sticks; while the ladies were ushered up a second iron-railed stairway into a spacious and beautiful reception room which might have been the private suite of Marie Antoinette, herself.

"Voilà, I 'ope you will be perfectly gorgeous!" Dod whispered to Lynn. "You should have seen the place when Andre lived here alone. He didn't use these upper rooms, only the two lower floors, the one he worked in the other and sometimes slept there, and Vera's maid. Then Vera had that remodeled completely, and the hall, but it's quite the thing, the fittings are gold, and so is that French bed."

The room was on a low dias, draped and canopied with gold net. Lynn preferred the white and gold modest of her mother's blue and silver bedroom. But the hall, and the other appointments of these rooms which looked as if they belonged in the days of the Louis, were so evidently recognized that the golden appointments had been specially designed for their owner, as soon as she saw the apartment. She felt a sudden sense of her inadequacy, of her lack of grace, exactly the shade and texture of her loveliness that was the perfection of beauty. She was altogether charming, and Lynn could see that Andre was not the only one impressed. Andre had obtained by his friendship with Dodd.

The two large rooms were sticklingly decorated in white and crimson. White bowls of crimson orchids and pigeon-blood roses were everywhere. Deep chairs were offset by fable covers of white brocade with gold fringed shades. A bone-white concert piano, with a gilt candelabra attached to one corner over the crimson carpet. Elaborate gilt service covered two long buffets in the dining-room and gleamed in the pendent lights of the crystal chandelier was achieved by indirect illumination, concealed in moulding and cornice, and in the ceiling, so that long rays of light cast gentle shadows across the white ceilings, like aerial beacons. These were the only lights used, except the living rooms. They were distinctly and originally modern.

"Dod, you've been in Europe recently. Tell Santerne and Burgundy and Bordeaux," Andre said.

"I can remember when Andre served us with a glass of highball," Dewey remarked to Dod with smiling significance.

"Dewey, you sit!" snapped Dod. "You sound like a gossiping old woman."

Her fierce loyalty to Andre pushed Lynn a little. She never liked Dewey's jack; rather the contrary. She criticized all kinds of imaginary faults in him. Was it only because Dod was privileged to act and talk crassly with Dewey himself? Lynn had stepped through the open French window onto the balcony which overlooked the garden below, to see Jackson Square under the magic of night shadows and starlight. To her right, the triple spires of St. Louis Cathedral made an impressive silhouette against the deep hanging sky. It stood in the shadows, guarded on each side by the solid stone masonry of the old Cabildo, as all beauty was guarded in remarkable city.

Lynn had snatched this moment to be alone in this strange place. She wished to feel the witchery of the haunting unreality, so hauntingly typified by these balcony rails which had been wrought by human hands so many years ago.

And suddenly, she sensed that she was not alone on the balcony. Some one had followed her out there and she almost feared to look around to discover who it was. If it were Dewey, he might be very difficult to manage in his present amorous situation. If it were Jack.....

She half turned about and exclaimed softly, "Oh!" as she saw that it was Jack. Relief and anxiety filled her with a clamor of emotional forces.

"Sorry!" he said gently. "Did I frighten you?"

"No—that is—I didn't know there was anyone out here," her words were stumbled, "Isn't this a charming place?"

"You like it better than—Chicago?"

"Oh, there's no comparison. We have beauty—but of such a different quality. It's like the difference between a piece of Primitive textile and a fine old Gobelin tapestry. There are no mystery and tradition to soften the edges and corners of things up there."

"If you like being here, why do you go away?" he protested in a low voice that was tense with something which his face did not reveal in its shadows.

"We mostly can have the things we most desire, or live where we choose, can we? she forced her own voice to sound lightly, as if there were no deep emotion around, within her at his words.

He did not reply at once, silence for a moment, then he asked abruptly, "Why did you run away from me, this afternoon — on the boat?"

She managed to pretend a vague memory of the incident. She forced a laugh. "Oh, I didn't know I ran away. Did called us, or something, I believe."

"Didn't you want to hear what I had to say?"

Panic filled her. How could she divert this torment from themselves? She sensed the import of his words, but she had to stop him. He didn't really mean, to be serious or even sentimental about her. She was only a novelty to him. He belonged to Dod, The lives and order of two entire families would be threatened if she permitted this moment to develop into what portended.

She replied lightly and with effort, "Of course, Bob—Jack—don't say anything you might regret. Dod is—trusts us as much as she loves us, and we're—Shall we go in?" Her voice shook a little on the last words, but she turned quickly toward the open door and stepped back into the brilliant apartment.

Lynn's self-control held until the effort that action had required of her She wondered about the expression on her face, and if it betrayed her to the party, hoping it betrayed little of the anguish that she suffered in that renunciation. Perhaps she was wrong about what Jack wanted to say to her. Shall was worth taking the chance.

Dewey and Dod came into the room, he glanced at her with a puzzled expression, but she avoided meeting his eyes. Dod was the first to walked with all her heart that he might understand how much she adored and admired him, and why she had been so callous toward his suffering. Surely he did not understand—there was nothing in the world he loved as much as Dod, ness could not be sacrificed because of a love that threatened her poor and lonely cousin for a time. Dod was generous affection. If Jack had any sense of honor he would understand.

She gave him a look that was intended to whither any further speaking upon his vulnerability. "I don't wish to meet your parents at Oxnion. I'm only here for a visit to you for Dod's sake and I'm going back home. I'm not going to stay where my acquaintance doesn't include men like you."

"Oh, I say, aren't you being a little cruel?"

"Not nearly so cruel as I should be. You need some man to deal with you, some woman who is as ruthless as you are—not the innocent girls you seem to prefer to play with."

"Innocent girls!" he sneered derisively.

"Oh, I don't expect you to believe that any of us are innocent. Your innocent girls are—are the kind. Goodbye—Mr. Condon. I've been something of a novelty to you, I suppose, but the experience may be useful to me in the future. I'm glad to know you better."

He retreated with a little less than his usual grace, but Lynn was not still insisted that he accorded her rebuff. As she stood at the open door watching him as he walked disappear down the drive, she thought how very far apart were those two extremes of her revelation of men in one short hour. She felt that she had seen the ages of time and depths of experience, since the afternoon when she had left Dodd at that door. The golden serenity of the day, the quaint charm of evening calls, the sheen of the magnolia trees were the same. But she herself was not the same. She had experienced the depth of love and the revulsion of disillusionment in a good thing of as old as love, and quite as universal. And she had renounced love in both.

The same group which had feted Lynn a week, with one exception, was at the station to speed Lynn's departure. She was surrounded and delighted to find her drawing-room—the Colonel had seen to that—filled with farewell gifts of books and flowers and confections. It was a happy, excited hour before holiday. The girls were demonstrative and the men attentive. Everyone promised to see her in Chicago soon, whether or not she came to Oxnion for the visit. The Colonel was expecting a visit from the north. She accepted the promises in the same spirit they were made, for she felt assurances of the future.

Lynn knew that thing Lynn knew, the little group on the platform was receding into the distance with the speeding toward the north. The happiest week of her life was ended, and she was never to see Lynn from the tonneau into the front seat, he deposited her at the door which almost precipitated her into the darkened hall. She turned to inspect the assortment of parcels and a dozen new books, and as many of the week's periodicals. She would have a busy day in which to read them, tomorrow. The flowers would be wilted by that time she arrived home, but the confections would be a treat for her and Mrs. Kline over many days. She would give Suzanne a box of candy and fruit also.

She began to anticipate seeing Suzanne and telling her all about the joyous holiday. Perhaps not quite all—but describing what she had seen and done would help Suzanne's vivid imagination. She was grateful that she could count on seeing Suzanne. Lynn reflected

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

DAILY SHORT STORY

The Dainty Picnic Cook

By Lenore Gray

It began the night Annie Smith introduced Roger Gray to her family. The new boarder who had had a birthday party in her rooms and thrilled all the girls with his gifts and their men friends.

"She's pretty, isn't she?" asked Annie as they went home at midnight.

"Pretty!" repeated Roger Gray dreamily. "More than pretty—she's beautiful, she is platonic."

Annie's married sister heard her saying herself to sleep that night, and that is the way she learned that Roger had chosen, "and quite," asked Annie to be his wife. And here was beautiful, golden-haired Lucille coming to her, arms outstretch out her long white arms and her face to be buss against quiet little Annie, whose arms were not white, just plump and pink.

"I haven't a chance beside her, she is so clever and so handsome; but she wouldn't make a good wife for Roger; she paints and powders and doesn't seem real," sobbed Annie.

"You should worry," comforted Louise. "I'll fix that near-vamp lady, Roger. I've got to think it up."

"Can you, Louise?" asked dribbling Annie.

"Can I?" Louise smiled mysteriously. "You know what a homely kid I was."

Annie nodded.

"Well, didn't I walk in and marry Gene Fraser, the unsentimental guy of the whole place, when every other girl was fishing for him and each one a Venus de Milo in point lace? I did. You get a bigger chance than fair Lucille, the dollar's model! Sleep on that, honey."

Annie slept on it and felt cheerful the next day, but the next night the spirits sank again when Roger saw Roger walking down the street with Lucille.

"My idea has sprouted," announced Louise that night. "We're going on a picnic Saturday afternoon over to Shingly beach everybody invited, including Lucille and Roger. Don't cry till it's all over—I just had to get Gene away from a chef Lucille who didn't know a tenderloin from a cow opener."

A hearty laugh came from behind Mr. Fraser's evening paper. "Gene Fraser, you are awful," he chuckled.

Saturday was a pleasant day and the picnic started off in good shape everybody eating keen with healthy appetites of lunch. The shore was quite deserted, now that September was reached the end, and Louise volunteered to watch the lunch basket while the others went for a stroll along the beach.

Two hours later the strolling couples came back, to find a frantic Louise and no picnic baskets. "They disappeared," she wailed. "I just closed my eyes from the sunshine. It is so bright and when I opened them every box and basket was gone!"

"Aviary at the switch," murmured one hungry male.

"We've five miles from the trolley line and the bus won't return for us until seven," mused Roger Gray, "and I'm famished. Can't you think of some where we could get something to eat?"

"Yeh—maybe the moon's made of green cheese, or you could eat sand," suggested Mr. Murray.

Lucille smiled, but there was no mean look about her that had the grandest coffee cakes and some bananas," she murmured.

"Shall we sit here and starve?" demanded Roger.

Louise suddenly clapped her hands. "Saved! I've thought of a plan. The Hall have a cottage along here somewhere. We'll break in and make a fire, and if there's any eats—"

They all trailed after her—cold, hungry, expectant faces, Annie's pale and quiet and not understanding where her chance came in. Strange to relate, a key on Louise's key ring fitted the cottage door.

In ten minutes they were all working like beavers under Louise's direction. The men had gathered and picked up firewood on the beach, Louise set the table in the pretty dining room, and Annie, plain little Annie, flew around the kitchen in her element, for Annie was a born cook, and in an hour they sat down to a wonderful chow chowder, a dried-apple pie, fine biscuits and honey and delicious coffee, for the larder had been strangely well stocked.

Annie was the queen of the occasion. More than one man looked curiously at Roger, Gray, and nobody thought it was clever when Lucille daintily flung up her two white and powdered hands and boasted that she knew nothing about a housework that the delicatessen shop was good enough for her. She nearly swooned at the idea of peeling an onion. It was at that particular moment that Mr. Murray thought of a lifetime of meals he had planned to eat with Lucille, and looked wistfully out of the window, and it was then that Roger caught up Annie's little brown hand, with a burn on one thumb, and kissed it boldly.

"Congratulate me, everybody," he smiled around the table.

"I came in first," telephoned Louise to her friend Mrs. Hall, "and Annie and Roger are engaged, and they want to spend the honeymoon in your cottage."

Annie mused the fair Lucille, "I wonder what became of those elegant coffee cakes I

Influenza Epidemic Spreads in England

London, Jan. 4 (AP)—An influenza epidemic spread throughout the British Isles today with hospitals fighting to keep ahead of the hearts working to care for the victims.

Some of London's largest hospitals reported some nurses, had been afflicted as well as some other staff members. Medical authorities said the fatalities were not alarming.

Mrs. Rudyard Kipling was one of those under hospital care for special treatment.

TIMES SQUARE WELCOMES NEW YEAR

Outside and United States ushered in the new year with one of the most lavish and hilarious celebrations in history, as the continent went wild on New Year's eve. Above is a section of the crowd which thronged Times Square, New York, as the clocks were tolling the hour of 12. Inset, are a group of merry-makers snapping at one of the smart New York night clubs. Scenes such as this were duplicated in every city on the continent.

TARZAN AND THE LEOPARD MEN

(Wide-World Newspaper Feature Service)

From the midst of the whirling mass, Kali Bwana was astonished to see the man rise suddenly to his feet, dragging the leopard with him. His powerful arms encircled the throat of the creature, while the beast struck and struggled to free himself from that iron grip.

Tarzan had to fight the beast with bare hands. If he had used one hand to wield his knife, he might merely have wounded it, and the maddened, confused brute could have struggled free and leaped upon the girl. But now the beast was in the clutch of death.

It no longer growled; slowly its struggles ceased; it went limp—Sheeta, the leopard, was dead. Tarzan cast the carcass to the ground. Then he placed a foot upon it, and the forest echoed with the victory cry of the bull ape.

Kali Bwana shuddered. She thought to flee, for she believed this wild man of the forest was as terrible and dangerous as the leopard he had slain. He turned toward her. She knew it was too late. Quickly Kali Bwana raised her bow and arrow to hold him off.

EFFORTS MADE TO HALT SPREAD OF STRIKE

'Far-Reaching Problems' Touched on by President Roosevelt in Speech

Efforts are Redoubled To Bring Representatives Together for Settlement

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., President of General Motors at Detroit

20TH UNIT CLOSES

50,000 General Motors Employees Are Idle

Detroit, Jan. 6 (AP)—Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, came to Detroit today as conciliator of the U. S. Government's doubled efforts to bring together corporation executives and officials of the United Automobile Workers of America for a settlement of the sprawling automobile strike.

Effects of the strikes were felt directly in Detroit General Motors branch for the first time with the Tarrytown Manufacturing Company's announcement 7,000 of its 13,000 employees were laid off. This division manufactures automobile hardware.

Tarrytown Unit Affected.

It was the twentieth unit of the large automobile-producing concern to close down operations, leaving more than 50,000 General Motors employees idle.

At about the same time the Fisher Lumber Corporation, at Memphis, Tenn., shut off 800 employees, the eighth because the automotive industry-induced lumber materials shortage developed.

Production in the new Ford plant at Detroit last night 24 hours ended as saying:

"Just those who salary pull the workers out. That's the only way I know it has affected us. We don't know. Nobody knows."

No One Union Recognized.

The corporation's president said his statement "is by no means that we would be recognized as the sole collective bargaining agency of General Motors workers sets forth 'our position clearly and unmistakably'.

Three United States Department of Labor conciliators were in Detroit, awaiting the arrangement of dates between high executives of General Motors and leaders of the union.

Homer S. Martin, U.A.W.A. president, said he had assured the conciliators—James P. Dewey, Edward C. McGrath and John R. Steelman—that the union would co-operate with them.

The automobile labor situation was discussed in Washington in two sessions participated in by President Roosevelt and Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, both of whom was a White House dinner guest last night.

Miss Perkins' Comment.

Upon leaving the White House she explained a report that William S. Knudsen, General Motors executive vice president, had been in contact with the union and the conciliators was erroneous. She said a mistake in a report transmitted to her from Conciliator Dewey was responsible.

In answer to a query Miss Perkins said it would be only "speculation", to attempt to arrange a conference now or her office between Sloan and John L. Lewis, whose committee for industrial organization is aiding the United Automotive Workers in their endeavors to negotiate with General Motors.

Martin, head of a U.A.W.A. strikers' board, announced the formation of general strike against the corporation's defiance, and its refusal to abide by the union's objectives, said a "general stoppage of General Motors is under way."

BLIZZARDS TIE UP WESTERN STATES

San Francisco, Jan. 6—(AP)—Howling blizzards banked mountain trail, and highways deep with snow in the Western States today and tonight brought reports of one dead, one injured and nearly 250 marooned in four states.

An Oakland, Calif., policeman reported his snowbound motorcycle at Mariposa, Calif., told him Thomas Aldrich, aged miner, died from exhaustion after reaching a ranch safely.

Reports of another snowstorm in the Grand Canyon area of Arizona caused rescuers to redouble efforts to reach nearly 200 persons snowbound in three camps.

Strike Outlook

Hope for settlement of the far flung automobile manufacturing and longshoremen's strikes centred today in the United States capital.

Government leaders considered steps of adjusting widespread labor disputes costing $6,000 workers employment in those two distressed business and industry.

President Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., of the General Motors Corporation, in New York for Detroit, where federal conciliators sought to bring together corporation executives and officials of the United Automobile Workers of America for a settlement of the sprawling automobile strike.

BRITAIN DEMANDS GERMANY, ITALY ANSWER NOTE SENT

Proposed no Volunteers be Sent to Aid Warring Factions in Spain

MORE NAVAL STRENGTH

British Fleet Considerably Augmented in Spanish Waters

London, Jan. 6 (CP)—In what was regarded as a departure from previous British diplomacy in the Spanish situation, Great Britain demanded today that Germany and Italy answer her proposal to ban volunteers from Spain by Thursday at the latest.

The note was the last in diplomatic circles on what was described as the "unusual" tone of the British note to Rome. It was translated Press.

Significance was seen in the fact that coincidentally with the dispatch of the note Admiralty announced a refurbishing of British naval strength in Spanish waters. The announcement, however, had the effect of materially strengthening the British fleet around Spain for a few days, was described, however, as routine."

Escape Only Realistic.

The admiralty announcement described the changing of beats of 27 warships in the Mediterranean as "routine" and said the strength of the Spanish waters will be able to get ashore anywhere.

The Hawke News Agency said the Admiralty dispatched the cruisers Aretheus and Devonshire had been ordered from Malta to the Spanish coast immediately. Officially the orders were given to aid evacuation of refugees from Spain, but that it was understood they were a precautionary measure following the recent international naval incidents in Spanish waters.

The Admiralty also ordered naval vessels in Spanish waters, according to Times, was to be as follows:

At Barcelona, the flotilla leader Grenville; the destroyers the destroyer Greyhound and Glowworm and the supply ship, Resource; at Alicante, the destroyer Griffin; at Palma De Mallorca the cruiser Arethusa, the destroyers Hardy and the destroyer C'mard; at Cartagena the destroyer Grenville; at Malaga the destroyer Gallant; at Tangier the battle cruiser Hood; at Gibraltar the battleship Barham and the battleship Queen Elizabeth the cruiser Devonshire and the destroyers Garland, Gypsy and Vanoc; at St. Jean De Luz the destroyer Foresight; at Vigo the destroyer Hyperion and at Vigo the destroyer Foxhound.

Sir Eric Phipps and Sir Eric Phipps, British Ambassadors at Berlin and Rome respectively, were instructed to demand a formal answer to the Anglo-French demands that Italy and Germany announce before the end of the week.

Time Limit Set.

London official circles learned shortly after the British cabinet left Whitehall that the Italian reply was expected to be ready today or Wednesday, but that Germany would not reach London until Thursday or Friday. Simultaneously, receipt of the answers tomorrow. It was said, would not be surprising. Informed circles said Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini were expected to give definite answers to the request for immediate halting of aid to the Spanish insurgents. Such tactics, these circles said, would constitute a waiting game to obtain more time for the non-intervention committee of the Francisco Franco's insurgent troops and the de facto government, Spanish government.

In the event of such an answer according to The Associated Press, it was said Foreign Secretary Eden probably has determined upon course of action, although it would not be made public until the cabinet discussion of the actual answers.

Farmers Plough Land Day Before New Year's

At least two farmers in Prince Edward County spent the day before New Year's Day in a novel manner. John Watt, farmer residing near Wellington, and Gerald Morris, Woodcross farmer, hitched horses to ploughs and "turned over" a large plots of land. Both men claim that they were able to plough the ordinary depth and that the ploughs "never worked better".

It is among the world-famous gems he has offered to the National gallery to be founded by American masters as the nucleus of the museum.

Make Democracy Succeed Within Constitution; U.S. Aim

Roosevelt Says Powers of Free Gov't. Must Not be Denied

ISSUES DISCUSSED

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—President Roosevelt announced the United States courts today to do their part "in making democracy successful" within the framework of the constitution at a time when "militarism has leaped forward" abroad.

Addressing a joint session of Congress from the speakers desk in the House chamber, the President said:

"The vital need is not alteration of our fundamental law, but an increasingly enlightened view with reference to it.

"We do not ask the courts to call non-existent powers into being, but we have a right to expect that concealed powers or those legitimately implied shall be made effective instrument for the common good.

Powers of Full Democracy.

"The process of our democracy must not be imperiled by the denial of essential powers of free government."

Before the heavily Democratic Congress, the chief executive asserted that "the broad objectives of NRA were "sound" adding:

"The statute of NRA has been outlawed. The problems have not. They are still with us."

The President did not mention the Supreme Court by name but he said at one point:

"Because all of us believe that our democratic form of government can cope adequately with modern problems as they arise, it is patriotic duty to point out the way in which we can meet new national needs with new laws consistent with the historic constitutional framework clearly intended to receive liberal and not narrow interpretation."

Immediate Action On Embargo.

But he said immediate action was needed to extend the neutrality law to carry civil strife in Spain, to amend expiring statutes (such as his relief powers and the reconstruction corporation) and to make necessary appropriations for relief purposes.

Among "far-reaching problems" mentioned by the President included:

A banning "menace" of habitations failing to "provide the physical basics for modern civilization".

Aid for tenant farmers to become self-supporting;

Improvement and broadening of the social security system;

Unemployment.

The President said he would discuss unemployment with Congress later.

Three Sister Evils.

Mr. Roosevelt termed over-production, under-production and speculation the "three evil sisters who distill the troubles of unsound inflation and dizzying deflation."

LEADER REFUSES TO PLAY NUMBER

"Horst Wessel" Nazi Political Party Song on Program

By THOMAS HAMILTON

(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

The Hague, a.n. 6 (AP)—A Dutch orchestra leader refused to conclude the Nazi "Horst Wessel" at a royal entertainment rivalled in public interest today the festivities for Crown Princess Juliana's wedding tomorrow.

The incident occurred before 1,500 guests, including the bridal couple and Queen Wilhelmina, at a gala festival last night. It marked the latest set-back to the Netherlands' hopes of keeping the wedding a "family affair" and avoiding international complications due to the German origin of Prince Bernhard of Lippe-Biesterfield, Juliana's fiance.

Dr. Peter Van Anrooy, a well-known conductor, explained later he did not object to leading "Deutschland Uber Alles," which also was on the program, but would never play a political party song such as "Horst Wessel."

The leader of a Dutch military band conducted the two German selections and Dr. Van Anrooy directed the rest of the program.

AMERICAN ART GALLERY TO BE FOUNDED

Andrew Mellon Offers Famous Collection to Nation

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—Andrew Mellon announced today his famous art collection would be given to the nation as the nucleus of a national gallery.

The three are Eugene Brunz, 21, San Antonio, Tex., and Dominick Zizzo, 36. The others, also scheduled to die tomorrow night, are Joseph Bologna, 34; Salvatore Scala, 28, and Theodore Di Pisone, 31.

SENTENCE OF DEATH ON THREE COMMUTED

Albany, N.Y., Jan. 6 (AP)—Governor Lehman commuted to life imprisonment today the sentences of three of six youths convicted of murdering Edwin Rosario, 20-year-old Brooklyn subway station attendant.

They were scheduled to be executed tomorrow night.

The three are Eugene Brunz, 21, San Antonio, Tex., and Dominick Zizzo, 36. The others, also scheduled to die tomorrow night, are Joseph Bologna, 34; Salvatore Scala, 28, and Theodore Di Pisone, 31.

TEN-INCH WALL OF VAULT IS CUT, $2,594 IS STOLEN

$3,000 in Cheques Left Littered on Floor Outside Vault

TOOL HOUSE ROBBED

Theory Held Thieves May Have Known Layout

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 6 (CP)—Safe crackmen cut through the 10-inch rear wall of the large vault in Sandwich East Township hall last night and made away with $2,594.42 in cash.

They scorned an additional $2,000 in cheques, which were left littered about the floor outside the vault with the fragile cash box and a pile of brick and mortar.

Discovery of the break in was made early today when Harry Lauzon, bookkeeper, arrived for work.

Entry was gained to the building through a window of the relief office in the basement. Implements used to break through the wall were two picks and a heavy sledge obtained from the tool house at the rear of the hall. The picks and sledge were left lying inside the vault and were not touched pending arrival of Chief Percy Wilkinson, Windsor's finger print expert.

The theory that thieves persons familiar with the layout was strengthened by the fact there are two doors to the building, but only the one in which there was money was opened.

The cash box containing money was found by Lauzon, town clerk-treasurer Clarence Coulette explained, and for this reason it is believed that somebody must have had to actually enter the vault to get the money. The theory was strengthened by the discovery of another door on the back as if somebody found it a rather tight squeeze.

INDUSTRY, MOVIES PAY BIG SALARIES

W. R. Hearst and Mae West Top List in Top Notch Pay Envelopes

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—A peek into the pay envelopes of some of the big men and women in the United States government, the Treasury Department report to Congress, showed today that the leaders both in movie stars and captains of industry.

The voluminous document, made public by the House of Representatives Ways and Means committee, answered at least some of the questions propounded by "curious fellow" made in 1936, salaries of more than $15,000 were listed.

William Randolph Hearst, the publisher, maintained his position as the country's highest salaried man with pay cheques of $500,000.

Mae West, the throaty-voiced siren of the screen, ran him a close second with earnings of $480,833.33 (part of $1,271,871). Clayton Rogers, frequently co-starred with him, $74,483; Katharine Hepburn, $121,875; Bing Crosby, $118,597; Bert Wheeler, $368,000, and Joe E. Brown, $175,625.

The lugubrious film humor of Stan Laurel netted him $126,396, while the income of his co-star, Oliver Hardy, was only $48,316.

Mild Influenza Wave Strikes This District

Held by local health officials to be of a mild type, a minor wave of influenza is reported in the city at present, coupled also with a slight epidemic of grippe. Droughts of the city support considerable buying of items to combat weather effects. Lines, Lack of snow and recent mild weather are held responsible for the pandemic.

WOMEN COMPRISE THIRD OF UNEMPLOYED

Approximately one third of the unemployed in the city registered at the local branch of the Employment Service of Canada, according to figures released by that office. With slightly over two hundred registered seventy of these are women. The number is composed mostly of day workers with traditional domestics being at a minimum. Stenographers are also low on the list, with inexperienced domestics forming most.

Total figures are about on a par with those of a year ago, the number up slightly over two hundred in the vicinity of two hundred and six.

GOOD ICE SHEET ON WATERWORKS COVE

Stable cake back in favor in the district today following last week's sudden freeze up which again locked Quinte and coves with a heavy sheet of smooth ice. One of the more popular skating spots for local skaters has been Waterworks Cove as the city pumping station where a great sheet of ice is attracting skaters daily and nightly. Owing to the slowness of the water in the point a danger of breaking through for young and old has been removed.

RECTORY AT MADOC ENTERED ON TUESDAY

Taking advantage of the previous hospitality shown him, a man, who police state is Norman Sherrett, address not stated, was arrested in Madoc, yesterday, and is allegedly burglarizing the rectory of Rector Meagher of Madoc yesterday. Early Tuesday, the man is said to have taken occasion upon a transient card had assisted him in the matter of a meal. Later the rectory was broken into and a sum of money stolen. Churches Observe Feast of Epiphany

The Feast of The Epiphany was observed in the Church of England parishes here today. At the chapel in St. Thomas' Parish Hall, the vicar, the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, was celebrant at the Holy Communion at ten o'clock, this morning, and at Christ Church, the rector, the Rev. O. G. Wright, celebrated the Holy Communion at the same hour.

St. Michael's

Today being the Feast of Epiphany, the visit of the three Kings to the Infant Saviour, and a holy day of obligation, there were celebrated at St. Michael's church at 6, 8 and 9 o'clock, as well as a High Mass which was sung by the pastor, Rev. M. J. P. Hickey, C.S.S.R., who also spoke on the significance of the feast day. Large congregations were present at the different Masses. Tonight Benediction will take place at seven-thirty.

Inactive Canning Plants to be Opened

With the purchase of the Greer Bros. business, owned by W. H. Benson of Picton, and the acquiring of the Hooper Associated Quality Canners plant by the Lipson interests, prospects for a banner year for the districts of Wellington, Ont., look exceedingly bright. According to reports emanating from the lakeside village, both plants, which have not been in operation for a number of years will be completely overhauled, modern canning machinery installed, and arrangements made for the canning of a full line of vegetables and fruits.

Farmers in the vicinity will also benefit as Canadian Canners plants in the village are contracting for increased acreage and this in conjunction with the acreage taken by for by the new plants should result in increased activity in village and rural districts alike.

LADIES' NIGHT AT KIWANIS CLUB IS ENJOYABLE AFFAIR

Eddie Logan Duly Installed as President For Ensuing Year

FINE MUSICAL PROGRAM

Rev. W. J. Johnson of Toronto Delivers Principal Address

If Kiwanians maintain the same enthusiasm throughout the coming year as was exhibited, when Eddie Logan was installed as President of the Club on Tuesday evening there will be no need to worry about the position this club holds in community service. The occasion was Ladies' Night and Rev. W. J. "Bill" Johnson of Toronto, was the installing officer and he also delivered an inspiring address. More than 110 sat down to a delightfully decorated table, seasonable blooms adding much charm to the whole scene. A most sumptuous repast was furnished by Mine Host Mrs. Ella Ryan and the accommodations although limited for such a large gathering, were perfectly arranged and those in charge are to be congratulated on their efforts. Papier-mache hats in varied colored hues added more color to the scene and gaily decorated placed across the banquet table in a never-ending stream.

Fine Musical Program.

Apart from the installation and addresses, one of the finest musical programs ever given, by the Music Committee, was arranged. Mrs. Music Committee, Rud Haines and Mrs. Constance supplied the accompaniments while prior to the banquet and delighted with several numbers through the program with Clare Patterson vocalizing many of the popular airs. The Bay Shellev quartette composed of James Bankier, Harold Howard, Alfred Evans and Harry Moorman rendered several selections, James Bankier and Harold Howard gave a duet, Mr. Bankier delighted with a solo and Miss Muriel Vermilyea was also appreciated in several readings, J. D. Byrne, magician, of note completed gales of laughter with his feats of magic and his parting concert. Community singing was not forgotten and led by James Bankier and the Peppy and fun loving Jack B. Riggs accompanied on the piano in his usual inimitable manner.

President Presides

Frank Domenico, retiring president of the Club, presided until the new president was duly installed while Eddie Logan was Sergeant-at-Arms and did a real night's work. George A. Lee in the role of Master for the ladies, passed out beautiful favors which the ladies received. Solos donated by local firms, and were much appreciated by the ladies and several prizes were awarded and presentations made, the chief one being Presidents to George Griffin, who is completing his fifth year in the Club and is one of the charter Club. Each Chevron represents five years of service and George is the richly deserved and George in his customary style gave all the credit for his activities to the co-operation of the Club members. In addition to the ladies' presents Mrs. Lee paid particular stress to the fact that had been privileged to be by the ladies on all occasions and that the banquet was only a tangible way of expressing the thanks of the club. Mrs. S. A. Firnn replied, and stated that it was a real pleasure to assist in the work and wished for the club every success in their community service. At this point A. S. Collins, K.C., in a happy vein lauded the ladies for the club members and men guests lustily sang "Let Me Call You Sweetheart".

Mayor-Elect Honored

Mayor-elect R. D. Arnott, who becomes honorary member of the club by virtue of his office in replying to his welcome, assured the club 100 per cent. co-operation from the City Hall. An enjoyable time was spent in hearing the roll call and Mr. Grace Anderson and Rev. "Bill" Johnson were the prize winners. A letter was read from the recipient of a Christmas basket, wishing the club continued success in their work in assisting the underprivileged. President Frank Domenico in laying down the gavel after his term of office stated he had great satisfaction in looking back over the record of the Club. "We have had each year, with the whole hearted co-operation in the club and every member has made a contribution by way of personal work or by assisting with the programs, or by serving on committees, or by regular attendance at our luncheons or by the contribution of the growth of that grand community endeavor. We sometimes call "the spirit of Kiwanis".

He thanked the members of the club was never higher and that Belleville is a little better place because the Kiwanis Club has been established in this city. He expressed his appreciation of the co-operation received and asked for the same loyal support for Eddie Logan, who will soon take over the reins.

Officers Installed

At this point Rev. "Bill" Johnson took charge after being introduced by Cliff Metzger Installed the various officers in his brilliant style and fresh wit. Those installed included Eddie Logan as President, Frank Domenico as vice-president, George Griffin as secretary and Jim Grant as Director. Eddie Logan then assumed the gavel and presented his remarks paid a high compliment to Frank Domenico and George Griffin, the latter being sent in his address recounted the number of presidents, that had been in charge since he joined the club seven years ago and told his audience what he had received to add to his knowledge of Kiwanis. Each one had a particular trait and he would have imprinted on the history of the club and he wished and hoped he would have some one thing tangible after his year of office. Frank Biddle then introduced his committee chairman and hoped that everyone would do their deep and abiding interest in the club.

F. G. MacLaurin, made a presentation to Past Illustrious Jimmy Cowan and the presentation much to the merriment of those present. Jim Ryan was also recipient of a gift. "Cliff" Johnson gave one of his delightful addresses filled with wit and wisdom. He has been heard by the club and their guests on other occasions but last night he was in his best style and his remarks were much appreciated and will be an incentive for the members in the year to come. Jim Herrity very capably voiced the appreciation of the club for the splendid talk. The meeting was closed with "O Canada" and a half hour was then spent and there passed into history a most delightful evening in Kiwanis Club circles.

Charles Bowra on Oshawa Commission

Charles Bowra, one of Oshawa's prominent business men, and proprietor of the Bowra Electric and Hardware store topped the polls in the election of candidates for seats on the Public Utilities Commission in that city. Mr. Bowra received a majority of 940 over the second successful candidate while his running mate for the defeated candidate was 2,319.

The Bowra Electric and Hardware of Belleville is a branch of the Oshawa store and is a further result of the newly appointed Ontario Hydro Electric Commissioner's business acumen.

POLICE BLOTTER

Provincial Police today received instructions from Provincial Headquarters in Toronto, that it was legal and within their jurisdiction to place under arrest any person found carrying fire arms. The arrest and search can be made without the conventional warrant, the instructions read. Fugitives from justice can also be taken into custody without the constable being in possession of a warrant for the arrest of the person suspected. Inspector Frank Gardner announced this morning.

Activities in and around local police circles proved none too brisk lately. Early today Mr. Lewis, proprietor of Lewis' grocery store, complained persons were entering his place of business under the cover of darkness and stealing coal. "Altogether they have taken at least one-half ton of anthracite coal" stated Mr. Lewis, in his complaint. His summonses for the non-payment of 1936 radio licences were issued today by Inspector J. J. McWalters of the Marine and Fisheries Department, the inspector himself revealed.

No arrests were necessary in Belleville during the past 24 hours, it was learned, the only block free for the accommodation of the six trade lodgers who sought warm sleeping quarters at the police station last night.

BROTHER ANDRE "MIRACLE MAN" MONTREAL DIES

Frail Form of 91 Year-old Holy Man Wrecked With Dyspepsia

SCRUBBED FLOORS

Rose From Abject Poverty Overcame Ill Health, Complete Illiteracy

By John Lehalese

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Jan. 6 (CP)—Brother Andre, who tried to walk in the footsteps of a Saint, died today amid the devotion of countless followers who deemed him a worker of miracles.

The end of a long life of pain for the miracle worker of Mont-real" came in the early morning hours, while the prayers of monks assembled in the great Basilica that his devotion to Saint Joseph created on the slope of fashionable Mount Royal, the eminence that dominates Montreal.

His frail form wrecked by a lifetime of acute dyspepsia, had endured him often to bread and water, the 91-year-old holy man slipped away quietly, but in life he had done his pious works quietly.

May be Canonized

His death brought forth the request that his canonization as a saint of the Roman Catholic Church would be sought from Rome Home. Miracles claimed to have been worked by the St. Joseph's oratory on Mount Royal is the repository of a great pile of discarded aids to the afflicted, who journeyed up the hill. And, though official confirmation was lacking, many believed the grateful followers would seek his installation as a saint on the basis of the miracles they assert he worked.

Yet humor was as the highest gift of the church in death had been farthest from the little brother's mind in life. Brother Andre lived in self-effacement, doing the humblest of menial tasks joyfully, even after one time he had succeeded had began drawing the pilgrims to his door.

He scrubbed floors in his early days in the congregation of the Holy Cross, and he mended the clothing of the boys in the Laurent College. At one time, he cut their hair. Always, he exhorted them to pray to St. Joseph.

Called "Miracle Man"

That was his advice also in later years, when he was building his $4,000,000 oratory from the contributions of those who came to seek his prayers. "I can nothing but have done nothing," he would tell these, "It is the Good St. Joseph, who does it all."

But they called him "The Miracle Man" just the same, and they came from all over America to lay their troubles at the feet of the frail old man. Some asked only that he touch them. Many, who had tramped painfully up the Mount, left canes or crutches as a way without them.

How Brother Andre attained this saintly status in the eyes of his devotees is a religious saga, but one no countenanced by Canadian church history. He rose to it from a beginning of poverty, illiteracy and the obstacles of chronic ill-health and deformity, and the pilgrims spread his wings in the scenario and permitted himself the indulgence of some aerial manoeuvers.

The scenes in the stage play, Howard fell, but there was the cure, richness and variety of the book's European setting. And in that picture gains over anything that could be done on the stage. The chief task in preparing "Dodsworth" for the screen was the case of limiting the dramatic episodes which the Dodsworth's wanderings in Europe. Sinclair Lewis' novel brings the cinematic method of direction employed for the stage play, to permit the interlude of getting on and off trains and boats without delaying the progress of the story, although much would have been gained by such delay.

On the screen, such scenes are not only real value, but, thanks to process and similar mechanical facilities, have been easily accomplished.

Howard has developed in the motion picture theatre perhaps his best contribution of his own in addition to what he has drawn from the book and from his play, and the composite structure is reported to be a fuller and more vivid presentation of "Dodsworth" than either the book or the play has given us.

"Dodsworth"

Sinclair Lewis' unsentimental chronicle of a sentimental hero, "Dodsworth," which has become a vast audience as a best-selling novel and then as a Broadway success two years, has now been made accessible to a still vaster audience as a film.

Reunited in Samuel Goldwyn's greatest screen achievement, which comes to the Belle today (Wednesday), for three days, matinee daily, are many important participants in the dramatic version.

Huston is again Dodsworth and Sidney Howard, who dramatized the Lewis book is once more the author of the screen play. The distinguished Mme. Maria Ouspenskaya again plays the proud, old Baroness "Von Obersdorf and Gregory Gaye is seen again as her secretary, Kiki, who makes love to Dodsworth's romantic wife. This time, however, Ruth Chatterton plays Mrs. Dodsworth, while Mary Astor, previously seen as David Niven, May Astor and Paul Lukas.

Howard came to this assignment a veteran in the art of screen writing. Four years ago he joined Hollywood's literary tribesmen and remained for some time. Then, returning to the drama, he contributed to "Alien Corn", "Yellow Jack", "Madame Capet", "Christopher Bean", "Paths of Glory" and "Dodsworth". During his period of screen writing film executives found him as persistently unresponsive to their overtures.

Did "Arrowsmith"

Now "Dodsworth" returns him doubly to the fold, reviving a new friendship with Goldwyn and Samuel Goldwyn. It was for this producer that Howard collaborated with "Ben Hecht" on earlier Lewis book to the screen and there commenced also photoplays, among them Goldwyn's first talking picture "Bulldog Drummond".

It is true that while the essence of the novel Dodsworth is present in the play, little of Mr. Lewis' original episodic material has found its place in the transcription. Howard has leaned more heavily upon the book for the progress of the story, though of the immense story in three acts and fourteen scenes, the playwright spread his wings in the scenario and permitted himself the indulgence of some aerial manoeuvers.

The scenes in the stage play, Howard felt, lost much of the color, richness and variety of the book's European setting. And in that picture gains over anything that could be done on the stage. The chief task in preparing "Dodsworth" for the screen was the case of limiting the dramatic episodes which the Dodsworth's wanderings in Europe. AT THE CAPITOL

"I Met on a Horse"

"Three Men on a Horse," which as a stage play is now well into its second year on Broadway and still going strong—and which has been produced in seven road shows—comes in film form to the Capitol Theatre until Friday. There is a grand cast headed by Frank McHugh and Joan Blondell.

McHugh, whose faintly-querulous features and outlandish antics have made millions laugh for the last six years—is cast as Erwin (pronounced Orwin)—a timid and hen-pecked writer of greeting cards who seems to himself his weird gift of picking the winner in horse races. He has a book in which he notes his prognostications (amazingly minimum) his wife finds it—and thinks he is two timing.

Carol Hughes has the role of Orwin's scrawny wife.

Joe Cook, Canadian-played by Guy Kibbee with bald and bland pompousness, one day ordered Orwin to do no less than fifty Mother's Day greeting cards before noon whistle blows. To add to his distress, his wife, Audrey has invited him for his birthday—and in desperation he decides to hire the gin kid of which Ed Kennedy is barkeep and bouncer—to drown during the drama.

There fate overtakes him.

All is cosily taken are three unsalmine gangsters—played with roughneck finesse by Allen Jenkins, Teddy Hart and Sam Levene —the latter two from the Broadway cast of the play. They are discussing the races—and the timid Orwin hears them and puts them a tip on the winner. They do—and he does—and he has to get their own favorite—who loses. They resist—and Orwin—after several other tries—and without asking his permission—implants the name of the best girl of one of the boys, guards him.

Then he has to be allowed to get back to his job—they telephone his boss that he is ill. Audrey in great consternation calls up about her hubby—and when Carver informs her that he has called in police and a city wide search is begun.

Then begins as merry a mixup as ever got into motion picture. There is a laugh in every minute of this riotous farce and you don't want to miss a minute of it, and you'll probably want to see it a second time.

"Three Men on a Horse" is in person that's good enough for any day.

Last complete show is at 9.05, with "Three Men on a Horse" shown at 7.35 and 9.40.

CHURCH BISHOP MINES MINISTER

Replaces C. C. Ross, Who Resigns From Aberhart Government

By J. F. Sanderson

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton, Jan. 4 (CP)—Alberta had a new Minister of Lands and Mines today—Nathan E. Tanner, Social Credit high school teacher from Cardston and a Bishop in the Mormon Church.

Tanner took the oath of office yesterday. A few minutes later Premier William Aberhart accepted the resignation of C. C. Ross who "resigned" among the five best films of 1936.

The Premier would give no reason for Ross' resignation, insisting he had no wish to discuss it. The announcement, however, was perfectly expected because it had been rumored in political circles here nearly three weeks.

Meanwhile, Ross also was reticent. In Calgary, he said he could not been advised of the acceptance of his resignation and "until I have, there will be no statement for the press."

"I have no announcement to make at the present," Premier Aberhart said yesterday, when asked if other cabinet changes were contemplated.

A few minutes after he became a Minister, Tanner said his policy would be "to develop the natural resources and industries within the province for the benefit of the people as a whole."

Tanner was born in Salt Lake City, Utah, May 2, 1892 and came to Canada as a small child. He received an education at Cardston, site of the largest Mormon temple in Canada and the Salt Lake City of Canada.

For the last 14 years he has been a school teacher although he resigned as principal of the Cardston public school in June, 1935, to take part in the provincial elections.

Tanner was elected speaker of the Alberta legislature last session, a position vacated by his elevation to the cabinet.

LOAN FLOATED ON LOW-COST BASIS

Proceeds of 20 Million Dollar Issue Used For Refunding Purposes

Toronto, Jan. 6—(CP)—Second $20,000,000 Province of Ontario loan to be sold in 20 days was floated, according to treasury department officials, at exceptionally low-cost basis. Announcement of the sale of the issue was made today.

Proceeds will be used for refunding purposes and the issue including 2 1/2 per cent and three per cent serial debentures. It is the first serial issue floated and by the Ontario government since it came into power in 1934. First maturity to be refunded, it was stated, is a three per cent at four per cent and falls due Jan. 1.

Officials said operations were completed at "a very low cost based on this type of financing in Canada." The 2 1-2 per cent maturities were sold at 96.62 and the three at 98.52. Debentures of the new issue mature one year from 1941 to 1960 and the first five maturities bear 2 1-2 per cent coupons, the remainder three per cent coupons.

The syndicate which handled the first $20,000,000 loan in 3 1-2 per cent 15-year issue, purchased the latest floatation. It includes Wood, Gundy and Company, A. E. Ames and Company Limited, Dominion Securities Corporation, Royal Bank of Canada and the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

In announcing the loan, treasury department here also gave quarterly revenue of the province for the first eight months of the current fiscal year which totalled $112,373 compared to the same period in the preceding year. Ordinary expenditures, including relief and sinking fund, dropped $3,413,000, making for a net improvement of $15,536,666.

PROBE OF DEATH TO BE CONTINUED

Jury Believes Man Came to His Death From Blows on Head

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 6.—(CP)—Mystery surrounding the death of Robert Charles Thrasher, 73-year-old Sandwich West Township resident, continued today at which police announced they would continue to investigate.

A coroner's jury last night declared a verdict that Thrasher came to his death Christmas Day from a blow on the head with some instrument in the hands of a person or persons unknown.

Thrasher died in the hospital here several hours after he was found lying in a pool of blood at the bottom of the porch steps of his home by neighbors who had gone on their return home from midnight mass.

Dr. Paul Poisson, Windsor, who conducted a post mortem, said Thrasher would probably have lived if he had been taken to the hospital sooner. The jury said immediate cause of death was hemorrhage of the brain.

The conclusion that a blow on the head resulted in the fatal hemorrhage reached through evidence submitted by Dr. Poisson, who told against a theory Thrasher's injury might have been caused by a fall. Dr. Poisson also remarked the evidence of a "bluish swelling" on both the dead man's head, which might indicate he had been involved in a fight.

FIVE CHILDREN BURNED IN HOME

Mothers Stand by Helpless to Save Their Offspring

Minitonas, Man., Jan. 4 (CP)—Coroner Dr. G. H. Brown today ruled unnecessary an inquest into the deaths of five children burned to death yesterday in a farmhouse fire in the Grahamville district, near this town, 180 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

Three of the children, Catherine, four; Irene, twelve months; and a six-weeks-old boy were those of Mr. and Mrs. George Graham. The others, Mary, three, and George, twelve months, were children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McKenzie.

The Graham and McKenzies resided together on the farm, but the fathers were employed in the sawmill camp at the lumbering project. The mothers had lighted a fire in a small cook stove in the kitchen yesterday morning and had gone to the stable to feed livestock and milk cows. Shortly afterwards, they discovered the house was ablaze.

Unable to bring distance separating them from their nearest neighbors, the women were unable to summon help in time to be of assistance. They were forced to stand by helplessly while the house and its contents were destroyed.

WHENCE THE CRANBERRIES

Of all consumers in New World history, the ones most eager for ideas on what to consume were likely the little group that stepped off boats onto Plymouth Rock around 1620. Turkey, it is revealed from a reading of primers, they found running wild and soon impaled on the fire-side spit. But what about the cranberries for "fixins." The cranberry made its debut when some adventurous small immigrants escaped from the stockade and followed along on the heels of wandering Indian youngsters. They trailed the red-skins deep into a swamp and noted with interest that they were picking bright red berries and stowing them away, reports The Consumers' Guide.

Following the Indian children's example they picked the berries but found them very sour and decided the joke was on the Indians who had bothered to fill their deer-skin bags with such sour, bitter fruit. But their report to the alert adult consumers of the settlement brought about an investigation as soon as diplomatic relations would permit.

A recipe for the Indians' favorite dish of the day was sour red berries with "pemmican." Pemmican is a cake made of dried meat and fat. Wild cranberries, then, were being used by the Indians much as cultivated ones are prepared today, for a flavor tang to go with meat.

Cranberry vines, close kin to the blueberry and the huckleberry, run along the ground, putting roots down and sending up branches called "uprights" on which the berries grow. When left to their own devices, they grew along natural lines in marshes, bogs, ponds and bogs, where water is likely to rise over them in time to protect them from frost and keep insect pests down.

Until 1812 these wild swamp cranberries made up the whole supply. Then wide-awake Massachusetts farmers found a way of beating nature at her own game. They prepared more accessible places for cranberries to grow. The essential moisture would no longer depend on nature's whim, but could be turned on and off at the will of man.

Consumers last year would have had almost half a pound of cranberries apiece if the whole crops of 619,500 barrels had been divided up among the population. From an average of 385,000 barrels estimated for the first five years of the century, the country's production rose to an average of 561,000 barrels in the five years, 1928-32. Estimates of this year's production put it at 515,300 barrels, but this may be considerably changed when the final figures are in.

THE LITTLE NAVY

It might be laughable if it were not freighted with possibilities of much trouble—this setting forth of a miniature Spanish armada of fishing ships looking for German cruisers in the Bay of Biscay. These transformed trawlers on which guns have been mounted have the task of convoying merchantmen, fighting rebel ships and battling any ships that attempt interference with the Loyalist trade.

How different this is from the mighty Armada which gave in Queen Elizabeth's day the name Armada to the world as a synonym for might and magnitude, and also for unwieldy strength. In 1598 little English ships crushed the might of Spain and sent the Armada at what was left of it, to be wrecked on the coast of northern islands, or a few to return to Spain to tell the story of humiliation.

At this time it does not look as if the wee Spanish navy can hope to play so great a role as that played by Sir Francis Drake's ships. But they are out to fight and the evidence of this war is that none can fight more bitterly than Spaniards.

SIZE AND GREATNESS

British "Who's Who", just issued gives the longest space to an American, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, who is publishing against only ninety lines for the great Henry G. Wells.

This prompts the Providence Journal to point out that the compilers of this edition are singularly free from nationalism, considering the fact that today there seems a tendency to measure greatness by size and wealth. It is possibly a unique American habit to appraise values on the basis of size rather than of essential worth. So we reserve our supreme respect for the largest bridges, the tallest buildings, the factories that occupy the largest ground spaces. And in view of this tendency, it may not be strange that we incline to measure the relative status and achievements of men by the amount of printed matter allotted to them in outstanding works of reference."

This is a recognition that in the Old Country the worship of the big may not be so general.

BELLEVILLE MERCHANTS ARE PREPARING FOR A BUMPER YEAR. They are laying in good assortments of quality merchandise. Belleville stores are not surpassed anywhere and the money that flows through Bellsville stores add materially to the general prosperity. Citizens of Belleville should be proud of their city and be eager to do anything in their power to promote the general prosperity. Let's join hands with our neighbors in the rural sections and help to make Belleville the centre of a mutually generated prosperity. For our country cousins let us try and make this a better market for their produce. Let's make their visit market days more pleasant and comfortable. Some as if more protection could be provided for inclement weather on market days, and the question of a modern and comfortable rest room for woman visitors might be looked into. Belleville has a good market but what are we doing to make it better?

FOLLOWING UP THIS OPTIMISTIC VEIN let us refer to the Babson Report as published in this Great Family Journal Saturday. Babson is that man who studies finance and trends of business and does nothing else. His opinions are respected far and wide and his predictions eagerly awaited. Babson's message issued January 1, said:

"I PREDICT THAT CANADIAN BUSINESS DURING 1937 WILL BREAK ALL RECORDS, TOPPING EVEN THE 1929 HEIGHTS."

Babson seldom guesses wrong, for he seldom or never guesses—he bases his predictions upon facts and figures, past history and present indications.

NEW YEAR OPENED WITH FAIRLY GOOD PROSPECTS FOR THE ENTIRE WORLD. Spain, of course, was the darkest spot, their civil war is still deluging the country with blood, because of a difference of opinion. Spain has been a monarchy since time immemorial and the people were reasonably content to remain so, but political ambition reared its ugly head and different parties organized protested revolution. The last king walked out in the face of trouble, to save bloodshed, he said. Bloodshed came, nevertheless, when another party sought to overthrow the party in power and the last state of Spain is worse than the first—just a seething cauldron of hate, murder and intrigue. Hitler and Mussolini are playing important roles in the Spain calamity, also Russia, while other nations are striving feverishly to extinguish the flames of civil war before the whole of Europe is involved in the conflagration. Nations playing on the brink of hell, fiddling while Madrid burns —an astonishing spectacle in this age of peace and enlightenment. However, we may take comfort in the proven fact that the things we worry about most never happen, as Mark Twain is credited with saying.

Belleville now possesses one of the finest Children's Aid Societies in the Province of Ontario. The Inspector and Board of Directors recently made a tour of inspection of the institution and expressed their delight at the layout and conditions found there. The building is due to the generosity of Mr. Thomas Bell who gave $15,000.00 towards the building and the City of Belleville and the County of Hastings are to donate $4,000.00 each. It is expected that the children will take up residence there today. The officials of the Children's Aid Society are: Hon. President, Mr. Thomas Ritchie; President, Mr. A. E. Bailey; Vice-President, Mr. R. H. McMichael, K.C.; Sec., Mr. M. W. Mott; Convener Maintenance Committee, Mrs. T. D. Ruston; Inspector, Mr. T. D. Ruston; Matron, Mrs. W. Hart; Solicitor, Mr. William Calnerr; Auditors, Messrs. E. P. Frederick and P. C. MacLaurin.

Eight rinks of curlers competed the ice at the curling rink last night. Many curlers attended the matches, some of which were sensational, such as the game in A. R. Symons, who in the last end raised his score from 4 to 9 and defeated his opponent, Mr. G. H. Meachbur by one shot. The following rinks were in play: (1) Fred Golden, K. J. Hurley, A. S. White, C. E. Sexsmith, skip 9; J. G. Chadwick, T. Tuite, W. Lindsay, Louis Symons, skip 9; (2) B. W. Burnham, Dr. H. Tennent, F. Armstrong, R. A. Stock, skip, 9; O. B. Lindsay, Ber. Dr. Scott, E. W. Last week for four days we had a special pujo celebration in town. People were three men dressed in green leaves and they went about town calling a special call to warn people that they were coming. If anyone looks at them and despises them or does not believe they are spirits they beat them with a stick they carry. Needless to say people did not try to get in their way. They did beat some children, who only said laughed at them. They beat them until blood came. They tried to catch the Christians as well but knew that they did not believe them to be spirits. I went to town several times hoping to see them but they seemed to keep out of my way. I'm given 51-4-1 in Irvin 87.5; Parks 82.5; Higden 70.5; L. Wartman 77.3.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S COMPOUND USED BY THREE GENERATIONS

To many, Lydia E. Pinkham may be just a name, but to hundreds of thousands of women, daughters, mothers, grand, and even great-grand mothers it means one of the greatest boons to womankind.

Lydia E. Pinkham's is probably one of the best known names among women, for, while not a scientist, scientific, medical authorities and many thousands of grateful women have acclaimed her prowess for many years.

Her first laboratory was her kitchen, where, in an iron kettle she compounded the roots and herbs which brought to the vegetable Compound such lasting fame.

Today, the descendants of Lydia E. Pinkham, adhering to the same formula as of yore, carry on the work in the six modern buildings which now comprise the laboratories.

Anyone going to Lynn, Massachusetts, is impressed, with the spic and span cleanliness of the present establishment which, covering an entire city block, for there is not a mode! kitchen in the country but is neater or is run in a cleaner manner.

One section of the establishment is used as a special warehouse for the roots and herbs which are come by ship and carload, from various sections of the world, these being gathered under careful supervision at just the season of the year when their medicinal properties are most potent.

Under a competent staff of experts, these roots and herbs are carefully sorted and tested so that their full effectiveness will enter into the preparation of the Compound.

There is not even a rural community in the civilized world that does not purchase its quota of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound each year, but the business is by no means limited to these sections.

Throughout the entire world, women know the benefit of preparation and use it in ever increasing volume.

A product for women, originated by a woman, for women, is today conducted by women, the directing heads being descendants of the founder, and loyal to a position to follow closely the aims and ideals of their illustrious forebear.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which, as the name so aptly conveys, is strictly a combination of Nature's healing roots and herbs is in no sense a patent medicine, but a standard proprietary which has stood the test of generations its benefits to suffering womanhood being established by more than a million unsolicited letters that have been written by women from every section of the globe.

IN MEMORIAM

RUSHNELL—In loving memory of our dear children, George Rhodd, age 3, died January 7th, 1935. Aged 4½, 1936; Marion Audrey, aged 6, died January 7th, 1936.
One year ago today.
At eventide the Master came
And called them from the flowers.
He touched the lilies, one by one,
And picked them lots of coins.
We wanted so to keep them,
They lay so sweet and fair,
But Jesus planned it otherwise,
He wanted them in Heaven.
—Sadly missed by Mother, Daddy, Douglas and Donald. 36-1t

ALEXANDER—In fond and loving memory of our dear husband, Joseph Alexander, who entered rest, Sunday, January 6th, 1935.
I often sit and think of him when I am all alone,
For memory is the only friend that grief can call its own;
Like ivy on the withered oak, when all other things decay,
My love to him will still keep green, and never fade away.
Never remembered by his loving daughter, Mary J. McKenzie. 36-1t

HIDDLESTON—In loving memory of Thomas Hiddleston, who passed away January 7, 1935.
And while he lies in peaceful sleep,
His memory we will always keep.
—Sadly missed by Wife and Children. 36-1t

Livestock

Toronto, Jan. 6 (CP)— Cattle trade continued active on the Toronto livestock market today with prices steady to 15 cents higher. The calf market was also quiet and steady and lambs steady. Hog prices were unsettled early this afternoon but indications pointed to a strong close. There was no cattle holdover from Tuesday.
Receipts reported by the Dominion Stockyards were: Cattle 200; calves 320; hogs 1,400, sheep and lambs 100.
The small supply was cleaned up at prices generally 15 cents higher than Tuesday's market and firm on other grades. Choice weights steers sold at $8.50 to $9 with a few choice heavies up to $7.85. Other steers ranged from $5.25 to $7.75, with the better cattle went from $8.50 to $8.75, logs ranging from $5.25 down through $4.50 to $3.25. Good cows and bulls traded from $4.75 to $4 with some few up to at $4.25. Fed calves ranged from $8 and $9 for medium up to $10.75 for choice.
Calf prices slipped to a generous top of $11, for choice vealers. Common calves sold downward to $8.50. Previous close for strong, choice hogs was $8.50.
The small supply of lambs traded between $7 and $8.25 according to quality. The few sheep offered were priced from $4 to $4.50 cwt. and some togs brought $6.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

Market Commentary

The higher the market goes the more sensitive it is to realize that anyone can get a person "into" a stock, but to get him "out" is to get himself "out". Stocks should be traded in accordance with values. Expectations or predictions are realized, advises the Trader in Barron's. In the old days the moment that a price objective was reached, a still higher mark would be set for the credulous, but while the new figure was being shot at "distribution" would be attempted.
It is very doubtful if the present bull market culminates in the orthodox fashion of wild activity and of the public stock market buying their highs at approximately the same time. Consequently it would appear that enthusiasm for the motion reached the maximum with the announcement of Chrysler dividend action, and after the canning stocks declared extra dividends. Can earnings began to level off in the early fall months, and the chief fish tokeeons saw their greatest vogue just before the Philip Morris dividend. Some new developments from now on in all industry for a short time will be largely analyzed for evidence of a possible climax of speculative enthusiasm.
Wall Street believes that the oils are "ripin' to go" and that these shares will lead the next upward movement in the stock market. There has been a large amount of stock split-up activity, and the market for stocks for long-pull purpose. On the other hand, the high capitalizations of many of the big industrials indicate that these companies suggests that they are overcapitalized. Stock for would-be buyers. The Street regards the oil statistical position as excellent. Individually, a number of substantial accounts have been built up of leading oils in recent months.

"There is every indication that newsprint consumption in the United States is rapidly getting back to normal," declared Fred E. Sweezey & Company Limited, investment counsel. "In this event substantial price increases are inevitable, and a year or two hence the present prices may appear modest. It can be assumed, however, that satisfactory additions will be given early in 1937 to contracts for 1938 and 1939. The combination of production and consumption at the present time is in favor of a better.
Thomas says: "Under these circumstances it is reasonable to hope that contracts will not be closed at materially, or even with good, increases in the price, as has been the case in the past two years."

Yalecrodge Nickel

A company that has made rapid strides during last year was Yalecrodge Nickel. At the end of 1936 it had acquired and extended over 4,400 feet with about 35 per cent of this drifting in ore. At the end of last week drifts have been carried to give a total of 1,200 feet at any part of the mine, the total drift length of 6,700 feet showing considerable ore. The ore reserve at this time has probably reached 100,000 tons. Higher dividends can be looked for from Falconbridge during 1937.

ONLY TWO GOALS SCORED IN GAMES IN HASTINGS LOOP

Bethel Defeated Foxboro 1-0 And Glen Ross Takes West Huntingdon

REAL GOOD HOCKEY

Players Hit Their Stride And Give Fans Plenty of Thrills

(Stirling, Jan. 6 (Special)— Two goals were the total scored after 120 minutes of real flashy hockey at the Stirling Arena on Tuesday night when Bethel won a close game with Foxboro by a score of 1-0 and Glen Ross stepped into the league leadership with a victory of the same score over West Huntingdon crew. Glen Ross were without the services of their flashy centre man B. Robinson, but Hagerman filled his position in a most capable style. Another surprise of the evening was the performance of F. Fraser who consistently covered up on the latter's rushes. Other highlights in both games brought the crowd to their feet with rounds of cheers and the largest crowd of the season were more than satisfied with the brand of hockey displayed by these boys who are just improving as they hit their stride. Referee Townsend of Belleville and Earl Wallace the two referees in charge had no trouble over ice rules to follow the play at several spots during the evening.

First Game

In the first period of the first game of the night, which even between Foxboro and Bethel who for the most part had the better of the play men on hand. The honors for brilliance were about equally divided between Goalies Howard Innes, Ray Dickey scored the only goal of the game on a pass from Lee Hannah and Stuna Sharrd after about twelve minutes of play. Throughout the rest of the game Foxboro—Goal; Sinfield; defence, Snapp and Robinson; centre, Donald; wings, Hanna and Simms; sub, Chapple; Wait; Sunderland; Kelly. Coach Sinfield.

Bethel—Goal, Everett Dickey; defence, Carwright and Faux; centre, Parks; wings, Lapinette and Culbane; subs, Ray Dickey; Earl Dickey; Thpps and Faux.

Second Game

The same speedy hockey was displayed in the second fixture when Glen Ross took the league leadership with a 1-0 victory over West Huntingdon. The riverside crew went into the game with a record through the first period when Gerald Fraser scored from a scramble in front of West Huntingdon's net. In spite of many brilliant efforts on both sides Rodgers and McGowan they maintained their lead throughout the game with Hall, Hagerman being several spectacular saves. Most even play through on several occasions only to be outgunned by Hagerman. Following a brief interval early in the game Mott and Armstrong received major penalties and settled down to play hockey after their five minutes in the corner. The Riverside boys had a decided edge in the final period with their second line of MacDonald, Brooks and Rook getting a great hand for their fine work, particularly the first mentioned who worked like a fiend. Fraser Fraser turned in his best performance of the season when he shared the defensive duties with Mott very successfully and was the fastest man on the ice in the final period.

Line-ups—

Glen Ross—Goal, Hagerman; defence, Dalnard and Armstrong; centre, H. Hagerman; wings Friday, Fraser and Batty; subs, Hall, Scott, Brooks and MacDonald.

West Huntingdon—Goal, Secord; defence, J. McGowan and Stapley; centre, R. Mott; wings, C. Thompson and Rodgers; subs, D. Cook, Thompson and Rollins.

Referee, Wallace and Townsend.

The injury to Workers climaxed a long run of hard luck for Reg Dutton's team. They had a lot of that sort of trouble. Much of the blame has been placed on Workers, the man who held the team together for years. It is reported Dutton has been angling for the services of Lorne Chabot, now a free agent, and may play in the game in New York Thursday against Detroit.

But there is more than a possibility Dutton and Chabot won't be able to come to terms. Chabot often has had a salary trouble and he is known to be asking for more than Toronto unless he is offered plenty. He is a free agent. All that may be brought up from the New Haven club of the International-American League.

Assists All III

Americans were without Harry Oliver, ill in Montreal, when they took the ice last night and several other players were suffering from a mild type of flu.

Rangers scored four goals before Americans could get one. Frank Brimsek, Boston and Babe Pratt, Toronto, collided in the first period and Alex Shibicky got two in the second. Dee Miller got the only American counter in that frame and Ott Heller, Phil Watson and Neil Colville scoring after Workers was injured.

Two goals in the last three minutes of the game by the same Boston defenseman gave the Bruins a 4-3 decision over Rangers, 3 each.

Worters' Playing Career Ends As He Suffers Serious Injury After Pile-up Near His Cage

Sustains Hernia But Continues in Game Till End

RANGERS WIN 7-1

Red Wings Defeat Bruins While Maroons Stop Canadiens

By A. E. FULFORD

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Whatever hockey fans think of Roy Worters' goaltending this season they have nothing but admiration for the way the little fellow played his last game of the schedule, perhaps the last of big time.

The midget New York American netminder, worn out the hard way if ever he did.

New York Rangers, were beating Americs 4-1 in the third period at Madison Square Garden last night when Worters went down under a pile of players and suffered a hernia. Then the little gamester played the remainder of the game that rarely has been equalled in the game.

He stayed in there with an injury that will mean a serious operation—even sprawled on the ice to stop shots and serves. Each time it was apparent he suffered agony in getting back to his feet. Rangers scored three more goals and won the game 7-1 but those events could be remembered when the story of Worters' courage is still being told.

Rangers Still in The

For Rangers the victory meant staying in a tie for first place in the National League's American division with fatest Red Wings, who beat Bruins 3-2 at Boston. In the third game that night Montreal Canadiens moved up to within four points of Canadiens by beating the Detroit Red Wings 6-2 in Montreal.

The injury to Worters climaxed a long run of hard luck for Reg Dutton's team. They had a lot of that sort of trouble. Much of the blame has been placed on Worters, the man who held the team together for years. It is reported Dutton has been angling for the services of Lorne Chabot, now a free agent, and may play in the game in New York Thursday against Detroit.

But there is more than a possibility Dutton and Chabot won't be able to come to terms. Chabot often has had a salary trouble and he is known to be asking for more than Toronto unless he is offered plenty. He is a free agent. All that may be brought up from the New Haven club of the International-American League.

Americans were without Harry Oliver, ill in Montreal, when they took the ice last night and several other players were suffering from a mild type of flu.

Rangers scored four goals before Americans could get one. Frank Brimsek, Boston and Babe Pratt, Toronto, collided in the first period and Alex Shibicky got two in the second. Dee Miller got the only American counter in that frame and Ott Heller, Phil Watson and Neil Colville scoring after Worters was injured.

Two goals in the last three minutes of the game by the same Boston defenseman gave the Bruins a 4-3 decision over Rangers, 3 each.

little put the Bruins ahead again in the second.

A sudden slowing up by the Bruins left an opening for Gordon Pettie to get to rap in the 2-1 tying goal and pass to Mud Brunsteen for the winner.

Canadiens Outplayed

The largest crowd in three years —11,000— saw Maroons hold off a furious third period rally by Canadiens to protect their lead. Maroons outplayed the orchen leaders in the first half of the game and piled up three goals that were too much for the Habitants to overcome.

Dave Trottier, Jimmy Ward and Baldy Northcott set up the advantage and George Mantha made the first ext into it with his last second period goal. Then George Brown, former Montreal Amateur, scored his second goal in his second professional game early in the third.

It was the last bid from Canadiens. Lionel Conacher made it safe for Tommy Gorman's men when he took Earl Robinson's pass late in the third.

VARSITY HOCKEY TEAM SCALPS DARTMOUTH 10-1

Hanover, N.H., Jan. 6.—(CP)—University of Toronto's blue-clad hockey band set the pace for the International Intercollegiate League hockey after scalping Dartmouth Indians here last night, 10-1.

It was the second lopsided score run up by Varsity over United States opposition. They tamed Princeton here in Toronto last month, 10-0. Princeton is the only other team of the eight composing the league which has played two games so far. Queens crowned them 8-1 in their second start.

Sport Callings

By Ken Colling

Two hockey games, both of interest to local fans, are on the calendar for tonight. The Belleville juniors make their season's debut at Tweed while the K.C.I.A.'s' meet face the acid test in Kingston. A loss for the "Airmen" spells defeat and elimination, while victory forces the Kingston City League finals to go a third and deciding game with Prescott. At Tweed, however, the untried Bayridge "Pennies" or nails Ted Redmen, with many new and untried anxious kids on the roster, tangle with Sam Curry's Tweed kids, who although defeated 11 to 4 at Picton on Monday, enjoy the benefit of having played their initial game of the season and there's no doubt they'll be much stage-fright period of the opening game.

Manager Thomas has signed quite a number of last year's intermediate champion B.C.I. squad with the juniors. Bill Mercer, "Red Mc-McCreary; Froggie Green; Johnny Rennie; Gord Berry and Sharpe the pearly are some of the former Collegiate out with the juniors. Bill Stearns, one of the star performers last year, is assured of a position, while Eddie Plummer and Ian Pepper, two products of the local K.I.-Y League are in the spotlight along with Fred Wilson. He had named Robinson, from Stirling, has been recommended by Harry Harris while Frank Cook of Trenton is anxious to play junior in Belleville. Cahn played football for the 'Checks' last fall and is a husky sort of a rent who should be an asset to any junior club. Some of these along with one or two others, will see Cliff "Billy Reidmen" in Tweed this eve.

Some good news came out of the Monday night's Kingston City Intercholastic meeting in the C. O. S. S. A. Previously it had been announced that the students of C.C.I. would not be allowed sporting event and also play for his school. At Monday's meeting, however, it was ruled that any player might participate with his school team, but his right to do so must first be approved by the principal of the school he attends. If the athlete is attended during the regular school hours he must in turn apply to the C. O. S. S. A. secretary of his respective district for further permission. The new ruling simply means — any hockey player attending the three local secondary schools and who is desirous of playing hockey with his school and also with the Belleville juniors, must obtain permission from the school principal. The mailer of obtaining sanction from the association will automatically forbid the player taking part in any way with materially assist. Manager Thomas of the B.C.I. will have no trouble to use whatever material is available on the B.C.I. team in any league games, providing the above permissions are granted.

Yesterday it was announced that the Kingston City Basketball O. H. A. team had dropped out of competition. After this year. Lack of interest on the part of the players was given as the reason for the last minute decision. This leave Queens, R.M.C. and Gananoque in intermediate group No. 1. It seems too bad that Kingston, once the hot bed of hockey in Canada, should fall from its lofty heights as one of the leading hockey cities in the Dominion. After the splendid showing of last year's Kingston junior team it seemed as though the revival of the game was practically assured this Limestone City for some time to come. Apparently there is something wrong at the helm of the O.H.A. when it is said that the what blows no person some good" and how that Kingston is suffering out of the O.H.A. picture maybe there'll be less squawking from that point regarding Fred Beatley coming to Belleville for a season of hockey. Beatley wanted to turn out with the "Redmen" at the beginning of the current season, but Kingston interests objected. Now with Kingston out of the picture Beatley will doubtedly be in a Belleville uniform versus the K. C. I. A. F. and Bayridge Pennies. Kincaid, Parker and Beatley will give the latter three hard-hitting rear-guardsmen.

Jack Tompkins, who teams with Billy and Chet Jackson, is still of junior age and will play for the local team tonight. Incidentally the two Jackson lads were born in 1916, but are not twins. Bill was born on Jan. 6th while Clayton first saw the light of day on Nov. 6th of the same year. Okays is just 34 days too late for junior play this year. The Jacksons and Tompkins have teamed together as forward line for four consecutive years and although not overly large in stature, have speed, stamina and sufficient hockey ability to make them dangerous and are a powerful offensive threat in summer hockey.

Detroit and the Rangers gained ground and are tied for the leadership of the United States section on Monday night when Detroit Americans 7 to 1. Les Canadiens regained the leadership of the Canadian section on Monday night when they defeated two of their fellow-townsmen, the Maroons, however. The Americans have practically cinched the first place in the standing of the Canadian section. The Habitants have only a couple of weeks, having gone into a slump recently and causing Manager "Red" Dutton plenty of worry.

Here and there—If there are any local fans who are interested in playing hockey in an organized league, the Owl League, that operates Saturday afternoons, is to hold a meeting at the Arena on Friday night. Secretary-Manager George Day for more particulars. . . . Ken Lamb, manager of the Belleville Baseball Club last summer is planning out in a new style hockey. He is to referee the Belleville at Tweed-Junior O. H. A. tilt. Bear—Another Jackson brother joined the ranks of the Belleville juniors last night when brother of Clayt and Bill turned out with the juniors, although in practice only, and if reports and shows promise...We wonder what happened to the Belleville Ski Club . . . and also when is the Belleville Ski Club going to hold that long awaited annual meeting?... Jack Mouk, who today the goal-tending duties for the B. C. I. senior pucksters last season, is tending the nets for the Tweed kids this season while Sharpe, who Mouk replaced in the "strident" lineup last year, will be at another end of the Tweed Arena tonight....Les Tice, former Belleville goalie, apparently was not afforded the protection he need to receive in Brockville—last night the puckish alleged past Tice as the Lake Shore team defeated Wright-Hargraves 8 to 2....The Morgan boys, Harry and Pete were home from Carleton for the holiday. Harry's all say he's all through with hockey but will play a little later in baseball in the future...Conklon is to have a baseball team of senior quality also and is in the field for a managing-coach, we hear...There would be no any chance of the O.G.H.L. manager being tempted to move north, would there?

BASEBALL SHARES IN PROSPERITY SAYS HARRIDGE

Last Year One of The Best in Long History of Game

36 LOOP FINISH

Yankees Won World's Series And Broke Many Records

By WILL HARRIDGE

(President, The American League)

Chicago, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Holding to the pace set by its increased and memorable worlds, baseball shared in the prosperity of 1936. I would say baseball has come back" for the reason it never went away. During the depression, it suffered, of course, for the fans had to economize and unnecessarily, found no place in their budgets.

Twenty-six minor leagues started the 1936 season and 26 not only finished, but went on to participate in post-season series. That real parity is a record. Even in the banner years, when we had from 40 to 50 leagues, most of them fell by the wayside during the spring and played to empty houses. The fact that the minor leagues enjoyed prosperity was the biggest event in baseball for the year. For, where would the major leagues be if it weren't for the minors, from which the players are developed?

Naturally, the American leagues had reason to be happy as a result of the events of 1936. True, our circuit was the only one to go in the red, but we made up for that, we won the world and Chicago City series.

Players in our league were not backward when it came to shattering records, some of which had stood for many years. In fact, they broke 20 and tied 10, which is quite a mark in addition to setting 26 new and exciting 11 American league records. Then again, New York Yankees celebrated their triumps of last October by smashing 16 and tying eight world series records.

Light, Warm and Flexible Ski Clothing

II: SKI CLOTHING

A few words about ski clothing are given here, for the benefit, especially, of the novice, who may be prompted to ask for information.

Gloves, or rather mitts, without fingers are preferable to finger gloves since they keep the hands much warmer. Leather gloves have been proven satisfactory and keep the hands warmer than leather mittens leather gloves are lined with wool and are not too light.

Wrist regard to socks, wear two pairs. The inner pair, next to the skin, will give added and necessary warmth and the outer pair should be of such material as will give protection from the elements. It is essential that ski clothing must have an easy fitting flexibility that allows every muscle to have free play in skiing.

Weatherproof jackets and trousers which protect both from wet and frost are now generally prefered to the gabardine type.

"KING of HEARTS"

By Edna Robb Webster

Lynn started out on the following morning to find that new place for herself in the scheme, looking very fresh and pretty in her new spring suit and crisp blouse and the jaunty spoke hat. It was only a little early in that debate of spring attire, but the sunny day offered its inducements to the mind which required her sartorial distinction.

Lynn visited the more exclusive shops, first, those handsome mausoleums of business where the sales women hurried forward as she entered, obsequious smiles on their pomaded faces which hardened to grim, vivid lines when they learned she was not a prospective customer, decided that she would accept anything at all; clerking, filing, even a waitress or cashier in a restaurant. But none of these was needed, apparently. Her, the accommodating interviewer advised, which might have been deemed ordinarily, but they all terminated in "are provided. She was not the only beautiful girl in the city in search of work, she discovered.

During that first week Lynn had several delightful calls, but she still had a little money. Enough to maintain her in her modest style of existance. Once there, she always would be assured of food and shelter.

And Dot had promised that work would be found for her if she insisted upon being an independent.

But every time Lynn considered that possibility, her thoughts hastened to Jackson Thorpe and all he had grown to mean to her. She decided before leaving the south that she could not endure living all her life where he was—not Dot. And so she turned resolutely away from that possibility.

Something would happen soon to establish her here where she belonged. This intolerable aching could not continue forever. One day, she wished for Susanna at her lunch hour, seeking her youthful companionship. Susanna was delighted at seeing her. And they went for lunch to their favorite rendezvous, the French place. Lynn ordered frugally.

"What's new?" Susanne demanded.

"Nothing," Lynn replied, "I don't think there is a vacancy in the whole city. I've been everywhere."

"Dear, that's tough. You're sure to get a break soon.

"You know, I'd try to think every day, but nothing happens."

"I found out why you were let out," Susanne recalled, after a moment of silent consideration.

Lynn was silent and anxious. "Why?"

"Oh, Lowry got himself a new girl friend who needed a job. I guess, so your going away for a week didn't mean much to you or you'd have stayed in.

She isn't half so beautiful as you, but she has a good figure, and of course there's nothing better than a pull like that, while it lasts."

"I worked with her, and I know her attitude so suddenly about my leaving," Lynn recalled. "Then it gave him just the opening he was looking for, because he had no other reason to discharge me, so that clears up a lot of things in my mind. Thank you for telling me, Susanne."

CHAPTER XXIV

"Yeah, I'd like to quit my job just like that, and tell him what I think of him for letting you down so meanly. But my friend Jackson Thorpe would wouldn't do me a bit of good, or hurt him. You would only be hurting yourself."

"Meaning that I'm not the least bit important as a stock girl," she grimaced.

"Meaning that none of us is really important if no one chooses to consider us as . We're like ants swarming around at our busy tasks until some one is trampled by a careless foot—then the rest go on, swarming over our dead bodies, if necessary, to carry on. It's about all we really amount to."

"I suppose so," the other agreed gloomily, then, more animatedly, "Say, I just happened to think. I got a friend who works for a chiropodist from that night set you in there. She runs an envelope business and likes it swell. Place the work, of course, but you're fast with your hands. Maybe she can get you about operating a machine."

"I'd do anything," Lynn said.

"I'll see her tonight and ask her if she knows of anything. I'll telephone you him tonight or early in the morning."

Lynn watched Mrs. Kline's number eagerly, and thereafter proceeded to enjoy her lunch in spite of that frail new hope.

But that was the end on the rocks and hooked who spray like all the other waves of hope. Susanne's friend could not help. Only that same week, the firm had dismissed a dozen others with regret.

The days were on, each one more dreary and despairing than the last. Lynn's assurance was disappearing rapidly, rigid as was her economy. It seemed impossible to go on in search of work, even. There were carefare and accessories to consider in the first day she denied herself any lunch, with tantalizing memories of the plethora of food in the Marchon house. She visualized the heaped and inviting table of canada and aunt; if they could know about her situation.

The telephone questions downers were expensive in the matter of clothing. Lynn's one good pair of stockings were surprising her almost daily with the discovery of runs. The heels of her street shoes were turning to the shabby side.

Lynn was frightened. She no longer had any planned future to hope. It was all so futile. She paid Mrs. Kline for the week's board in a dull quality of resignation and admitted the truth. "It is all the money I . . . a time for change."

Some of her alarm was reflected in her landlady's own expression, but she protested firmly. "Don't you worry. I'll get you some other things you need. I'll manage until you get work."

"Oh, no!" Lynn protested, pale and determined. "I'll not accept anything at all; clerking, filing, even a waitress or cashier in a restaurant. But none of these was needed, apparently. Her, the accommodating interviewer advised, which might have been deemed ordinarily, but they all terminated in "are provided. could not sleep. Tossed and turned on the bed until her flesh felt bruised and her nerves like quivering strings in her body.

Even the happy memories of last week in the south were blotted out of her thoughts, in her agony of fear. Instead of sustaining her, they mocked and jeered at her helpless predicament. The contrast was spiralled to her.

Meanwhile, Jackson Thorpe was experiencing a reaction himself which was quite different from Lynn's. After the first shock, that reaction was relief. Lynn had distrubed him most uncomfortably, and accustomed as he had been of his life to a tranquil and ordered routine, he disliked anything in disturbance. In business matters, he welcomed a controversy. He liked to grapple with problems beyond the ambitions of his superiors who had founded the business when competition was less keen, and so developed an air of complacency, often almost surprised and dismayed them a trifle, even while they recognized it as a surface trait.

Jack plunged into his work with zest, real when the unpleasant situation was ended. The vacation had provided him with new interests, and he was completely absorbed for a few days. Or, nearly so. Only his subconscious mentality remained slightly preoccupied.

Then, he observed the folded bills back into Lynn's hand and engaged in a conversation with the servant manner of displaying affectionately.

Tears trembled in Lynn's eyes and made sharp points of her long dark lashes. She could not speak for a moment, and returned her bundle of clothes, thanking them with impulsive emphasis.

"Wouldn't do," Mrs. Kline ventured, "tell your folks in New Orleans about your troubles? I know how you feel about being poor.

"I've thought of that," Lynn admitted, "but I would be so difficult to explain. They really couldn't understand. Of course, they would be able to help me than you are, and I shouldn't impose on them, but I'd like to try just a little longer, alone—

"I understand," sympathetically. "And I don't blame you for wanting to be independent. Besides, I have some money to help you as much as I can. Haven't you been a good friend to me now, for over three years? Just you forget being a burden to anyone, and be comfortable here. Something will come to happen soon."

"That's what I thought, the first week. But nothing does happen, ever.

The other roomers sensed her predicament, and proffered their various gratuities. Miss Allerton grew more aloof, almost suspicious, in her own fixed orbit of imaginary importance, and Mrs. Kline at any floating bodies or flashing necklaces in her interest. She was a self-sufficient and pragmatical that she could not understand youthful dependence. She forgot even that she had urged Lynn to take the position which had cost her her position, and assumed an attitude of affection, a manner of speech which spoke much louder than words. It was her method of self-protection, no doubt.

Mrs. Petit was far more considerate. She used to locate Lynn in various places where she was accustomed to find Mrs. Kline. Miss Riegal affected a cheerfulness in her presence which betrayed their embarrassment. Mr. Petit sat among their own contacts for her disappearance, but they augured not the extent of their landlady's charity, and knowing she could ill afford it, they made a secret arrangement to assist her, and allowed her to maintain silence in the conspiracy. They did not live abundantly on Mrs. Kline's table. Miss Allerton with her tidy savings in vaults, they could not see a fellow-boarder starve for a few dollars.

Another week of days lockstepped by. Another began. Not only did Lynn deny herself luncheon, but she had no appetite for the food she was served at Mrs. Kline's table, which was not paid for. Every bite seemed to choke her, even the slight added effort to be brave before them all. Her deep, dark eyes grew more prominent, her face became very gray with the pallor of fear. She welcomed the nights that should fulfill her misery; and

Don't be CARELESS with COLDS

A cold is not something to trust with impunity. Many a case of pneumonia or bronchitis has started with a cold which should be treated at once. Grove's Bromo Quinine is an internal medication.

It's called Grove's because of its world reputation for internal treatment and Grove's when you get it. Remember the name QUININE.

GROVE'S BROMO QUININE acts on the cold from the inside, by doing the three things necessary to relieve the cause of the system shocked.

1. It opens the bowels gently but effectively.
2. It relieves the cold germs and fever in the system.
3. It relieves aches, headache and "grippy" feelings.

It leaves up the system and helps Tonic building against further attacks.

At the first sign of a cold get your druggist to supply you with GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Insist on getting Grove's. Don't take the other kind. Over 20 million people GROVE'S BROMO QUININE will check a cold in 24 hours. Get it today. Use as you need.

Grove's has been the standby of thousands for over forty years in all continents of the globe.

HAMCO COKE keeps every room Warm and Cosy AT LESS COST

ANY ordinary furnace burns Hamco Coke without any special equipment.

Last winter, thousands switched to this—modern, dustless fuel—so light on the shovel, so simple to regulate, so easy on the budget.

You, too, will find that you can keep your entire house warmer at all hours if you change to Hamco Coke. You will like the way it keeps the house free from smoke and soot—and the small amount of ashes.

Remember—coke will heat your home at a lower cost than other hard fuel.

Because one article is lower priced than another it is not necessarily a lower quality.

The best illustration of this is in the fuel field. Carefully made coke, such as Hamco Coke, is considerably lower in price than other hard fuels.

But thousands of householders after years of experience, would buy Hamco Coke even if it cost more. They get better heating results, with less trouble, fewer ashes and no soot or smoke.

The economy of coke has long been accepted by popular opinion. It has been demonstrated in innumerable home furnaces — and increasing sales show how the good news is spreading from one householder to another.

The makers of Hamco Coke say—"Buy Hamco Coke, not as a substitute, nor as a way of saving money. Buy it because it is an all-Canadian fuel which will give you greater heating satisfaction. Incidentally, you save many dollars on your stoker's supply of fuel if you choose Hamco Coke."

Trenton, Jan. 6 (Special)—Her. W. J. Johnson, B.D., of Toronto addresses Rotary Anns Meeting!.

"I defy any religious organization to define life," declared Rev. W. J. Johnson, B.D., of Springdale United Church Toronto, before one hundred and twenty-five Rotarians and their wives and guests at the annual Rotary Anns banquet in the Gilbert Hotel Monday night and said I can't define life but I can describe it and explain that life was similar to a mountain and has two houses climbed on its side and the houses represent, childhood, adolescence, youth, mid life and old age, Mr. Johnson suggested, that service clubs such as the Rotary can do much toward bettering the house of life, by giving the children play fields adolescent, knowledge, the youth of the country work, and people in mid life, real loving loyal true friendship, while an institution be erected for persons in their old age so that they can spend the remainder of their days in happiness. Following the address, Ben Joyce tendered a vote of thanks to the speaker. Norman Bower read the introduction. A toast was proposed to the King during the evening and A. E. Cuffe responded.

Toast to Ladies

To the ladies Claire Northey offered a toast and Rotary Ann Margaret MacNab replied. H. D. Graham, K.C., offered a toast to the Rotarians on behalf of guests. Mayor H. R. Cory publically introduced Wing Commander A. E. Godfrey, D.S.O., M.C., V.D., P.S.A., who recently was appointed O.C. at the R.C.A.F. station east of here. The Mayor said, Wing Commander Godfrey enlisted the army in 1903 as a drummer and bugler and in 1914 went overseas with a 3rd line battalion. In October 1918 he was transferred to the Royal Flying Corps, and demobilized in 1919. He assumed command of an air station at Kingsville later. He has been commanding officer at Camp Borden, Vancouver and Ottawa prior to his coming here and was a member of the crew of the seaplane that made the initial trans Canada flight in 1926 and in 1928 made the first air mail flight across the continent. In repiying Wing Commander Godfrey said— "The R.C.A.F. air station was situated in this locality because this part of the country from a topographical and geographical standpoint couldn't be excelled in Canada and the district insured the best climate, good waterways for a suitable seaplane base and large tracts of land for forced landings.

Glad to be Here

After learning, that Trenton and the district possessed so many advantages I was always hoping that I would be assigned here some day" the Wing Commander said and since my appointment have contacted with many delightful persons, and assure you that I am going to like this community, was his conclusion. President Cleave Thompson presented George Shoniker with the past presidents pin and the agents of charter presidents, the William House. Incidentally the meeting was the first one that William House has missed since the club's origin fourteen years ago. During the evening an enjoyable and talented programme was given. Jack Peacock, guest soloist of Belleville, sang a number of songs including "Sylvia" and "The Sleigh" and was accompanied by Mrs. Beacon on the piano. A vocal trio comprising Mrs. Cryer, Mrs. J. Cox and Miss Nora MacLellan sang "The Bells Re-echo Down the Valley and Re-bend in the River" and "The Shepherd of the World go By."

Cecil Celebrate 58th Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Peister celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary while their relatives and friends gave them a surprise party. The couple live on a farm, that has been in the Peister name for over two hundred years and was given to Mr. Peister's great grandfather, when he refused to become a citizen of the United States. They were married at little Victorian Church near their present home in 1886 and enjoyed a short honeymoon, Mr. Peister was son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Peister of United Empire Loyalist stock and when he was 21 married Miss A. Sweetman daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Sweetman, a prominent family in these parts. Mr. Peister retired a few years ago. He is still active and reads the newspaper without the aid of glasses and relates how he cleared and worked the land with a team of oxen called "Buck" and "Bright." Mrs. Peister was born a short piece from Trenton and at 21 wedded. She is still slimline and is an active worker in Smithfield United church. Mr. and Mrs. Peister raised a family of eleven. Nine are living, five daughters, Mrs. J. Funnell, Trenton; Mrs. Arthur Chatten and Mrs. N. Reddom of Hilton; Mrs. B. Vanskiik of Wooler and Mrs. R. Summerville of Kingston and all are early age contracted heart trouble. He attended College Hill public and later Trenton high school and was a member of St. George's Anglican Church. He is survived by his father and two sisters Mrs. Charles Carr of Trenton and Mrs O. Seabrooke of Toronto. The Rev. F. A. Smith of St. George's Church conducted the service in the home and at the graveside. Interment was made in Mount Evergreen cemetery and a group of school chums acted as pall bearers.

Attempted Break-In

When he went to get a scuttle of coal for the stove Mr. R. White found there was no coal in the store on Front Street. He gave chase and forced the trio to take to the ice on the river. Police were summoned after an hour's hunt brought three suspects to the station. Later they were released as they gave a account of themselves. Tracks in the snow on the river revealed that the trio were unable to cross the ice due to its thinness and went back and fled in the direction of the northern part of the town. A storm door had been forced at the rear of White's store with an axe, which police recovered. Nothing was stolen in the store but it is believed that work of receipts were hidden in the building.

High Winds Here

High blustery winds prevailed over this part of the country Sunday night and a light falling snow was thrown into a minor blizzard for a few minutes. Driving was harassed and evening church services were somewhat small congregations. The fire department were on the alert for calls but none were registered. Only two small chimney fires have summoned the brigade in the last week. One on New Year's Eve and the other early Sunday afternoon.

Council Inaugurated

Inauguration of Trenton council took place in the town hall and the chairmen of the various committees were voted in, and are: R. O'Rourke, finance; J. J. Whitney, court of revision; Ross Burtt, printing and by-laws; K. Ellis, streets and sidewalks; R. R. Westfall, harbor and bridges; Cecil Deacon, Ellsley, fire, market and police; H. R. Cory, indigent and relief. Following the Mayor delivered a brief address. He said, "First may I congratulate the five members of the 1936 council on their re-election for 1937 by acclamation." "Your years of service to your community has apparently approved by the electors, who took this way of showing their appreciation," he said. "To the one new member councillor Whitely I extend our welcome and to you all may I say, that the decisions made by you throughout the year will go a long way toward making or marring Trenton's progress." the Mayor added and said, "It is my earnest desire, that there be harmony among us and that everything done will be in the interests of our home town."

Hydro Rates Reduced

"During 1936 Hydro rates were reduced making a saving to our present industries of approximately $14,000.00 per year," the Mayor declared and said this one feature of cheaper power should be a big factor towards inducing new industries to locate in Trenton and added from the present outlook I believe I can promise industrial expansion during 1937, that will be gratifying to all. "Relief expenditure during 1936 were considerably below those of 1935," His Worship said and at the end of 1936 there were 207 less people on relief than at the end of 1935." "It is my belief, that with the fast bettering of conditions throughout the country the expansion of our present industries at present contemplated, and the coming of new industries, will all combine to lower our unemployment thereby lessening the strain on our taxpayers" Mr. Cory said, and continued "while discussing unemployment may I sound a word of warning to the new council and councillorlities, that until our people are gainfully employed, no one from outside the municipality can hope for employment in Trenton and that no person, who was not a resident of Trenton January 1st., 1936 will not even be eligible for relief in Trenton." Mr. Cory pointed out the highlights of the town's financial progress in 1936 and said, "Finances at the end of the year were in a healthy condition, commitments to the bank being down $20,000 to $15,200 for the corresponding period and as soon as re-financing can be completed Trenton will again commence payments of principal on our funded debt." "There is a demand for new houses in town and I believe that fifty new houses could be built per month would be readily absorbed," the Mayor turned back and added, "it is my intention to make a suggestion to council at an early meeting, that the town aid the prospective builders willing to erect certain types of houses, lots now owned by the corporation for the sum of one dollar each," In conclusion Mayor Cory said, "A year ago council took under advisement the issue of numbering streets and presently plans are being worked out and will be presented to you for your approval and it is my hope that this very important matter can be successfully concluded this year," and "optimism is in the air and we in Trenton are in line for a prosperous year if the spirit of co-operation which was manifest during 1936 can be fostered and enlarged during 1937," was his parting statement.

Shooting Gallery Opens

John G. White, ex-Sgt. of the Trenton police force opened a shooting gallery on Front Street. Many were on hand for the opening and enjoyed the facilities of the newly erected range. A number of interesting scores were registered and it was easy to see Trentonians will make excellent marksmen with ample practice. A handsome prize is awarded to the person who cleans out the bullseye in three shots.

Court

James Alexander of Belleville was fined $28.75 for failing to report an accident some time ago, and was given 13 days to pay. Alexander was the driver of the Standard Brands truck, that struck and broke a telephone pole in town. In neighborhood of $50.00 damage was done to the vehicle and the operator was injured slightly.

A local man pleaded guilty in writing to drinking in a public place and paid $28.35.

Another local man charged with reckless driving was assessed $13.35. Magistrate K. J. Butler conducted court, for the first time in several months. Mr. Butler recently recovered from an illness.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons from decaying food are absorbed into your blood. Your whole system is poisoned.

A mere movement doesn't relieve you. You need those good laxative drugs in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin to get the liver flowing. Then you'll feel "up and up." Harmless and gentle, they act on the liver like calomel but have no calomel or harshness in them. Ask for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin by name! Refuse anything else. 25c.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Three in a Love Game

By Clarissa Mackie

Perhaps Jim Edwards had earned he was engaged to you."

his way, a little too hardly, it might be that he had been dealing with the sense of money getting and of gain, so that his judgment was twisted, or that he had come to the time for him to fall in love, it had to be a daughter of the rich who was destined for him, won his mad allegiance. And Sally Wright, who believed that she had already given her heart to Billy Jarvis, who had wooed her from cradle days, had never had ever heels in love with handsome Jim Edwards.

"You not engaged, then, to Bill Jarvis?" asked Jim, one summer day that they had met along the shore in his motor boat.

Sally answered Jim with soft, blue eyes. "Billy Jarvis?" she repeated innocently. "We were youngsters together and always have been the best of friends—but why?"

Jim told her then that he loved her and what they finally came ashore. Sally had promised that she would marry him; she had had enough money for both of them! So he took a train for town the next morning because he could an engagement ring to be found for Billy Wright, and although Jim thought it a little quiet and gay as though he had done a good stroke of business, he was in the farthest corner of his heart now, he locked the picture of another girl—Jean Blake, at the office.

Thinking about Jean Blake this morning, all the satisfaction seemed to be drained out of the summer day. The jeweler's shop looked gray and cold in spite of sunny windows, but could find in spite of sunny windows, but because he was a dogged person, and who had a "nose for business," a rich man if he married a rich girl, James Edwards proceeded to select the engagement ring for Silas Wright's daughter.

In the meantime Billy Jarvis was mounting the steps of the Wright's summer home, tennis racket in hand. Sally was sitting in a gay chair of canvas and cretonne, watching very tenderly of James Edwards, when she saw Billy coming toward her heart stopped a beat with the realized that she must break the news to this old friend of hers, and "Come and play with me, Sally," invited Mr. Jarvis, his good gray eyes pleading for him.

"I'm afraid I can't," Sally answered, phone call—" she added lightly, and she had the grace to blush.

"I will stay here, then," said Jarvis in rather a cooler tone than usual.

"Oh do," urged Sally feebly.

"I heard some news about you last night, Sally," he ventured.

"I wonder what it could be," she ventured.

"The morning Jim Edwards announced to some of the boys that of the Rookery with Mary? Mrs. Wilcox had accused herself for a siesta. Ralph and Elizabeth had disappeared.

Max and Mary had been watching a sailboat on the sound. Mary looked down at the carpet of green at their feet.

"Why, you can almost see the grass grow!" she laughed.

"It is music!" Max exclaimed. "Stand on that rock, please, Mary!"

"What do you mean?" The girl was puzzled.

"Please—I don't want to let the grass grow under our feet—I don't want to lose you, Mary."

Then he held out his arms and Mary's dear head was on his shoulder. So over her close, it was their hour.

"You will you finish that story?" Ralph demanded when the two girls had gone upstairs with Mrs. Wilcox.

"Yes. And they lived happily ever after—thanks only to you! But how in the world, Ralph?"

"How did I find out about Mary? Easy. She and Elizabeth are friends, you remember. But even with your good start you surely needed help, old man."

"I surely did!" Max grinned. "Thanks, pal. But congratulations are due you, too. All the happiness in the world!"

"Well, I go after mine! Here are the girls now."

CONSIDERS NAZI FLEET

Consequent upon the sudden retirement of Admiral Foerster, commander of the German fleet, was the appointment of Admiral Carls (ABOVE) former vice admiral, to succeed him. It is rumored the reason for Foerster's retirement was his disagreement with Adolf Hitler's naval policy in connection with the Spanish war. Foerster, it is understood, warned his chief of the danger of hostilities with the navies of France, Russia and Britain.

HEAVILY ARMED GERMAN CRUISER HARRIES SPANISH SHIPPING

Tension in the Spanish conflict continued to mount as the German cruiser Koenigsberg, whose forward guns are pictured here in action during naval manoeuvres, continued to harry loyalist shipping in reprisal for holding of the cargo and one passenger of the German freighter Palos at Bilbao. The Palos was released upon demand from the cruiser, but the cargo, allegedly war contraband, was held. The Koenigsberg then seized or drove ashore three loyalist Spanish ships and threatened to continue the "warfare" until Bilbao gave up the captured cargo. Madrid warned that Germany was committing acts of war. Britain may augment her fleet in the Mediterranean to protect her ships from the menace of rebel and Spanish fighting craft.

CANADIAN GROCERS AWAITED JUDGMENT

London, Ont., Jan. 3.—(CP) — County Judge Joseph Wearing reserved today that Canadian Grocers be compelled to mark the net weight on all goods of half a pound or more which are packaged in their stores before the customer comes in. At the same time, he held that under present regulations grocers are not guilty of selling short-weight if their ready-wrapped goods shrink in weight on the shelves after being marked "weight when packed".

In a judgment which though it involved less than one cents worth of prunes, was eagerly awaited by the whole Canadian grocery trade, as having an important bearing on $250 $100,000,000 a year business, Judge Wearing allowed an appeal by W. A. Bailey and Sons, London grocers, against a conviction for selling short-weight. The appeal was heard last month.

Some purses on the shelves of the Bailey store shrunk in weight after being packed, but Judge Wearing ruled that since they were marked "weight when packed" there was no guarantee of the weight at the time of sale.

Noting that he believes shoppers have a kind, unquestioning faith in the honesty of merchants, His Honor proposed that marking packages of half a pound or more with "weight when packed" only, should be forbidden. Such a ruling, if adopted, however, would not apply to goods packed in factories, but only to those ready-wrapped in re-

Little Benny's Note Book

I was around at the firehouse tawking to Mr. Riley the hookem ladder driver about diffrent subjecks such as cold weather, Mr. Riley saying, The coldest day I ever encountered was one 31st of November. Just to give you a faint idea, it was so cold that morning that nobody ever found out just how cold it really was because none of the thermometers in town registered that low and all the mercury in all the thermometers broke all the boltoms out of all the little glass bulbs in sheer desperation. It made quite a lot of blamess for the thermometer people, Mr. Riley said.

O, it would of been a bad duay for a fire, I said, and he said, There was a fire, and it was a bad day. Our breath froze in front of our faces and made Jack Frost patterns on the air just like you see on window panes. The air was full of them, floating around, and I must say it was a lovely site, he said.

But how about the fire, didn't the water freeze? I said, and Mr. Riley said, It frose rite in the air as it came out of the hoses, in long snakey spirals, very graceful but useless for our purpose. And then the temperature dropped another batch of degrees and the fire itself frose. Yes a fire carved in ice. The paybors organized a bucket brigade and threw boiling hot water on those stationerry flames, but instead of melting them it frose and put a thick coating of ice on them, so the only thing to do was to put a guard around the house and wait for a thaw, which of course melted the coating of ice and of course extinguished the flames. You mite call it nature's forst and only automatic sprinkler system, and now if you dont mind I've got a little polishing to do.

COLLECTS INCOME TAX

Minister of Welfare Says New Policy Sound in Principle

Hon. David Croll, Minister of Welfare and Municipal Affairs, last night announced the new policy and stated 935 municipalities would immediately benefit by it. Sixty-five would suffer temporarily. The other five would suffer permanently. Mr. Croll emphasized the steady increase in mothers' allowances beneficiaries and old-age pensioners, the other five municipalities during and after 1938 would benefit from the decision.

He estimated the government would assume an additional cost of approximately $750,000.

BUSINESS NOW BACK TO NORMAL

Slot Machines Did Rushing Trade Until Police Confiscate Them

Lindsay, Ont., Jan. 7.—(CP)—Business is now back to normal in the village of Haliburton, according to a correspondent who writes that Sunday closing will be seen in the village of Haliburton for two months, reaped a bountiful harvest when swept the village with the cranes. Every School confiscated such forces that Sunday School collections were allegedly reduced to a pittance, and petitioners are now run full off to each canal that the condition became serious.

Children went to the stores for supplies returned home minus the proper change. The slot machines were gobbling the village up. When legal coin ran out, the invention genius of the community manufactured slugs from cardboard, and lead cord-strings of tea packages and candy were in great demand for the same purpose.

Then some citizens complained and as a result Provincial Constable Cecil Thrasher, Minden, came down on the northern village and raided all the slot machine establishments. The machines have all been removed and business is back to normal, much to the satisfaction of the large number of indignant people who were instrumental in effecting the clean-up.

CHANG FOLLOWERS IN OPEN REVOLT

Reports State 250,000 Troops Have Joined With Communists

Sian-Fu, Shensi Province, China, Jan. 7 (AP)—It was reported here today a majority of Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang's former Manchurian army had joined Red troops of Shensi and Kansu Provinces in open revolt against the Central Government.

The reports said 250,000 troops of Marshal Chang's old command were assembling and murdering" John Dickson, 32, whose death certificate recorded that he died of pneumonia Christmas eve. Each was released on $1000 bond, all denied the charges.

When arrested Dickson was accused of assault to kill and grand larceny. It was charged he attacked the Chief of Police.

Following his death in a hospital his father, James Dickson, declared his son succumbed from mistreatment while in custody. He retained an Attorney and demanded a full investigation.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Pocatello, Idaho, Jan. 7 (AP)—A regular gallery for tough music and missing guys' photographing, printing, photographing and all —was advanced today by postmaster E. M. Cook.

He said he would seek sanction to footprint and "mug" all story hounding hoping it would help compound fake an elaborate identification system.

He said pads of dogs' feet have swirls on them like human fingers.

Cook asserted his bureau would be valuable in tracing missing canine aristocrats as well as identifying "real" actors.

Berlin, Jan. 7 (CP-Havas) German civilian aircraft and all public planes today were banned from flying over a large section of the Baltic coast from the Polish frontier, reportedly to facilitate the rapid shifting fortifications in that region.

Publication of the decree was linked to declarations by Polish Foreign Minister Joseph Beck and Premier Marshal Rydz-Smigly of the Franco-Polish alliance.

The zone extended from Memel between the Polish frontier and the river Oder.

Madrid, Jan. 7 (AP)—Captain Calanga, Nationalist Attache to the Polish Embassy, had a narrow escape today when a bomb exploded under his car without exploding broke two iron posts at a door from which he was emerging.

New York, Jan. 7—(AP)—The powerful Automobile Workers' Organization is going to have a say in the wage scales, hours and performance pick for themselves.

Frank Gillmore, Equity President, announced today in the future the association's council will weigh each new production kind of name as there will be no complimentary or embarrassing.

A very odd happens that an entire chorus girl, with the same name as that of a star, is "a star in her own right, because he star sufficient, or vice versa," Gillmore explained.

Hamilton, Jan. 7 (CP)—Westworth County Council last night had the distinction of a son succeeding father after a lapse of years as warden, and expects new that brother may succeed brother as the county's head. Mr. Moffat, Deputy-Reeve of Ancaster, is a candidate for the wardenship held by his brother, John Moffat in 1932.

NO NEGOTIATIONS SAY G. M. C. UNTIL WORKERS LEAVE

Stipulate All Men Must Leave Factories Before Conferences Start

OTHER CONDITIONS

Company Guarantees Not to Operate Plants During Negotiations

Detroit, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Obstacles blocking the course of negotiations to settle widespread strikes in General Motors plants dwindled to a single point today.

United States government conciliators plunged into their efforts to succeed in an endeavor to effect a compromise to bring together officials of the corporation and the United Automobile Workers of America.

The single difficulty, the Associated Press learned from reliable source, was whether General Motors would assure the Union that during the negotiations it would not remove equipment from plants now occupied by "sit down" strikers if the men evacuated the factories.

Stipulation Made

The corporation has stipulated that it would not enter into conferences with the U.A.W.A. until the men had departed.

Union spokesmen were represented as declaring that the company might place the tools and machinery in storage elsewhere in the strikers left the buildings.

However, General Motors quickly remained firm-bound—either closed

HOUSE OPENING ONE WEEK AWAY

Legislative Program is Expected to be a Heavy One

Ottawa, Jan. 7 (CP)—With parliament's opening one week away the government's legislative programme is said to have definite form in the minds of political progressions today based on earlier forecasts and information.

The program was expected to contain:

Legislation designed to protect Canadian investors from worthless bonds against having to pay premiums in Board lenders. This was disclosed Thursday by Financial Minister Dominion.

Legislation for control of the country's projected transcontinental air service.

Substitute legislation for some of the Bennett government's "new deal" acts, to be produced only if they are

Viscount Carlow Weds Pegsy Cambie

London, Jan. 7.—(CP Cable)—The wedding took place quietly today at Chelsea old church of Peggy, daughter of the late Charles and of Mrs. Cambie, to Viscount Carlow, heir son of the Earl of Port Arlington.

Cambie for many years was in the service of Canada's Department of Commerce, notably as London manager.

The bride wore a white satin gown, with veil and trimmings of old family lace. Her only attendant maid was Letitice daughter of Sir Henry and Lady Stephenson. The two pages were Robin and Timothy Gladstone, children of the bride's sister, Mrs. Malcolm Gladstone. They wore white satin suits.

A small reception was held at Sir Edward Peacock's town house. The honeymoon will be passed in Switzerland.

FOUR NEW ARSENALS

LONDON, Jan. 7.—(CP-Havas) —Construction will be today for the construction of one of the four new arsenals planned by the government at a cost of $20,000,000 each. The arsenal will be erected at Shorley, Lancashire.

Special safety designs will be employed to avoid disaster from explosions. The plant will consist of no less than 500 separate buildings. In order of them will explosives be concentrated in quantities capable of causing any damage to the others in the event of an accidental explosion.

Crown Princess Juliana And Prince Bernhard Are Wed by Burgomaster

The Hague Town Hall Ceremony Followed by Dutch Reformed Church Rites at Great St. James Church — Population of Netherlands Rejoices Over Wedding of Heir to Throne.

The Hague, Jan. 7 (AP)—A burgomaster today made Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands and Prince Bernhard Zu Lippe-Biesterfeld man and wife in the traditional Dutch civil ceremony.

Joyful cheers swept across packed streets as the prince and princess stepped from the royal palace in a golden carriage to be married, first civilly at the town hall and then in Great St. James Church, according to the customs of the Dutch Reformed Church.

Wedding Dress and Silver Robe.

Juliana resplendent in a wedding dress that glittered under a silver robe. Bernhard, smiling happily, was a handsome figure in the full dress uniform of a captain in the Blue Hussars.

Seating them before a red-covered table in the great wedding room, the burgomaster, Dr. S. G. R. De Monchy, asked Bernhard:

"Do you confess your willingness to take Juliana as your legal wife and to support her wherever she goes?"

"Yes," the prince replied.

When the burgomaster asked Juliana the counterpart of the same question, she answered unhesitatingly, but in a low, hushed voice.

"Then," the burgomaster said, placing their hands together, "under Dutch law I declare you to be married and am now entitled to address you as your highnesses."

Queen Nods Approval.

Before performing the ceremony Dr. De Monchy received the nodded approval of Queen Wilhelmina, the bride's mother, and Princess Armgard, Bernhard's mother.

The enthusiasm of the people for the marriage of Queen Wilhelmina's only daughter, future ruler of this land of dykes and windmills and its vast colonial empire, was unbounded.

Four times the population of this ancient capital of Europe's biggest little nation" thronged the streets for a glimpse of the tall, plump bride and the scion of German royalty who they prayed would ensure the succession of the House of Orange-Nassau.

Many Wait Through Night.

Many who had waited through the night for vantage places along the route of the wedding procession were delighted by the culmination of a Swiss holiday romance which unites "our Juliana" and Prince "Bennie" who, some day, will sit beside her on the throne of the Netherlands as Prince Consort.

REPLIES MAY HAVE VITAL EFFECT ON PEACE OF EUROPE

London, Jan. 7.—(CP)— Foreign Secretary Eden expounded the increasing gravity of the Spanish volunteer question in a frank talk tonight, with Prince Otto Von Bismarck, the German Charge D'Affaires.

Facing anxiously-awaited Italo-German replies to a plea to stop volunteering, the Foreign Secretary closeted himself with the German envoy after an important conference with Prime Minister Baldwin.

Informed sources, according to the Associated Press, said the replies of the Fascist Powers (Italy's was delivered late today in Rome) might have a vital effect on the peace of Europe.

FIRE DESTROYS SCHOOLHOUSE

Walkerton, Ont., Jan. 7 (CP)— One of the oldest school houses in this section S. S. No. 1 Brant, Greenock, near Walkerton, was gutted by fire yesterday. All the interior fittings of the school along with pupils' and teachers' books were destroyed. Loss was more than $1,000. The origin of the fire is said to have arisen from the furnace.

TURKO-SYRIAN FRONTIER STARTS EASTERN CRISIS

France Will Not Tolerate Any Armed Coup at Alexandretta

RUMORS AFLOAT

Turkish Protest Against Maintenance of French Mandate

Paris, Jan. 7 (CP-Havas)—France will not tolerate any armed coup by Turkey for the seizure of Alexandretta, North Syrian port, it was indicated today following reports Kemal Ataturk was preparing some drastic moves on the Turko-Syrian frontier.

The threats of armed Turkish action in support of the demand for Alexandretta's independence from the French mandate, coupled to Ataturk's threat of a "surprise" coup yesterday, within a few miles of the border at Yali-Bashi, were discounted here as attempts at intimidation offering no real reason for alarm.

Paris and London Confer.

Nevertheless it was announced that Qual D'Orsay has already entered into communication with London on the situation in the Sanjak district or administrative area, of Alexandretta.

What attracted public attention was a statement by Ataturk to the semi-official organ of Kemal Pasha, "Cumhuriyet", which declared "Turkey is determined to win the point in this affair by all and any means and it should permit it will be France's fault."

In connection with reports of Turkish divisions had recently been mobilized in the Syrian frontier region, it was said here France has only three battalions in the vicinity of the Sanjak, one of them at Antioch.

FISHING SMACK LIMPS INTO PORT

Reports Loss of One Seaman And Thrilling Rescue of Another

North Sydney, N.S., Jan. 7 (CP)— Her flag at half-mast, the 30-ton North Sydney fishing schooner Percy F. Small, limped into port here today to report the loss of one seaman and the thrilling rescue of another in one of the worst gales to whip the Cape Breton coast in years.

William Buffett, 23, North Sydney, master of the schooner and Percy Thomas, 26, North Sydney, mate, were washed overboard when the vessel, was rescued when their story was overturned 300 yards away by a huge comber and the gale was equal.

Buffett sank from sight before a rescue boat, manned by William Hood, Ross Blanche, Child, and Leon Hardy of North Sydney, could battle its way through boiling seas to save him.

Thomas was hauled into the boat suffering from exposure and almost unconscious. He became delirious during the journey here.

FORT BELVEDERE TO REMAIN EMPTY

Former King's Residence Stripped of Furniture And Effects

London, Jan. 7.—(CP Cable)—Fort Belvedere, the Duke of Windsor's former home in Windsor Park, is to remain empty, it is understood, until King George and Queen Elizabeth return from their visit to France.

Linen, plate and such things have been stored at Windsor Castle until the Duke requires them. The Belvedere estate is being kept up perfectly; and it is believed it will go to a member of the Royal family or a personal friends of the new King. Many alterations, repairs are proceeding at Buckingham Palace to provide a suite for the King and his Consort who all still resident at 145 Piccadilly. A moving date has not been fixed.

FRENCH SHIPS MEET

Question of Blockade of Spanish Peninsula Looms

Paris, Jan. 7 (AP)—Thirty-four French naval vessels, accompanied by a number of submarines, will be concentrated in Spanish waters by January 19 "in case they are needed in connection with the Spanish crisis," officials announced today.

Berlin, Jan. 7 (AP)—Germany send her answer to French and British pleas for a stoppage of Spanish volunteer enlistments at the embassies of those two powers tonight.

Believed to reflect a conciliatory attitude, the lengthy note bares a new attempt to reconcile Germany's position on the whole Spanish non-intervention problem.

Agreement "in Principle"

Rome, Jan. 7 (AP)—Italy, agreeing "in principle" that foreign volunteers should be discouraged from enlisting in Spain answered France's memorandum for non-intervention today with reservations pointed at all but France.

The Italian reply to the two powers was for a stoppage of the flow of Italian and German volunteers to the Spanish civil war was handed by Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, to Sir Eric Phipps, British ambassador, and to J. F. Blondel, French charge d'affaires.

Reservations Raised

Informed sources said the three-page note, closely typed agreed as a matter of principal to discouraging enlistments in Spain but interjected a number of points and many reservations.

FLU EPIDEMIC IS SWEEPING STATES

Milder Than Death-Dealing Plague of Twenty Years Ago

England and the United States today were in the grip of an influenza epidemic, milder by far than the great sweeping plague of twenty years ago but sufficient to cause wide-spread inconvenience and a number of deaths.

Greater London reported over 2,000 cases, but was unaffected by the malady that has taken scores from the ships, crews from their boats, clerks from their counters and factory hands from their benches.

Unseasonably mild weather was blamed for the malady which, in the United States, was accompanied by an unusually high number of pneumonia cases.

New York city reported 227 deaths Thursday, nineteen less than the 246 deaths from 'flu. Colder weather during the past 48 hours appeared to have halted the spread of the infectious malaidies that have jammed hospitals to capacity.

Denver, Colorado, reported 20,000 persons ill with the 128 deaths, less than a month were counted in the United States Rocky Mountain hill. Chicago, with 1,400 cases, said 123 had died in the nearby trial state area in two weeks.

In England the epidemic was widespread, with 1,400 London policemen off duty and noted actors such as Charles Laughton, Sir John Martin Harvey — whose clever characterizations are so well known in Canada — and Dorothy Dix unable to appear on the stage.

All Ontario Militia corps training for the university boat race were inoculated as a precautionary measure.

PLANTS AT FLINT TO CLOSE

Flint, Mich., Jan. 7 (AP) — The Chevrolet Motor Company announced today that all of its operations here, and its iron foundry and metal plants in Saginaw and Bay City, Mich., would be suspended by Friday night. The closing will throw 19,870 additional General Motors employees out of work.

TARIFFS CUT ON GRAIN IMPORTS

Germany Sharply Reduces Rates to Get Required Food

Berlin, Jan. 7—(AP)—Germany cut tariffs on grain imports sharply today.

Foreign authorities here questioned whether the move signalled a great increase in grain purchases abroad since Germany maintains a vigorous and detailed system of control over imports.

Effective Jan. 1, the duty on wheat was reduced from 31.50 marks per 100 kilos, equal to 230.66 pounds, to one mark.

The new rates amounted to reductions in duty on wheat from 94 to 13 cents a bushel, on rye from 81 to 10 cents and on barley from 33 to nine cents.

(World grain markets in recent weeks have been influenced by reports of Germany's grain and fodder shortage and would need at least 4,000,000 tons of wheat to make up for the deficiency.

Shortage of Germany's grain needs were credited with having been a spur to the spectacular rise in wheat prices in recent months.

However, grain men have realized that Germany, with a small hoard of gold and holdings of foreign exchange, might find it difficult to fill its wants in the world market.)

AGED WANDERER TO SETTLE DOWN

Robert Beverley, For Nearly 80 Years Wanders Over Highways

Mountain Grove, Ont., Jan. 7. (CP)—Aged Robert Beverley, wanderer for nearly 80 years of North American highways, was trying to decide today the question of settling down as he made himself comfortable in this small village, 40 miles north of Kingston. His only anxiety was for the safe arrival of his old dog Flossie, waiting in Pembroke, railway station for the next train north.

The white-haired old hiker came to Mountain Grove from Guelph to stay with his niece-in-law Mrs. Charles Bewsher who hopes the wander-lust has left the veteran of the road. Beverley had intended walking the 250 miles from Guelph but illness sent him grumbling to hospital, a unique place for him.

Guelph friends decided when he was able to leave that Pembroke the best way to travel for the aged man was by train.

As far as the train journey was concerned, Beverley said he considered it "immense"—the scenery went flying past too fast for enjoyment. He missed the affectionate Flossie on the trip. Railway officials barred her from the passenger train so she left by the next train to Peterborough until soon today.

Flossie found is "fairly comfortable" in Mountain Grove. He might stay "they like me," but he added: "You know, I'd like to get out and look some more, sort of look around a bit."

City and District News

ICE CUTTING ON BAY DELAYED BY WEATHER

Hopes of local commercial ice dealers for early operations on the annual task of ice cutting were still deferred this week as the mild weather continued. Anxious to commence the job owing to long delayed stores in ice houses and the ice consumption caused by abnormally warm weather, this summer, three have already staked their locations on the log of the Bay of Quinte but have been unable to start owing to the weakening ice sheet.

ROADS ARE SLIPPERY AFTER HEAVY RAIN

Drizzling rain, which froze as it fell since early morning today coated roads and sidewalks with an icy covering over which pedestrians and cars alike slithered and slipped helplessly. On the job since daybreak, employes of the local public works department were engaged in sidestepping the hazard by the use of tons of sand and cinders sprinkled liberally on the main intersections and on the walks.

MACHINE GUN COURSE OPENS AT ARMOURIES

Commencing this evening and continuing twice each week, Tuesdays and Thursdays of each week for the next twenty-five nights, the regular Provincial School of Machine Gunnery will be held by the local Corps of Signals, Intelligence at the Armouries. Instruction which will be in charge of Sergeant Major given by Quarter Master Sergeant Instructor W. F. Parker and Sergeant Instructor J. Fisher of the R.C.S.'s, Kingston.

MANY MANIFESTATIONS OF SPRING SEEN

Green frogs hopping actively in a swamp where pussy willows during the past few days have also sprouted in the vicinity of the city the latest manifestations in the northern section of Ontario continuing since spring has wafted its caressing breeze over this district during the past few days. Engaged in emitting brash near Flinton one week ago, Councillor Allan Gulliver of the village captured the croaking frogs in the swamp where the pussy willows have also been reported in full bud.

Killing Pheasants Out of Season is Charge

Harry Allard, Bathoven Beach, appeared before Police Magistrate Campbell in the police court this morning and pleaded guilty to charges of hunting and killing pheasants during closed season. No plea was accepted. Sentence will be delayed for one week. Allard was summoned into court by Game Inspector Herb Allen of Picton and following the alleged finding of dead pheasants in the officer's car, Allard was permitted his liberty until the date of his trial.

John Asterbost, Frankford was arrested in Madoc on a charge, laid by Provincial Constable Dymond yesterday. Asterbost was brought to Belleville and remanded in custody for one week, after appearing before A. Pallot of the Peace.

Station Cell Block Crowded With Transients

Crowded to overflowing, the cell block at the police station had its largest gathering of transients, awaiting a boarding train, last night when 37 weary travellers of the road slept in cramped quarters. The men climbed to the lofty heights of the steel cell-block, eight on the floor and two in a bunk in order to procure adequate space. It was the largest number of transients to crowd their way into the cell block during the cold weather has set in. To date this year 73 transients have been given sleeping quarters at the police station, average of 15 per night. The largest number to sign the register in one night, while the smallest number seven, on the night of last Tuesday night, when only five appeared in search of warm sleeping quarters.

PULPIT ROBES ARE PRESENTED

Rev. R. H. Hall of John St. Church Thanks Women of Congregation For Gift

Rev. Robert Hall, pastor of John Street United Church congregation received as a Christmas gift from the women members of the church a complete set of beautiful pulpit robes, corded silk Geneva gown and hood. These will replace the robes damaged in the fire which destroyed John Street Church some time ago.

The minister made fitting reference at the recent morning services held in the parish hall of St. Thomas Church, and expressed his gratitude for the kindness, thoughtfulness and generosity of the women members of the congregation.

POLICE BLOTTER

Running directly beneath the wheels on an oncoming automobile a small brown spaniel dog suddenly broken back and subsequently died near the intersection of Bridge and Charles Sts. early last evening. Dr. F. H. Harvey was proceeding west on Bridge St. in his automobile, when the canine suddenly darted out and ran beneath the wheels of the vehicle. P. C. Evans was called to the scene of the accident and upon his arrival ordered the removal of the dead canine.

A slight motor accident, that resulted in fender and radiator damage happened on Front St. early last evening when an automobile driven by Thomas Gould, R. R. No. 7, Belleville, while backing out from the east curb on Front St. collided with another motor car, being driven north by Dr. R. S. Eagleson of Madoc. The fender and front fender of Dr. Eagleson's car suffered some damage. However, the matter was amicably settled between the parties concerned upon the arrival of the police on the scene and no charges resulted in no charges being determined.

Peterborough police reporting the theft of a new 1936 model Buick sedan, taken in that city last night. The vehicle bore 1937 Ontario license plate number 5-5-91. No arrests have been necessary in Belleville in the past year, this crime being at its lowest ebb in many months, police report. Despite the wet weather, traffic on the city streets and surrounding highways police officials have reported "no serious accidents" when questioned at noon.

935 Municipalities to Gain, Belleville Included in This Total

Five Cities Will Suffer at Least Temporary Loss Under Plan

BELLEVILLE FIGURES

Last year Belleville paid out for mothers' allowance $14,496, and for old age pensions $5,050.91, a total of $18,546.91. These figures, according to the announcement of the Welfare Minister, David Croll, will be borne in future in all municipalities by the provincial government which will retain all the receipts from provincial income tax Belleville last year received from the provincial government $7,309.97 in lieu of income tax rebate. Under the new arrangement, Belleville will lose approximately this amount of return from the provincial government in lieu of local income tax and be relieved of paying the total of $10,546.91 for old age pensions and mothers' allowances. This would mean that the city would stand to gain slightly over $12,000.

Last year, while the province collected the income tax instead of the municipalities and remitted 80 per cent to the city of Belleville, Belleville like other municipalities, was allowed to collect income tax on telephone and telegraph companies.

The figures could not be obtained at the city hall today as officials were not acquainted with the property tax but the tax collected on the telephone and telegraph companies income in 1936 would be approximately what it was in 1935 which it stood at $3,813.27.

The new arrangement makes no mention of this item.

Toronto, Jan. 7 (CP)—Hon. David Croll, Ontario Minister of Municipal Affairs, today released figures estimating the effect on Ontario municipalities of the government's new policy of assuming the cost of mothers' allowances and municipal share of old age pensions. The government will refund all revenue from provincial income tax under the arrangements.

The estimates for 1937 were arrived at on basis of 1936 cost of old age pensions and mothers' allowances to the municipalities and the government's revenue from income tax.

The ministry said 935 municipalities in Ontario out of 941 would gain while losses would result for the following municipalities:

Toronto, $468,000; London, $10,000; Ottawa, $26,000; Windsor, $15,000; Brockville, $6,500.

The following are some of the municipalities that will gain under the new plan with the approximate amounts:

Obituary

MRS. CYRUS JOHNSON

Rawdon, (Special)—Cora McConnell Thompson beloved wife of Mr. Cyrus Johnson, Campbellford, and daughter of the late Ira McConnell and Nancy Leggott of Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, passed away at her home in Campbellford on Tuesday, January 5, 1937.

The deceased had been ill for a couple of days and would have been seventy-one years old on January 6th.

She was twice married, her first husband being Thomas Thompson who predeceased her several years ago. There were no children by either marriage.

She leaves to mourn her sorrowing husband, a sister, Delphia, Mrs. J. R. Chambers, North Bay; three brothers, Stephen, Mount Pleasant, Rawdon; Hilliard, Detroit; and Edison, Unity, Sask. The funeral was held Wednesday at Mount Pleasant.

LATE JAMES S. LITTLE

The funeral of James Sidney Little took place from Whitesides' afternoon from the residence of his son, Mr. William Little, 97 Charlton Road. The service in the home was held at 2.30 o'clock and the interment was conducted by the Rev. G. G. Wright, Rector of Trinity Church.

The bearers were Messrs. John Mason, Daniel Murray, David Mason, Daniel Murray, David Curry and G. Comrie.

MRS. CLARKE BOTTING (Picton Gazette, Pa.)

Word was received in the city today that Mrs. Clarke Botting, formerly Miss Joe Dalton of this city, died this morning at Philadelphia where interment will take place tomorrow.

CITY MARKET

"These reports that potatoes are plentiful are the bunk," said a market gardener at the city market this morning. "I have just returned from Toronto and potatoes up there are scarce and in demand. The price is around $1.25 per bag. Here it is around $1.00 per bag. They were selling as $2 for this quantity on the Toronto market yesterday and buyers up there offered me $1.40 per bag for any quantity I might bring to them. We are selling them here today for 90 cents, but I am sure that before long they will go much higher than that before very long. I have just come from Toronto and to the west of Belleville and the story is the same wherever you go. In fact you can get potatoes but they are not marketable. A good grade of Irish Cobbler is worth $2 the ninety pound bag today."

"Onions available also took a sharp rise in price in Toronto yesterday," the gardener continued. "I arrived at the market, dealers were dumping celery out of boxes into the street, to clear away. The stuff is not keeping and this is partly owing to the mild weather we have had, and the weather conditions of late."

"Onions were selling up there for high prices and in order to get a fair margin of profit I have had to sell them here at $1.80 per bag. Spinach, parsley, and all other vegetable vegetables just doubled in price yesterday and there is much promise of a decline."

One commodity at least took a drop at the city market this morning as a lone vendor offered unlimited quantities of twenty-five cent flowers. Chickens were offered at $1.50 the pair with fowl being priced at 32 cents each.

A novelty and one which lovers of delicacies will enjoy was the appearance on dressed pigeons. Plump delectable to the appearance, they were offered at twenty cents each and two for thirty five cents. Pork by the quarter was offered by other vendors.

LOCAL FIREFIGHTERS JOIN ASSOCIATION

Affiliation with the International Association of Firefighters having been granted, members of the Belleville Fire Department went into session last evening at the Firehall, where the rules and regulations of the organization were accepted and a separate organization formed.

Following routine business of the meeting the following officers of the Belleville branch of the International Association was sworn in by Chief President, Deputy Fire Chief Gerald Vance; 1st Vice President, F. Ferguson; Treasurer, James MacDonald; Secretary, C. Hall; Trustees, W. Orr, Jack Thompson, O. Greatrix; Guide, S. Waddell; Inside Guardian, A. Hall.

An invitation has been extended to Mr. Fred Hall, Vice President of the International Association, Eastern Section, to be present at the installation of the new officers at a date to be decided. A fine new future. A handsome framed charter, indicative of the local firefighters' association with the International Association has been received by the local branch and occupies a prominent place in Fire Hall No. 1.

Officers of the local branch of the Provincial Federation of Ontario Firefighters elected at the annual meeting held recently are: President, Ed. Weaver; Vice-President, J. Darbell; 2nd. Vice-President, Thomas Thompson; James MacDonald; Secretary, G. L. O'Flynn; Inside, F. Orr; Jack Adams, F. Orr; Inside Guardian, S. McDonald.

WICHITA DEFEATS OILERS

Wichita, Kas., Jan. 7 (AP)—Wichita Skyhawks defeated Tulsa Oilers 3-1 last night in an American Hockey Association game that was featured by fights. Paddy scored the winning goal, Galbraith netted two for Wichita, the first and Bailey for Tulsa in the second.

EARTHQUAKE FELT

LONDON, Jan. 7.— (AP)— An earthquake, estimated from Beligrangan records to be about to be almost as forceful as the quake in the Indian valley region in which 30,000 persons were killed in May 1935, was registered in London today.

Experts said the needles moved between 32 and seven degrees. The earthquake was estimated to have occurred approximately 4,700 miles away, apparently either in Central Asia or the West Indies.

Toccoa, Wash., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Nellie Ackland, about 70 years of age, died in hospital last night as a result of her cross burns suffered when she worked in the kitchen of her house. It was impossible to obtain a statement from her owing to the serious nature of her burns, but it was believed Mrs. Ackland a widow had lighted her gas stove and threw the match into a coal scuttle. Coal oil from the flames communicated to her dress. Alarmed by her screams, her son, Edgar Ackland and sister, Miss D. Campbell hurried to her assistance and succeeded in putting out the fire but not before she had been severely burned.
Mrs. Ackland was the widow of Dr. Ackland of Toccoa and came early in life from the vicinity of Cornwall, Ont. She survives.

OFFICERS ARRESTED
Toronto, Jan. 7 (CP)—Provincial Constable Harry Vernon, traffic officer at Richmond Hill, was arrested here early today on a charge of reckless driving. In police court he was remanded for one week on bail of $500.

Pope Pius Reported Near Unconsciousness

Vatican City, Jan. 7—(AP)—Sinking spells in which he frequently drifted to the borderline of unconsciousness were reported today to have afflicted Pope Pius' XI for the last 48 hours.

Informed sources said the holy father's medical attendants were being called repeatedly to rally him from the attacks.

Dr. Amleto Milani, the chief physician, was reported to have spent all of last night in the papal apartments within call in case of an emergency.

The cardinal heading congregations, or executive departments of the church have been asked not to leave Rome because of the Pontiff's illness, reliable sources said.

Stravinsky Opens Tour at Massey Hall

Toronto, Jan. 7—(CP)—Igor Stravinsky, the Russian composer, opened his North American tour at Massey Hall last night by conducting the Toronto Symphony orchestra in two of his works.

Greatly first important composer to visit Toronto since Maurice Ravel in 1926, directed the orchestra through Petrushka and The Fire-Bird Suite.

He was recalled many times by the applause of an audience most of whom were not in formal evening attendants. This was the first international guest conductor the orchestra ever had.

CHATTERTON WALK

Tuesday, Jan. 5, 1937, a missionary dinner provided by the Chatterton W.M.S., was held in the home of Mrs. F. Lough, the weather was most favorable and a large number were present to enjoy the splendid meal provided. The sum of $11.50 was realized.

After dinner the ladies had their monthly meeting with fifteen members present. The president, Mrs. B. Sleeper, opened the meeting with hymn 671, prayer, Rev. Horton. Roll call and minutes were given by the secretary Mrs. J. Frederick. Reading from Missionary Monthly read in unison, also General Thanksgiving found in the hymnary. Reports of the various secretaries were given. It was moved and carried that $12.00 be given towards the Missionary and Maintenance Fund. Four members paid fees for 1937. Hymn 338 was sung, and reading was given by Mrs. Sleeper, Mrs. M. B. Fralick, Mrs. Hudson, Mrs. Frederick, Mrs. Bleecker. Temperance reading, Miss L. Horton.

Mrs. F. Campbell group leader took charge. The members responded: Devotional Leaflet, Mrs. F. Lough; poem, Mrs. P. Meads, reading, Mrs. M. Fralick, Mrs. F. Campbell and Mrs. B. Mills. Hymn 486 was sung, after which Mrs. (Herr.) Horton closed with prayer.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"3 Men on a Horse"

"Three Men on a Horse" galloped to smashing success yesterday at the Capitol Theatre. One might say that this Warner National comedy-drama was a "natural" for screen-film won, by a good many lengths, the Comedy Sweepstakes of 1936. It has been running a month since anything so amusing has been seen locally. And the fun is distinctly clitheran.

The climax of the mad little shyamster who makes a precarious living by writing greeting card verses—and has an uncanny facility for picking winners of horse races, although he never bets on one—is even more laugh-provoking than the scenes that go before—which is saying a great deal. For the play is still going strong on Broadway, though well into the second year—and seven road companies are touring in it in the States—and one in Australia.

"Three Men on a Horse" features those two popular purveyors of comedy—Frank McHugh and Joan Blondell.

McHugh, in private as the timid finale-writing Erwin (pronounced Owvin) and Joan, as her devoted sweetheart, the "horse" player, etc. chorus girl whose rough-neck boy-friend plans to body-guard Owvin after he has been made an unwilling guinea pig. Carol Hughes as Owvin's weepy wife, is quite the proper combination of pulchritude and punishment—and Guy Kibbee will never been more pepperishly pompous than in his role of Owvin's father-in-law.

Erwin, by it known, keeps secret his gift for choosing the winner, jotting his prognostications and imaginary winnings in a small book—which he—with flock—and takes to a pool that he is two-lamb her. So she has upbraided him one day to the point of desertion—and added fuel to this his bone orders him to do fifty 'Mother's Day greeting card verses before noon. It is then he and Owvin hotshoe himself to the gin mill presided over by Mr. Kennedy—as he trop and bounces.

There the fates conspire for—and against him.

In the saloon he sees three small time gangsters enter by Alan Jenkins, Teddy Hart and Sam Levene—the latter two from the stage production. Since they are discussing the horses, Erwin dares to offer a tip. They laugh him down, and pooling their money on the other horse—not believing that he has something—they imprison him and proceed to take full title and put themselves in the money.

They forget to lock the hose that he is ill—and when his wife hears this she rools out the police and a city-wide search is begun. The three gamblers and the girl have Owvin in a state of wild confabulation when his wife and the hose burst in. What follows must be seen to be appreciated. It is enough to say that Owvin is no longer a worm of the earth—that his wife is now quite proud of the change.

This is one picture which no one with a sense of humor should miss. Forget your troubles at "Three Men on a Horse" shown today and Friday at 2.10, 7.40 and 9.45.

On Friday nite at 9 o'clock we are presenting another of our fun-provoking "Auction Nites" where we buy and sell articles as are called for by the auctioneer, from the audience, for cash. Here's your chance to earn a few dollars an easy way. We buy—you sell for cash. Come and enjoy the fun.

AT THE BELLE

"Dodsworth"

As a novel, Sinclair Lewis' "Dodsworth" was a best-seller. Adapted to the stage by Sidney Howard, with Walter Huston in the role, it was a smash hit and ran almost two years on Broadway. Now, translated into celluloid by the same writer, with Huston again playing Sam Dodsworth and given a magnificent production by Samuel Goldwyn, "Dodsworth" has found its ideal form. Combining all the best features of the book and the play, and adding several of its own, "Dodsworth" emerged on the screen of the Belle theatre last night as the finest piece of entertainment we have seen in many months.

Brilliantly acted by a perfect cast, headed by Huston, Ruth Chatterton, David Niven, Mary Astor and Paul Lukas, this absorbing film tells the story of Sam Dodsworth, a hard-working, successful, middle-aged business man who retires to travel.

Fran Finds Romance

Sam looks to Europe as a place to rest and dabble in culture, but to his pretty, selfish and adored wife Fran, (Ruth Chatterton), it means the last thing at romance before facing middle age.

The Dodsworth sail on the maiden voyage of the "Queen Mary" and Fran finds romance almost at once with a handsome young Englishman, Major Lockert (Niven). The flirtation ends badly, however, when she discovers he is married.

In Paris, Fran deserts poor Dodsworth for the more glamorous company of the questionable Mme. de Penable (Odette Myrtil), and her friends the worldly Arnold Iselin, Koltan and the handsome young Kurt Von Obersdorf, an impoverished Austrian aristocrat (Gregory Gaye).

Dodsworth Finds Love

When she gets involved with Iselin, Dodsworth forgives her. But when Kurt She's magnificent acts and Omar Khan's breath-taking array of costumes are in keeping with the smart, lavish tone of production. "Dodsworth" will be repeated again tonight, and Friday, and Incise and evening and should tap your "must see" list.

Kirma and "Tarzan"

Kirma, the world's master psychic and psychologist, who for ten years has had a following in public phenomena comes to the fine stage Saturday for one entire week, with matinees for ladies and gentlemen on Wednesday. Kirma will answer written and sealed questions pertaining to lost or stolen articles, health, business, success, love, courtship, marriage. In fact any sensible question you may care to ask.

On the screen the all new, different "Tarzan" picture will be presented co-starring Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan.

Kirma, the world's master psychic, the featured stage attraction at the Belle for one week, commencing Saturday, January 9th, matinee daily.

Diamond Wedding Jubilee Marked by Crookston Couple

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jones, Sr., Entertain Over Thirty Guests

RECOLLECTIONS

On New Year's Day, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jones Sr., of Crookston, celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding. Over thirty guests were entertained at dinner. Pink and white decorations were used throughout.

Mrs. Jones was formerly Mary Ellen Pye, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John B. Pye of Ivanhoe.

Mr. Jones was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jones of 6th concession of Tyendinaga. He was born in 1855. They were married January 1, 1877 by Rev. Kilgour, Thomasburg circuit, and since then have carried on their occupation of farming, residing at Glenden East, Richmond Township, Thurlow Township, Madoc Village and Huntingdon Township, where they now reside.

They have four children, Effie, Mrs. Thos. Francis of Stirling; Twin daughters, Sadie, Mrs. Bert Bates of Windsor and Lula, Mrs. Ezra Smith of Arnprior. One son, Artie Jones who also resides near Crookston. There are 21 grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

Weather's Difference

While comparing conditions of then and now several important changes were noted. On January 1, 1877, the temperature was 40 degrees below zero, and the snow was from 5 to 6' deep, the journey of 35 miles from the groom's home to that of the bride taking 6 hours with horse and cutter. On January 1, 1937, the weather was exceptionally mild, no snow and the journey that distance in less than one hour.

In his youth, Mr. Jones often walked three miles and was ready to start work at sunrise, crediting still sunset for $1 per day. Binders were unheard of, all crops being harvested with cradle, hook and scath.' In the lumber camps during the winter he would receive the same wage for himself and team. The regular bill of fare being bread, beef and blackstrap with no variation. Mr. Jones is an accomplished violinist and has furnished music for many parties throughout the country.

He also recounted having cut body hardwood and loaded it on the train at Crookston for $2.00 per cord. Their diary revealed that she was recorded for a dozen eggs and 15c for a pound of butter.

Work With Hands

Mrs. Jones was also a very busy woman as there were no labor saving devices at that time. Socks and mittens had to be knitted by hand, rugs had to be woven, wool picked, carded and spun to make sheets and blankets. Bees were called at home and butter churned with a dasher for all these family needs. She also does beautiful needlework, embroidery and crochet and is very fond of reading. Despite all these home duties if a neighbor was sick or in trouble she was sick and needed assistance she was always willing to help.

Mr. Jones has been a member of the Orange Lodge for the past 64 years and next year on July 12, he played the drum for the celebration.

They are members of the United Church at White Lake.

Mr. Jones is in his 82nd year and Mrs. Jones in her 79th year. They both enjoy very good health, live alone and do their own work.

During the afternoon they were presented with a purse of money, a lovely pink and white creation in full bloom, and an engraved silver bread tray. They also received several messages and cards of congratulation.

Address is Read

An address was read by Mrs. Francis—

"These anniversary gifts we bring
To you our Dad and Mother
In tokens of our love sincere
The love of one another
Long may you live and health enjoy,
For many years to come
Till time marches on from day to day,
And we shall close with these lines
From the poet who can so ably express our wishes, for you.

FILM STAR A SUICIDE

Ross Alexander, 26-year-old film actor, was found shot to death in a barn on his Hollywood estate. Police believe Alexander committed suicide.

—Central Press Canadian Photo

"Twas sixty years ago today,
A long, long time 'tis true,
When you were wed, but yet 'no
'Tis but a day to you.

You looked on life with youthful smile,
And pledged your life anew,
To work for each, and each for both,
That dreams might all come true.

You worked for happiness and found it,
Where friends would gladly meet,
The loving grasp of tiny hands,
The sound of little feet.

Too many cares of childhood days,
Of selfless things to do
The trials, the cares, the joys of home,
Brought happiness to you.

Time marches on from day to day,
Your boys and girls have grown,
Prepared and fitted for life's work,
In circles of their own.

Lift up your heads with joy and pride,
With thankful hearts and true,
Please don't forget dear old White
Lake,
Is meeting here with you.

We prize your love, your kindly smile,
Through all the years gone by,
We can't repay those deeds of love,
We can but humbly try.

These anniversary gifts we bring,
Are from your White Lake friends,
As tokens of our love sincere,
Who loves his fellowmen.

Long may you live and health
enjoy,
For many years to come.
Another sixty years; so we
May find you still at home.

Crookston, Ont.
Jan. 1st, 1937.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Jones—
We, your friends and neighbours of White Lake Church, have gathered in your home on this New Year's night, to wish you much happiness and prosperity in the New Year of 1937 and celebrate with you your sixtieth wedding anniversary.

It is remarkable indeed that having spent sixty years of married life together, you are still able to enjoy the labours and pleasures of every day life; and it is our sincere wish that you may long be able to do so.

These small anniversary gifts we present to you not for their intrinsic value but as a tangible way of showing our esteem and good-will. We shall close with these lines from the poet who can so ably express our wishes, for you.

DUTCH ROYAL WEDDING BELLS

From one of those little countries which have lived in quiet, or at least outward calm while a world fought, signed peace, and tried recovery and then raced into armament-bearing, came today the sounds of one of those events ever dear, in time of peace or in time of war—sounds of wedding bells, marking the nuptials of the Crown Princess of Holland, the 27-year-old Juliana, who has wed a German Prince, Bernard von Lippe-Biesterfeld.

For one day at least the world's ears were not dinned with the rattle of rifles, the lumbering rumble of caterpillar wheels of tanks or the dull relentless tireless tread of men on the march. It was the sound of wedding bells in the land famed for its canals, its rich soil and its wealth of tulip growth.

People who like to say striking things may point to a few years only of peace throughout the world in a couple of thousand years' time—of course their inference that the world has been at war nearly all the time is faulty—but wedding bells have been heard more than the shivering of arrows or the splatter of lead or the screaming shower of shells.

Marriage marches on, one of the great principles of life; war is only a part-time occupation soon, it is hoped, to be outlawed by world sense of justice. Wedding bells are greater than the scream of shells. The bells toll of life and happiness, spread the glad feelings throughout the neighborhood in town or city, or over the countryside or even across a nation and a world.

In the Dutch scene there is a quaintness, which pleases, the Dutch civil wedding followed by the religious service. Then a peasant girl named after Juliana, the Princess, was wedded at the same time, a symbol of the crown's close association with the people.

The Dutch royal wedding is unique to the rest of the world in that it is a Princess who weds and brings one who will some day be king consort into the royal family. But this is nothing new for Holland for the present Queen Wilhelmina's husband was royal consort. Royal weddings are not so plentiful as they once were, for monarchies have fallen on evil days in many lands. In Holland the Princess who wed today will some day, if she lives, be Queen and it is no wonder that great interest attaches to her wedding.

So today when the Dutch Princess went to the townhall and there was married the heart of mankind wished for her happiness. A princess Juliana is, but first of all a woman and therefore sister to all womankind of the world.

THE CALENDAR

At this season of the year when the year is young, and holidays are over, the question of calendar reform naturally comes up. Last year the plan received new indorsation in America at a labor conference in Santiago, Chile, favoring the perpetual calendar of twelve months of equal quarters, and at Geneva at an international labore conference. In Britain, the Federation of Chambers of the Empire endorsed calendar reform long such lines. The Central Statistical Board of the United States, composed of officials representing all departments of government expressed opinion in favor of an international conference to decide on one of the two plans submitted. Churches also favor reform.

Though there appears this approval of such a plan, it will naturally come slowly for it will have to be practically universal and no doubt many changes will result. The Romans originally had ten months in the year, that will explain why the last four months of the year September, October, November and December which mean seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth months became the ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth months when the Romans added January and February. Caesar rearranged the old Roman calendar to make 365 days with leap year once in four years. Until 1582 this calendar was observed but Pope Gregory finding that the vernal equinox was ten days ahead of the place it occupied on the callendar, so reformed the Julian calendar to allow leap year only in every century year divisible by four hundred. Such century years as 1800, 1900, 2100, and so on being common years and not leap years. Britain did not adopt the Gergorian calendar until 1753. The Greek church still follows the old calendar and is 13 days behind the actual time.

This indicates that the calendar has suffered changes which include many, not mentioned above for the history of the calendar has been a varied one.

The voice of parents is the voice of gods, for to their children they are heaven's lieutenants.—Shakespeare.

SIDELIGHTS ON THE HOME FORUM

Discussing the events of the day, home gossip and general news topics as revealed by the home newspaper—under the evening lamps and around the Glow and Coal. — Supervised by The Lamplighter

BOOTLEGGING COAL IS THE NEWEST CRIME IN WHICH OTHERWISE NICE PEOPLE PARTICIPATE. In the coal regions bordering Pennsylvania there is much abandoned coal mining territory, mines closed down by the big mining operators. Miners thrown out of work by the closing of the mines have been mining on their own hook with cheap and crude machinery, and mostly hand labor, appropriating the coal and trucking it to the cities for sale. Naturally the owners of the mining property have complained loud and long, but nothing seems to be done about it, and local sympathy is decidedly with the miners who are making a bare living stealing the coal. Governor George H. Earle, of Pennsylvania, and state officials have visited the workings and talked with miners, but are loth to make any repressive action and the miners say that any interference will mean bloodshed. A State Commission has been appointed to investigate the whole matter and report.

THE STORY OF THE GOAT WHICH ATE THE RED SHIRT IT STOLE FROM THE CLOTHES LINE and was sentenced to death by being tied on a railroad track —where it coughed up the red shirt and flagged the train—may or may not be true, but here's a true story of a goat which stopped a train in Texas, a Nanny goat. A sick child in a Pullman—goat's milk diet—accident to thermos bottle, no more goat's milk for the child—train-conductor informed despatcher—goat's milk despatched on express following—Express halted at first available siding—until overtaken by train bearing goat's milk—child's life saved. Just part of the service modern railways give.

PATIENTS DISCHARGED FROM HOSPITAL OFTEN NEED CONSIDERABLE CARE. Dr. Howard Kelly, noted surgeon of Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, personally pays nurses to follow up cases discharged and minister to their needs while convalescing. Just one of the many philanthropies which this great humanitarian indulges in. Over seventy he spends two months in the Canadian woods each summer where he renews his strength for a vigorous ten months work caring for the sick, injured and unfortunate.

IT'S A SAFE GUESS THAT RADIO ADVERTISERS in this year of grace 1937 will look more particularly into the question of circulation. With only a few of the radio headliners attracting regular audiences of any size it would seem that a whole lot of easy money is being spread on thin air and little into receptive ears. Folks are getting fed up with most radio programs and there will be fewer listeners even on the program with the highest priced stars. They are just not putting it across, evidently finding that the preparing of new programs with pep and ginger is a tremendous job.

A SILK-WORM FARM IN ENGLAND is a novelty but Lady Millicent Zoe Hart Dyke, nee Bond, wife of Engineer Sir Oliver Hamilton Augustus Hart Dyke, Bart is operating such a farm and producing raw silk on a practical scale. Inheritance tax of $250,000 had something to do with the start of the silk-worm industry in this particular case. Lady Dyke is doing a rushing business and has orders for imperial purple coronation gowns to be made from her silk for the new Queen and the Duchesses of Gloucester and Kent. Lady Dyke has 21 acres of mulberry bushes, tended by partly disabled war veterans. Her worms eat 300 pounds of leaves daily, are kept in trays in the biggest rooms of Lullington Castle, the ancestral estate. The girls who gather the cocoons and reel off the silk threads are sent abroad for training. The fabric is woven on medieval looms by an enthusiastic slim-fingered girl named Lily Lee at the rate of three yards a week. By last week Lily Lee had woven 42 yards, more than enough for the three royal robes ordered for the Coronation ceremonies.

LESSON APPLIED

The teacher had given his class a lesson in courtesy. The following day, while examining the home lessons, his eyes lit up with pleasure when he found an all-correct paper.

"Jones," he called to the successful pupil, "I am very pleased with you. All your answers are correct. But why have you put quotation marks to all of them"

"Out of courtesy to father, sir," came the reply.

Another Raid, Another Wreck, More Madrid Deaths

Humanity can grow accustomed to anything — even to bombing raids that turn cities into flaming wreckage and citizens into corpses. Madrid has grown thus accustomed. Crews like the one shown at work here are working night and day in the loyalist Spanish capital, digging into piles or smashed debris to clear the streets and to find the injured and dead. The last raid of rebel bombers before this picture was taken claimed upwards of 100 lives.

Personals

Stirling High School Hockey team took to the ice for the first time this season after school hours on Wednesday of this week and defeated Jr. C. Goodland, principal of the school, and G. L. Thain, Public School teacher were present to look over the possibilities and were greatly impressed by the showing of some of the boys. Both these gentlemen are heartily invited in all kinds of sport and under their supervision the local rugby team will be ready to go the championship without losing a game. Whether the scribe pays or passes sufficient hockey sticks to repeat that, in the winter sport remains to be seen. The boys are very much interested and will no doubt receive public support when the team is finally picked. The matter of arranging a schedule with the neighbouring town and High Schools has not yet been completed.

Mrs. Peter Maither and son, left on Thursday for Port Arthur and Calgary, Alta., after spending the last six weeks visiting relatives in Stirling and district.

Mr. Tulloch who expects to spend the greater part of the winter months in the east found his native town very much changed since the time he left it. At the present time he is visiting at the home of his sister, Col. and Mrs. D. Green at Bayside. Mrs. and Mr. McGee and Mr. Henry Tulloch of Stirling, are sister and brother also and no doubt spent enjoyable time visiting in Stirling, before his return to the West.

Special Week of Prayer Services Well Attended

Special prayer services being held this week under the direction of all the major Protestant churches of the village, which united for the observance of this nation-wide interdenominational event are attracting a much larger attendance of people than in former years. The first of these services was held in the evening of Monday, and all was well filled. Rev. James R. Seeker of Rawdon United Church Circuit was the special speaker for the evening and delivered a forceful and helpful address. The second of such meetings took place in the Methodist church of St. Paul's United Church on Tuesday evening and the rooms were filled to capacity with an interested group of worshippers who were greatly benefited by the inspirational message set forth by Rev. J. A. Kofford, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, who was in charge of the service. The second meeting held in St. Paul's church and the third in the north section was held on Wednesday evening and attended with equal success by Rev. Canon Swayne of St. Mark's Church Bonarlaw, delivered the message on the conclusion of the devotional services thus far have not been without success from every viewpoint. The concentration of Stirling's forces in the interests of greater and a united effort toward making these meetings both helpful and interesting creates a strong feeling of Christian fellowship among the members and adherents of all denominations.

The remaining meetings are to be held as follows:—Thursday evening at St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, when the message will be presented by Rev. W. J. Scott of St. Paul's United church. The final meeting of the week will also be held at St. Andrew's church on Friday evening when the speaker will be Rev. A. S. McConnell of St. John's Anglican church.

CROWN PRINCESS

ter Hitler of Germany to Queen Wilhelmina dispelled any fear the Netherlands royal family and Nazi alumni 1901 would not be the "family wedding" the queen had hoped for.

Possibility of an international incident which had troubled the nation during the gay week of pre-nuptial festivities was believed ended by Hitler's message wishing the Crown Princess happiness in marriage.

Other Juliana Weds

At the same time, in the little farm village of Lisse, Holland, simple farmer folk gathered to attend the civil marriage of "the other Juliana".

The peasant girl and Martinus von Blijle, her sailor-fiancee, shared the nation's rejoicing because—both Julianas having been born the same month—the wedding of 27 years agotheir's was the only other wedding permitted in Holland today.

Among the most interested spectators in imposing St. James Dutch Reformed Church where Queen Wilhelmina was married 36 years ago to Juliana's father, Prince Hein Prince Consort Henry, were those who paid a total of $19,200 for 1,200 seats. Their money helped heat and decorate the edifice.

"Other Juliana"

Leyden, the Netherlands, Jan. 7 (AP)—Petronella Van Der Meer, Holland's "other Juliana", was married today to Martinus Van Blijle, a canal boatman, in the little village of Oostgeest.

"The other Juliana" was given royal consent to marry today despite a ban on other weddings because she and the Crown Princess were born the same hour of the same day 27 years ago.

The civil marriage rites were performed in the first class wedding chamber of the town hall. The third class chamber would have been free, but Petronella and Martinus, who had waited for five years for this memorious day in their lives, decided to marriage at the 10-guilder ($3.80) fee.

Entire Village Attends

The marriage ceremony for the "other Juliana" and her bankman brought the entire population of the little village to the town hall.

Since the bargemaster was ill, his secretary officiated and somewhat blushily told the couple:

"Your marriage would not have been noticed had it not been celebrated on the Princess' marriage day."

After the civil ceremony, the bridal party walked from the town hall to the Roman Catholic church where the wedding was consecrated by Father T. De Vetter, the parish priest.

W. S. Gordon Re-Elected President Of Tweed Amusements, Ltd.

Tweed.—The annual meeting of the shareholders of Tweed Amusements Ltd., was held in the Council Chamber on Monday night. The attendance was the smallest since the company was organized owing to various causes. The following financial statement was presented by the Secretary-Treasurer, W. H. Beatty.

Receipts—

Balance on hand	$ 84.23
Skating receipts	1,281.68
Hockey receipts	360.80
Season tickets	175.00
Community Club donation	15.00
Rebate Assessment Tax	.50
Carnival	1.90
	1331.67

Expenditures—

Fixtures	$ 14.21
Operating Costs	376.66
Amusements Tax	46.94
Salaries	182.31
Insurance	75.06
Taxes	427.61
Interest on Mortgage	94.00
Hockey Teams	278.70
Miscellaneous	2.00
Balance on hand	36.62
	1331.67

Receipts from hockey matches and skating showed an increase of nearly $125 over the previous season.

The following directors were re-elected for 1937: W. S. Gordon, president; T. N. Beatty, Secretary-Treasurer; Jas. Ryan, Felix Rachiele, T. R. Mathis, L. D. Corrozan, S. R. McGee.

Tweed arena was built in 1927 at a cost of $6,000 including the land. Of this amount $4,780 was raised by the sale of shares. Of the balance upwards of $2,000 was paid off from the receipts from the hockey matches and skating during the years 1927, 1928 and 1929. In the following year there was a deficit, continuing for several years. At the present time a mortgage of $1,500 is standing against the arena. Considerable discussion took place as to ways and means of wiping out the mortgage. It was finally decided that a determined effort should be made to do so by the sale of additional shares, from many of the present shareholders and others who having taken up their residence in Tweed during recent years have signified their willingness to purchase additional shares and that difficulty is anticipated in raising the necessary funds to wipe off the mortgage in the space of three or four years.

The following is the original list of shareholders: W. S. Gordon, Jas. Ryan, J. F. Hanley, C. H. Kerr, Myles & Son, T. S. Reid, Wm. Ryan, Louis Rachiele, W. H. Beers, W. R. Tuesnon, W. A. Beatty, Mrs. (Rev.) A. D. Wallis, W. J. Bellerson, R. H. Beatty, A. A. Donnelly, F. Hindle, Mrs. T. E. Moffat, R. S. Hopkins, H. W. Ashley, A. E. Lloyd, G.D.C. Morton, D. H. Morrison, S. McCollum, Dr. H. A. Paul, J. F. Trudeau, A. C. Blakely, Tom Breen, John Beatty, F. C. Bowers, Earl Beatty, Jack Brennan, F. J. Hunter, C. G. Davey, Austin Francis, E. Leach, A. J. Haynes, A. W. McGuire, Pat McIlroy, S. R. McGee, M. Palmer-Leal, R. Leard, John Lowes, Mrs. A. Lucas, Jas. Mills, Jas. L. McGowan, F. McGowan, M. Patterson, J. Tice, H. Purdy, Fred Rodgers, A. Shoalr, Tom Bedore, M. R. Sayers, A. W. Sherry, H. Trumpour, Cha. Thompson, Gordon Thompson, Harris Way, C. Woods, Ed Wright, A. Yule.

Of the original list of shareholders, nine have died, and thirty-one have moved away from Tweed.

4 AMERICAN AVIATORS THROUGH WITH WAR

Paris, Jan. 6—(AP)—Four disillusioned American aviators announced today they were through with Reds and, furthermore, they were through with civil wars.

The quadrumvirate—Burt Acosta, Frederick Lord, Gordon Berry and Eddie Schneider—who led the Spanish government's "Yankee squadron" on the Basque front in the far north.

The fliers, also protested they were given nothing but unmanageable sports planes with which to fight wily Russian pilots were assigned "regular American army planes."

The American warplanes were said to be machines built in Russia through contracts giving the Soviet government permission to copy American models.

Influenza Cases Mount in Colorado

Denver, Colo., Jan. 7—(AP)—Deaths from influenza-pneumonia mounted to 108 today in the Rocky mountain States.

Carl P. Schwalb, Denver health manager, estimated there were "at least 20,000 cases" in Denver—one out of every 15 inhabitants. He said deaths totalled 78 for the epidemic to date.

At Billings, Mont., Dr. Ret M. Farr, county physician, said 1,000 persons—a fifth of the city's population—had contracted flu. He reported six recent deaths.

Denver schools remained closed after the holidays and the general hospital here has been turned over to influenza cases exclusively.

WORKER IS KILLED IN ELEVATOR SHAFT

Kitchener, Ont., Jan. 7—(CP)—Sam Perchaluk, Kitchener, was killed in the elevator shaft of the J. M. Schneider Packing Company's plant on Courtland Ave.

Perchaluk, a meter miker for the Dunker Construction Company which firm is erecting a new factory for the packing company, was found lying on the floor of the plant with his head and shoulders inside the elevator shaft which had descended upon him.

He had apparently been trying to take two wheel barrows into the elevator shaft when the accident occurred. No one saw the mishap. An inquest has been ordered by Dr. Hoenberger.

Speed Ban on Arms Export Desire Shown by Congress

President's Message Shortest on Record Does Not Enter Details

STATE OF UNION

Washington, Jan. 7—(AP)— The United States Congress pushed action on Spanish arms embargo, but turned aside first to hear an optimistic report by President Roosevelt on the state of the union.

Differences over spending, monetary and other policies were forgotten in a general desire to speed the ban after the State Department reluctantly issued two permits to export $7,264,000 in munitions and airplanes to Spain.

All space in the House Chamber had been spoken for in advance amid suspense over the projected embargo and uncertainty about what the President would say.

He chose to make the message one of the shortest on record, leaving his detailed program to the budget message later in the week, the inaugural address and periodic recommendations thereafter.

How much money the administration will seek to carry relief through June remained a question. If the pace of the last six months is to be maintained, at least $700,000,000 will be needed.

Patriarch of Antioch Honors Toronto Artist with Title

Joseph Hilpert Becomes 'Patriarchal Secret Councillor'

IS NOTED PAINTER

Toronto, Jan. 7—(CP)—Joseph Hilpert, Toronto artist, today received a scroll from the Patriarch of Antioch, head of the Greek Catholic Church, bestowing on him the title of Patriarchal Secret Councillor for "zealous and beneficial support of the church." Mayor W. D. Robbins made the presentation at City Hall.

Hilpert claims he is the only Canadian artist to paint King Edward VIII after "personal study."

He also has done portraits of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

The artist did the portrait of King Edward after studying his features for two hours while the former monarch was visiting the British Industries Fair last, February. The portraits of King George and Queen Elizabeth, he painted from official photographs.

Hilpert, says, however, his most profitable piece of work was a miniature of Prinster Hepburn which he painted with a single hair from a brush on the one-eighth inch surface of a bloodstone. The portrait, a face of a bloodstone. The portrait, a face so small the only way to see it properly is through double magnifying glasses.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was reeding the avertisments in the paper, saying to pop. Here it is, Willyum, just what I've been unconsciously looking for, a clock with real Westminster chimes for only 13 dollers and 49 cents at Scrumptious while they last.

I suppose that means after they're all gone there wont be any left till they get some more in, pop said, and Ma said, I must go down there the first thing in the morning, or maybe I'll even telefone, there's nothing like being an early worm for these special limited sales. I've always admired Mister Nieve's clock with the Westminister chimes. I could listen to those chimes forever and now just think I've got a 13 doller and 49 cent chance to own a clock like that myself and hear the chimes every 15 minnits, she said.

Every how much, for Pete sake? pop said, and ma said, Every 15 minnits they strike the quarter hour, getting longer and longer and repeating the full striange tune at the hour. That's how you can tell just what quarter it is being struck, isn't it a lovely idea? she said.

I dont deny it's an idea, pop said. Do you mean to say I'll have to sit here nite after nite, shrinking in my chair and my chair and brething an agonized sigh of relief every 15 minnits, only to wait overeying and trembling another quarter of a hour and so on and so on until something gives way, and it proberly wont be the clock? said, and ma said, Now Willyum, you know very well that the Westminister chimes are so terrific as they are fambus, so dont make up a lot of nonsense. Why should I want to deprive me of such a simple pleasure? she said.

Nothing is ferther from my thawts, pop said. Is there some arrangement on the clock to turn the chimes off if you like? I mean if you dont like? he said, and ma said, Now Willyum dont you dare touch it, the leest such a thawt, were in the house, now I dont even know if I'll get one or not. I proberly wouldn't be able to tern my back on it while you were in the house. Which she hasn't so far.

WHAT DID YOU BUY WHEN YOU BOUGHT THIS PAPER?

FIRST, of course, you bought the news from the far-off corners of the world. Late news and live news, covering all the countless interests and activities of all peoples.

Then, too, you bought the local news—about the recent doings of people you know, announcements of coming events, intimate details of your own special circle.

And, what more?... Aren't you forgetting the vital news items in the advertising columns? Items of immediate interest and real importance to you and yours. News of better buys in food and clothes and things for the house. News that you must watch closely and constantly—if you expect to make your money do its job.

This new year, form the fine habit of following the advertisements with an eagle eye. It will save you money and help you live a richer life.

PICTURE REMOVAL IS PROTESTED

Claim Duke of Windsor's Photo Should Remain in Legion Hall

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Jan. 7—(CP)—Removal of the picture of the Duke of Windsor from the walls of the Canadian Legion club rooms here after his abdication, brought a protest at last night's meeting by the Legion and assurance of the club that the picture of the Duke would be placed on the walls again when a suitable picture of George VI. had been obtained.

Mr. Rowe said it would be indecorous to leave the former King's picture in a place of honor when he was no longer on the throne. "We could hardly leave a Duke up there. I know you all want a picture of the Duke of Windsor in the building and I feel that is right. We have a Duke of Windsor picture up in some proper place." Cheers from veterans greeted this remark.

Protest was made by T. Peak who asked President H. Tolley if the House Committee had the right to remove this property without permission of the executive.

"I refer to removal of the picture of the former King, now Duke of Windsor, from the place it formerly occupied," he said.

MATCH PENALTY FOR WILF FIELD

Defenceman of Eagles Hits Mclnenly Over Head With Stick

By The Canadian Press

Next time New Haven Eagles take the ice in an international-American Hockey League game they will have to get along without Wilf Field, for the Eagle defenceman drew a hatchet penalty at Providence last night for hitting Bert McInenly over the head with his stick.

Providence shellacked their visitors 5-1 and pushed them deeper into the eastern division. Alex Reid, kept within reach of Philadelphia's Ramblers, who scored a 3-2 win over Paloma at Cleveland. Ramblers pulled to within a point of Providence Indians at the top of the eastern division.

McInenly drew a major penalty for tangling with Field because he punched the New Haven rearguard. His another free of Cooper New Haven's Coste Commuhden drew a misconduct penalty for arguing about a minor penalty imposed for high-sticking Doggie Kuhn of Providence.

There was far less excitement at Cleveland where the Falcons, contenders of the western circuit, took it on the chin as Paloma pulled out from under a 2-0 deficit to tie the score in the second. A vicious onslaught that brought Ramblers four goals in the third acutlled Falcons effectively.

Counterfeiting Plant Is Reported Discovered

Cobourg, Jan. 7.—Police yesterday reported that equipment for manufacturing counterfeit coin had been discovered in the basement of a house here being cleaned up by new proprietors. Royal Canadian Mounted Police took possession of the plant.

The counterfeit equipment consisted of moulds for plaster casts, weights and pressure screws, and, besides, a number of United States and Canadian half-dollars, with a quantity of raw metal, were discovered.

Police said the coins were near-perfect, similar as milling and design, but licked proper weight and ring and were slightly off-color.

A number of the counterfeit coins were in circulation here a few months ago, they added.

RAWDON

Rawdon.—On Monday evening, January 4th, a large number of friends from Bethel community as well as relatives and friends from outside points gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McMullen to honour their daughter, Lauretta, and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Preston. Those present from Alhesa, Belleville, Centenary, Stirling, Springbrook, Mount Pleasant and Singleton. Rev. J. E. Bedell was master of ceremonies and a short programme was enjoyed. Master Bobby Elliott sang a solo with his mother as accompanist and Miss Elda McMullen sang a vocal solo with guitar accompaniment. Humorous readings were given by Miss Lauretta Scott and Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mr. C. U. Heath gave a brief address of appreciation on behalf of Bethel community, telling of the splendid assistance Lauretta had given to all departments of church work and wished the young couple every success in life.

Miss Helen Farrel read an address of appreciation and both Edward and Lauretta suitably replied thanking their friends for the array of lovely purses and inviting one and all to visit them when they were settled.

The young couple then opened the parcels revealing a splendid array of gifts including a dinner set, or dishes, a tea set, a cabinet of silver, beautiful piece of china and glass, linen tablecloths, and pillowslips, several pyrex articles and kitchen accessories.

A delicious lunch was served at the close and the assembly enjoyed a social half hour. All extended best wishes and greetings to the newlyweds as they departed homewards.

January 4th, 1937.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Preston.
Dear Lauretta and Ted:—

Your friends have congregated here this evening to tell you the utmost joy in your matrimonial ventures.

Both of you have practically grown up in this community and have been very well and favourably known so it is indeed a pleasure to learn that you have seen fit to continue life together in these surroundings.

Lauretta you have always been an active and willing member in our church, taking your place and organ, in choir, in league, or in Sunday School, always ready to use your bit with a cheery smile.

As for Ted, his friends all term him a "Regular Fellow."

And as you embark together on the sea of matrimony may the Great Pilot of all Pilots guide you safely and surely as He has done beyond the Plains". It is only natural that the sailing will not always be smooth and easy but with a laugh on the lips and a song in the heart the petty problems of life will soon be overcome.

It's curious what a sight of good a little thing will do,
How you can stop the fiercest storm
when it begins to brew,
An' take the sting from what comes rumored to rankle when 'twas spoke
By keeping still an' treatin' it as if it was a joke,
Yo'll find that we can fill a place
with smiles instead of tears,
An' keep the sunshine gleamin' through the shadows of the years
By life' laughin'.

With these few gifts goes the unanimous and sincere wish of health, happiness and prosperity for this New Year just begun and for many to follow.

Signed on behalf of Bethel community,

Helen Parrel
Ray Stine
Lauretta Scott
Lola Heath.

MUNICIPALITIES

Hawley Government Outlay.

"It means far higher government outlay for these services," he said. "Income tax principle would compensate for it. But it does give an even break to almost every municipality in Ontario."

At present provincial income tax is paid with the municipalities tokalled $2,248,000. Cost of the new social welfare policy would be about $3,000,000. The Dominion government now pays 75 per cent. of old-age pensions, the province 15 per cent. and the municipalities 10.

The province and municipalities carry the full burden of mothers' allowances on a 50-50 basis. Through the latest change, the five municipalities adversely affected, including Toronto, would lose from a few thousand to several hundred thousand dollars.

Study of last year civic budget estimates and recent report of the Toronto old-age pension board, indicates Toronto would lose $468,000 by the proposal retaining income tax revenues.

Cost Jumps Million.

Until the necessary legislation is passed with the legislative session, starting Jan. 19, the municipalities will carry on as at present.

When the government extended the scope of the Mothers Allowances Act to include mothers with only one child, costs jumped $1,000,000 a year, said Mr. Croll. His also added his statement local mothers' allowances and old-age pensions would be expected to continue playing prominent parts in future administration.

"We consider that the new policy is based on sound principle," he said. "It expressed our belief that the wealthy — the income taxpayers — should bear as far as possible the cost of the social services. We also want to lift a bit of the burden from the hard-pressed municipalities so that they in turn may reduce taxation on real estate. The rural municipalities, I believe, will especially benefit."

The minister stated with the depression the number of pensioners increased. When old-age pensions first appeared highest possible peak was placed at 22,000 but now there were 35,000, involving an expenditure of more than $12,000,000 annually.

Most Municipal Heads Approve.

Municipal heads throughout Ontario today examined their financial statements and generally gave a verdict of approval of the provincial government's new policy of assuming the cost of mothers' allowances and municipalities' share of old-age pensions.

Changes in the pension policy were announced by Hon. Peter Croll, Minister of Municipal Affairs, who estimated 65 per cent. of the province's municipalities would benefit. Losses could be expected by Toronto, London, Ottawa, Windsor and Brockville and the social welfare scheme would cost the government $3,000,000, he estimated.

Reaction of officials of Toronto will be the biggest loser was one of criticism. Mayor W. D. Robbins said the scheme gave Toronto "most unjust treatment."

The loss of $468,000 when the province assumed old age pensions and mothers' allowances and retained all income tax would add a half mill to the city tax rate, he stated.

Hamilton officials on the other hand estimated a saving of more than $50,000. If income revenues rose, however, the benefit would be wiped out, authorities believed.

Finance Commissioner S. R. Wait of St. Catharines saw the move as a "step in the right direction". He thought social costs should be paid in their entirety from income and should not be a tax on property.

Mayor G. R. Secord of Galt expressed satisfaction at the government's plan to assume cost of social legislation but did not approve of its retention of all revenue from the income tax.

Most municipal officials believed the new pension plan would prove to be good business for the province with prosperity returning.

Mayor Stanley Lewis of Ottawa declined to comment on Mr. Croll's announcement. The Minister of Municipal Affairs estimated the city would lose about $25,000 under the new policy.

Junior Redmen Defeat Tweed Tying Petes for Leadership; Locals Display Power, Speed

Score is 8-5 And Represents Edge Locals Held Over Losers

GAME ON MONDAY

Locals Can Lead Loop by Winning Over Peterboro

Playing a splendid style of hockey, that included scoring ability, back-checking, combination and all that goes to make up a sterling hockey game, the Belleville juniors pried off the 1937 hockey lid by defeating the Tweed juniors 9 to 5 in Tweed in a regular scheduled O.H.A. game last night. The homesters scored first, but Belleville soon evened matters and were never headed from that point until they staged a last period scoring rally to notch four goals and assure a clean-cut victory. The score by periods stood: 3 to 2 and 5 to 4 in favor of the junior "Redmen."

A large gallery was on hand to witness the current O.H.A. season in Tweed and to see their favourites absent their second defeat in the group inside of 48 hours. Tweed having previously lost to Peterboro by a score of 11 to 4, it was the second game of this series with the Belleville kids and the victory elevates them into a tie with Peterboro for the top position, a game which will be decided, when Peterboro comes to Belleville for a regular scheduled game on Monday night next, however. The junior Redmen trotted out nine new faces to junior company, Stoffer and "Mac" McCrory being the only last-overs from 1936.

The Thomas-led juniors flashed a splendid style of combination being unselfish and displaying dashing speed, which was more noticeable as the game progressed. Sharpe was steady in the nets and was afforded fine protection by Derry and McCreary. Mike Caley, Tompkins-Morgan forward line accounted for seven of the locals nine goals, most of which came from the result of combination play. Tompkins starred as Storms, Horsley and Robinson played steady hockey for the second line. "Tip" Thurmon, Cournoyea and Embury were the best bets around over the boards by the home team, Embury scoring four of the Tweed total. Tompkins with four, Bill Morgan with three, Robinson and Jackson were the marksmen for the locals.

Tweed Opens Scoring

Tweed opened the scoring as Embury came in alone and succeeded in on Sharpe to beat him with a hard low drive. Bill Morgan's goal on a rink-length threecornered combination with Caley, Cain and Tompkins in on the play, knotted the count. Tompkins put Belleville in the lead, which was short-lived, however, as "Tip" Thurmon sank the rubber for the tying counter and the period ended two-all. Embury scored after Cain's pass put Belleville in the penalty zone and Tompkins duplicated again Bellevue came back to its mates. Morgan and Jackson scored in succession for the locals men, but with nine seconds left Embury again scored for the home period opened with the count standing at 4 to 4 in favor of Belleville. Three goals - by Tompkins, one on a pass from Green and Osborne, and one by Robinson ran the locals' count to nine, while Embury sank Long's pass for a final goal and the game ended 9 to 5 for Belleville.

Both Belleville forward lines showed fine combination play, especially the starting line. With the first game of the season successfully checked away the midget Redmen are high in hopes of moving into the championship of group No. 2 in the O.H.A. when the Peterboro kids entertain the locals for their initial appearance on Monday next.

The lineups:

Belleville: Goal Sharpe, defence Derry and McCreary, centre Cain, wings Tompkins and Morgan, subs, Robinson, Horsley, Caley, Morgan and Jackson.

Tweed: goal Mouck, defence T. Thurmon and J. Thurmon, centre Cournoyea, wings Embury, Jones, Osborne, Merraw, Rivers, Courneyea, Raith and Arbor.

FLIERS DEFEAT PRESCOTT 5-1

Even Van Horne Trophy Series in Kingston Loop

Showing power on the attack, brilliancy on the defence and speedy galaxy, Trenton Air Force hockey squad evened the Van Horne trophy series in Kingston on Wednesday night, when they defeated Prescott 5-1. The third and final game will be played on Friday night and should Fliers have only to play back to their game of last night to repeat their work over the gandaien and all that goes with it. The Air base squad suffered but one defeat in the Kingston loop to date and they made amends in that reverse last evening, as 2,000 paid customers looked on. The majority of the decisions was directed in favor of the losers but as the game progressed, the crowd swung in behind the Fliers and they justified the confidence placed in them.

Prescott could offer an alibi for their defeat as they have been playing practically every night in the St. Lawrence League but even had they been at top form, they would have had a hard time stopping a well drilled squad, who showed no weakness in any position. The Fliers were on top 2-0 in the first frame and 3-0 at the end of the second. They added a fourth goal soon after the third period opened and Prescott scored a marker but that was soon rectified. Different from other games in the loop, the boys in the general rule stayed strictly to the business of playing hockey and when they have a full team on the ice they can show what it is all about. Partridge and Lalonde made a very hitting defence pair with Partridge attending the defence duties and Lalonde doing the rushing and his brilliant play earned him three goals. Lecompte scored the other Trenton goal and Scott crashed through for the second. Kennedy of Prescott gave the Fliers their third marker, when Lalonde's drive was deflected into the twine off Kennedy's stick.

Lecompte a Real Sub

Lecompte became the marksman for the fourth counter on a solo rush and Kennedy duplicated with their only tally, when he beat Chisholm with a hard drive from the centre of the ice to score. Cook in the Prescott net looked real good and he had but few real chances to stop the shots that beat him because the Fliers did not get the shots over right in on top of the goalie and Prescott could not capitalize. The first line of Cowley, Lowery and Eric McNeely was good going both ways, while Lecompte was also the best of the others shoved over the counters. Kennedy and the Brockville Magedonas seems to improve with each game and he was good for many of Prescott's pucks. Detzler also from the Brockville squad was a capable defenceman and the Fliers took the other side, when going into the defence. The game was well handled and it was a good hockey game most of the way. The lineups:

Trenton Air Force—Goal, Gibson; defence, Partridge, Lalonde; centre, Lowery; wings, Cowley, Eric McNeely; subs, Lecompte, Kelly, Ernie McNeely, Wingate, Lecompte.

Prescott—Goal, Cook; defence, McIntosh, Dexter; centre, Christy; wings, Kennedy, Turner; subs, Fisher, Fratura, Bowers.

Referees—Smith and Steen.

By Edna Robb Webster

They made desultory conversation. Love, and several times during the drive, Jed turned to scrutinize her profile when he was stopped for traffic. The indirect lighting of the dashboard cast her lovely features into strong relief against the black upholstery. He wondered until this strikingly beautiful girl with the patrician bearing who had been reared in a sheltered state with a girl like Suzanne. The abnormally baffled him. He was accustomed to many types of girls, but this was a new one in his experience.

They arrived at the club whose gaudy exterior proclaimed its purpose by chaste hints which they entered by a round door in the hub of the wheel. It was evident, from the manner of the captain who headsened forward to greet them, that the convention among the waiters in selecting a suitable table for Suzanne had been nearly unanimous. Jed had only had some kind of prestige — either social or financial, or both.

Suzanne had no qualms about admitting she had come here to be proceeded to order lavishly. Her policy was the bird in the hand, and she was not passing up the opportunity of a generous dinner for possible future engagements. So often these not, the two birds in the bush never even came within calling distance.

The interior decorations of the Chariot were lavish and in bad taste, with nude murals. Perhaps the conceptions of the artist had enjoyed considerably more liberty than client history, but such trifles did not affect the aesthetic natures of the patrons of the Chariot. The swarthy Italian waiters might have declared their wines to be of Gesarean vintage, and it would have been all the same to them. Actually it was just another night club which lured jaded pleasure seekers through its queer round portal in the same things which were to be found in every other establishment of the kind.

Lynn enjoyed the evening more than she had anticipated. It was a relief to escape from herself and her life. And it was pleasant to see the boys were more pleasant than she had anticipated. Jed's manners were more deferential than intimate, which surprised her. But then, he had been a wholly gullible. It might be only another method which led to the same entertainment.

They ordered cocktails, and danced while they awaited them. The music was excellent, rendered by Roman musicians, which added Iberio feature was the final strain upon the evening. But Lynn abandoned herself to the rhythm, and remembered dancing with Jack. How she loved to dance! How he his arms which held her.

Jed's lips were close to her ear. "You're wonderful."

She smiled. "I do like to dance."

"What else do you like to do?"

"Lots of things. Why?"

"Because I'd like to share them with you. Why do you hide yourself away?"

"I don't" she laughed.

"Then why haven't I seen you before?"

"Have you seen all the girls in this city before?" she asked.

"None who were as good to look at and dance with as you are."

"Then you have seen them all."

"I don't care about the others, now I've found you."

"You talk like the gallants of the south," she said lightly.

"But I mean it, and they don't. It's a habit with them."

"Sure you haven't borrowed the habit?" she taunted. They returned to the table.

"To what shall we drink?" asked Cal.

"To pleasure," Suzanne offered brightly.

"We have enough of that, without drinking to it," Jed deprecated.

"I'd rather drink to the unexpected pleasures we discover when we least expect them," Lynn said, lifting her sparkling glass to Lynn.

They ordered a gargantuan feast and revelled through its leisurely service with dance after dance. They quarrelled over the menu once, but Jed and Suzanne thereafter arranged that it did not occur again. Cal appeared to be indifferent, but was more aggressive in his attentions to Suzanne than Jed attempted with such service. But I'd like to try," anxiously.

"But one not so much for your services, you understand, but your hearing, that I beg you. You have nothing to do — only the gracious smile, the greeting of the head cashier. Then what you call — atmosphere — that I desire, Miss Bertel."

"I understand. What are the hours?"

"Nine o'clock to three o'clock."

"In the morning? Of course, she laughed. "I'm afraid that's impossible. Night clubs do not flourish in the daytime. But I understand perfectly that element of the situation, but it would have to be managed accordingly.

"And I wool pay you — ten dollars.

It was less than she had expected, but ten dollars more or less was nothing.

"You have also — two meals," he encouraged.

That was one advantage, she reflected, but it was not going to be possible for her to remain at Mrs. Kime's and work at the Chariot. She would have to give up all that distance alone after three o'clock in the morning.

"I'll take it," said Lynn. "When do I begin?"

"Tomorrow night, you must be here, and always look at beautiful as you are tonight." his fat face was disguised as a compliment, but Lynn realized it was not. Her beauty would be most inadequate for maintaining her appearance in normal employment. She started with which to begin.

Mike accepted her back to her party, very grateful to Jed for bringing Lynn to his attention. Jed was alone in the car. Cal, Suzanne and her friend were dancing.

"Say don't the look of your doing work like that," his tone was anxious.

"Why, there's nothing to it," she feabted cheerfully. "Just stand around and look beautiful as Mr. Perronie specified."

"You can do that, all right. But do you like to? I mean — you shouldn't have to work."

"Well, I do. It doesn't hurt anyone. It's the lack of it that's so bad sometimes. I've been terribly sobery for a moment. Then he added suddenly and suggested, "Shall we dance?"

The night reveled on. Some of the gaiety grew ribald, some were disgusting. Cal grew loquacious and was only prevented from being offensive by Suzanne. Jed was content to sit and watch the show. Lynn danced entirely, and had resolved into her own. Such is the reward of gourmet.

Jack arrived at Mrs. Kime's in a cold drizzling rain. But he felt as if the weather matched his mood when he saw him. With every moment, he realized more poignantly how near he had been to Lynn. He had actually had drab gray stone house and contents within his grasp, and in the mystery of Lynn. She shouldn't live in such a place, he reflected, and she shouldn't be working. She would not be there much longer.

He had hired a taxi driver to wait for him, and he dashed up the steps to pull the bell. He heard its raucous reverberation jumbh. After what seemed interminable minutes, the door was opened by a woman unidentifiably. Jack flourished his hat and bowed. "I beg your pardon, Mrs. Kime. Assured that he was speaking to that lady he inquired for Lynn.

"Miss Bartel does not live here any longer," the woman replied, and would have closed the door, had his gesture not commanded her to desist.

"But where may I find her?" he inquired impatiently.

"I don't know!" she replied shrilly. "I suppose you think I do know where Lynn was, because she knew that she would be hearing from you. She moved out as soon as her temporary work required her. She wouldn't accept a thing from Mrs. Kime's. But she was the girl's sole guardian, was she not? Certainly, and he is entitled to giving information about her to strange men. This one looked all right, but one never could be sure. She added, guardedly, "If you will give me your name, I'll give it to Miss Bartel if I see her or hear from her. Is it some one she would like to see her about?"

"Oh, no, I'm a friend of Miss Bartel's," he protested vigorously.

Well, that settled it.

Jack was bitterly disappointed and disturbed, but there seemed to be nothing he could do to do at the moment. So he left his card with Mrs. Kime and impressed upon her that it was very important for him to see Lynn. Mrs. Kime doubtfully promised to do her best and with Lynn's reticence where young men were concerned, her generation of training could not cope with the freedom of modern girls in association with young men, and she intended to shield Lynn from its evil influence as much as possible. She knew how Marion Bartel had guarded her daughter's contacts. She accepted the card gingerly, and closed the door.

Jack gazed at its somber finality with a queer sunken sensation. His expectations had reached such an altitude that, now they were crashed to earth, the jar shook him rather badly. He turned about and placed his light gray fedora on his head with a vague and bewildered gesture. He went slowly down the gray stone steps and toward the waiting cab, with its idling motor.

CHAPTER XXVIII

"Take me to a good hotel — I don't care which one." He climbed in and slammed the door after him, sank into the seat and stared ahead with a baffled expression. Why had Lynn moved, if she knew where she had worked, lost herself That was it. She had lost herself. A new thought inspired him. Perhaps even while he had travelled north over those slow, tedious miles, Lynn had communicated with her cousin. She would wire Dod. That was the next best move. And while he awaited a reply he would locate the branch office of Merchon & Thorpe, and get acquainted.

His relief resolved into action, and he felt better. But only for a few hours. Dod's reply, which was placed him in the same situation of the morning. How did one get out of the city — to locate a certain person in a great city? Vainly he consulted directories. Only Lynn's name and dints smoked him at every turn.

With euphoria which was always with the thought of Lynn in the back of his mind, he turned his attention to business matters, which he had invented the trip north. He called and maintained of the great northern city fascinated him. Business methods left little to be desired, he was admiring. When a man agreed to see you at ten o'clock he was found at the appointed place — at ten o'clock and on the day appointed — not the next. When a conference was called for a luncheon with the lunch — not afternoon tea with the promise of golf and a cocktail hour. The theme of everything was efficiency, it spoke rapidly, and half turned their backs on their way to another interest. It was all highly amused him and at the same time aroused admiration. Nothing escaped the observed, cannily, that no one seemed to accomplish any more than was humanly possible, and did in the south. It only a pose, or a habit — this terrific pace and precision.

He located some friends; a fraternity brother, a travelling acquaintance, some ex-southern inhabitants. He delighted in seeing them, and offered to conduct his brother acquaintance to the city. Everyone hoped that he might stumble across Lynn by some chance encounter but he knew that was impractically absurd. One little girl lost in a great city.

But it seems always that the least expected is that which happens to be revealed. Jack was in his office, should escort him to the prominent night clubs of the city. And naturally, the Roman Chariot which was one of the most interesting and popular, would be one in the itinerary.

It was Ollie Barret who suggested getting a party together to go to the Chariot. And he remarked, excluding Ila merely, "Miss Bartel is there. Jack would knock your eye out. Man! if you think we haven't been beauties in the city, you won't be either. It's pal, that's a good description. Would I mean."

"What's she like?" Jack inquired, and with a vivid picture of Lynn in his mind.

Ollie had elaborated upon the girl. His description tallied so astonishingly with Jack's own inner vision that he decided to be identified, when Ollie mentioned the lovely flock of white in her dark hair, black eye-lashes, Jack hurled himself from his chair like a discharged projectile.

DOCTORS CHECK KIDNEYS FIRST

Because they know that healthy Kidneys remove from the blood the waste matter that excess Kidneys retain, doctors favour the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills in cases of rheumatic pains, backache, lumbago, dizziness, headaches, nervousness, leg pains, puffy eyes, loss of energy, sallow, pasty complexion—regulate your kidneys frequently with Dodd's Kidney Pills—see if they prove the favorite Kidney remedy—use 50 Dodd's Kidney Pills

COULD NOT LIFT ARMS ABOVE HEAD

Owing To Painful Rheumatism

This woman suffered from rheumatism in her back, arms and legs. For two months, she endured this painful condition, then, like another sufferer, she decided to try Kruschen Salts. Read her letter:—

"About fifteen months ago I had rheumatism in my arms, back and legs. The pains in my arms and back after getting warm in bed were almost unbearable. I was this state for two months, and could not reach above my head. I read a paper about Kruschen Salts and I thought I would try them. I am so glad to say that for nearly a year I have not had the slightest return of my rheumatism."—(Mrs.) B. E.

The pains and stiffness of rheumatism are frequently due to deposits of uric acid in the muscles and joints. Kruschen Salts assist in stimulating the internal organs to healthy, regular activity, and help them to get rid of this excess uric acid.

Kruschen Salts

1/3 a bottle at all chemists throughout the world. If you do not feel better after taking the first bottle you can have your money back.

BUT.... it's the LITTLE THINGS that count....

New drapes for the guest room, and Junior's first haircut. A new recipe for peach pie and new pans for baking it. A picnic at the beach, and a new hat for the weekly bridge. Every day events? Of course! But they're the things that make life livable! What's a war in Illyria and another Arctic expedition, compared to the thrill of the first glimpse of the family that's moving in next door, and the delivery of a shining new refrigerator? What's a royal wedding, and twelve rooms filled with gifts, when Anne has her fifth birthday tomorrow? They're interesting enough, something to talk about, to wonder at, perhaps, but pretty far away from that most important spot and the people who live there . . . your own home.

That's where your heart is, and that's where the real thrills lie, in the things that concern you and the people who live around you, next door, in the next block, anywhere in town. There's news about them in every issue of the daily Ontario Intelligencer in "inside page" stories—and in every ad too, for the ads in the Ontario Intelligencer are news! There's news about new clothes for the family, and new food for the table, and new furniture for the home. There's news about new entertainment, and new ways to get to it. There's news about something new on every page, from the latest dispatch on the front page to the new shoes for Anne on the last . . . all written to you and for you, put up in a neat package and delivered at your door-step every day.

The Ring

BY JANNIS PARKER

She lay on the Indian blanket she had bought from an old squaw in Reno, and the fine wedding-band from her right hand to the left hand then back again, thereby confusing the man, hidden in the sumac, who watched her avidly.

His painter eyes loved the set of a grove pictured by tall trees, a willowy girl in white reclining on a bright blanket.

He completed the picture, he with his shock of tar hair against the flaming sumac, his bright blue eyes riveted spellbound on the unconscious girl. Under the cocked arrogance of his moccasined foot a twig snapped. The girl swung around. They stared, their brown eyes shattered only by a startled blue-jay screaming through the woods.

"I thought you were in Europe," she spoke in a throaty monotone, her creamy shoulders and neck hotly tinged.

"I'm not." The man stepped from behind the sumac, softly tread the thickly carpeted pine needles. "I am I shadowing Nedra."

"Ah." There was an awkward pause.

"Can't we reminisce awhile? It can't be called collusion now that we're nicely divorced."

She hesitated. "What is there to reminisce about?"

"I can think of something," the painting himself squarely on the blanket, "but I'll tell you about some absent?"

"Andy." She chose a tiny corner of the quilt.

"So you still see him?" he snapped.

"Don't be ridiculous, Ronald. Andy is my dearest brother."

"He forgot that," he reviewed past events. "All that mess. Honestly, I couldn't help it. But he could have helped. Pulling me around. His with his legal mind framing situations and buttoning them on me! Then goading you on to new things that weren't till you saw them. Why did you go there. Why did you want to lose me that?" He paused. "By the way, I haven't received your announcements."

The man was non-plussed.

"Toots and Gert's. Oh, quibbled. "Surely you remember Gert? Long fair hair and the best legs in the country. You must remember."

"Little idiot. The man roared up at the ghost of an idea to put such things! I never have pretend with my models. Why got chummy with me? Because I was the unrivaled spotlight on me when Andy led you around by that limmy nose? Oh, you're a lawyer, darling, you shouldn't have believed all he said. Didn't he just tell you I'd gone to Asia?"

No answer.

"Because he wanted you himself he imparted a fabric of lies to hold you together and distort it. He over your vision of me. Then he picked his time when I was slaving on that frieze of Nedra, every minute with my model! You should have seen your usual self and realized an unknown painter doesn't reap orders like that every day.

"You might have let me know when you flung me back to the world's other women."

"What do you mean?"

"Isn't it customary to let a fellow know when you're through with him? Then the matrimonial bond is severed shouldn't an impression document go forth? Suppose I had wanted to marry Gertrude?"

"Never mind," he continued tenderly, his tone sent the blood surging up her neck, "I never really to have you."

He sighed and rose heavily to his feet. "Maybe you're right. Refinishing isn't so good. Instead of switching that poor thing around why not throw it away? Why, Ann! You're crying!"

In an instant he was on his knees, had gathered her quivering form close. "Announcement was his pet name for her—"darling, don't tell me that you'll win me over by self out!"

"I've done something terrible!" she sobbed.

He took his big handkerchief and mopped her eyes. "Sweetheart, we're both in a fog. Pull yourself together, dear, you're starving for me, too, tonight.

"I don't want to take a woman to the altar who's crying her heart out."

But Ann, muddled up in her own bewildering confession, hadn't heard. "Ronny, I couldn't get it on non-support. You certainly spoiled me. You actually spoiled me."

He stroked her hair. "I'll provide better in the next world. Artists aren't supposed to live, die."

"I couldn't get it on cruelty! And I knew it wasn't another woman. Although I could have clawed out that Gertrude's eyes the way she cogled you."

His voice was soothing. "She only cogled me, darling, because I was the only artist who hadn't cogled her. Why did his honor take pity on you?"

She lifted woe-be-gone eyes, went all the way to Reno, went through all the motions, and then

"I couldn't accuse you unfairly, could I? And I couldn't make up anything horrid . . . not about you, Ronny—so I didn't go through with it." She sniffed. "Whatever you want to do now I'll abide by."

So Ronny, radiant and incredulous took the slim wedding band from her right hand and put it where it belonged.

Somewhere the Sun Shines

BY MARTIN RAMSON

George Spencer was the last man in the world Ted Harris had ever dreamed of meeting when he walked up to the refreshment stand at Anita Park. Yet there stood George as big as life, dressed in the customary attire of a soda dispenser: dishing out peanuts, popcorn and soft drinks.

As he recognized Ted he forgot all else going on around him and stared at him as if there were a ghost. And then—

"Ted, old boy, you are the fellas turnin' up here. Why Ted—gee, kid, I'm glad to see ya."

Hello, George, you old son-of-a-gun. Never expected to find you here." And they were busy for the next few seconds exchanging handshakes and, compliments each other on their appearance.

Yes, it had been four years since Ted and George had been riding for the Piddler Syndicate back in the east working together for Old Man Piddler for two and a half years. There had always been a question as to who was the better man, but never between Ted and George. George would always say "they never saw a better rider on the track than Ted Harris—and Ted would always say the same about George.

When the old man died and Ted's son, Alighton took the stable over, the boys quit. They could never accustom themselves to the methods of the new tyrannies, and when Ted announced his intention of quitting, George went with him. Great friends, these two, but like all friends, sooner or later the time came when they drifted apart.

Ted remembered reading somewhere about George getting married and had picked up a little information about him since on the tracks. He guessed George would make out O.K. as he was never a victim of wanderlust as Ted was. Ted couldn't stay in one place any length of time; always wanted to keep rambling.

Well, if you ever met an old pal after four years, you can imagine how Ted and George felt.

In the ensuing two hours the boys lived over the entire time that they rode together.

"But," Ted was saying "you seem to be doing all right by yourself, George. Tell me, how's the missus and the kid. Got a kids now?"

"Yeah, there's three kids now, Ted. Two girls an' a boy. They're great, Ted. Just what a fella needs to keep him hustlin'."

"Guess you might be right there, George, but you know me: never was much of a home man. Couldn't get the old rambling fever out of my system."

"Well, you don't seem to' be lockin' the worse for it, Ted. Heard ya made quite a killin' in Chicago. Last time I asked about you Whitey Davis told me he seen ya in Hialeah knockin' them over for a couple a dough. Well, more power to a Ted. You always was the gambler of the combination. Not me, though. I been workin' pretty hard for my end in the last few years. I own this joint, ya know? Ain't much, but I knock out a small piece of change while it lasts an' when it's over, I get on a job in the city till next season. Been doin' O.K. but ain't never had the urge to lay a dime on any of the nags. Yes, you always were the gambler of the outfit. Guess that's why you'll always be in the money while I keep on struggling."

Well, there's nothing more to talk about and Ted said something to that effect. But he didn't recognize as his own, about having some kind of an appointment in the city and he guessed he'd have to be running along.

"Gee Ted," said George, "ya come all the way out here to see the races, an' here I talk all your time and' ya don't get to see a thing."

"Aw, forget it, George. A horse race ain't anything new to me. Besides, I'll have lots of time to see them again."

"Say, that's right, Ted. Gee, but I'm a fool. All this time an' I never even ask ya to come out to the house. Let's make a date for dinner tonight at the house. I'll call up Mildred and . . . . . Why she'll be tickled to death to see ya, Ted."

"No . . . sure about . . . tonight, George, I . . .

"I know you're busy, Ted, but been, suppose ya call me at the house. Here, I'll write the number down. There ya're. Now don't forget. I'll look for ya to call."

With a final handclasp and cheery goodby, the two friends parted. George went back to selling his peanuts, popcorn and soft drinks and Ted went on his way out of the park.

As he went through the gate he took a paper from his pocket and before throwing it away took one last look at it. It read:

"Man wanted: to sell peanuts, pop corn and soda.

"Apply manager of stand at Stella Anita Race Track."

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 7 (CP)—Gold and oil listings turned a bit soft and other mining sections were steady with volume expanding off moderately in the afternoon, at the Toronto Stock Exchange. The turnover in the Dollar Investment Index was than 1,500,000 shares with the junior and penny stocks prominent in the trading.

O'Brien declined a point or more and losses were bounded by Dome, McIntyre, Pioneer, Hard Rock, Little Long Lac and Macdonald-Cockshutt. Eighter gave relief for McWittle, Sherritt, Bobjo, Central Porcupine and Mahon.

Pend Oreille and Sherritt were strong features in base metal groups and Texas-Canadian and Dalhousie in the oils.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, Jan. 7.—(CP)—Encouraged by the strong tone of New York bourse, industrial listings here pushed higher on heavy volume in the early session. A lack of resale embargoe and lighter volume in the day afternoon. The oils were higher, C.P.R. and Ford A were up and Brazilian, after over touching their profit-taking swing into a new advance that carried the price to 39 7-8, its high for several years.

Nickel and some of the steels, utilities and consolidation issues worked higher while the distillery stocks were a bit under steady. The market, for Canadian Admiral Owned up sharply on the sale of close to 30,000 shares and the price advanced about a half dollar to around 3 1-4.

WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)— Hopes for an early settlement of the General Motors strike, together with an apparently good holiday trade, given the Presidents' congressional message, dominated the Stock Market on one of the speediest recovery bouts in several weeks.

Led by Automotive, Steel, Rail, Utility, and Specialty issues, gains of fractional to around 3 points were distributed over a broad front. The pace was thoroughout, with the ticker tape frequently behind.

Goods improved considerably and commodities exhibited renewed strength.

Prices were about unchanged to fractionally higher among such Canadian favorites as Dome, McIntyre, International Nickel and Canadian Pacific. The curb Exchange likewise held even. Dominion Government Bonds were narrow and quiet. Montreal Funds were unchanged at 100.03 1-8 cents.

In the interest of the forward push were Chrysler, General Motors, Hudson, Packard, U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, U.S. Pipe & Foundry, Vanadium, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Mack, Int. Harvester, Southern Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, Great Northern and Standard Gas.

Playing with Matches Girl is Badly Burned

Toronto, Jan. 7 (CP)—Condition of Sadie Chanderoff, aged three, burned when her clothing became ignited by a burning curtain at her Grenadier Road home was critical, hospital officials said today. She is not expected to live.

Ruth and her four year old brother, Sydney, had found some matches with which they were playing at the side of their home. It was thought that when the curtains were ignited they pulled it down on top of themselves in an attempt to put out the fire.

Every inch of clothing on the girl was burned, as was the hair on her head. Her mother, Jessie, the girl's mother, extinguished the flames from the screaming child's body and burned one hand so badly by hugging the child was required. The boy was unhurt.

TOUTHS COMMITTED

Peterboro, Ont., Jan. 7 (CP)—Committed for trial before the magistrate's earlier this week on joint charges of attempted armed robbery and arson, Gordon Price, 19, and John McLennan, 18, this morning elected trial before the County Judge and pleaded not guilty to both charges. They will appear for trial before County Judge Sheldon L. Smoke, here, on March 2nd.

VOLUNTEERS CROSS BORDER

Paris, Jan. 7.—(AP) — French border authorities reported today a small but steady stream of volunteers from many lands was flowing through France to offer their aid to the Spanish government.

The French government was said to be outlining space amid negotiations to apply a ban on such volunteering.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Fenwick, Hyndman.

Market Comment

Apparently Canadian stock markets were never as independent of the trend in New York as they are today. Any recessions that downside markets have experienced of late have been mostly of a minor character and confined to specialties.

In New York the extreme inclemency in the market for certain leading issues has been strengthened recently by the added interest between the bid and asked prices for the front. It has been necessary for several times recently to print bid and asked quotes on this issue on the tape in an effort to bring buyer and seller together. The closing of the tape recorded a spread of 170-180 at one time, but a sale was made soon after at 175 1-4, which represents a gain of 3 3-4 points on the day. The dearth of buying power ultimately stems from the labor troubles at the General Motors plants and it has been sharply reflecting its substantial holdings of the motor stocks.

The current buying of Montreal Power is reported to Financial Service as for the account of Montreal. Issues are finding it difficult to secure a yield of 4 per cent., which appears as safe as the one on this well seasoned common stock.

FORD MOTOR CO. OF CANADA

Ford of Canada "A" common is not enjoy a high investment rating simply because they have financed wisely and dividends have been paid irregularly.

Mr. T. J. Campbell has recently announced that the Company will spend approximately $5,000,000 for plant extension this year, such an expenditure in common evidence of how the management regards the outlook. No new financing is required to take care of such an outlay as the Company's balance sheet is in unusually strong shape with net working capital standing at $21,250,000, or $43.50 per share. The directors may deem it advisable to be conservative in declaring dividends in the near future.

Ford of Canada has for its territory the entire British Empire, with the exceptions of Great Britain and Ireland, which comes well within the Dutch Ford Indies. Earnings for 1936 are expected to be shown around the $3.00 per share mark as compared with $1.17 in 1935.

French Warships Are Concentrating

Paris, Jan. 7.—The French Atlantic fleet, backing the battleships Lorraine, Provence and Strasbourg, will arrive off Gibraltar, Wednesday, the Admiralty, they said.

By Jan. 19, the naval concentration is expected to include three battleships, one cruiser, twenty-three destroyers, four torpedo boats, the depot ship Jules Verne, and two transports.

An undetermined number of submarines will accompany the depot ship, naval officials declared.

The fleet is under the command of Vice-Admiral Jean de Laborde.

Naval circles said the movement was part of southern manoeuvres but made it plain that such plans suggested the ships "would be in a strategic position if any needed" in connection with the Spanish conflict.

"PLAIN STRAIN" SAYS TORONTO

Toronto, Jan. 7 (CP)—Discussing the Ontario government's new pension plan, Controller Allan Lamport of Toronto termed the scheme a "plain steal" and a possible drain on Toronto's secession from the province in the event the province should incorporate itself under Dominion legislation had been discussed with the city solicitor.

HOGS

Toronto, Jan. 7.—(CP)—Bacon Hog prices regained Wednesday's loss of 10 cents today but top quotations were lower at Hull and Stratford, where 8.75 and 8.70 cents were posted at Barrie. Hull dressedweights showed the greatest loss easily as other leading markets reported steady prices.

Live weights: Barrie $8.15; Brantford 78.40; Hull $8.55; London $8.25; Peterborough $8.; Stratford $8 to $8.10.

Dressedweights: Barrie $13.15; Kitchener $13.40; Toronto $13.50; Hull $11.30; Peterborough $13.75; Chatham $13.80; Stratford $13.80 to $11.

Trendalk, Ont., Jan. 7 (CP) — When Wilfrid Bacon decided to ran out of needles, she decided to open an old pin-cushion to see what she could find.

The pin-cushion fielded 192 needles and the woman said she has enough now to last her for life.

RESERVATIONS ARE RAISED

These were in particular based upon the question of the Franco-Spanish border, over which both the international volunteers fighting with Madrid have passed.

The note also contended Italy had brought up the volunteer question in August, but that France at that time did not see fit to accept her point of view.

Replies Co-ordinated

Informed circles said both Italy and Germany had co-ordinated their replies, which, it was learned, are to be published at midnight (6.00 p.m., E.S.T.)

London, Jan. 7 (CP)—Great Britain, with a watchful eye on her Mediterranean fleet, concentrating in Spanish waters, looked to Germany and Italy today for a "constructive" answer to demands for non-intervention in the Spanish civil war.

Observers, according to The Associated Press, pointed out British warships were moving toward Spain in sufficient numbers to enforce a blockade of the peninsula, if such action is decided upon. A Franco-British blockade was regarded yesterday as not being discussed in Paris.

At the same time, The Associated Press said, a statement in Glasgow last night by Sir Thomas Inskip, Minister for Co-ordination of Defence, was interpreted to mean that there would be no army conscription unless the course was taken by Germany. Britain was ready to draft soldiers immediately, he was quoted as having declared.

Naval Fleet Routine

The British naval move was explained by the admiralty as "routine". It consisted of a general relief of three vessels already in Spanish waters in order that the crews might have a fallow period on leave. But, it was declared, should the situation change, or the need for the change is being made, Britain will have nearly twice the previous number of ships in Spanish waters.

The foreign office confidently expected the Italian and German answers would be delivered today, after which they would be handed to French representatives over the delay in replying to the joint Anglo-French note of Dec. 31.

Nature of Replies.

Informed sources said Foreign Secretary Eden hoped the answers would be satisfactory and would return the situation to the confusion that existed before Christmas.

What action he contemplated in the event of a reply Britain considered unsatisfactory was not indicated. The Foreign Secretary was understood, however, that the Council of Peace said, already to have made up his mind.

Reports from Berlin and Rome indicated the two fascist powers would reject the Franco-British note, their replies, described as "conciliatory", giving a flat "yes or no" answer to the demand that the Spanish insurgent army be halted.

CONSTABLE HIT ON SIDE OF HEAD

Robert Mahlig, Ottawa, Trying to Eject Loiterer at Time

Ottawa, Jan. 7 (CP)—Chief Coroner J. E. Creighi today will open the inquest into the death of Constable Robert Mahlig of the Canadian National Police who died last night as a loiterer he was ejecting in the Union Station allegedly struck him on the side of the head.

Meanwhile police said, Lorne Kennedy, 43-year-old man charged with assault at the 24-year-old constable. The officer, they said, was on the floor and they still as the blow connected with the side of his head. Kennedy was arrested shortly after by police headquarters detective Mr. White, assistant station master.

Almost hysterical as he was led from the scene of the Constable's death, Kennedy, Mahlig's assailant had been chasing loiterers and had fallen downstairs. However, he told police he fell near the front door of the station, far from the Platform 2 gates leading down to the rotunda and concourse.

Mahlig was a member of the service with the railway police force, now the Canadian National constables.

He was a big man noted for his courtesy.

He left widow daughters, Frieda, 20, and Cecile 14 and one son, Joseph, 17, survive.

Three Conditions

High executives of General Motors were known to have stated three conditions under which they would negotiate with the United Automobile Workers as representing its members, employees of the corporation but not as the sole bargaining agency representing all employees.

Proposal Outlined

The corporation executives outlined this proposal to James F. Dewey, one of the conciliators, and Governor Frank Murphy's personal board of strategy, empowered to call a general strike of the corporation's employees if necessary. Dewey held a series of conferences with each group yesterday afternoon and resumed the consultations today.

The union authorities' success said, accepted the first and third points, and sent Dewey back to General Motors to express its position on point No. 2.

Union Men In Detroit

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., President of General Motors, left his New York headquarters to come to Detroit and was closely watched by other executives of the automobile-producing company.

Homer S. Martin, International President of the U.A.W.A. talked frequently with his advisers in the Union and the committee for industrial organization, with which it is affiliated.

John D. Brophy, director of John L. Lewis' C.I.O., came to Detroit last night and immediately visited Martin at the Union headquarters.

Martin sent a letter to the Michigan House of Representatives, in session at Lansing, asking impeachment of Circuit Judge Edward D. Black, who issued a sweeping injunction forbidding employees to picket the plants. Both Fisher plants at Flint "outside of regularly-designated working hours" or to picket the factories.

The Union President accused the judge of "corrupt, criminal use of office and of violating a 1929 state law and the ground that he owned a large block of General Motors shares and therefore was not qualified to sit in the case. Judge Black confirmed the fact that he held some stock.

Revolt Not Ended

Officials were uncommunicative but apprehension was growing that the crisis precipitated by Marshal Chang's revolt—for which he was pardoned after freeing Chiang and giving himself up—was far from ended.

Military authorities ordered the immediate arrest of bandits and a system of trench fortifications around the city.

The large Foreign Missionary community was fearful and every avenue of possible escape was closed to its members.

That the Nanking Government was taking a serious view of the situation was shown by reports from Western Hunan that a general mobilization had begun after General Chiang's release had been halted.

The troops formed part of the punitive expedition based at Loyang, Honan Province, which had been directed to free Chiang by force if necessary.

The Nanking army was reported again to have taken up its forward march, preparing to meet any possible emergency here.

Great Britain, France Consider Direct Action To Isolate Civil War

Possibility Fleets to be Used to Seal Spanish Coast

NOTES ARE STUDIED

British Cabinet to Meet on Wednesday to Discuss Situation

LONDON, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Great Britain and France were reported to informed circles today to be considering direct action to isolate the Spanish Civil War.

Urgent need of a quick, workable peace plan was said to be realized by the fullest extent by British statesmen.

The Cabinet has been called to meet Wednesday and Foreign Minister Eden, it was indicated, will take no step in the troubled international situation until after that time.

Meanwhile, official circles in both Great Britain and France heard the so-called story of the Italian and German navies answering the Anglo-French demand that the flow of foreign volunteers to Spain be cut off.

The replies, informant sources said, throw the problem back for study in the International non-intervention committee which is said to be virtually powerless to take effective action as it now is constituted.

Observers at Associated Press said, pointed to the meeting of the British Home Fleet in Mediterranean fleets and the French Atlantic fleet to Spanish waters as strong backing for any direct measures which may be adopted to bring about all forms of foreign intervention in Spain.

LIBERAL MEMBERS TO HOLD PARLEY

Think Discrimination Shown Against Toronto by New Policy

Toronto, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Toronto City Council and five Liberal members for the city in the Ontario Legislature will confer today to consider what action should be taken in the face of the $468,000 loss the city suffers under the Unemployment Service and Taxation Policy of the government.

Toronto is the biggest loser through the step of the government which will retain for its own use the Tax Revenues while assuming the cost of Mothers' Allowances and the Municipalities' share of Old Age Pensions, Controller Allan stated following a meeting of the Liberal members with Council, Ottawa, Windsor and Brockville, most of the remaining 929 municipalities are benefitting by the scheme.

The five private Toronto Liberal members and Attorney General Arthur Roebuck conferred last night with Premier and Mrs. Mitchell Hepburn, Col. Fraser Hunter, member for Toronto-St. Patrick, declared himself "very indignant" over the Government's action. He saw no reason why Toronto "should be discriminated against."

He declared at today's conference with City Council a thorough survey of the city's tax and investigation of possible alternatives to rescue Toronto from the large "... would be made.

COL. T. A. KIDD TO BE PARTY WHIP

Will Succeed Late James F. Hill in The Legislature

Toronto, Jan. 8 (CP)—Col. Thos. Ashmore Kidd, Victoria member for Kingston and former speaker of the Ontario legislature will succeed the late James F. Hill as Conservative whip at the coming session it was announced today by George S. Henry, Conservative leader.

It was also confirmed that Mr. Henry would continue to lead the opposition. Speculation as to who would be replaced in view of Hon. Earl Rowe's elevation to the Conservative party leadership.

CAR OPERATORS SAY AIR BRAKES FROZE

St. Catharines, Ont., Jan. 8.—(CP) —An accident in which George McDermid was severely injured, resulted in being reunited with a brother he had not seen in 43 years, Kenneth Gow by name, and also two sons ago. McDermid was brought to general hospital here and his eighty-year-old Arthur Rowland conferred last Wednesday with Premier and Mrs. Mitchell Hepburn, Col. Fraser Hunter, member for Toronto-St. Patrick, declared himself "very indignant" over the Government's action. He saw no reason why Toronto "should be discriminated against."

He declared at today's conference with City Council a thorough survey of the city's tax and investigation of possible alternatives to rescue Toronto from the large "... would be made.

DEMENTED MAN STABS HIS WIFE

Toronto, Jan. 8 (CP)—Two neighbors subdued Carroll William Venn, 34, last night after he had stabbed his wife in the abdomen following his escape from Ontario Hospital here. Mrs. Venn was able to return home after treatment in hospital. Miss Ina Summers, 36, of Peterborough injured her ankle and a hand when she fell downstairs fleeing from Venn.

Hospital authorities said Venn was released yesterday afternoon. Two hours later he appeared at his home and attacked his wife with a butcher knife after an argument.

Then he chased Miss Summers, who fell down the stairs. Miss Yetta Radford, a roomer, locked herself in the kitchen and refused to open the door despite Venn's threats.

Lorraine, seven, and Billy, five, the Venn children, ran from the house and summoned the neighbors who overpowered Venn.

Venn was admitted to the hospital six months ago as an acceptable patient. He was given privileges of the hospital grounds, he suddenly fled, attacked in the overall uniform. Police said he had obtained liquor and was under its influence when they called at his home and took him back to the hospital.

ENRAGED RESOLUTION PASSED

Washington, Jan. 8—(AP)— A special resolution embargoing munitions shipments from United States to Spain became law today with President Roosevelt's signature.

WANTS INDEMNITY

Brussels, Jan. 8 (AP)—Belgium delivered a sharp ultimatum to the Spanish Republic Government today, giving it 48 hours to deliver with indemnity the body of the late Baron Jacques De Borchgrave, alleged slain Nationalist Secretary in Madrid, submit apologies and pay a $1,000,000 indemnity.

If Spain fails to comply with the demands, it was indicated Belgium will recall its diplomatic representative and possibly submit the case to The Hague International Court.

Death of the young diplomat, First Secretary of the Belgium Embassy, first aroused grave public action here as he was extremely popular.

A Senate committee investigating the incident was told Borchgrave, who was 35, was buried underneath nine of 21 others slain three miles north of Madrid.

The Baron was said at the time to be 10 miles from the front lines visiting wounded Belgians of the International Brigade.

The committee was told Belgian Embassy officers had received because they had not been paid and were

NICKELS, DIMES REWARD OF HUNT FOR THREE YEARS

'Sub' Inventor Finds Junk Instead of Sunken Millions

$3.87 ACTUAL CASH

False Teeth, Cheap Watch, Brass Knuckles Also Found

New York, Jan. 8 (AP)—Buoyed by millions in mixed gold, Steam Lake, 70-year-old submarine inventor today had a dozen rusty cents through his fingers today and brooded wryly on the "profits" of treasure hunting.

"Nickels," he murmured, "—nickels and dimes and junk!"

That's all he has to show, so far, on the 20-year search for the wreck of the British frigate Hussar, lying 12 fathoms deep in the mouth of the East river of York's East River where the ship sank in 1780. Reputedly it had on board a chest with $4,800,000 in gold and silver specie.

Caution Pumps Used.

In cold cash, Lake has fished $2.50 recovered by suction pumps delving in the muddy river bed for the hulk of the treasure ship. Lake is mystified about the coins. They're not old English coins from the Hussar's treasure trove. They're just fairly modern American specie dated 1914.

The river bottom must be thick with them," he said, pointing out that the suction pump has operated only around a small sector.

Under the headline of junk, Lake's cheap watch, a pair of brass knuckles, a shotgun and a pair of handsled jackknife of dubious pearl.

Fifty Year Old Object.

For more than half a century, Lake watched a dozen or more expeditions go broke in the treasure-golden cache. As a youth, in 1884, he came over from New Jersey, where he lived, to gape wide-eyed at the salvage work then underway that if they failed to find it, he would try it himself when he grew up.

"I'm pretty sure I've located the wreck," he said today. He has been under mud and tar and it may be weeks before we strike the hulk itself."

The Hussar, a full-rigged 28-gun frigate, was wrecked while fleeing with money for the redcoat army of New York City, when revolutionary forces had driven British troops out of New York City.

INFLUENZA DIMINISHING

London, Jan. 8 (CP-Havas)—Signs of the influenza epidemic sweeping Britain declining were reported today.

Although 325 deaths were registered in the large cities during the past week, the number of patients in the four principal hospitals had fallen from 1,200 at the beginning of this week to 800 today. Decreasing bed lists were also reported from other parts of the country.

Turko-French Crisis Eases After Conference in Paris

Paris, Jan. 8 (CP-Havas)—The crisis provoked by Franco-Turkish differences over the Sanjak of Alexandretta was believed today to have been averted after a conference held night between Foreign Under-Secretary Pierre Viénot and Emil Dantz, Turkish Ambassador to Paris.

Informed sources reported that as a result of these conversations France and Turkey would resume direct negotiations over the question of an independent status for the Sanjak, instead of placing the question before the League of Nations Council session on Jan. 18.

State Gov. And Motor Executive Refuse to Divulge Conference Results

Detroit, Jan. 8 (AP)—Increasing tension in United States strike centres spurred state and federal conciliators today in efforts to settle the walk-out of United Automobile Workers in General Motors plants.

While police at Flint, Mich., dispersed a crowd of union members with threats of using tear gas, nightlong conferences held in Detroit in an endeavor to smooth the way for negotiations between U. A. W. and corporation officials.

Frank Murphy, electing his second term as governor of Michigan, emerged from the last of the noctural conferences at 2:15 a.m. and said:

"We have a definite objective, but I can't say what it is."

Standing at his side was James R. Dewey, United States Department of Labor conciliator.

They had held a series of separate conversations with William S. Knudsen, General Motors executive vice-president, and Homer S. Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers union.

Knudsen smilingly declined to comment. Martin and Dewey indicated that any statements would have to come from the governor. "We have nothing whatever to report," said the Governor. "Any further statement will be released at this time would be fatal. Both sides have been helpful and friendly."

The demonstration last night at Flint, where 15,000 General Motors employees are idle, took place outside the city jail, where two union members were held incommunicado after earlier disorders.

300 March to the Jail.

A crowd which Police Chief James V. Mills said numbered 500 Union members and sympathizers marched to the jail and demanded that the prisoners be released, or at least be permitted to talk with an attorney.

The throng dispersed after requests that it disband. Then police-men wearing gas masks appeared with tear gas guns, walled out of the building and said they would release the men if the crowd insisted on remaining. The demonstrators retreated and the prisoners released. No gas being discharged.

The two prisoners are Roy Slee, of Toledo, Ohio, U. A. W. A. organizer, and Harold Hubbard, Union employee of the Fisher Body Corporation at Flint.

They were detained yesterday afternoon after a street fight outside the Flint Chevrolet factory which is closed today and announced. It had been operating on a restricted basis.

An amplifier through which Union leaders had been addressing the crowd was damaged. Robert C. Travis, a union leader, said he was threatened with arrest. Seven minor officials of Chevrolet with malicious destruction of property, but did not name the persons.

Leaders of union members would meet today and march to court for the arraignment of Slee and Hubbard. Police chief said the men would be released then if they posted bail.

The number of General Motors strikers idle mounted steadily as additional divisions were closed. With 56,223 employees already on strike or laid off, 11,700 were laid off at Flint and Bay City, Mich., units by the Chevrolet Motor Company at Muncie, Ind., which has 1,500 workers, suspended operations today.

By nightfall more than 70,000 employees of the large automobile company will be without work. Several days ago Knudsen predicted that as many as 135,000 might be idle by the end of the week.

New "slow down" strikes affected other automotive companies besides General Motors. One of the Briggs Body Company's Detroit plants, employing 1,700, was closed after 300 workers sat down.

REICHSTAG MAY RECEIVE NEW LAW

Fundamental Changes to Replace 4-Year Law of Jan. 30th, 1933

Paris, Jan. 8 (CP)—A Havas News Agency dispatch from Berlin today sent 12 Was reported there that the Reichstag has been convoked for Jan. 30 to hear a declaration of major importance by Chancellor Hitler.

It has been reported that important governmental changes are imminent involving the Hitler's position as head of the state.

Other reports said the Reichstag would be dissolved and a new Reichstag elected. Elections to make way for a speech of major importance dealing with foreign and domestic affairs. It was finally reported here today.

Besides outlining German policy in the present international crisis, Hitler will reportedly present the Reichstag with a new fundamental law to replace the law of Jan. 30, 1933, which gave him full powers for a four-year period.

ONCE AN ACTOR ALWAYS AN ACTOR

Group of Old-Time Stars Give Reasons For Retiring to The Movie Stage

Hollywood, Jan. 8 (AP)—Old-time stars just can't quit the movies. The latest group to join the "can't stay away" for one picture are working in "A Star Is Born" and here is the reason they give:

"Well, once you get in this business, it's hard to quit."

The group includes Vera Stedman, Owen Moore, Charles King, Helene Chandler, Mary Jane Irving, Billy Dooley and Gertrude Messenger.

Miss Stedman was a reigning star, but when she got "tired of it all" she retired. She decided, she said, to come back for "just one picture in the incessant hurry and worry of movie-making."

"My big mistake was in allowing myself to feel so secure that I retired," she said. "I thought I could be happy without working. Starting over again is hard, but it's an exhilarating experience."

Owen Moore says remember when all the players received $5 a day, whether they were stars or extras.

"It's a matter of luck. There is no such thing as a star that long term contract. I'm just coming in to pick up a little loose change and have some fun."

CAR OPERATOR

SEATTLE, Jan. 8.—(AP)—About 50 Seattle residents were injured—one fatally—today when a street car jumped the tracks on a treacherous curve, smashed against a concrete pillar and stopped on the brink of a 50-foot fall to the ground.

The dead man was Leo F. Row, city fireman. The car operator, Roy Gossett, dazed by shock, said he believed the air brakes froze and caused the accident.

MULTI-BILLION DOLLAR BUDGET TO CONGRESS

New 1938 Budget is Balanced, Depends on Relief Burden

INDIVIDUAL HELP

President Asks Everyone To Help in Employment of Idle

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—President Roosevelt sent a multi-billion dollar budget to the United States Congress today in a message bluntly leaving a complete balance of federal income and outgo up to industrial re-employment efforts.

With certain exceptions, Mr. Roosevelt said his new $8,523,125,000 budget "is in balance" and would remain so if later relief requirements do not exceed an estimated $1,500,000,000.

Then, after forecasting a new public debt peak next June 30 of $35,026,000,000 despite sharply increased incomes, the President added:

"It is my conviction that if every employer or potential employer will undertake during the next six months to give employment to persons now receiving government help, the national debt can thereafter be kept definitely in balance.

"This is a direct appeal to you, on the part of the employers, the people, for a balanced budget."

Commercial conclusions seem in accordance with the MARK conviction, were stated to have been enacted to German interests, and it was predicted Germany would seek a strong foothold in Spanish Morocco in order to bring forth her colonial demands.

The Spanish-German army officer, one Col. Beitgeber, was said to be in command of the zone.

Rapprochement With Germany.

French sources contended the German reported arrivals and the construction of large-scale fortifications were the result of "rapprochement" as well as two other treaties between Spain, Germany and Great Britain.

(In Berlin the Paris reports of German infiltration in Spanish Morocco were described by a pro-Nazi ministry spokesman as "too ridiculous for comment.")

The tension of the situation was expected in diplomatic quarters to give impulse to France's desire for a general settlement of European problems and negotiations with Germany.

This went to the City Hall to report a blocked sewer near his home and in return for a favorable investigation deposit he made the man was given a marriage license.

City officials hastily apologized for the "mistake" and gave him a receipt.

NATIONALISTS LEAVE HOUSE

Hope Others Join Them (CP Cable)—Nationalist members left the House of Commons today after Prime Minister J. B. M. Hertzog moved adoption of a motion for a loyal address congratulating King George VI on his succession to the Throne. After the Nationalists had left the motion was adopted unanimously.

The speech from the throne, read by the Governor General, the Earl of Clarendon, at the opening of parliament, "sincerely regretted" that King Edward had found it necessary to abdicate and gratefully reached the Association with South Africa as Prince of Wales.

Distance German Guns Are Used to Equip Ceuta; Germans in Morocco

French Say They Cannot Permit Invasion by Germans

HOME FLEET TO SAIL

Ceuta Opposite Gibraltar Being Strongly Fortified Say French

Reports reaching London today said 3,000 armed Germans had landed in Spanish Morocco and that Ceuta, across the straits from Gibraltar, was being equipped with long-range German guns.

French official announced it was "impossible" for France to permit such an invasion, and began conversations with the British government. In London a special cabinet meeting was called.

The admiralty announced virtually the entire home fleet would leave for the Mediterranean Jan. 18, joining the Mediterranean fleet in manoeuvres for the first time since Anglo-Italian tension during the Ethiopian war. The French Atlantic fleet is also leaving for Spanish waters in case it is needed.

Fortification of Ceuta.

German supervised fortifications at Ceuta, just across the straits from Gibraltar, were said by the French Morocco administrator to be going up on a scale to rival those of the great British base.

Commercial concessions were in exchange for the MARK conclusions, were stated to have been granted to German interests, and it was predicted Germany would seek a strong foothold in Spanish Morocco in order to bring forth her colonial demands.

Spanish-German army officer, one Col. Beitgeber, was said to be in command of the zone.

Rapprochement With Germany.

French sources contended the German reported arrivals and the construction of large-scale fortifications were the result of "rapprochement" as well as two other treaties between Spain, Germany and Great Britain.

The tension of the situation was expected in diplomatic quarters to give impulse to France's desire for a general settlement of European problems and negotiations with Germany.

NEWBORO CHURCH PREY TO FLAMES

Valuable Paintings And Other Articles Destroyed

Newboro, Ont., Jan. 8 (CP)—Fire of unknown origin early today destroyed United Church in this town about 30 miles from Kingston on Rideau Lakes district and damaged the parsonage and a fire station nearby. Loss was estimated at $40,000, partly covered by insurance.

The church minister, Rev. L. S. Throop, keeping at the parsonage was awakened by the glow of the fire and sounded the alarm.

The flames were roaring in the interior of the church and cold bulking when firemen arrived on the scene but by using streams of water from the land, Westport and other surrounding towns.

The fire-fighters were powerless to help the blaze in the church which was being concrete German suggestions for an agreement extending the Locarno Treaty to eastern European countries.

Among the points generally accepted as coming up for discussion was that of returning to Germany her colonies or her long-standing demands.

Report From Moscow.

The report from the Soviet Moscow Administrator said:

"Spanish Nationalists had reached Ceuta to speed preparations for reception of large bodies of German troops."

Max Reinhardt Uses 5 Stages In Old Testament Scenes

Scenes in Werfel Play Shift With Swiftness of Motion Picture

'THE ETERNAL ROAD'

New York, Jan 8 (AP)—On item five stages high, Max Reinhardt today unfolds his production of the most dramatic scenes in the Old Testament outlining Franz Werfel's "The Eternal Road" at the Manhattan Opera House.

One of the most ambitious and expensive productions Broadway has ever seen, the play had its premiere last night.

With Kurt Weill's music it tells the story of a Jewish congregation assembled in a synagogue which is about to be raided by a group of fanatics. The Rabbi is to confront them, begins to recite from the scrolls of the law taking from the ark. As he recites there appear on the various stages the most dramatic scenes from the lives of Abraham, Jacob, King David and other Biblical characters.

From stage to stage, mounted on platforms, the scenes shift with the swiftness of a motion pic-

Pope Plans Address To World February 7

Vatican City, Jan. 8 (AP)—Pope Pius, improved and refreshed from a long period of illness, planned today to deliver an address to the world Feb. 7 to celebrate the coronation of the Eucharistic Congress in Manila.

The Pontiff's message will express hope for a union of all peoples in Christian love, it was understood in the world, informed Vatican sources said.

Brooklyn, N.Y., Jan. 8 (CP) — Jack Farnack, arrested as intoxicated, told the Judge he was.

It all happened, he explained, "at a ball at the Distillers' Association. We were testing out a new product and I guess I was the better of me."

"I think you're telling the truth," the Judge ruled. "Sentence suspended."

New York, Jan. 8 (CP)— Supreme Court Justice May has ruled a person may not collect damages for the "loss of the services" of an unborn child.

The ruling was handed against the Brentiro and Queens Transit Company by Mrs. Madeline Gennaro, who asked $10,000 damages for the "loss of the services" of her unborn child, now her son, who was born at the time of the accident on which the suit was based.

Nebraska City, Neb., Jan. 8 (CP)—Frank S. Moore kept his promise to old pal Gregg Mellor, Carl Morton, despite sub-zero weather and the weight of his 88 years.

He placed his annual tribute of red carnations on Morton's snow banked grave and then spoke to the stone as he spoken each year since 1925: "This will be my last visit, Gregg."

Before Morton's death in 1941 he and Moore agreed to observe the anniversary of either's death. For 16 years Moore has kept faith.

Kitchener, Ont., Jan. 8 (CP)— A Kitchener resident wondered if he was a new arrival in Germany.

He went to the City Hall to report a blocked sewer near his home and in return for a favorable investigation deposit he made the man was given a marriage license.

City officials hastily apologized for the "mistake" and gave him a receipt.

DISTRICT BLANKETED BY A HEAVY FOG

Heavy fog which swirled in low lying clouds over roads and highways through the district this morning, accompanied by a steady drizzle of rain which continued throughout the day, brought a troubles for truck and transport drivers and motorists who were forced to proceed with more than ordinary caution. In some districts where heavy hauling was concerned slow progress was made in Belleville the last night and early today until the weather situation has cleared.

In spite of the greasy and wet condition of the roads, Provincial traffic accidents as reported by highway officers were at a minimum with no loss or damage being reported.

FRONTENAC OFFICERS TO TAKE COURSE

The Provincial School of the 47th Napanee Field Battery, conducting operations for examination for promotion of infantry officers and N.C.O.'s will commence at the armouries on Monday, January 11th at Napanee. Permanent force artillery instructors are conducting classes two nights each week. Six officers and nine N.C.O.'s have already registered. Another group of five officers and four N.C.O.'s of the Frontenac Regiment will go to Kingston on Monday, where they will attend a four-week course at the Royal Canadian School of Artillery.

NO EXTENSIONS AFTER JANUARY 15

Following receipt of a communication from the office of the Ontario Department of Highways, Toronto, this morning it was announced today that no further extension of time will be granted after Jan. 15th, for securing 1937 motor license plates on their machines. After this date police will have order, to "crack down" on those still using last year's plates, it was stated.

The business of issuing new plates which has steadied down after the initial rush during the past two weeks or so is still being carried on in fairly heavy volume at the local office, with applicants being registered from many points in Ontario as well as locally.

SLATE OF CHAIRMEN NOT ANNOUNCED

Members of the newly elected city council who held their first meeting in city hall last evening formed their slate of chairmen, who will guide the destinies of the various departments during the coming year. The list will be formally published at the inaugural meeting of council on Monday morning, next. It is understood that several changes in the various chairmanships over those of last year were made.

OPERATIONS HALTED DUE TO RAIN STORM

Rain today halted operations on twenty men employed on the emergency storm sewer being constructed on Moira street west. The crew will resume actual paving operations on Monday when it is hoped to have the largest in the city and is now being dug with segmented corrugated pipe.

WINTER GRAIN HURT BY WARM WEATHER

"It is alright for people to plough their ground in the middle of winter," said a prominent Prince Edward County farmer this morning, "but a warm spell like the rain of a few acres of ploughed ground compared to the loss of acres of wheat which is slowly being killed by the warm weather, while farmers are busy ploughing possible. If we don't get some snow in the very near future, farmers in this district will have a poor harvest one bushel of fall wheat instead of three, as there is no frost in the ground and this rain will rot the young plants as fast as they show any life. As it is I doubt very much if there will be half a crop if we get frost and snow tomorrow."

ASKED TO PURCHASE HIS OWN LIGHTER

"The next time a panhandler asks me for a dime, I am going to ask him to purchase a lighter for my lighter, see if my pocketbook is intact and put by my hand inside my coat to see if my shirt is still on my back," excitedly declared a local citizen yesterday.

It appears that one of the panhandling fraternity had approached him while in a city hall and asked him for the time. After being fruitless the luckless one then offered to sell him a fine "Rolex" for $4 and it was just like that one you have" and turned away. A few minutes later he returned with his cost pocket for his lighter to light his pipe. It was gone.

PUT PEP AND PUNCH IN PARTY

Just a Little Thing, Apparently, But it Spoiled Her Fun

Do you remember when you were always ready to "put places and do things"? Do you think that it is only hard work that has made you lose your pep? Perhaps it is your eyes.

You certainly cannot feel the attending parties, dances and other social functions if you suffer with nerve-fatiguing eyestrain.

The time for a scientific eye-examination has arrived when once a conscious effort must be made in order to see clearly.

When attacks of headache become frequent; when the eyes water, ache or smart, especially after a spell of close work; when any difficulty is experienced in seeing clearly—such as occasional blurring of print or objects—difficulty in reading very near objects or very distant ones—a desire for stronger light—all point to the need for eye-help.

The insidious injury that eyestrain wreaks upon the health not only causes much unnecessary suffering, but it also weakens one's efficiency—the capacity to earn—and the joy of living generally.

Everyone whose vision is not what it ought to be, pays the penalty, in ill health or lessened earning power.

Have your eyes tested scientifically by Edwards, Eyesight Specialist, (Official Eye Examiner for Canadian National Railways), 288 Front St., Phone 166, Belleville. If, you have noticed any of the above symptoms.

FIVE TEEN-AGERS JUST OUT FOR FUN

Oshawa Lads to be Sent Home in Charge of Parents

"Just out for a good time and to see the big city," was the answer Sergeant Arthur Harman by the spokesman of a bedraggled group of fifteen aged boys, who were found begging from door to door on Bloor street west early last evening. Becoming suspicious as to the actions and answers of the youthful lads when they appeared at the residence of Sergeant Harman, he gave them of something to eat, the citizen notified the police who picked up the youngsters not two but five teen-aged boys begging from door to door and took them to the police station for questioning. Later their parents and guardians were called the boys having run away from their homes in Oshawa, boarded a freight train and came to Belleville, "just for fun." They were placed in the hands of Inspector T. D. Ruston, and lodged in the Children's Shelter, where they will remain until their parents are coming after them.

"Why we just got on the train and thought we'd go to the city for a while and then come back home, but the Named train didn't stop in Oshawa until it arrived in Belleville. We could have got off but we got again if you'd had left us alone, I'll bet," stated the spokesman of the group to Inspector Ruston at the police station. "We was just having fun, that's all. We met another empty C.N.R. railway official stated today they had no reports now saw the five boys as they left the train before it arrived in the railway yards at Belleville. The lads were very defiant when they left the train and were in the same manner they arrived, while at the police station appeared to be quite unconcerned over the matter.

FLU EPIDEMIC IS NOT HEAVY HERE

Any Cases Reported of a Mild Type Says M. O. H.

"Nothing to worry much about," commented Dr. G. S. Cronk this morning, after reporting a slight contagion of influenza, reported through the usual number of cases generally experienced at this time of year. Changeable weather usually receives such changeable weather, and this year appears to extend many of the cases of influenza now being treated are of the mild type.

However, take the usual precautions. Complications often follow and severe cold, gripe or influenza are the greatest worry," stated Medical Officer of Health.

According to reports from townships north of the city more than the usual number of cases are being reported. In the vicinity of Roslin Village and through the Tyendinaga Township, Hungerford, Thurlow and Tyendinaga the greatest number of cases have been reported.

One of the darkest worked medical men of the district at the present time is Dr. Harold E. Welsh, M.P.P., who has been particularly concerned over the health of residents of his own family.

BELLEVILLE HAS YOUNG MAYOR

Compare With Oshawa in Electing Youthful Chief Magistrate

Oshawa electors are proud, and rightly so of the youth of their newly elected Mayor Mr. Alex Hall, a distinguished young barrister of thirty-two years, who the Oshawa Times claims is the second youngest mayor in the history of Canadian Municipal affairs.

The Times says in part "To Oshawa as one of the youngest cities in Canada has come the further distinction of electing the second youngest mayor in the history of Canadian Municipal affairs."

Oshawa's pride in the youth of its mayor is perfectly justifiable, but insofar as Belleville is concerned, the Oshawans are apparently taking in a little too much territory in the first place.

Belleville's newly elected Mayor, Richard D. Arnold, is thirty-two years of age, which according to Oshawa, makes him also the second youngest mayor, or in municipal history. In the second place, Mr. Hartley Wilmot, who was Chief Magistrate of this city in 1877 was also thirty-two years of age when elected.

But—Belleville proudly boasts the youngest mayor ever privileged to occupy the Chief Magistracy in any municipality of Canada, in the history of Canada. This occurred in 1926, when Frederick J. E. K. Conway was elected to that position at the tender age of twenty-four years.

However, even newspapers make mistakes, and possibly the Oshawa Times in its enthusiasm over the youth of its new Chief Magistrate may have mixed "one of the second youngest mayors in Canada".

Belleville Municipal Band

Dear Sir,—

May I beg a small space in your valued paper for a few remarks on the above mentioned subject.

Now that the By-law has passed for the grant of $1,200 for the musical fund, I should like to propose that the Wednesday evening concerts which we had a few years ago during the summer at Victoria Park be continued. This ideal spot has been very much neglected of late. The Bandstand house is badly in need of repair, and I think if paid for by the late Mr. Corby is a disgrace at the present time.

Several ratepayers and myself agree that this is the proper place for a City Band's performance and Wednesday evening the proper time to play.

Let us light up the Park and Strike up the Band!

Yours truly,
William Trump.

EMPLOYMENT FOR GIRLS

Belleville, Ont., Jan. 7, 1937

Editor of Ontario Intelligencer,
Dear Sir—

During the Christmas rush, two young girls of the city applied for work in the stores.

The manager of one of the stores gave one young lady two hours' work and the other one half a day's work. That would not be a very good recommendation for them when they go to look for work this year.

Wouldn't this city's stores were school girls and married women presumably going to their mates' homes and most of them working to put in their spare time. In our store there was a married woman whose husband is making big money at his job. She worked during the Christmas rush. There are other women working steady in the stores whose husbands have good jobs.

Factories in this city have been running shifts day and night and would employ girls from the country and married women from the county.

There is no need to send out of the city for girls for jobs as there are lots of girls with Public School education who cannot pay fees for the collegiate.

Those outside the city are not paying city taxes, so why don't the business men of this city give their own home-town girls a chance to live honest and to pay their way? Remember, a person has to have influential friends or political pull to get a job.

Give Fair Play.

Mrs. Frank Grills, Sidney, left on Thursday for a visit to friends in Peterboro with her daughter, Mrs. Fred Ash, and family.

Mrs. Harry Gidney and son may of recent guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McKendry, Canniff.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Clemens, Bowmanville, and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Clement, Victoria Harbour, visited friends in Belleville this week.

Mr. Ned Potts, son of the late Dr. James Potts, Belleville, and his wife and bride, Virginia May, of New York City, who were married recently in Paris, France, and spent in Bombay, India, according to a Belleville paper, is the first passenger who is in the city visiting at the home of her brother, Mr. Hocombe U. Albert Gray. Mrs. Potts was formerly with the National Carbon Company and made regular calls in this city where he has many friends. Last month she was transferred to New York to the Head Office and now will represent his firm in India with headquarters at Calcutta.

One of the most successful social entertainments in the Belleville Auditorium was the first annual at home of the Holy Rosary Club last evening. "A very large attendance enjoyed the hospitality of the Society and a delightful evening. Cards were played with the ladies' prizes being won by Mrs. Boyd Findley, ladies' first; Mrs. George Hall, second; Mrs. Ross Gilbert, third; Mrs. Kelleher, fourth; Mr. Deacon, men's first; Mr. Frank O'Brien, second; Mr. Jack Gilbert, third, and Mr. Boyd Findley, fourth. Prefect Marjorie Fitzgerald presented the first prize-winner; Mrs. Walter Hartley, second; Mrs. Ross Gilbert, third; men's prizes being won by Mr. J. Wren, first; Mr. Hall, second, and Mr. Kelly, third. Refreshments were served after the games, following which Reverend Mother Mascon's Orchestra provided an excellent dance programme. The committee, one ton of anthracite coal, was won by Jimmy Belair. The committee in charge of the at Home was very pleased with the success which attended the event.

ST. THOMAS W. A. ELECTS OFFICERS

At the annual meeting of the W. A. of St. Thomas' Church, Belleville, on Wednesday, reports were submitted which showed that the past year to have been very active and successful.

MR. H. ROLLINS SR. MARKS 81ST BIRTHDAY

On the evening of his 81st birthday, January 1st, 1937, the family of Mr. Hark Rollins, Sr., of Cooper, met at his home and entertained him and Mrs. Rollins, as well as themselves, to a bountiful supper, the main feature of which was oysters.

It would seem worthy of note, also cause for much gratitude that the immediate family of the host of sons and one daughter remains unbroken. The family has not gathered in the course of years so much so that at the time of this gathering the family tree numbered thirty-eight, one granddaughter being deceased.

Among those present to celebrate the birthday were: Mr. and Mrs. John Rollins, Mr. and Mrs. R. Rollins, Joan and Fay, of Latta; Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Rollins and family, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rollins and family of Cheesemorton; Mr. and Mrs. Keith Rollins of Madoc; Mr. and Mrs. Ivy Rollins and family of Cooper; Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Rollins of Peterboro; Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Rollins and family of Cooper; Mr. and Mrs. Hark Rollins Jr., and Ross at home. Also present were Miss Rose Walker, of Toronto, Mr. Harry Cox, of Dunbar and Mr. Ed Cox of Queensboro, who proposed a toast to the guest of honor, making mention that not only had he lived a long life, but also a good life. Mr. Rollins made a suitable reply and expressed himself as being very pleased with the attention rendered him by his family on this occasion.

SPRINGBROOK W. I.

The December meeting of the Springbrook Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. M. E. Neal, Bonarlaw, on Wednesday afternoon of last week with a good attendance. The meeting was opened in the usual manner with the President, Mrs. Geo. Bailey in the chair.

The secretary, Mrs. W. J. Barlow read the minutes.

The roll call "Items a qualification desirable for an office" was very well responded to. Mrs. Hugh Jones took charge of the program.

Miss Evelyn Bailey gave a short interesting paper on the motto, "Every person falls to measure up to their responsibilities, it is not they alone but all of us who suffer." Mrs. Percy Barlow read the current events. Mrs. W. O. Swayze contributed a piano solo.

A splendid demonstration was given by Mrs. G. S. Hazwood on the care of linen and the pressing and folding of clothes. The proper folding of table linen, towels and pillow cases was demonstrated. The reading was given by Miss Ivy Thompson. Miss Thompson contributed a pleasing vocal solo, Mrs. Albert Neal also gave a reading.

A very interesting paper was given by Mrs. Archie Haslett entitled "Canadian Women's Leadership." She said that real success is making the most of what God has given us.

Christmas gifts were exchanged at this meeting, each member drawing a name in December so that every one's gift was to be given.

Following the committee on Christmas cheer baskets sent out, was given. A spelling match in which most of the members present joined, proved very interesting, after which the meeting was closed with the National Anthem.

A splendid lunch was then served and a social half hour enjoyed by all.

HOLLOWAY ST. W.M.S.

With fifty members in attendance the W.M.S. of Holloway St. United Church held their monthly meeting on Wednesday, January 6th. The president, Mrs. Mark Miller, was in the chair and opened the meeting with a reading, "A New Year's Resolution." Mrs. Miller assisted in having the singing of a hymn and the Lord's Prayer in unison. After the minutes of the last meeting, Mrs. Worden Wallace, treasurer, read the sum contributed by the Rev. Mr. Orchard who conducted the installation of the officers last night.

Stragers' Secretary, Mrs. Annett, reported on the calls. The corresponding secretary, Mrs. Scott, reported that letters were sent and read replies to all. It was suggested that letters be sent to Macalister Church and Bloomfield Church, and that suitable cards be sent to Mackenzie Memorial and Gilmour and Schryver, who are unable to attend meetings. The treasurer's report was read and approved.

Mrs. Moss and her group then took charge of the meeting opening with a hymn followed by Scripture reading and prayer. The following program was enjoyed: A devotional book by Jesse, the Priest of Woman and Children; and Mrs. Cameron short sketches on Christmas Day by Newman, Mrs. Mrs. Denton and Mrs. Mott. They also did splendid work in the preparation by Mrs. Holmes and a piano solo by Mrs. Hubbs. Rev. Mr. Newman closed the meeting with prayer, following which Group No. 1 served refreshments.

Stirling and District

Stirling, Jan. 8.—The annual meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held in the church parlors on Thursday evening following the special choir service. Arthur Robinson officiated as chairman and presided during the business part. Reports were made following a review of the work of 1936 and many interesting things planned for the future were a social evening, and a committee composed of Mrs. Dunkin, Mrs. Williams, Miss Fargey, Mrs. Nolan and Mrs. Donnelly was appointed to survey the possibility of a dramatical production to be held under the auspices of the choir. The matter of securing new books and pianos for the choir was also discussed.

Election of Officers

The election of officers was conducted by Rev. Nolan acting as secretary for the meeting and the following group was appointed to direct the activities of the organization for the year 1937:

President—Mr. Arthur Duncan.

Vice-President: Mr. Roy Eggleston.

Secretary Treasurer—Miss Christian Fargey.

Librarian: Mrs. M. Ward.

Clerk of the cloak room: Miss Lily Wright.

Organist and Choir Leader: Mrs. R. H. Williams.

While lengthy discussion, took place with regard to raising funds for the choir treasury the only objective set forth for the coming year is the purchase of new books and music.

St. John's Men's Association

The regular meeting of St. John's Men's Association was held in the Memorial Hall on Wednesday evening of this week with a good number of the members in attendance. Mr. E. A. Carleton, President of the organization, officiated as chairman for the evening and reports from the secretary-treasurer, Mr. William Dunn, and the various committees were received. The shooting match sponsored by the association was held recently in the basement of the hall was one of the outstanding successful events of the season, another of the reports presented by those in charge of its organization. Following the business and period of discussion regarding future activities the meeting was closed in the usual manner and all the members present thoroughly enjoyed a period of social fellowship.

Social Gathering Meet

A special meeting of the Stirling Board of Education was held on Wednesday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Donald Dunkin, Mrs. Williams, Miss Fargey, Mrs. Nolan and Mrs. Donnelly was appointed to the following members of the board to constitute a committee: C. F. Lind H. C. Martin, Herbert Wallace, Wright, Fred T. Ward, J. B. Bellshaw, and Dr. R. H. Algar.

The question of renting the rural arena for the use of the students of the Stirling schools was discussed and the offer of the rink committee of $25.00 for each school evening was accepted, with the agreement that the pupils of the High School have the use of the rink for hockey practice after four o'clock each Wednesday afternoon and the same period the use of on Saturday mornings.

Mr. J. L. Good, principal of the High School was appointed to the Library Board to fill out Mr. R. G. Lawlor's term of office.

Permission was granted the pupils of the High School to hold their annual dance in the community hall. The report of High School Inspector Anglin was received, but was laid over for consideration at the next meeting.

The meeting then adjourned to meet again at the Board rooms at the High School on the last Monday of January.

Mr. Tom Tulloch of Moose River, Alta., is visiting at the home of his sister, Mrs. J. M. McCee.

Mr. Reginald Muldoon of Albert College, Belleville, has returned to his studies at that institution after spending the vacation period at the home of his parents in Stirling.

Miss Jean Thompson spent the week-end at the home of Mrs. O. J. Bailey, Campbellford, Ont.

ALDEN'S W.M.S.

The January Missionary meeting of Alden's was held at the home of Mrs. Harriett Hutton, on Wednesday, and was especially interesting.

Mrs. Frank Grills, the president, presided the theme of the meeting being "Jesus, the Friend of women and children". Scripture readings were read by Mrs. R. Hamilton and by Mrs. Harry Hamilton. The Devotional Leaflet dealing with the theme echoed, was given by Mrs. Edgar Ray. The hymns that were sung were "Standing with Thee at the beginning of the New Year."

The officers were called on to give reports of the work done in their departments for last year.

Mrs. Griffis read a letter from Rev. and Mrs. Gell of Flinton, gratefully acknowledging the "White Gifts" sent to them for distribution and they told of the pleasure of the boys and girls on receiving them.

Mrs. Fred Westover sang a solo, which was much appreciated.

A reading was given by Mrs. Earl Smith.

During the business part of the meeting a new member, Mrs. Fred Wallace was welcomed to the Society and to the community.

Mrs. Frank Grills, Group Book Mrs. S. Westover, then took charge of the Study Period and the examination on the chapter: Mrs. Fred Westover, Mrs. Fred Moon, Mrs. H. Hubbs, Mrs. Edgar Ray, Mrs. Melvin Mc-Mullen, Mrs. Edgar Ray, Miss Dorothy Ray and Mrs. Earl Smith.

The President then asked Mrs. Stanley Spafford, President of the Institutional Rally to take charge of the Installation Service, which was very impressive and the officers for 1937 were duly installed.

Mrs. Spafford, Mrs. Hutton and a dainty lunch was served by the hostess and a social hour was enjoyed by the members.

WEST LAKE

West Lake—Mr. D. Maitland received the sad news of the death of his brother in the west.

Mr. Ernest Hall is spending sometime at Tweed, visiting his brother.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"Rose Bowl"

A breezy and delightful story of college football, climaxed with all the glamor and action of a big-time college football game, "Rose Bowl" which opens Friday, Stars Eleanore Whitney, Tom Brown, Larry Crabbe and Frank Craven. Tom Brown and Priscilla Lawson, shown at the Capitol Saturday only.

"Rose Bowl" is a fast moving football picture with a fire-cracker love interest which it appears that everybody is in love with the entire team until the rythmic climax, which comes with a smashing finish, when the game is played on the famous football stadium. The action and thrills of the football game shown in this picture overshadow anything that's yet been done in this type of film and have caused excitement to satisfy the most rabid football fan. There is also plenty of comedy which keeps the production moving at top speed right from the start.

The story deals mainly with Miss Whitney and her two rivals, Crabbe and Brown. She is classed by Crabbe, the local high school hero, as has a soft spot in her heart for the more prosaic Brown. Before Crabbe leaves for college he gives her his ring and promises to write. He never does. He falls for Miss Lawson, a movie actress. Brown becomes friends with Benny and his roommate.

During their vacations the boys go home. Crabbe with Miss Lawson, and Brown with Benny, who invites Brown to meet his sister, a childhood sweetheart, and their love blooms almost immediately. Crabbe is heart-brted at the change in Brown but refuses to admit defeat. Meanwhile, the colleges become eligible for the coveted Rose Bowl football game. The stage completes the five-sided romance and makes for a thrilling finish. Crabbe and Brown's school and the muddle is solved. Crabbe is reunited to Benny and Miss Whitney goes to Brown, with the prospect of a football life in the cold.

CONSTRUCTION NEEDS VAST

"No sooner is a structure completed that it begins to become obsolete" says the Daily Commercial News and Building Record in its Trade Review and Forecast number. The subject "Let's Rebuild Canada." A. C. Jameson, writer of the article, comments: "This is especially true in a young and rapidly developing country like Canada where all requirements are in a state of flux. It is particularly true of the last five years. Probably in no previous period of the same duration have so many advances been made in the design of buildings and in building materials and equipment. It is not without significance that the winning plans submitted in national architectural competitions during the past year almost all reveal a radical departure in style, and the growing popularity of such devices as air conditioning is undoubtedly an influence to be considered in connection with the future of every existing building."

The writer points out that obsolescence extends even further. Pre-depression highways, with their narrow bridges must be replaced to meet adequately present-day traffic conditions. Street lighting in cities and towns has, for the same reason, become unsatisfactory. Many communities are in utter need, no limitation to the possibilities that are opened when we say "Let's Rebuild Canada."

Mr. Jameson declares that the construction trade has never sought to build up a demand for its goods and services, in this way differing from automotive and radio industries. But he says "Now it may be time for construction to take a page from other industries' policies and go out and make a vigorous effort to obtain new business."

Rebuilding will put men at work, as has been pointed out many times before. Construction is like any other industry in this that a multitude of industries are affected by revival of building and reconstruction. The housing and repair legislation of the Canadian parliament offer incentive to private enterprise.

B. W. Coghlin, President of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in an article in the same paper, shows that construction is an important part in the life and progress of any country, a fact which is particularly true of Canada, where development is far from complete and the materials for building exist in abundance.

That the gain due to private enterprise offsets the drop in public works is the startling and felicitous statement made by S. E. Cudmore, associate-editor who says that without stimulants the construction industry asserted its natural vitality and functioned as it did as actively as when in the preceding year it was officially bolstered by the Public Works Construction Act of the Federal Parliament. The year 1936 had a total construction of $165,000,000.

One of the most interesting statements in the forecast is that Canada's deferred construction needs are of a huge total value of approximately $701,297,276 of which $270,000,000 should go for housing, a large amount for deferred federal provincial and municipal public works, and $180,845,560 for deferred privately controlled projects. Among the deferred needs are no fewer than 673 school buildings, 152 community halls, 68 hospitals and institutions and deferred repairs amounting to many millions of dollars even where entire replacement is not required.

There are no steps to think that sewerage disposal systems in 273 municipalities of over 1,000 population have been deferred and 172 waterworks systems held up through the depression, one can have a faint notion of the immensity of the program which demands attention.

In the trade review and forecast are immumerable other facts and suggestions, and thoughts worth studying by all who should see in the expansion or construction, one of the surest means of recovery.

Hon. Mr. McQuesten says that "if the use of automobiles may be accepted as a standard of commercial activity, we can say that 1936 was a more prosperous year for the people of Ontario. Registrations of motor vehicles were almost five per cent. above the figure for the previous year. There were 841,000 drivers registered or seven per cent. more than in 1935, while the amount of vehicle travel—as shown by gasoline consumption—and the volume of tourist traffic also set all-time records.

"In view of the advances in these items there is some reason for satisfaction, if not for pride, in the fact that preliminary figures show the number of fatal accidents to be less than the total for 1935."

RAINY DAY

I hoard the shining pennies
That I manage not to spend
And I count them very gravely
At each glad day's end.
And when I have a dollar
For a rainy day.
I feel so very gay
That I tuck it in my pocket
For a rainy day.

I like to browse in bookshops
And I love to steal a look
Between the magic covers
Of a bright new book.
But I can't resist their packets
Or what they have to say,
And—gone are all my pennies
For a rainy day.

I'm safe in hoarding whimsy,
It happens to be free
And the very thing a bookshop
Cannot wile from me.
So I'll take your throaty chuckle
And your smoke rings, if I may,
And I'll tuck them in my memory
For a rainy day.

—K. A. Mackinnon.

FIRST BABY BORN IN BELLEVILLE THIS YEAR is nameless yet. How would some of our readers like to have the babe named for them and endow it with something tangible to give it a start in life. The parents can not give the 1937 Babe very much, on account of lack of employment, and there is a great chance for a Godfather or Godmother here to pile up treasures in Heaven and blessings upon earth by just helping the New Boy Baby out a bit. This brave lad who arrived at 5.20 in the morning of New Year's day. Who knows, he may be Premier of Canada some day, a great lawyer, a great preacher, a great Canadian of some sort and some one to be proud of. Let's give this boy baby a good start,—he arrived naked and needs everything. Let's hear from you. Join the new Boy Baby Club and contribute something, if only a safety pin. Let's help this Belleville Boy Baby to be the Biggest Event of this year and each year to come. One of the first things necessary, apart from the wants of the Babe is a job for the father, a young man, a good mechanic, active, honest and industrious. He could be a very valuable employee for someone.

REMARKABLE THING ABOUT THE CAMPAIGN FOR A CHANGE TO THE CITY MANAGER SYSTEM—not one word was uttered publicly against the plan on the ground that it was economically unsound, that it would be expensive, or that it had failed elsewhere. Just a silent, whispering denunciation as of something to be feared. The press, lawyers, ratepayers' associations, whose interested parties were trying to put over. We are convinced that it will not take very long under the new system to show how much better it is than the old unbusinesslike system. Old Belleville has shaken off the shackles of prejudice and blind standstillness—the New Belleville is going places and carrying along as passengers those who will later on the other patters who look upon new things with suspicion. The Model T's are far behind the V8's.

HE'D WIN HIS BET

A guide, conducting a party of tourists round a Parisian Art Gallery, halted them before an Egyptian mummy and said, enthusiastically, "This mummy is practically three thousand years old. Why, it is quite likely the Pharaohs saw it!" "Come on, ma," one man whispered to his wife. "Fancy trying to tell us Pharaoh saw that mummy. Why, I'll bet that Pharaoh was never in Paris in his life!"

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Jan. 8th., 1917.

Mr. J. W. Imlah is spending a few days in Toronto.

At a meeting Thursday evening a Junior Ontario Hockey Team was formed for the season 1917 under the management of the Ontario Baseball team with Walter Gerow as manager and Sam Symons as trainer. The boys are anxious to meet in a friendly game any team of young men under 17 years and especially would like to try conclusions with a high school team.

The inaugural meeting of the Belleville city council for the year 1917 was held this morning. On motion of Ald. Woodley, His Worship, Mayor W. F. Ketcheson, was escorted to the chair by Ald. Dr. G. A. Marshall and Ald. Albert Robinson, and invested with the chain of office. The Rev. S. C. Moore made the opening prayer. The following chairmen were appointed: Executive, W. A. Woodley; Gas dept., A. Robinson; Public Works Charles Whelen; Printing and Stationery, H. Parks; market and city property, R. O. Hall; Fire department, Dr. G. A. Charles; Waterworks, W. B. Deacon; Light, W. S. Smith; Parks and Industries, O. J. Marshall. The following appointments were made: Local Board of Health, Mayor Ketcheson, Dr. H. A. Yeomans, A. McGie, L. P. Hughes, S. Robertson, High School Trustees, H. W. Ackerman and C. M. Rolf; Library Board, Col. R. S. Leslie; Auditor for County of Hastings, J. W. Holmes.

30 YEARS AGO

Jan. 8th., 1907.

Another municipal election day is past and gone and our citizens can congratulate themselves that they have elected an excellent Mayor and Council to look after their interests during the year 1907. Charles N. Sulman was re-elected mayor over ex-alderman W. V. Sinclair by a majority of 195 votes. The total vote was 980 for Mr. Sulman and 685 for Mr. Sinclair. Total vote for mayor in 1906 by members of last year's council were re-elected and five new members were elected. The three defeated candidates are Ald. Peterson, Ald. Elnon and ex-Ald. Robinson. The new members are Messrs. S. Burrows who headed the poll, Thompson, Starling, Ackerman and Sills. The following aldermen will compose the board of works, the order of their election at the polls: Messrs. Burrows, Green, Potter, Marsh, Thompson, Starling, Ackerman, Vermilyea, Butler and McCrodan. There were no contests for school trustees. Ir. Murney Ward Mr. Phil. Harrison defeated Messrs. Diamond and Gillen by a handsome majority, and Mr. J. S. Anderson defeated Mr. Ryan in Coleman Ward. The returns were announced by City Clerk W. C. Mikel after which speeches were made by the successful candidates, Mr. D. V. Spencer took his defeat in a highly commendable and manly manner and he and Mayor Sulman shook hands in a most friendly manner upon the platform in the City Hall.

40 YEARS AGO

Jan. 8th., 1897.

The following new ministry has been formed in the Mock Parliament: Premier and Minister of Justice, Hon. E. J. Butler; Minister of Finance, Hon. T. S. Clark; Minister of Public Works, Hon. C. B. DeMille; Secretary of State, Hon. W. H. Hertz; Minister of Interior, Marine and Fisheries, Hon. W. H. Reid; Minister of Railways and Canals, Hon. H. Miles; Postmaster General, Hon. W. H. Frost; Minister of Militia, Hon. Phil. Harrison; Minister of Customs and Inland Revenue, Hon. R. J. Clarke; Minister of Agriculture, Hon. T. McVee.

The first hockey match of a series between the clubs representing the Bay of Quinte League for the handsome cup donated by Mr. H. Corby, M. P., took place on the Belleville rink yesterday between Picton and Belleville. It proved an easy victory for our boys who scored 14 goals to their opponents' 1. There was a large attendance of spectators. The following composed the teams: Belleville—Mack, Jamieson, Gignac Hulme, Boyd, Bogart, Hamilton, Ernest Long, Harry Kelso; Russell Weller, Picton—H. R. Rodburn, J. Stephens, A. Despard, J. C. Barker, J. Wright, F. Ferris, L. Gilbert. Judge umpires, H. F. Thomas and M. Branscombe, referee, M. Moore, Trenton.

50 YEARS AGO

Jan. 8th., 1887.

Derry Lodge, I. O. of Tuscarora, presented their Past Master, Bro. W. Thompson Diamond, with a Past Master's Jewel last night. The jewel was accompanied by a gift of a purse, expressing the high esteem and regard felt for him by the members of the order, who for four years honorably and ably filled the Master's chair. Bro. Diamond has been active in the advancement of the Order. Bro. Diamond made a suitable reply.

Great Britain, France Consider Direct Action To Isolate Civil War

May Seal Spanish Coast

Although the first manoeuvres were planned for naval authorities of both countries as "routine", reports were heard that Chamberlain and Eden acted hurriedly when they noted to seal the Spanish coast against all foreign aid.

The mighty Armada, aggregating more than 1,000,000 tons in combined strength, would be capable of erecting an impenetrable barrier around Spain's coast.

Let's open would be the route through the Pyrenees mountains along the Franco-Spanish frontier, but the French foreign office was reported studying legislation to forbid all movement into Spain without specific official authorization.

Before taking such drastic steps, with possibly momentous effects on international repercussions, it was learned France and Britain hoped to find a solution in the current diplomatic structure. French foreign circles indicated they were considering asking the non-intervention committee to draw up a plan that would include as many of the Italo-German proposals as possible.

In their answers to Premier Blum and France yesterday, the two Fascist powers, in similar notes, demanded enforcement of complete non-intervention be envisaged by the preparative scheme.

Strict Embargo Asked

Their program called for a strict embargo on gold, armaments and other supplies, supervision of all foreign agitators and expulsion of all foreign volunteers fighting in Spain, as well as prevention of the sending of new volunteer detachments.

British observers, on the other hand, pointed out that the committee, after months of meetings, had been unable to accomplish anything of importance and were forced to refer all proposals back to their governments before taking even a minor step.

Representatives vested with plenipotentiary power to act on their own responsibility were said to be a necessity if the committee was to act. British officials were reported ready to ask foreign governments to consult their naval commanders.

Home Fleet to Spain

Orders for the home fleet to proceed to the Mediterranean were announced last night. Led by the battleships Rodney and Nelson, the fleet, including cruisers, aircraft carrier and destroyers, the flotilla will leave British waters on Jan. 15th, and will be the largest assembled for the first time.

The home fleet in Spanish waters during the latter part of this month and in February was officially described as a "special part of the regular spring manoeuvres."

The Rodney and Nelson, 33,000 and 33,900 tons respectively, the sailing will be the first time that the 23,000-ton battleships Royal Oak, Ramillies, Revolution and Revenge, the 22,500-ton airplane carriers Furious and Courageous, the cruisers Galatea, Orion and Neptune, the 4th, 5th and 6th destroyer flotillas, and submarines of the 2nd and 3rd 15th divisions, together with auxiliary craft.

'Hamlet' Record Made on Broadway

New York, Jan. 7 (CP)—A brief curtain speech was spoken at the conclusion of yesterday's matinee of "Hamlet" by the youthful young English actor appearing in the title role, to mark the 101st consecutive performance of the play and establishing a record on Broadway.

Gielgud's record has only been approached by John Barrymore and Edwin Booth. Before a capacity audience Gielgud said:

"I have the great honor today to hold the record for 'Hamlet' in America. I cannot tell you how deeply I appreciate the wonderful welcome I have had in New York."

Gielgud had appeared previously in London in "Hamlet" for 185 consecutive performances—a run which has only been surpassed by the record engagement of 200 performances played by Sir Henry Irving in 1874.

CHINESE HANGED AT HAILEYBURY

John Wah, Christian Chinese Pays Penalty For Slaying Woon Hong

Haileybury, Ont., Jan. 8 (CP)—Executive clemency refused by the Department of Justice, Ottawa, Wah Wah, 56-year-old Timmins Chinese, was hanged early today for the murder of a fellow-countryman, Woon Hong, at Timmins, November 4, 1935.

With the same calmness that marked his long imprisonment, his trial and imprisonment, the Christian Chinese went quietly to the scaffold. He made no statement, spoke not a word and was buried in the prison yard. The death sentence was carried out 16 minutes after midnight and a coroner's jury declared him dead two minutes later.

Wah was alleged to have stabbed Woon Hong, a long-bladed cook's knife after a quarrel in a Timmins hotel. At his trial before Mr. Justice Keiller MacKay, Wah agreed with evidence given by Crown witnesses but pleaded innocent.

Ejected From Store

After his conviction, Wah was said to have been ejected from the store late last evening and the accused Hong several times. Hong died four days later and Wah was charged with murder. He came to his conviction.

During the long months in jail when he was ignored by his countrymen, Wah consoled himself by reading the Bible. He was converted to Christianity and became an adherent of the Salvation Army. He came to the gallows from the Pacific Coast where relatives still live.

Witnesses at the hanging included the jail physician, Dr. W. C. Arnold; Inspector F. B. Creasy of the Ontario Provincial Police; Sheriff W. C. Dbueck, Haileybury; Sheriff J. D. MacKay, of Cochrane; Warden Charles Austin, Haileybury; eight Provincial Constables and two Royal Canadian Mounted policemen.

Time Wields Heavy Scythe Among Veterans

By SID FEDER

Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Jan. 8—(AP)— Old Pop Time is wielding a heavy scythe among the big league ball veterans for 1937.

Some 30 members of the select society of 10-year men in the major leagues are definitely out or are slated to see their action from the sidelines when the wars start. Until 17 others, still going strong, will be initiated into the select set.

Meantime, surely "grandaddy of the game as Rogers Hornsby, Jimmy Dykes, Billy Wade (pronounced Hoyt among the 20-year-old men, and Frankie Frisch and Jesse Haines, with 18 years of service back of him, are laughing at the reaper. They're all down the lists of active players for their club for the coming season.

Charlie Grimm Out

Bowing out of this latter group is Charley Grimm, the Chicago Cubs' manager, who has done a lot of "iron-sulting" in his playing years. For the first time, he is off the club's "reserve list," and the chances are Charley has come to the end of the trail for good.

Other high-school products of the John McGraw school with the Giants appear on Terry Moore's lineup for keeps.

Travis Jackson, after years of third-basing leave, the big Georgian is now the giants' big long-time teammate and boss. Bill Terry, of course, continues on his voluntary retired list.

Mark Koenig, 10 years in the majors and a member of five pennant winning outfits, saw his last action when the Giants lost the 1936 world series. He has been given his unconditional release. Among the pitchers, General Alvin Crowder already has announced his retirement, while the numbers are up for such old timers as George Blaeholder, Ray Benge, George Earnshaw, Roy Mahaffey and Rube Walberg.

CADI STATES CHARGE CORRECT

L. C. A. in Huron County Questioned Defence Counsel

Goderich, Ont., Jan. 8 (CP) Ontario Liquor Control Act's authority in Huron County was questioned during hearing of a liquor case before Magistrate J. A. Malkin here but the Magistrate upheld the act despite argument of defence counsel the Canada Temperance Act was in force only in the county.

Frank Donnelly, counsel for Murdoch Maxfield of Clinton, charged with unlawfully keeping liquor in other than the place where he resided, contended the Liquor Control Act was "not in force in Huron County."

"That charge is laid under the L.C.A.," he continued, "I would like to take an objection on the grounds of the ruling by the Privy Council that Huron County is under the Canada Temperance Act.

"It has been held that when the constitutional question is raised the L.C.A. is ultra vires of the province," replied Crown Attorney D. E. Holmes. "The Privy Council decision did not go far enough and the L.C.A. is still in force."

Magistrate Malkin ruled the charge as laid was correct and adjourned the case for a week.

OSHAWA PLANT OF G. M. MAY CLOSE

Unless Settlement of U. S. Strike Made, 8,000 Will be Out of Work

Oshawa, Ont., Jan. 8 (CP) Plants of General Motors of Canada Limited are threatened with a close-down, throwing 8,000 men out of employment, if negotiations is reached before the end of January in the strikes tying up United States automobile industry.

Making the announcement in Oshawa Harry J. Carmichael, Vice-President and General Manager of General Motors of Canada Limited, said shortage of body materials appeared the reason for the company's plans in the Dominion, located at Oshawa, St. Catharines and Walkerville.

Assembly plants will be able to continue production on restricted schedule for the rest of this month with existing supplies, Mr. Carmichael said, but if settlement is not reached the plants would be closed.

There was no immediate danger of a strike in Canada, Mr. Carmichael said. It was known, however, that United States organizers were on this side of the border and that strike pay cards and circulars were distributed among the men. It was impossible to calculate how far organization had progressed.

"We do not expect a strike because we don't think the men are misinformed," he said.

PORTLAND TAKES VANCOUVER

Portland, Ore., Jan. 8 (AP)—Portland Buckaroos hammered through three goals in the final period here last night to defeat Vancouver Lions 5-3 in a Pacific Coast Hockey League game.

Ralph Bitz led the Portland attack getting a goal and two assists. Schnarr, Beiler, Cooper and Thompson tallied Sons' other goals. Carse and Mercer were the Vancouver snipers.

Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan are united for the third time in "Tarzan Escapes," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new jungle adventure drama opening Saturday at the Belle Theatre. They have been teamed in "Tarzan, the Ape Man" and "Tarzan and His Mate."

CHARITY CARNIVAL FOR V.O.N. WORK

Committee Meets And Arranges Date and Varied Entertainment

With the support of all local service clubs, the Kinsmen Band, the Quinte Skating Club, firemen and policemen and all citizens of the community behind the Belleville V. O. N. charity carnival and ice fantasy will be held at the Belleville Arena on Feb. 4th next, it was announced at a meeting of representatives of the various organizations mentioned. Last season one of the finest ice spectacles ever staged in this city was held under the auspices of the V.O.N. and gained such success, that the project was at that time proposed to be an annual affair for the benefit of the V. O. N. work in this city.

Last evening representatives from the Rotary Club, Kiwanis Club, Y's Men's Club, Kinsmen's Club, Belleville Fire and Police Departments, the Quinte Skating Club, the Belleville Musical Club, the Band and others met in the local police court rooms and following the unanimous vote of the meeting, it was decided to hold the annual V.O.N. charity ice carnival slightly earlier this year than last. Chief Alex Kidd was again named as the chairman of the committee in charge of the preparations with Fred Chamberlain, treasurer and Miss R. Arbuckle, secretary. Mrs. Chas. Redland, president of the V.O.N. representing that organization and thanking those who had been instrumental in presenting this feature and making it an annual affair.

Many Attractions

All attractions, and there will be new and varied items included on this year's program, are being donated gratis, the skating club and band donating their time and services free. Fancy and figure skating by the member of the Quinte Skating Club, who impressed and thrilled over 2,000 last year, will be the feature attraction, although the annual ice-fete between an amalgamated hockey team of police and firemen versus a team composed of members of the local service clubs, will continue where it left off last year, when the teams battled themselves into exhaustion amid the laughter of the patrons at their attempts to play the game.

Prizes for the skaters in costume this year may not be as large in quantity as those of last year, but the quality of the prizes this year is to surpass any ever presented to the community. Prizes for this year's judging of costumes will be carried out in a little different manner than heretofore, each class will be judged separately, to be followed by a grand parade of prize winners. Those entering the competition in costume this year will be asked to register upon entering the rink. At least one new attraction, while the committee is endeavoring to add other features also, will be included on the program, that is to be arranged next Thursday night, when the various committees will be appointed at a second meeting of the committee.

The V.O.N. ice carnival is surely a charity venture and looks for the whole-hearted support of the entire community in order that it may prove to be the success it deserves for such a cause.

CHANCES OF SPRING FLOOD VERY REMOTE

Just as a matter of record it was recalled at the city hall today that one year ago the Moira River, following a sharp drop in temperatures was frozen with a thick glaze of ice to its bed through the lower section, while considerable speculation over a spring flood was also rife.

Later the city was t cexperience one of its most damaging floods dr ing April.

Today, swollen by heavy rains of the present week, the water level has been reached, with swift current rushing in large waves to the open bay.

"It's too early to prophesy whether the city will experience a flood this year, but, unless we get some pretty cold weather this month or next month the chances of a flood like last year's are remote," commented City Engineer Chas. Mott.

KIRMA Internationally Known Mystic to Drive Through the City Blindfolded

TO DRIVE BLINDFOLDED

GREAT DEMONSTRATION AT BELLE THEATRE ALL WEEK

Science is still in the midst of its intensive study of the psychic mystery of mental telepathy. Councils, investigators have spent years in trying to fathom the secret of this inexplicable phenomenon.

Kirma, showing in the Belle Theatre during the coming week, is a world-wide famous psychic. He has demonstrated, to the consternation of scientists, his uncanny ability to delve into the secret recesses of the human mind.

To Give Free Exhibition of Power

Monday noon, January 11th, Kirma will take advantage of the offering of Holgate Motors, and will drive their new Terraplane through the congested streets of the city with his eyes completely bandaged and blindfolded. The blindfold will be applied to Kirma's eyes directly in front of the City Hall at twelve o'clock sharp. The blindfold will be passed around for inspection to anyone skeptical as to his ability to perform this extraordinary feat and at the conclusion of the drive which will terminate in front of the Belle Theatre it is again permissible to examine his blindfold.

Kirma will make the following stops while enroute on his perilous drive, at twelve thirty he will be at the Bowra Electric and Hardware Co., where he will demonstrate a new Locomotive Electric Washer in their show window. He will appear at the Percival Furniture store where he will make arrangements for the use of their Show Window and Majestic Radio for his marvelous demonstration of Hypnotism via Radio in their window Wednesday night, when he will demonstrate perhaps one of the most astonishing feats of modern times. He will in full view of the public, put a beautiful girl to sleep under hypnotic influence in the Percival window, and allow her to remain on exhibition in the window for a period of twenty four hours. She will be removed from the window Thursday night at seven-thirty, brought to the Belle Theatre and awakened on the stage at Kirma's regular evening performance. The only nourishment that will be given the sleeping lady will consist of a morsel of bread furnished by the Purity Bakery, and five ounces of Pasteurized Milk from the Citizens Dairy. This food will be administered to her at 12.00 Noon Thursday while she is still in her Cataleptic Sleep. Kirma considers this the only food necessary during her twenty four hours sleep because of the nutritional value in both the bread and milk. He will then go to the Jewelry Store of George Finch where he will select a Bruner Masterbuilt Watch that he will use during the time that his subject is in the window. Correct time is essential, both in the feeding and turning of his subject at regular intervals. From there, Kirma will go to the Coffee Nook Restaurant where he will pause for a drink of Coca Cola, and at the same time make arrangements for his meals while in the city. Kirma will also stop at The Georgia Bakery to select a garment for his hypnotised subject. He will make a brief pause in front of the Belle Hairdressing Shoppe, where his subject will appear Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 for a hair dress.

The blindfold automobile drive has rarely been successfully accomplished but Kirma will drive Monday noon.

PLACE: PERCIVAL FURNITURE SHOW WINDOW

KIRMA SAYS:

Because of the great danger that might result from the improper care of my subject, it is necessary for me to use the greatest precautions at all times in the selection of nourishment. We have found in our many years of study in science necessary to the successful carrying out of Hypnotism, that bread is the ideal food to feed subjects, because of the great amount of nutritional value it contains and the ease with which it is digested. The CARE USED IN BAKING AND THE HIGH QUALITY of the INGREDIENTS USED MAKES PURITY BREAD IDEAL FOR THE BASE OF EVERY MEAL.

BORN AMONG HILL TRIBES IN INDIA

Kirma, the wizard of mental telepathy who is appearing for a full week starting Saturday, January, 9th., at the Belle Theatre, presenting his Bombay Seance which is a performance devoted to the answering of questions for members of the audience, pertaining to love affairs, business, travel, in fact all of the many perplexities of life, was born in India, that mysterious country which no man on the face of earth has yet learned to understand.

Kirma, however is of English and American parentage. His father being an Englishman and for many years in the service of his government and stationed in India. His mother is an American woman whose home is in Indiana. Kirma was brought to America at the early age of fifteen years where he finished his education.

At a very early age, Kirma showed evidence of his weird calling and rapidly developed his abilities into professional propensities. For two years he travelled in the Orient and mingled with the strangest of people and later accepted a tour of European theatres, where scientists and psychologists were astounded with his deductions of the present, past and future of individuals.

Kirma is now making a special tour of the Famous Players theatres of Canada, and has met with instantaneous success wherever he has appeared.

His appearance at the Belle Theatre for one week commencing Saturday, matinee daily, will make an important epic in the annals of local theatricals.

ELEPHANTS FIGHT SAVAGES IN THRILLER

Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan are coming to the Belle Theatre tomorrow and Monday, recalled in their latest romance of the jungle, "Tarzan Escapes", thrilling adventure drama of the king of the wilderness and his bride from the civilized world.

Thrills galore surround the love idyll—the adventure of the giant vampire bats, the quicksands of sure death, the stampede of elephants routing savages, the river of crocodiles, amazing swings across gorges and chasms, and other concentrated excitement.

The story deals with Tarzan's escape from a treacherous white hunter who seeks to trap him, hoping thus to take him to civilization to exhibit. Tarzan's mate and his wild allies keep the plot of the people from civilization from being realized. Richard Thorpe directed the new thrill romance with deft skill.

The cast, aside from Weissmuller and Miss O'Sullivan, includes Benita Hume as Rita, William Henry as the faithful cousin, John Buckler as the treacherous animal trainer, and Herbert Mundin in the comedy role.

Hundreds appear in the battles between elephants and savage warriors, in the fight between the white safari and the giants bats and in other breath-taking episodes.

Gorgeous photography and scenic details and hundreds of wild animals add interest to the new picture.

Maureen O'Sullivan had twenty-five changes of costume when she appeared with Johnny Weissmuller in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Tarzan Escapes". But they were all alike—leather costumes in duplicate, to serve as replacements after strenuous access in water, quicksands and the jungle.

IF MODERN CLEANED IT'S C-L-E-A-N

If a mud bath is good for the complexion, Maureen O'Sullivan ought to be perfection. She and Johnny Weissmuller waded in quicksand mud for ten day while filming Metro - Goldwyn-Mayer's jungle romance, "Tarzan Escapes," opening tomorrow at the Belle theatre.

What's an ostrich worth? The question bothered Richard Thorpe, director of "Tarzan Escapes," coming tomorrow and Monday to the Belle Theatre, when Big Bill, an ostrich swallowed Thorpe's watch. Question—whether to open the bird to get the watch. But they didn't and Bill appears with Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer jungle adventure romance.

William Tell has nothing on Johnny Weissmuller. He spit an apple with an arrow on the head of a studio property man on a bet during the filming of "Tarzan Escapes," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer jungle adventure romance.

William Henry's reward for outstanding work in "China Seas" was the most strenuous role in his career as Eric, in "Tarzan Escapes", Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new jungle adventure with Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan at Belle Theatre Saturday and Monday.

Benita Hume, English actress, who plays the vamp role with Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Tarzan Escapes," at the Belle theatre Saturday, became an expert rifle shot during the picture. She had to learn to shoot for the part, and practiced between scenes until proficient.

Chicago hockey fans certainly can take it and it looks as though they are going to keep right on getting it. When they will pack a rink 10,000, 12,000 and 14,000 strong to see a team that has won only four games in 21 perhaps they deserve just what they are getting.

Last night 10,859 turned out to see the Hawks, second basement of 20 goals this season, beaten again by Boston Bruins. The score was 3-0 and still the crowd seemed to be satisfied when they filed out. As long as they keep coming in large numbers to see a losing team it is unlikely to change.

The nineteen Canadians have reverted in Montreal was demonstrated when 4,000 people saw them defeat Toronto Maple Leafs 4-1. But in New York, newly bolstered Red Wings won 4-3 from the injury-riddled American outfit. Boston, best crowd of the season, saw Wings take over the Canadian lead in the American Division leadership by two points over New York Rangers.

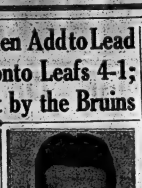
The win put Detroit Red Wings in two points up on Montreal Maroons as the top of the Canadian Division and left the Leafs still trailing Maroons by four points.

Cheers, jeers and tenacious shooting was the contest for the Flying Frenchmen. Harvey Jackson topped in a goal early in the first big six minutes later Dinty Moore opened things up and Toronto fever was manifested after that.

Aurel Joliat scored a second period goal and George Mantha and Flash Hollett helped in two more in the third. The great old Babe Siebert, Canadien defencemen, had been in the swift Canadian race was hobbled in the fact he engineered one of the Canadien counters. Darkies also got credit for two goals.

Used Senties Freely

Leafs used their bodies freely in an attempt to slow down the lightning Montreal team and Paul Haynes, Darkies and Walter Buswell all suffered injuries during the game. Haynes was cut above the right eye by a puck and will be out for a time. Buswell, Leafs' star defender, is likely to be brought up to take his place.



Lorne Chabot, who has played six of the eight games the Amerks have substituted for the injured Roy Worters in the Americans' net but was able to keep them in the running, gives scoreless only in the first period. American goals were registered in Cook Asmundson from New Haven, who has been with Amerks before.

Teddy Graham scored both the American counters, one in the second, and, when Detroit won leading 2-0 and the game looked to be tied when the champs were up 4-2. Marty Barry and Eddie Goodfellow got the second period goals for Wings and Gideon Pellinger and Herb Lewis scored in the third.

The Boston win from Hawks gave the Bruins an 11-point lead over the Chicago team and left them in third place, only a point behind Rangers and three behind Wings.

Hawks were outplayed from the opening whistle. The Boston defenceman gave Tiny Thompson the great protection as he had little difficulty scoring the shutout. Dit Clapper scored in the first period and Charlie Shade in the second. There were only two penalties, both going to Bruins.

OUT OF ACTION

The high-flying Montreal Canadiens suffered a severe blow when their star centreman, "Pit" Lepine suffered a broken leg. He will be out of action for at least two weeks. Lepine was enjoying his best season for some time. He has collected 20 assists and banged home seven goals for the Frenchmen. Lepine is seen here.

MARSH TROPHY TO DR. PHILEDWARDS

Captain of Canadian Olympic Team Unanimous Choice

Toronto, Jan. 8 (CP)—Dr. Phil Edwards carries with him across his last finish line in sport all the honors Canada handed out for 1936 achievement in competition. He was the crown of the crop.

Captain of the Canadian Olympic track and field team, point-winner in two events at Berlin, Edwards holds the Wanless Grove trophy and the Lou E. Marsh Memorial trophy. The first means he was the outstanding amateur athlete of the year, the second means he topped the professionals as well as the amateurs.

In addition the press writers voting in the year-end Canadian Press poll hailed the phenom physician as the year's best. Announcement last night that Edward had been selected the first winner of the Marsh trophy, named in honor of P. J. Muldoon, chairman of the Canadian Olympic Committee, headed the athletic nominees.

The Marsh trophy, in memory of the late general manager of the Toronto Daily Star, was donated by Canadian Ring Champions Association. It will be awarded annually to the athlete adjudged the greatest figure or her performances during the year.

HARVARD WINS OVER TORONTO

McGill Defeats Yale 11-1 And U. of M. Takes Princeton 2-1

(By The Canadian Press)

The three Canadian Collegiate hockey teams crossed the border to play with United States opponents last night and the results:

Harvard 4, Toronto 2.

Yale 11, McGill 1.

Montreal 2, Princeton 1.

Goalie Marcel Bazalon seemed to be the big factor in the first victory. Down two goals because of Roger Jamieson's first period tally and Rene Gagne's picture-counter after a Harvard penalty in the second, the Toronto pocketers all but swept the Canucks off their feet with a third period rush.

Five Forwards Used

Five forwards were thrown into the fray. Budge Miller scored for Harvard in the second period but despite the fact they forced the Toronto goalie to work hard for ice, the Tigers could not get past Bazalon for a winning goal.

Harvard and the Toronto team coached by Ace Bailey, former National Hockey League star, will trailer at Boston. The Canadian team will then return home to tie the score.

It was the second 10-minute overtime period that the John Harvards finally came through.

In the decisive overtime frame George Roberts scored for Hyvarud, only by Bazalon's brilliant last effort three minutes later. But the Harvard defence gained its composure and when Roberts scooped a free puck behind Bazalon he scored and the game was over.

Joe Pabrick, son of the famed Frank and one of Harvard's stars, was badly injured in the third period. He went down during a scramble and had to be helped off the ice with a twisted knee and gashed head.

Sport Callings

By Ken Colling

Weather permitting the Belleville intermediates are scheduled to play in Peterboro for their first inter-locking "A"-"B" game tonight. Manager Thomas expects a line-up Fred Bentley either for tonight's game or at least for the first appearance of the "Flyer," when the Redmen and the R. C. A. F. squads meet next week. Now that the Kingston Hockey Club has disbanded there is no one who Bentley cannot don a Belleville uniform and take his place along with Jimmie Ehler and Harry Ingram. Bentley has worked in both Belleville for the past couple of years, but could not procure a release from the Kingston Frontenacs who contended Napanee was closer to Kingston than to Belleville, personally we doubt this statement very much, but will not get into any controversy over such a trivial matter. In reality about all that is needed to assure Belleville hockey fans of a banner season is a little lower temperature for the purpose of ice-making. Jim when Manager Guy gets a nice firm and solid foundation of natural ice, the rest further turns mild and Mr. Guy's face takes on a much different color—yes, a brilliant red.

We have a humble apology to tender following our recent remarks of the year's sporting activities. We forgot to mention one of the most outstanding sport feats of the year, a 1936 season in Belleville and we refer to Harry Ier forgetting to mention his formidable effort on the links. According to what informant can gather Harry's feat is really one for Ripley, as no records of such accomplishments have come to our attention. He broke every club record and shot the last nine holes three under par.

So crowded is the Arena for hockey dates this season that in all probability the majority of the semi-or intermediate games in the Bay of Quinte League will be played as doubleheaders. For instance when the Picton C.C.I. meet Napanee in the O.S.D. well then the Albert College and the B.C.I. and V.I. squads will have to wait for a second half of a twin bill. We cannot afford very many single dates, also for minor hockey as we have to protect the interest of our skaters, and with three O.H.A. clubs playing their home games at the Arena, usually we are left with many open dates," explained Manager Ier last night as he sent out a few single interscholastic games would most likely be played in the afternoons and following evening hours. This arrangement should prove popular with the hockey public. Incidentally we understand some of the interscholastic basketball games in the Bay of Quinte loop are also to be lured after school hours this season. Many intermediate cagers are practicing faithfully these days in preparation for their opening game in Kingston next Saturday.

The Belleville service clubs, band and members of the Quinte Skating Club and all who made last year's "CAN. ice carnival the success they were it enjoyed c-lided last night to make the project an annual affair and at a meeting named Friday as the date for the 1937 V.O.N. ice bal-deecore. Fancy and figure skating, barbeque hockey match, prizes for fancy and comic costumes, clowns and all that goes to make up a really worthwhile ice carnival will all be included in the program. 2,000 attended the first annual V. O. N. ice carnival and left the Arena high in their praises, especially of the work of the members of the Quinte Skating Club, not to mention the efforts of the ice experts in charge of the rink. Everything with their ability. Some new attractions are to be included on next year's program, however, it has been suggested that a dog derby be held that evening and Skipper Ier, who in the Arena and before the spectators, the same as he does Redmen's "big bar derby" prompted the idea of the derby. If this feature is included only amateur pooches immediate district will be permitted to enter. This would undoubtedly interest as well as plenty of fun for all.

There is little chance of the Redmen playing in Peterboro tonight, but regardless Harry Ingram will not be available. We were sorry to hear today that Harry's small daughter is seriously ill with pneumonia. Manager Thomas is to contact Bill Hewitt today regarding a final decision in Fred Bentley's case after 5. p. m. Burrows, O.H.A. executive member stated he saw no reason why Bentley could not play for Belleville.

The 1937 edition of the R.C.I. senior intermediate hockey team started defeat in their initial start of the season at Napanee last night when the homesiders proved better all-round shakers of the stick. The score stood 4 to 1 for Napanee Collegiate at the end of hostilities. Coach Shiels is faced with problem of rebuilding his entire team after losing six or seven of last year's champion squad. Of course the local Collegians have not been afforded any too much opportunity for this season and will doubtless look better following a few hard workouts. If it ever did.

Les Canadiens continued on their merry march when they downed the Leafs, 4 to 1 last evening. The Detroit Red Wings won over the slipping Americans 4 to 2 while Boston slapped another whitewash onto the luckless Blackhawks by 3 to 0.

For those interested in city league hockey a meeting of the Belleville Hockey Club will be held at Bridge street rink, but if the weather does not soon take command of an winter sports in general, 1937 will be known as the year of the "black spot."

NAPANEE SCHOOL DEFEATS LOCALS

On a water-soaked, slush-covered surface the Belleville Collegiate seniors dropped their initial hockey game of the season to the Bay of. Quinte group at the hands of the Napanee Collegiate by the score of 4 to 1 at Napanee last evening. The ice was covered with a mass of slush and water, making progress and puck-carrying practically impossible. Napanee players were afforded to 'golf' the rubber in the general direction of their opponent's goal every few minutes, by periods 0-1, 3-1.

The B.C.I., "Collegians" opened the scoring when Bill Hall drove Muir's pass into the net behind Goalie Ashley at 3.30 of the first period. This marked the only scoring of the initial period although the B.C.I. Hall perfect rushed the puck with terrific success until the ice surface became a sea of slush and water. Wall Gerow evened matters, when he drove home a pass, after which Napanee by Referee Bentley, after Gerow had fallen over Cockburn's body. Gilbert and Pat Cullbane gave the homesters a two point advantage as the final stanza opened. A. Leary, former Napanee O.S.D. star, scored on a mad scramble in front of the B.C.I. net late in the last period to end the scoring. The B.C.I. squad was the victim of several costly penalties which paved the way for Napanee's victory. Only one penalty was handed out to the Napanee squad.

The line-ups—B.C.I. (4)—Goal, Ashley; defence, Logie and O'Neill; centre, Muir; wings, Rowbotham and Adam. Subs, Pegg, Bishop, Moon, Wilson and Cooper. Napanee (5)—Goal, Cockburn; defence, Hartman and Nickle; centre Gilbert; wings, Gerow and Holmes; Subs, Cullbane, Leary, Gerow, Hallin, Exley and Switzer.

Referee—Fred Bentley. Napanee.

KING OF WINTER SPORTS

Skating by Charles Schaer

Swiss Ski Instructor

Fig. 1. Fig. 2. Fig. 3

Fig. 1 shows correct low crouch for the beginner.

Fig. 2 correct position.

15.—Bent Knee Position.

Correct bent knee positions — at no time during the basis of correct skiing—can be divided into three stages, upright, medium-height and low crouch.

The great advantage of assuming the proper crouching, is that it allows the maximum amount of give, they impart maximum of resistance on every part of the body. All the joints being slightly bent, the elastic muscle relaxation provides the greatest scope for resistance and suffer to the jolts and shocks of skiing they are called upon to withstand.

The exact amount of bending to which the joints are subjected, and the tensile and elastic state of the muscles, that decides how good the position of the body is. Perpendicular lines from the crouch for running position with knee well bent. The very object of this carriage in skiing is to combine with stability and balance the maximum amount of elasticity.

The best effect of this combination can, of course, only be obtained when muscles and joints are in good condition physically, so that they execute immediately and automatically the counter movements necessary for maintaining or regaining balance as you ride your skis downhill or across country.

"KING of HEARTS"

By Edna Robb Webster

"Did you say we were going to that place tomorrow evening?" she demanded. "We're going to-day this very minute!" and he bolted toward the door.

Ollie looked alarmed. He knew that southern gentlemen were tremendously refined, but still the description of a strange beauty could up affect one of them, was astounding. He wondered what had been in Jack's highball that he had missed, and feared for his offense of that hostess of the evening. He listened to Jack that it would not look so well-for them to desert the present provisions for their pleasure.

"I can't help that! Tell them I've been stricken with appendicitis with a fit — with anything. Let's get out of here — pronto — and to that night club as fast as your speedy old bus can take us."

They arrived at the club in due time with Jack sitting on the edge of the seat in the speeding car, like a timid old man on a trolley car ready to leap out at every station for fear of being carried beyond her destination.

He entered the place as if he were a government official on a midnight raid, and looked about the room anxiously. Ollie looked, too, but didn't see Lynn. "Perhaps she don't see us," he said. "Perhaps she's somewhere about. Let's sit down." He led the way to a table following a solicitous waiter.

Jack ordered rightly his dark eyes roving about the crowded room with alert anxiety. He felt as if he might do something rash if he couldn't find Lynn, and she was not there. Ollie was quiet after the first few words of looking and searching for her.

Ollie urged him to order a drink while they waited. He deigned to glance at the menu, said sharply to the hovering waiter, "Bring me a rickey!"

His frustration became so obvious that Ollie suggested, "I'll get Mike Perrone, and ask about her. She's probably around. Maybe for a few minutes. I know Mike, and he'll tell us where to find her."

He summoned the waiter and inquired for Mike, who, they were duly assured, would be with them very presently.

From the first moment she entered the Golden Charger as the hostess Lynn was dazzled the place. It was all right to spend a few hours there with pleasant companions at dinner, but to join the rather personnel of so questionable a place was quite another matter. But she literally clenched her teeth behind her gracious smile, and made a brave effort to enter into the spirit of her responsibility. It was easy to see that arriving patrons noticed her, and remarked about her; and Mike sounded like a man pleased with his satisfaction. Business was first, of course, but there might be second considerations, also.

Interested eyes of regular and transient guests followed Lynn's stunning figure as she moved among the tables, greeted arrivals, singled out guests for special considerations. Her waiters were efficient. In receiving her instructions which they knew were for mere surface display, and admired her also. They did not resent her commands as they had done with the languid-mannered who had preceded Lynn.

Lynn despised the prolonged hours of hilarity, and their slightly repetition. She was living in a small little room nearby, to which she escaped with grateful relief every early morning, only to loathe its cheap and tawdry atmosphere the moment she entered it. But she had to live. At least she had to advance this effort to exist, until she could live again. She wondered if ever she would. Recalling how she had dreamed of living herself out of the drab routine of working at Dunning's and living at Mrs. Kime's, she now marvelled at her utter lack of appreciation. Compared with this, it had been sumptuous living. She had not worried at her things and promised to communicate with Mrs. Kime frequently. But as the first week passed and her life settled, into the dreary days of thirty hours and emotional nights of effort to please everyone who entered the golden door, she felt as if she were a new individual and lost all desire to communicate with former existence. There was no reason to burden anyone with her weariness and her problems.

"Oh — I don't think I should, thank you, do many people are coming in — and I'm on duty."

"Well" — you're my hostess, remember," he grinned. "Anyway, I'll sit down over here and have a cyder — you're not so busy, you can join me. How's that?"

Lynn nodded and turned to other arrivals.

CHAPTER XXIX

Later, when there was a lull, she went to Jack's table. She was sitting there, enjoying his friendly banter in the midst of all that strange hilarity, when Mike came seeking her, and his small eyes narrowed with malice, but his manner remained affable. Lynn had repulsed his own attentions only the previous evening, and he was still furious. But Jed Townsend was a good customer, and he would not offend. His manner was urbane and he praised Lynn before her friend but Lynn sensed the threat in his hypocrisy and Mike watched Jed's departure with a fearful dread. She felt as if she must run after that disappearing figure and entreat him to take her with him and protect her. But she could not do that. She had no claim whatever on Jed Townsend, and besides, she had to maintain her independence. It wasn't so much that she was personally afraid of Mike Perrone; it was only that his smiling over her the power of life itself. His smile felt as if it were frozen on her face, her arms and legs moved like mechanical devices which she controlled but whose rigid action she could not alter.

All three evenings, just before she could escape, Mike summoned Lynn to his office. She had expected it and dreaded the encounter. But she went to him with a stoic calm.

His room was large, and he did not rise from his office chair — but he might have — the Italian revelers had urged her to join their table and had been refused with what grace she could command

Little Benny's Note Book

Us fellows was standing around the letter box and Reddy verify and Glasses Magee started to whissle through their fingers, being the only 2 that can, and they started to try to drownd each other out, Reddy Merfy saying, Keep on trying, Glasses! and maybe in a million years you'll whissle as loud as me.

Why should I wait that long when I can do it even louder rite now? Glasses said.

Being a good sport and Reddy said, O yeh? Well here's a cent says you cant, he said.

And he took a cent out of his pocket and layed it on the pavement, saying, now put up or shut up.

Wich Glasses put up, laying his on alongside of Reddy's and saying, We'll leave these guys be the judges.

Meaning me and Puds Simkins and Shorty Judge, and Reddy Merfy said, All rite, and whatever they say goes, see?

Okay with me, Glasses said. You go first, you're only using the one challenging, he said, and Reddy said, Watch your ears, fellows.

And he stuck 2 fingers in his mouth and new louder than a boy's whissle, and then Glasses stuck 3 fingers in his mouth and blew twice as loud saying, All rite, judges, go ahead and judge, but I guess there's not much to whissle now cause everybody knows I'm famous for being the loudest whissler around here.

Wich he is, and Reddy said, Sure, go ahead and judge, and anybody that has 3 fingers in his mouth is going to get a bust in the snoot for lying, see?

Making it hard for us 2 judges, and we wawked about 3 paycents away and had a meeting and decided Glasses was probably the best whissler but he used a safer finger so that made it a tie, and we gave them each their cent back.

Proving no wonder the Leg of Nations gets worried.

DAILY SHORT STORY

At Eight O'clock

By Vera P. Rockwell

"Your husband is a very sick man, Mrs. Elliot." Doctor Drummond had said, "these white pills I am giving are powerful stuff; setting up a poisoning reaction that is counteracted by the quinine in the medicine. I want to impress upon you the extreme importance of having one there without the dark pill the action of the white ones would be fatal."

When he had gone, the whisperings began, ceaseless and maddening. "Three's your chance," they told Hester Elliot, over and over. "Forget the pill at eight o'clock . . . and No one will know. . . . And you'll be free . . . free to live again."

Hester, no longer young, but aged beyond her years by the constant relentless cruelty; the battling down of all her individual life; the sapping of her spiritual vitality, by the man who now lay ill, at her mercy.

She looked at him lying there, ugly and cruel, how she wished he were dead."

"But he will live, her bitter thoughts told her, "I shall give him his medicine on time. I'll never know his blessed relief . . . ."

She shrugged and dropped her head in her hands.

"God let me forget the time," she prayed.

She choked back a wild little laugh; asking God to help commit murder!

Twenty-six years of living as Bert Elliot's wife, of bearing his children, keeping his house, existing as the automaton he demanded . . . he to be.

All that she had loved he had taken away; little things and big. Why did the memory persist . . . so strongly, of the kittens, those comical adorable bundles of fur and round eyes and pointed ears? . . .

Did he have to kill them in such a cruel way, growing that they were a nuisance, crushing them half dead beneath his heavy heel, leaving her to the shuddering task she must in mercy finish?

Did he have to send her door against Rachel, their only daughter, when she married Howard, young Howard Bennett? His objection to the marriage was all pretense; he did not really care, he only wanted to be cruel and arbitrary.

That was four years ago. Hester had only seen little Kenneth twice, each time in dire fear of Bert's wrath. Now he had a little Phoebe old now, she had never seen.

She smoothed Bert's pillow, gave him the fifth white pill.

She visioned her life without him —peaceful, well-ordered, happy. Ralph could come back home and run the farm, She had not seen him to talk to since he was twelve years old. His father had beaten him that day with more than usual ferocity and had left in the night.

Hester had never considered divorce. She had scruples against it. Scruples against divorce and praying God to help her kill her husband. Again the wild laughter welled up and again it was suppressed.

Yes, Ralph could come back. She could go to church on Sunday, teach a class of little girls. How she could write letters when she wanted to, child plans flowed in under them, knowing that each year they would be coming up in their accustomed places; no horrors of speaking up, no ruining, in half an hour, what had taken fully two years to sow.

What was right and what was wrong? Where did duty lie? Was it not her duty to help her son to give herself a normal life, to know her grandchildren? Why did duty have to lie solely with the man she had married? It was two minutes to eight.

She lay in her little rocking chair, completely relaxing her tired body, her tense nerves. She closed her eyes and prayer without words. An agonized reaching out to the supreme power that rules the universe. "Dear God, teach me what to do."

Only a minute, but when she opened her eyes again the futile miseries and perplexities of her daily life had slipped into their proper proportions. She who had the power to create life, had no right to take it. She knew what she had to do.

With a steady hand she filled a glass half full of cold water, just as steadily she slipped the fatal pill into it. Dissolving instantly, it colored the water murky red.

She put her arm beneath the pillow, lifted her husband a little and held the glass to his lips.

"Drink, Bert," she said softly.

He opened his eyes and glared at her, his mouth set in the cruel curves she knew so well. He raised his clenched fist in the sudden frenzied strength of rage and smashed the glass to the floor.

"Damn you," he snarled, "want to poison me? Where's my white pill?"

Hester stood very still, her eyes going from his hale-distorted face to the fragments of glass on the floor. Her hands were clasped tightly over her heart, in a familiar gesture, and deep in that heart she was saying to God, "I thank you . . . Oh, I thank you!"

Stains

By Alice Quinn

Tailor Steiger was making no effort to live up to his reputation for reliability when he kept the garments ready at the promised time. The coat lying on his table had been promised for three o'clock. It was nearing that time, and since he had flung it there early in the forenoon Steiger had not touched it.

His mind went over and over the details. The background would soon be coming now. With lips set anew, Steiger sewed grimly on, his eyes smouldering, his breath coming irregularly.

Morris Steiger marrying at forty a girl of seventeen, had been thought foolish. But things had turned out well after all. Not until this very day that he had reason to deplore the fact that his wife had been married too young. He was because she had had no experience of life hereof that she had no been able to guard their lovely young daughter, Rosa.

But never had her father had one moment of serious worry concerning Rosa until the moment when, as he was holding Floyd Ranger's stained coat in his hand, there dropped from the breast pocket the string of genuine pearls her father had given on her eighteenth birthday, six months before.

Floyd Ranger, known by his evil reputation and his high family connections, had come into Steiger's little shop one day of the previous spring to have a coat cleaned. Pleased with the speed and quality of Steiger's work, he had continued to patronize the shop.

Stupid that he had been. Steiger had not taken alarm when Ranger had spied his wife and pretty daughter on the near little porch of the cottage. And so on successive visits Ranger had been allowed to reveal his gallantries to the ladies, joking with them when they happened to be in the shop, sitting with them for half an hour on the porch while waiting for some garment to be finished, even entering the cottage. And always Steiger would be secretly flattered by these attentions to his women. And always his wife would say nothing, thought she would seem more than unusually flustered. And always Rosa acted as if there were nothing at all to be either flustered or flattered about.

The necklace lay upon the counter where Steiger had dropped it. Pearls were for innocence, he remembered, so Rosa! How was he to face her again? She would be back home today. She had gone to visit her cousin at Maryville, two days, and it was Wednesday she left, the day of her mother's evening club. She would be back on the four o'clock interurban. She would come running into the shop to give him a hug and kiss.

Suddenly he heard a car stop before his door. He had scarcely time to fling a cloth over the necklace. Clearing his throat noisily and trying to assume a nonconcomitant air, he turned toward Rosa.

Her arms were around his neck and she was kissing him. His own arms were limp and he was not working. "Here already?" he managed to gruta out; "your train—"

"I didn't come on the train, father. I came by car. Cousin—Cousin Albert brought me."

She was nervous. Almost as tense and shaking as he. "Uncle Bartle said to tell you—" she was beginning, but he stopped her. "Yes, he would speak to her now, at once, before Ranger's arrival.

"Rosa," he began, and he would see his daughter start as the unusual tone of his voice. "Rosa, haven't you something to tell me, to confess?"

She was a bit white. "You saw him, then? We didn't think you would. Yes, it was Goodwyn Orr who brought me home. He came to Uncle Bartle's to see me. We're engaged. I know, Father, how you dislike Goodwyn."

"Goodwyn—Goodwyn Orr!"

"Yes, Father, I know it was wrong. And Goodwyn feels sorry, too. We really didn't intend to do it this way. Father, he is really the finest young man in the world! If you will only give him a chance to show—"

But Steiger's joy could contain itself no longer. He burst into hysterical laughter and at the same moments the tears sprang into his gray eyes so that there before his astonished daughter he was laughing and crying at the same time.

"Rosa," he said to at startled a tone as he could command, "your necklace!"

Her hand went automatically to her throat; just her frightened look was too much for him. Quickly he snatched off the piece of goods he had flung over the necklace and looked at her, laughing.

Rosa smiled, though her eyes still looked startled and wondering.

"Oh, you—you believed I would think I had lost it? That's what you meant by 'confessing' something?"

Steiger's triumphant laughter checked itself. "You didn't think you had lost it? Weren't worried?"

Rosa shook her head, smiling. "No, I didn't wear it when I went away. I lent it to mother to wear to her society that night."

AUTO WORKERS THREATEN GENERAL STRIKE

With union strategists standing firm in their demands and the powerful General Motors Corporation committed to a policy of opposition to complete enrolment of all their employees under the United Automobile Workers of America charter, it is expected that 135,000 workers will be idle in General Motors plants unless an immediate truce is declared. The automobile plants may stand idle until a compromise is reached. General Motors, through its president Sloan, has declared it does not favor complete control of its employees by the union affiliated with John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization. A crowd of strikers from the Cleveland plant of General Motors are shown (TOP) pouring from the factory to hear a union speaker in a public address. At BOTTOM is pictured the union board of strategy. LEFT to RIGHT they are John Brophy, director of the C.I.O.; Adolph Germer, auto organizer for the C.I.O., and Homer Martin, president of the Automobile Workers of America.

TARZAN AND THE LEOPARD MEN

With unbelieving eyes Old Timer watched the girl in The Kid's arms and heard her sob, "Jerry! Jerry!" Old Timer's heart sank. His best friend, the man he had known only as The Kid, was Jerry Jerome, Swana's love. What cruel tricks fate can play!

For a long time Jerry and the girl were engaged in animated conversation. Old Timer stood at a distance, his whole being laden with disappointment. Tragically Jerry called to him: Old Timer saw Kali's eyes glistening with joy and friendliness.

"You two know each other," Jerry grinned, "but Tarzan of the apes never been formally introduced. This is my sister, Jessie Old Timer's heart skipped a beat. Sister? Oh, how kind was fate after all! But then he remembered how she had spurned his declaration of love.

Tarzan paid little heed to this drama of human hearts. He was listening to Orando's recital of the final assault on the Leopard Men. "Thanks to you, O Mighty One, they are destroyed," Orando concluded. "But what of their army in the field?" Tarzan asked anxiously.

Every Walk of National Life Of Interest to the Church

So Says Rev. C. G. Wright Preaching at Week of Prayer Service

RELIGION AND LIFE

"Sunshine in our church and society is long way from the benchings of Jesus", commented the Rev. C. G. Wright of Christ Church last evening, preaching at the week of prayer service in Andrew's Presbyterian Church. "We look for crowds and yet never way effective work is done with a crowd." The preacher remarked that Jesus was never interested in having a great crowd of people around Him, often He fled from the crowd to be with a small select company of friends for the inculcation of ideals. He found that individual associations changed lives which, after a time with Jesus or with those who had come in contact with Him. His subjects was "Christ and the National Life."

The church's duty is to provide the influence and direction in what will permeate the life of a small number of consecrated souls, through which it could be of the crowd else—so that these can go out and touch other lives.

Turning World Upside Down

"He gave us no philosophy, no theology, and no teaching in simple language. Of course the time had to come when there was to be a philosophy and philosophy as men began to fossilize lost its personality and work. But He sent out a small group to turn things upside down, which simply means that at least reverently achieved three hundred years later the Christian Church became the official religion of Rome.

"Followers of Jesus could be interested in what He was interested in," the minister went on, "they must be interested in spiritual truth and wrong. The church in this ministering. There must be tremendously interested in personal salvation and human welfare. The church that did not time to see the evils on all sides. So the industrial problems of the nineteenth century was brought about with no connection with the teaching of Christ. Today somewhat of the same fault existing—of the separation of material in two separate compartments. Kingsley was called unpractical because he attacked lack of sanitation in the nineteenth century.

"Today people say such are important problems but they are not parts of the business of the church and advise 'Don't you interfere as you have nothing to do with that'."

Human Lives at Stake

Attacking this attitude, Mr. Wright said "I am convinced there is not a department of life in which Christ would not have been interested, national and international affairs, social surroundings and national needs. You cannot divide life into airtight compartments. Everything affects our spiritual life. We are conditioned by influences we see in Toronto. You don't have to be Toronto. You have just the same conditions in Belleville. When you speak of good housing, you think. It is true, but housing means you think of mortar and financing. Yet this is the only way humanity can for it is a problem of human lives. If a man lives in social surroundings or in the environment or is crushed down day after day and night after night, can you blame him if he goes out and gets drunk? The life is of paramount importance, a matter but so are the social conditions as well.

"Think because of undesirable conditions in which we are asking some of our families to live right today, these are matters of interest to the church.

High Criminality of Poor

"There is the question of wages and labor. What a man works at, earns and spends is not a little matter. One of the most amazing things in life as I see it, today under our social conditions is the really high spirituality which marks those who are poor and those who are never free from financial worry.

"Then this awful system of unemployment which people had down to a system! My friends, there would be no unemployment if there were in those in authority and those who support those interests were imbued with the character and marked by the teachings of Jesus Christ. The rest of the world concerning were putting up the fight many of these things are wrong, this condition would not exist today.

"Every one can help. How to apply the Christian principles. We must do something ourselves, we can give ourselves and personal service. The Good Samaritan is needed today as he was needed on the highway in the time of Christ.

Church and Politics

"Sirens, intemperance, gambling! We cannot close our eyes to these things. We cannot get away from our duty to influence these evils. Some would like to send you to the polls shouting 'Down with them' but cannot refer to politics there is something wrong.

"A small group must go out, crusaders from every church. Do you think the result would be anything different from the revolts of the three hundred sent out by Christ? The problem is to get Christians to take their Christianity out into all relations of life, spiritual reality expressing itself in material forms. Our duty is not to be rubber stamps, we must have the ideal of a Christian citizenship touching every walk of life."

Rev. Robert Hall of John Street United Church was in charge of the devotional service, conducting the meditations and announcing the hymns. Tonight's service will be conducted by Mr. Rev. Bishop G. Marshall, who will conduct devotions and by the Rev. W. H. Hunter who will speak on the subject, "Christ and the Home."

Tabernacle and St. Thomas' Church choirs led in the singing of the hymns.

Tonight's service will close the week of prayer. The collection so far held have been attended by large congregations.

POLICE BLOTTER

Police today seized a slot machine that was being operated in a local pool room owned by Miss Mamie Mills. The machine was taken into the custody of the police following the detention of four teenaged youths, who police state admitted they had played the machine and received cash awards for the slugs won from the machine last night.

The first evidence of the alleged gambling, or violation of the city by-law pertaining to the operation of slot machines, came late last night when P. C. Arnott detained four youths playing the slot machine. Questioning of the four slated as youths came out of the building, however, Constable Arnott approached them and took the lads to the police station where they were placed in charge of the machine and receiving cash awards for the slugs won from the machine that day." The machine was seized this morning and charges of permitting gambling will be heard in Monday's police court, police officials announcement at noon.

Last night's adverse weather conditions saw three more arrivals at the large number of transients who have been sleeping in warmer quarters at the police station, eleven being put up for the night in the cells. One of the amusing things in life as I see it, today under our social conditions is the really high spirituality which marks those who are poor and those who are never free from financial worry.

BARNSDALL GARAGE AT MARYSVILLE ENTERED

Under the cover of last night's heavy fog burglars broke and entered the Barnsdall Garage and service station at Marysville and stole a quantity of tobacco and candy. The robbery was discovered by Mr. Mr. Percy Ferris, the owner and proprietor of the garage, when he arrived to open his place of business early today.

Provincial Constable Wm. Morrison investigated and discovered how the burglars had gained entrance by breaking open a rear door and later prying open the door and later prying open the door and later prying open the

France Ready to Prevent German Occupation of Spanish Morocco Report

Will Go to Any Length to Eject German Troops From Area

STRENGTH DOUBLED

France Orders 100,000 Troops Ready For Instant Action

Paris, Jan. 9 (CP)—France today was ready to take any measures necessary to prevent German occupation of Spanish Morocco.

Foreign office sources expressed fear that Germany was sending to Spanish insurgents against opening the strategic North African territory to Germany would fall on deaf ears, leaving France no alternative but action.

An official frankly declared France would go to any lengths to eject German troops from the Spanish protectorate which dominates the communications with French Morocco and the Straits of Gibraltar.

French troops at Fez, the capital of the French territory and throughout French Morocco were held ready for instant action.

The normal French garrison of 40,000 in the protectorate was ordered increased to 100,000.

Advices from Rabat, Moroccan told of a steadily increasing German infiltration into Spanish Morocco, controlled by General Francisco Franco's rebel Fascists and the seat of their revolt.

France Lays Charges.

According to The Associated Press, sources close to the foreign office said French representatives to the Franco headquarters at Tetuan, Spanish Morocco, charged:

1. A number of German functionaries have taken over the administration of the country.

2. A number of German troops already are landed in violation of existing treaties.

3. Barracks have been erected in preparation for the arrival of more German soldiers.

4. Illegal fortifications are being erected.

ITALY SOWS WHEAT TO END SHORTAGE

Agricultural Experts Warn Italy Will be Short 3,000,000 Tons

Rome, an. 9 (AP)—Under urgent orders from Premier Mussolini, Italy today undertook today the most extensive sowing of wheat in its history in a new effort to end a severe shortage.

The nation was warned by Mussolini announced this year's wheat crop was 25 per cent. below the average of the last three years and of tderior quality, authoritative agricultural sources declared the shortage is even more serious, placing the deficiency at 30 per cent.

Italy, agricultural experts warned, will be short by about 3,000,000 tons for the year. The annual consumption ranges around 5,500,00 tons.

Today became the second major power to discloss an acute food problem. Germany, where authoritative sources predicted a food crisis by April, has imposed import restrictions to conserve dwindling supplies after a below-normal wheat harvest.)

No official estimate of Italy's wheat acreage was issued after the publication of government statistics, suspended after sources had been exposed against the Ethiopian campaign, but best informed circles, in official estimates, however, place winter sowing at approximately 1,-977,000 acres.

The wheat shortage, well-informed sources said, has created a financial problem for Mussolini because it necessitates purchase of wheat abroad at a time when Italy desires to cut every importation to the bone in order to replenish its depleted war chest of gold and foreign currencies.

Government officials offset the difficulty somewhat by placing many orders for wheat in Canada and Australia as early as July, before the appreciable price rises which followed.

POPE'S HEALTH QUITE IMPROVED

Sends Message to Eucharistic Congress at Manila.

Vatican City, Jan. 9 (AP)—Pope Pius, improved but still confined to his bed with a variety of ills, sent his message today to the forthcoming Eucharistic Congress in Manilla.

"Pray for its re-establishment of peace in a world which needs it badly."

The Pontiff's statement was delivered to the Papal mission, headed by Archbishop Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia, by Cardinal Pacelli, Papal Secretary of State.

Cardinal Pacelli also was also presented with the Holy Father's gift to the Congress — a gold and silver casket.

Mission Received.

The mission was received by Cardinal Pacelli in his Vatican offices on behalf of the 79-year-old Pope whose condition was reported "unchanged".

The Papal Secretary later described the meeting of the Holy Father whose state of mind was reported improved by freedom from pain and a good night's sleep.

Open arms, it is said, caused by the bursting of a varicose vein in the Holy Father's left leg, partially healed left leg, constantly threatened serious infection. His right leg was reported to be growing more strengthened daily as the arterio sclerosis to be unimproved.

Britain Protests Act On Madrid Embassy

London, Jan. 9—Great Britain sent a vigorous protest today to the Spanish Insurgent government against the aerial bombing of the Madrid Embassy annex last night.

Sir Henry Chilton, British Ambassador to Spain was instructed to forward his protest to the Spanish Nationalist administration which met met in an second emergency session in two days at No. 10 Downing street.

The cabinet approved the representations, which by their nature would constitute factual recognition of the Burgos government.

(The same "recognition in fact" of Spanish insurgents was given by the French in protesting against reported landing of Germans in Spanish Morocco.)

The protest reserves the right to compensation for damage done by the insurgent pilots who dropped bombs on the embassy, the cabinet told Sir Henry to inform General Francisco Franco.

SPECIAL CABINET MEETING IS HELD IN SPANISH CRISIS

Baldwin Discusses War Situation With King George Sixth

FRANCE AROUSED

Prompt Firm Action is Demanded In View of Crisis

By George Hambleton
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
London, Jan. 9 (CP Cable)—Prime Minister Baldwin presided at a special cabinet meeting today before leaving for Sandringham to discuss the menace of Spain with the King. A further meeting of Ministers is probable when he returns Monday.

Labor leaders are standing by for any emergency. Foreign Office experts are working on a scheme to ban the flow of volunteers. A vigorous protest to the Insurgent chiefs against the bombing of the British Embassy annex in Madrid last night was sent to Burgos.

Threat in Morocco

Alarm grows in Paris over the assumed German threat alike to the French protectorate of Morocco and to Algeria three departments of which form an integral part of France and send representatives to the French parliament.

"We must act—promptly, firmly," the time for delay is past," is the general reaction of the Paris press today. The centrist Ordre called for the Conservative "Echo De Paris" spoke with the same voice.

"We cannot delay," says Humanite, "unless we are willing to see Spanish Morocco become a base of Germany and a hostile army for 100,000 men to fall on our southern frontier."

"Warnings will not suffice," says the Echo De Paris.

United Front Solution

"Only a united front by France and Great Britain can avert danger. Germany is trying to get a foothold in North Africa as a means of blackmailing France."

The Populaire declares "remains silent over the presence of Germans in Spanish Morocco and official Germany denies, Paris reports that large detachments of German troops, all with arms and in uniforms, have landed at Melilla, Spanish Morocco, within the last 10 days. They are reported to have been billeted in the various quarters of Melilla. Their officers have taken measures which appear to indicate a long stay. Three German warships and several German submarines are said to be anchored off Melilla.

MANY VOLUNTEERS

London, Jan. 9.—(AP)—An unofficial survey today indicated between 30,000 and 50,000 foreign volunteers are fight ing on both sides in the Spanish Civil War.

The check of major European capitals, not verifiable officially, showed 20,000 to 30,000 men and more naval vessels in Southern Mediterranean or dispatched to reach there sooner than at any time since the Great War.

TEMPERATURE DROP SENDS AUTO STRIKE PICKETS SEEKING WARMTH

A long drop in temperature to well below the freezing mark today sketching a more serious task for those strike pickets outside the Fisher Body plant at Cleveland, Ohio, finishing an impromised line of picket, the picket, are absorbing little welcome warmth. United States rival Motors in Canada at Oshawa, St. Catharines and Walkerville, Ont., the company finally may be able to close due to a shortage of body supplies being sent from the U.S., unless the labor deadlock is settled. This he said, would affect some 8,000 men and women.

Widespread Nature of Strike Chief Obstacle to Peace Parley

93,849 Employees Idle at 27 General Motors Plants

APPEAL TO PRESIDENT

Detroit, Jan. 9 (AP)—The widespread nature of the crippling strikes in General Motors plants, the Associated Press learned today, provides the chief obstacle to agreement on terms for a peace parley between the corporation and the United Automobile Workers of America.

"This situation," an authoritative source said after the last of a series of nearly all-night conferences, "has such a wide scope and is so complicated that numerous discussions are necessary."

As the deadlock continued strikes and shut-downs caused by shortages of supplies and parts left at least 93,849 employees idle at twenty-seven General Motors plants stretched from New Jersey to Missouri and from Michigan to Georgia. The greatest numbers were at Detroit, where 28,972 were out of work, and at Flint, Mich., where 26,359 were idle.

"HIJACKING" OF RANSOM FEARED

Dr. Mattson Asks Abductors to be More Specific in Details

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 9 (AP)—Dr. W. W. Mattson sought today to prevent "hijacking" of the $28,000 ransom demanded by the kidnapper of the son Charles, 10, held for the thirteenth day.

The physician apparently feared he might not actually be dealing with his son's kidnapper when he inserted an advertisement in the Seattle Daily Times yesterday imploring the abductor to "give me information so that I may guard against impostors and hijackers."

The advertisement was addressed to "Mabie", as were four previous notes received. He expressed in the paper's "personal" column, and was signed "Ann".

It said:

"Mabie—we are still waiting. All arrangements have been carried out in accordance with instructions in notes received. Be certain to give me information so that I may guard against impostors and hijackers, and be more specific in your instructions to Ann."

Reliable sources interpreted the advertisement to mean the ransom for Charles' release has not been paid, though they speculated efforts to pay it may have been made.

One theory, supported by several sources, was that Dr. Mattson made an attempt to pay the ransom on Thursday but was unable to complete the transaction.

Cadiz City of Mystery Since 'Volunteers' Land

Gibraltar, Jan. 9—(AP)—Thousands of German and Italian troops were reported today to be landing daily at the Spanish insurgent port of Cadiz.

Strict censorship prevails here and the city, 60 miles from here on the western coast of the peninsula's tip, has become the mystery port of Europe.

Ships reported landing large numbers of "volunteers" to supplement General Francisco Franco's insurgent army. Fly no flags from their masts and their bows are bare of markings.

The stalwart looking foreigners disembark wearing brand new uniforms of the Spanish insurgent foreign legion. At almost the moment they set foot on Spaff soil, reports said, they are crowded into troop trains zig zaking to Seville.

NATIVES HOSTILE TO LEON TROTSKY

Russian Unable to Find Asylum in Any European Country

Tampico, Mexico, Jan. 9 (AP)—An outburst of hostility to Leon Trotsky threatened today as the tanker bringing the exiled Russian revolutionary leader to refuge in Mexico neared this port.

The first intimation of trouble originated in the Tamaulipas State Labor Federation, an affiliate of the Confederation of Labor of Mexico, which has opposed the Mexican government's offer of asylum to the one-time Red Army commander.

Trotsky, no longer able to find a haven in Europe, sailed from Norway last Dec. 19 on the freighter Ruth.

The time of the ship's arrival was not definitely known but leaders of the federation said they had posted a look-out and were prepared to make a demonstration when the ship was sighted. The Ruth is owned by the American Oil Company, was expected sometime today on a special call to drop the exile.

Trotsky's party, it was learned, had hired launches and planned to send boatloads of demonstrators along with the Ruth to meet Trotsky when the tanker enters the harbor.

Extensive precautions were made to preserve order when the revolutionist sets foot in Mexico.

Oshawa, Ont., Jan. 9.—(CP)—Mrs. R. O. Colpus won the honor last night of being the first woman elected chairman of the Oshawa Board of Education.

MANY MAROONED BY SNOW STORMS

Blizzards in Western States Block Roads—Search Party is Lost

Chicago, Jan. 9 (AP)—Virtually all forms of transportation felt today the effects of severe weather conditions in most parts of the U.S.

Snow clogged highways and bitter cold brought motor traffic to a standstill in many middle west and Rocky Mountain sections.

Blizzards and fog disrupted air services in the northern states. Thick weather slowed North Atlantic coast shipping. Train service was affected in some middle western states.

Storms crippled power and communication lines in Illinois, Wisconsin and Missouri. Seventy-five persons, Gazette, Mo., found their way dark last night. A hospital used emergency lights for a major operation. The southwestern Bell Telephone Company estimated its property damage in Missouri in excess of $1,000,000.

The deaths of at least seven persons were attributed to the weather. Four were in Texas, one in Nebraska, and two each in Arizona, Utah and Oklahoma. Seven fell from many unnamed by deep snows.

Twenty Indians in an Arizona search party found Pvt. Clyde Ivey, 24-year-old girls missing more than a week, were reported lost in a blizzard. Federal officials feared ten Indians marooned in the same area would die of starvation or exposure.

INJURIES FATAL TO 14 YEAR OLD BOY AT TRENTON

Wm. Labelle Crushed Between Truck And Gate

PLAYING NEAR HOUSE

Accident Occurs in Driveway at 8.45 O'clock Friday Night

Trenton, Jan. 9 (Special)—Crushed between a truck and a gate in the driveway of a house belonging to Mr. Gardner on Church St., William Burley Labelle 14, son of Mr and Mrs. William Labelle of Alexandria, Trenton, died of injuries last night shortly after nine o'clock.

The truck which was owned by Frank Taverna, Trenton contractor, and driven by Mary Thompson who preceding up the drive way to the accident occurred. It is alleged that young Labelle was playing in the driveway and could not get out of the way in time.

Dr. W. J. Johnson reported to the scene of the accident, but medical aid was unavailing and Labelle died fifteen minutes after the accident occurred.

Dr. Walter Crowe, local coroner, held a preliminary hearing this afternoon and postponed inquest until at a later date. Police stated that no charges would be laid, pending the finding of the coroner's jury.

Brantford Citizen Assists Police in Arrest of Two Men

Brantford, Ont., Jan. 9 (CP)—Pants torn and mud from head to foot, Thomas Jordan, Brantford, was a hero in the eyes of police here today. Jordan, an athletic young man about six feet tall, tackled and held John Parr, 25, Brantford, after an exciting chase in the safe at the Conger Service Station, Chatham street, Wednesday night and dragged with him on a muddy boulevard for five minutes.

Meantime, Motorcycle Officer Frank Ormsbell, firing one shot into the floor of the station, had Parr's accomplice, Ernest Hall, 22, Brantford, brought a window in the front door, arrested George Obi, 22, Brantford, handcuffed him to a chair and then went to Jordan's assistance. Parr and Obe were charged with breaking and entering and attempted theft.

When Campbell reached the struggling Jordan and Parr, Jordan had a firm grip on the prisoner's hair and was pushing his face into the mud of the boulevard. It was raining hard at the time and had been for two inches deep. Well matched, the two young men pounded, scratched and over a considerable area. Jordan finally had Parr down with a flying football tackle.

CHILD BURNED TO DEATH

Cornwall, Ont., Jan. 9 (CP)—Dorinda Rufus, 4, was burned to death in a fire that destroyed the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Burson, early today. Two other members of the family, Hazel Burson, three, and Francis, 21, were severely burned, Hazel's condition was serious.

BRITISH PROPOSE SEMI-BLOCKADE OF SPANISH PORTS

All Spain Bound Boats Would Have to Call at Neutral Port

DISPATCH NEW NOTES

London Press Believes Situation Not Entirely Out of Hand

London, Jan. 9 (CP-Havas)—In an effort to cope with the crisis created by the influx of German troops into Morocco, the British government today was reported plalining to propose a "semi-block-ade" of Spanish ports.

According to the semi-blockade plan, all Spain-bound ships would be required to call at the nearest "neutral port"—such as Genoa, Marseilles, Oran or Lisbon—to obtain clearance papers from International Maritime Commissions established in those cities.

The exchange papers would specify that the ship's cargo conformed to the non-intervention committee's regulations.

Control would be exercised by naval patrols of various nationalities which would remain outside three-mile territorial limits and would stop incoming vessels to inspect their papers and conduct investigations.

A move was under way to submit the proposals to the Spanish issue out of the hands of the committee and to the international council and return them to regular and speedier diplomatic channels.

Dispatch New Notes

Official sources near London would probably dispatch a new note to Rome, Berlin, Moscow and Lisbon, asking them governments to empower their ambassadors in London to negotiate and reach swift decisions on the terms now so urgently before the powers.

These notes would form a sort of auxiliary body to the non-intervention committee, if recommended, but would be able to act more quickly.

The London press, while reporting extensively the details of German movements in Morocco, expressed the belief that "drastic action" by France was unlikely and that the situation was not yet entirely out of hand.

The Manchester Guardian suggested the new situation is not exclusively French, but a "Mediterranean problem" which was so great an issue during the Great War, is reappearing, the paper said, "but for the time being the problem is not an acute one and that must welcome so or not will depend on the outcome of the struggle in Spain and the attitude of Germany."

Belleville Conservatives Prepare for Election by Holding Annual Meeting

Harry Rollins Re-elected President of Live Organization

DR. WELSH SPEAKER

Reviews Various Issues on Which By-election Was Contested

Enthusiasm of members was manifested by the large attendance of the Belleville Conservative Association at one of its most successful annual meetings held in this city last evening. The meeting was featured by the appearance of Dr. H. E. Welsh, M.P.P.-elect for East Hastings, guest speaker on one of his first public appearances since being elected to office last December.

Again Mr. Harry Rollins of this city will assume the presidency of the local Association during the coming year. Honorary first vice-president during the past term he was returned to office by acclamation. Other officers elected were:

1st Vice-President: R. D. Arnott; 2nd Vice-President; Reginald Elliott; Secretary: John Mather; Treasurer: Hyrtle Faulkner; Harold Bateman and Raymond Arnott.

Ward chairmen also elected were: Samson: David Rollins; Pinnacle: Robert Collins; Ketchewan: Frank Bird; Baldwin: Geo. H. Hall; Victoria: Wm. Hutchinson; Bridgewater: Coleman: Geo. Wilder; Murray: Raymond Zufelt.

Auditor's Report

In the auditor's report submitted by auditor Harold Bateman, it was shown that during the past year total receipts had amounted to $380.85. Expenditures were listed at $353.16, while the bank balance of the Association at the present time is $28.18 after all bills had been paid. The report was unanimously adopted.

World Owes Lot to Spinsters Minister in Chicago Claims

Cites Three Reasons Why Some Women Do Not Marry

NAMES 9 GREAT

Chicago, Jan. 9 (AP)—The Rev. Clinton C. Cox took up the cudgels today for old maids of whatever age or clime.

The world, he declared, owes a lot to spinsters and he named nine it recognized it."

He undertook to do his bit by presenting a resolution entitled "tribute to spinsters" for Sunday night delivery at the Drexel Park Presbyterian Church.

"Why some of the finest things in history have been done by women who never married," he said. Forthwith he proceeded to name "nine great old-maids" as follows:

Florence Nightingale, the saint of modern nursing; Clara Barton, the founder of the Red Cross; Jane Addams, noted social worker and founder of Hull House; Frances Willard, founder of the Women's Christian Temperance Union; Christabel Pankhurst, an organizer of the Women's Suffrage Movement in England; Susan B. Anthony, organizer of the Women's Suffrage Movement in the United States; Mary Lyon, pioneer in the education of women in United States and founder of Mount Holyoke College; Elizabeth of England, and Miriam, sister of Moses, who showed her life to her family.

"Any woman can get married," Mr. Cox. "But today many women won't get married simply because they don't want to. Business has given them independence.

"If we had more spinsters there would be fewer old maids."

Women forego marriage because of a duty to care for parents of younger brothers and sisters.

3. Women are disappointed in love.

4. Women want a career.

SERVICE ATTENDANCE CHECKED OFF LIST

Attendance at the Sunday services of St. Alban's Church, Ameliasburg, should increase in the near future. For, posing in the vestibule of the church recently was a list of the members and opposite each name in the month and the days each member was present during the year just past.

WILLIAM B. WALKER HAS FAINTING SPELL

Alarmed when W. B. Walker, 73, former Belleville librarian, crashed heavily to the floor from the chair in which he was sitting in the lobby of the City Hotel, Front street, early last night, occupants of the lobby rushed him to bed and immediately summoned medical aid.

Dr. J. S. Bigham rushed to the bedside and treated Mr. Walker, who had suffered from a slight heart attack. Soon early this morning the elderly ex-librarian stated that he was feeling "first rate".

PICTON RELIEF COST HIGHEST SINCE 1933

In spite of the many stories circulating from Prince Edward County that the "Garden County of Ontario" has hit On Man Depression a crushing blow, and that prosperity is once again in the ascendant, figures just released in a Picton newspaper state that the cost of relief for that town during 1936 was the greatest since 1933. The 1936 relief costs total $30,382.81 as compared to $25,479.79 in 1935, according to the figures published by the newspaper.

SIGNS OF SPRING APPEAR PREMATURE

Budding maple trees on some residential streets as reported by observers and also scores of local lawns are but two of the latest signs indicating the mild weather of late January.

Healthy and attractive and of plump size, a large dew worm was observed investing its way over the snow on the lawn of Mr. Fred Rly, city employee in charge of the street sweeper, of 45 Dundas Street, east of Front street. The worm was captured and bottled for proof.

TRENTON MAYOR ADVANCES SCHEME

Belief of Mayor Harry Cory of Trenton, that fifty new homes requiring an average of $2,000 per month would be readily absorbed, prompted him to suggest to the Trenton Council, at its recent meeting, that the town sell to progressive builders, lots that are owned by the corporation for the sum of one dollar.

LABORATORY CHECKS OVER YEAR'S WORK

Through millions of parasites are on hand, in special cold storage rooms at near freezing temperature while the best kept secret in the condition since last fall, as yet work on further culture of the helpful insects has not been started by entomologists of the local Dominion Entomological Laboratory. During business and checking of last year's work is now occupying the attention of the staff. It is expected the first of the culture work if preparation for shipment throughout Canada, in the spring will be started later this month.

RAINS CAUSE LOSS OF FROST IN GROUND

Reports from rural residents of this and other areas received at the local office of agriculture indicate that the recent rains and the continuous drink of rain during the past several days, not too much water is being received to have any noticeable effect on next season's crops or orchards, in most instances. It was stated, the ground has been absorbing the excess moisture in sponge like fashion indicating a steady loss of frost in the ground.

CITIZENS' GENEROSITY APPRECIATED BY S. A.

For the assistance that had been given by the citizens in general during the Christmas season, particularly for the donations tendered the band during its annual serenading effort, Privates Hall and Salvation Army Corps today expressed their appreciation to Belleville residents in general. The expression was coupled with the wish for a prosperous and happy New Year for all.

TWELVE LANTERNS STOLEN FROM CITY

Twelve lanterns, the property of the public works department of the Corporation of the City of Belleville were stolen off Bladim Street some time last night, local police were informed by department officials early today. The lanterns had been placed near an excavation For the purpose of warning motorists and pedestrians of the danger and precautions. Practically all of the lanterns were equipped with red lenses although nothing will be readily identified if recovered.

No arrests were necessary in Belleville of late leaving the cell block at the police station vacant for house the 14 residents who stopped over in the city last night and were afforded a warm bed by the police.

FOG OBSCURES RIVER

Rolling banks of heavy fog which swirled high above the length of the Moira River presented an unusual sight to early morning wayfarers today. Veritable clouds of the heavy mist formed high in the air due to the combination of the near freezing temperature of the water of the river and the temperatures of the air.

TRENTON MAN IS ACQUITTED

Frank J. Nolan, Not Guilty of Theft Judge

Frank J. Nolan, Trenton, was acquitted of a charge of the theft of $184.00 and a cheque for an additional $25.00 by His Honor Judge O. E. Deroche in the local County Court, after a Criminal Court trial in Belleville yesterday. Nolan was charged with the theft of money from a trunk, in the hotel room of a friend, J. Evans, at Trenton, some weeks ago, and was tried by His Honor Judge, when he appeared for hearing in Trenton. Judge Deroche held in summing up the evidence that all evidence was circumstantial but sufficient to warrant a conviction being registered.

"Although the evidence submitted by the Crown is very suspicious, I cannot find the accused guilty of theft on pure circumstances," added His Honor.

The theft arose out of the missing of the money from a trunk in Evans' room in Trenton, after the trunk had been found on fire during Evans' absence. At the time of the finding of the fire the burning trunk was thrown out of the hotel room by an attendant after the fire was discovered and during Evans' absence. Trenton police, who investigated, held that Nolan had stolen the money from the trunk and later had set the trunk on fire to cover up his theft, but His Honor dismissed such theory and found the accused not guilty. Evans and Nolan are both residents of Montreal and had been fast friends for a number of years. It was revealed during yesterday's trial. H. C. Donnan, K.C., conducted the prosecution.

ELECT OFFICERS FOR COMING YEAR

Annual Meeting of Kingston Road United Church Held

At the annual meeting of the Kingston Road United Church held last evening full reports for the past years board and officers elected for the coming term. The meeting was presided over by Rev. Ross Farnsworth, pastor of the church.

Mr. John Kingston this year will head the Sunday School as superintendent. He succeeds George Logan and Edward Wood, who conducted the school jointly during the past term. Mr. Wood was appointed assistant superintendent, while Mrs. H. O. Walkom was named secretary with Ernest Casely appointed treasurer.

In the annual report presented by Mrs. H. Walkom it was shown that the church is in sound financial condition. Other reports accepted were the W. A. report by Miss M. Logan, the Missionary Society by Miss Freda Donaldson, the Bible Class report by Mrs. Cameron McCuaig and that by Mrs. Walkom the intermediate girls by Mrs. H. J. Casely. H. O. Walkom acted for the boys' intermediate class and Mrs. Alex Donaldson for the primary department.

Mild Weather Halts Lumbering Operations

Due to present weather conditions which have turned sections of the bush into a swampy morass, lumbering operations through North Hastings have been brought more or less to a complete standstill during the past week or more, according to reports from the north.

Much of the snow in the woods has disappeared while swamps and low sections in the woods, normally frozen at this time of year have become water filled and treacherous. Though some timber has been cut, due to the lack of roads and the impossibility of making ice roads it is still in the woods. Roads are also in danger of becoming impassable in the northern townships if the present mild weather continues.

MISSING GIRL IS SOON FOUND

Lorraine Tessier of Long Branch Located by News Broadcast

Shortly after the news had been broadcast over the air from Toronto, that Lorraine Tessier, 16-year old Long Branch girl was missing from her home, the girl was found by Provincial Police of Belleville headquarters, near Actinolite early today. The Tessier girl was immediately brought to Belleville by Provincial Constable J. McBlein and held until her parents at Long Branch had been communicated with and the whereabouts of their daughter ascertained.

The girl informed the Provincial Police she was enroute to Montreal and had procured a ride as far as Point Anne in a transport. Later it was revealed by the Provincial Police, that the truck in which the Tessier girl had procured transportation was radio equipped and it was over this radio, that the driver of the truck heard the morning news broadcast and realizing he was transporting the missing girl number at Point Anne and later contacted the Provincial Police, informing them where they would locate her.

Inspector Frank Gardner communicated the news of the girl's whereabouts to the Provincial Headquarters of the Provincial Police in Toronto, this morning and was awaiting a reply from the girl's parents at noon as to what procedure to be regarding her return home.

Why "Cops" Grow Old

"Do you know why policemen get grey hairs and why are we sometimes sort of patience?" Plainclothes Constable Fred Izard asked a local newspaper reporter today. Before giving inability to answer the question, but still anxious to learn the remote reason, the "news hound" replied "No, why?"

"Well lookit here," replied Mister Izard as he produced a letter from his pocket. "I'll tell you that a pair of skates, that had previously been reported stolen from a parked car in Belleville had been recovered at home in the Queen City. Last week we received a complaint from a Toronto resident, who stated a pair of skates had been stolen from his parked automobile in Belleville. We investigated and searched high up and low down, but no clue was forthcoming nor could we find any signs of the missing skates. Now we have got a letter from the original complainant stating the skates had been recovered from the automobile by his brother prior to him leaving Toronto and wanting to know my pledge. Of course when the man arrived in Belleville and found his skates gone he naturally believed them to have been stolen, the very worst in which just goes to show you what we have to put up with during our City Fathers," cleverly added the officer as he continued his sleuthing in other channels.

Miners Use Steam Shovels To Fight 52-Year-Old Blaze

Ohio's Underground Fire Has Consumed Hundreds of tons of Coal—U.S. Government Making Final Effort to Halt Spread of Flames — Endangers Life And Property

When intense heat from beneath the hill caused an underground collapse and sent part of the hillside tumbling into the valley below, three fiery crevices were left revealed. BELOW is pictured the mouth of a truck mine with smoke and flames from the raging heat plainly visible. As though in defiance of efforts to curb the blaze this fire had just broken through. Only 30 hours earlier miners were working this shaft.

By Central Press Canadian

New Straitsville, Ohio, Jan. 8.—With giant steam and electric shovels, with dynamite and with hard swinging picks and shovels, workers are making good strides in their fight to extinguish this world's greatest mine fire in the hills of Perry and Hocking and Shawnee in Southern Perry county over a seven mile area.

The fire, the strangest fire in history, one that has been burning underground for 52 years, and has already eaten up more than 50 million dollars' worth of coal and is menacing additional coal fields, worth, some say, $1,000,000,000, may be finally put out if the U.S. government's final try is successful.

For years the fire—for it might has resembled the fabled entrance to the infernal regions with flickering eerie lights as tongues of blue and red flames shoot up from some fissure in the earth.

Try to Burn It Out

The chief objective in the campaign now under way is to isolate the combustible material and then let the fire burn itself out. Taking a lesson from the pioneers who plowed furrows in the path of the prairie fire's sweep, the coal fire battlers are digging up the coal veins that the blaze in its natural course would follow.

Started during the great miner's strike of 1884, the inferno has been raging and spreading for more than a half century between New Straitsville and Shawnee, Ohio, in Perry county in the centre of the Hocking coal fields—one of the richest deposits in the world.

Acres of farmlands and woods have been ruined, several homes have been hurriedly abandoned, a church and a school house have been threatened, sections of paved highways have caved in—but the fire goes on in a number of places, a few yards from spots where smoke and flames are escaping from fissures, oil and gas wells are in operation. In other places miners are at present digging coal from workings that are in sight of hillsides spotted with blazing craters.

But curiously enough, it has only been in the past year or two that people in the district began to realize how much might be the ultimate loss if the Hocking Valley fire is not put out, and put out soon.

The story of how the fire was started is a strange one.

The 1884 miners' strike in Ohio, one of the most bitter labor struggles in American history, had been in progress for six months. One night a group of miners seized a number of loaded mine cars on a tipple at New Straitsville, poured oil on them and ignited it.

Sent Blazing Cars Into Mine

These blazing cars were then run into four different shafts, and left a mile or so underground. Within 24 hours the workings near the town were honeycombed with fire and before a week had passed the creeping flames were beyond control. A number of ventilation shafts, necessary in mining work, rerated down into the hill where the torch cars had been spotted. These acted as chimneys, providing a draft and fanning the spreading flames.

Year after year the fire expanded—constantly eating its way into adjacent territory. It not only swept through corridors, tunnels, and drifts where mining operations had been carried on, but burned into solid seams through which gases and flames driven in advance, had opened fissures. Consequently, no one knows where the fire is likely to break through the surface, and because of this, many strange things have happened.

One of the strangest things about the Hocking Valley fire is that none of the men who started it were ever arrested. Detectives worked on the case for years, but mining men might have been able to reveal the names of the men who ran the torch cars under the hill one night and when questioned.

The nearest the mystery ever came to be solved was about a year after the fire started. Albert Guess, a former inmate of the Ohio penitentiary, had returned to the scene of his youth and was living in his own of the Hocking Valley mines. One day he committed a misdemeanor, for which Constable Henry Curs started to arrest him on a street in New Straitsville.

But the ex-convict was in a savage humor and as the constable approached, Guess drew a pistol and began firing. One shot killed the constable and another killed a boy who had just come from a school building across the street.

That night a mob formed and broke into the jail, dragged Guess out to a tree and hung him. At the last minute, with the noose around his neck, Guess tried to revenge himself on the mob by revealing the names of the men who had started the mine fire, hoping that some one in the crowd would repeat what he said to officers. "I know who ran those burning coal cars into the mine, and I'm going to tell who did it. The men were—". But he got no further. Half a dozen hands lunged for the rope and the last words Guess cut off the ex-convict's breath forever, so the mystery has never been solved.

Here is one of the most unusual photos ever taken. Made in the wee sma' hours, it shows a man stealing a bottle of milk from the porch of Charles F. Norris, Portland, Ore., photographer. Angered by the frequent disappearance of his milk, Norris set a camera trap with wires running from the milk bottles to a camera and flashgun inside his living room window. This is what he caught. The man remains unidentified on the case for years, but mine-owners might have been able to reveal the names of the men who ran the torch cars under the hill one night and when questioned.

HITCH-HIKERS A STRANGE PAIR

Girl Says She Left Home Because Mother Cruel to Her

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 9 (CP)—A strange pair of homeless hitch-hikers—man and girl—appeared before Magistrate W. A. Smith in county police court today and pleaded not guilty to vagrancy charges, despite the fact they walked into Amherstburg police station, eighteen miles south of here, last night and asked for free lodging.

The girl, a 20-year-old blonde, was roughly but neatly clad. She said her home was originally in Vancouver but that she left because her mother had been cruel to her.

The two gave their names as Isabel MacFarlane and Duncan Scott. When Magistrate Smith asked them if they were married, the girl answered: "No, except that I am his common-law wife."

Scott said he came originally from Toronto but had no home there now. The pair were remanded in custody pending further investigation.

SHORT STORY BY LEROY SHOOSTER

The Fresh Air Fiend

Once there was a little air fiend who always bragged about leaving his windows wide open all day no matter how cold the thermometer was, and one day it was 40 below zero in the shade and he left them open and ickles got in his hair and the covers frose to the bed so he couldn't get out, and his voice froze so he couldn't yell for help, and nobody liked him much anyways so they didn't even look in to see why he hadn't came down for breakfast or lunch or dinner, and they took his remains to the cemetery in a ice HEARSE and it was proberly a good lesson to him in some future life.

THE RED DRESS

By Frederick Laing

Molly O'Hara was singing and whisking a brush over her short brown hair as she flirted black eyed with herself in the mirror.

For wasn't it the most beautiful world and hadn't Timothy Michaels invited her to the Murphy chain store employees' mutual benefit dance, and wouldn't she simply knock them all dead in her new red dress?

She couldn't help noticing that her peaches and cream complexion had come back again—

When he'd ask her to the dance, he hadn't been impudent like most men. He'd told her about how they were all Irish in the Murphy company—the whole two thousand of them! No, he hadn't been impudent, but he hadn't been shy either. He'd looked her right in the eye and her heart had gone faster and faster.

From that first day when she'd entered his store she'd known she would fall in love with him. And she'd come back that same afternoon for something else and she couldn't remember what it was and he'd smiled. He must have noticed her blushing, but he'd let her shop in his store for three weeks until they were practically old friends before he'd said a word about seeing her some time of an evening.

Yesterday she'd arrived as his store as he was about to close He'd broken a rule to let her in and had pulled down the shades so every one else in the world should think he was closed for the day. It was then that he had asked her to the dance.

And she'd bought that red dress she'd been saving for, even though money was a bit scarce now that she'd brought her sister over from Ireland, and she'd wanted so terribly to have Timothy proud of her, and Catherine would find work soon, she was sure.

Three weeks ago there'd been only one person she'd loved in the world and that was Catherine, her sister, just two years younger than she, soft eyed and a little selfish, Timothy had said, "Sure, and your sister to the dance," and had laughed when she wanted to pay the extra dollar, Timothy would be insulted if he knew the two sisters she in her red dress and Catherine in—

What would Catherine wear to the dance? There were two suitors who called, Ned Ryan and Willie Cahill, and Catherine hated while cream. Let Catherine use the red dress this one night, then I'll give it to you forever if you'll only say I will. Don't be spoiled, Catherine. It isn't good for you to have your way all the time.

And now Catherine is coming up the stairs, light and quick and gay and dear, like a white kitten come to play. Molly felt glad she would she shan't have because I'm going to wear it for Timothy's sake. . . .

Catherine stood in the doorway singing above suspense.) What do you think?

Catherine threw her hat disdainfully on the bed. "No luck at all. I'm discouraged. Why is everyone so mean to a girl looking for work?

Molly's eyes followed the hat in its journey and it, too, fell on the bed. Tired it lay, brown and limp. If she wanted Timothy proud she would have to look at the red dress.

She raised her head and their eyes met. "Cathie, you're not nervous.

"Of course not. Why?"

An anguish of dismay and devotion.

"Of course a red dress, silly Aren't you going to the dance tonight? I bought it for you to wear."

Swiftly into the hallway, (You can try on the red dress while I run down and get some condensed milk for dinner) swiftly up the stairs to the friendly roof where she could cry her heart out to the sky with no one to see and no one to hear.

. . . No one to hear.

Catherine looked so dazzlingly in the red dress it made Molly's eyes blink to see her. At least that was what Molly gave when Catherine, who wasn't usually very observant, said Molly looked as if she had something in her eye.

They went to meet Timothy in the dance hall. He couldn't call for them because he was on the committee. He said he would be near the door watching for them at eight o'clock.

He came hurrying in their direction, pulling the tickets out of his pocket on his way. Molly watched his eyes nervously as she introduced Catherine.

"We'll find a place so Catherine can sit down." He said, "and then we'll find her a partner. And that was all.

As he led them eagerly into the dance hall Molly gasped. There was hardly a girl in the place who wasn't dressed in red!

"You're a perfect angel in white," Timothy whispered. "Indeed you are. Thank the Lord there's one girl here this evening who did not decide to wear a red dress!"

ANOTHER ARREST MADE IN PLATTSVILLE CASE

The W.M.S. program was conducted by the President, Mrs. Nicolson. "Just for today, Lord, keep me and guide me, I pray", was the theme. Hymns were sung by the group, Mrs. Chisholm. Prayer was offered by the President. Scripture Lesson was read by Mrs. Hedley Ketchenon and Mrs. L. Ketchenon. The minutes were read by Mrs. S. Hinchliffe.

Treasurer reported $87 raised during the year, a number of quilts were also made.

Mrs. L. Badgley, Vice-President took charge of the W.A. "More Love to Thee" was sung followed by all repeating The Lord's Prayer. Mrs. Noyes read the minutes and Mrs. Fred Phillips gave the Treasurer's report—$200.00 was raised during the past year. Plans were made for the congregational supper at which the reports of all the work of the church will be given. Mrs. Nobes reported having remembered Mrs. Bowers, Mrs. Martin and Mr. G. Ketchenon at Christmas. A hymn and benediction closed the meeting.

THOMASBURG W.M.S. AND W.A.

On Wednesday, January 6th, 1937, the executive meeting of the W.M.S. and W.A. of the United Church met at the home of Mrs. J. R. Bateman. The meeting opened at two p.m., with the Lord's Prayer in unison. Then a committee was appointed to dismantle the travelling shirt. The proceeds of which was $7.74. Many composers of poetry showed their skill as they enclosed a verse with their donation. Mrs. L. Fox was awarded the prize for the best verse.

Other business was transacted and the books were closed for 1936. A dainty lunch was served and a social half hour was spent.

20 MEN AWAIT HOUR OF DEATH

Two of Six Involved in Holdup Electrocuted at Assigning

Canning, N.Y., Jan. 9 (AP)—Twenty men under death sentence remained today in Sing Sing Prison's death house where the electric chair only a few hours before reclaimed the lives of two youthful slayers of a subway collector in a hold-up.

Nine of the condemned men are to be executed within the next two weeks, four next Thursday and five a week later, unless saved by executive clemency.

Theodore Didonne, 31, and Joseph Bologna, 24, two of six men convicted of shooting Edwin Esposito, 22-year-old Transit Company employee, when they robbed him of a scuttle of coins totalling $240 were put to death Thursday night.

Salvatore Scala, 19, whose confession prosecuting officials credited with making possible a solution of the crime, was saved when Governor Herbert H. Lehman, only a few hours before the time set for the execution, commuted the youth's sentence to life imprisonment.

Earlier the Governor had commuted the sentences of Sam Kimmel, 22, Dominick Zizzo, 27, and Eugene Brune, 32.

2 BONFIELD MEN DROWN IN LAKE

Darkness Prevented Them Seeing Large Crack in Ice

Bonfield, Ont., Jan. 9 (CP)—Broken ice on Lake Nosbonsing sent two Bonafield men to their deaths as they raced their car across through early morning darkness, bent on a fishing trip at the head of the lake.

Hervey Decoheme, 36, and Joseph Boyer, 36, were lost in the icy waters early yesterday with their dogs when darkness prevented them from seeing the break in the ice. Boyer was a widow and eight children and Decheme a widow and one child in this Northern Ontario town about fifteen miles east of North Bay.

Provincial police and a coroner are inquiring into the men's deaths today.

Late last night the bodies of the two men were found floating in the lake. Search for them was started when the bodies of their dogs were found in open water near the town. Relatives recognized the animals and later came upon the men's bodies.

Decheme and Boyer left Bonfield about 5:30 o'clock yesterday morning, each driving two dogs. Apparently they had not travelled far over the ice when men and dogs plunged into open water.

SOMETHING TO WORRY ABOUT

Being in a municipal body is no easy post just now. Toronto council is faced with a loss of six or seven hundred thousand dollars under the announced plan of the Government of Ontario to take to itself all the provincial income tax without rebating communities as it did last year, and to relieve the municipalities of the cost of Mothers' Allowance bills and Old Age Pensions. Toronto just happens to be in a position where it stands to be a loser while some nine hundred and thirty five municipalities will profit. Belleville, for instance, it is reported to the extent of twelve thousand dollars.

Now Toronto municipal politicians have to find a way to make up for this or protest as powerfully as they can to get the city some relief. But the Province will not grant relief, it is reported.

The municipal council members whoever they are, have more worries to "the week today than old councils did in a month or a year. It used to be routine matters they dealt with, or giving bonuses to industries. While bonusing is not carried out today, the financial issues which are to be dealt with by the members of any council are numerous and tax the wits to the utmost and fullest extent.

These council members get a lesson in municipal finance and anyone seeking experience has just to find a seat in a council.

These are problems of importance because of the peculiar economic age in which they live.

Will the era to come lift many of these burdens from the people's representatives in council?

But if the Belleville and other councils are not bothered about such losses as face Toronto and a few other municipalities, and the councils of other municipalities may feel easier, the sense of relief will not get them far. They have to remember that if this question does not press on them, it is some dozen other questions they must face now or some time during the year, that will give them enough worries.

THIS DISAGREEABLE WEATHER

The present weather does not seem like winter weather at all. Since before Christmas it has been extremely mild and with almost a month of mild spells, people are wondering if on the present disagreeable condition will end.

Mild weather is desirable during a winter but not weather which might more adorn late March or early April.

There is some foundation for the view that this weather is not conducive to good health, as it offers risks to the body's welfare in view of the exposure to which the human body is subjected by undue warmth and the prevailing dampness. The mild weather does not entirely prevent the consumption of coal, though it does appear considerable. It removes the opportunity for work which men are anxious to find especially if it is in the removal of snow.

Probably one result of the mild spells is that it may mean removal of danger of a flood. The Moira River which gave so bad an account of itself a little less than ten months ago in a flood which will long be remembered, is open and the month of January will soon be half gone. Possibility of its freezing up so solid that a flood may result seems naturally to be diminished.

The farmer will soon be casting an anxious eye on the weather if it continues to behave as it is acting at present. There is a view that the winter crops are suffering from the wetness and exposure of the roots. It is in the late winter when there is the possibility of melting and freezing with heaving that danger also lies. Continuance of the present weather may be none too good for the sideroads or unpaved roads, once the snow or ice is removed. Fortunately on the side roads, there is still no pavement to speak of, so that the frost penetrated the soft surface of the roads. If it reaches this stage some damage may result.

So weather a little more wintry would seem to be desirable even at this early stage of the winter for the sake of health and for other reasons.

The passions and capacities of our nature are foundations of power, happiness and glory; but if we turn them into occasions and sources of self-indulgence the structure itself falls, and buries everything in its overwhelming desolation. — G. B. Cheever.

WALTER WINCHELL WAS HANDED A TICKET IN LOS ANGELES FOR passing a red light. Not very exciting news in itself, but pleasing to a lot of folks in L. A. who Walter has been riding in his column for reckless driving and color blindness in regard to signal lights. Walter took it on the chin with good grace and refused to have influential friends interfere to save him court proceedings. As a matter of fact, Winchell is an honorary Captain of the Los Angeles police force and has a gold badge as big as an alarm clock. The incident as Walter records it happened when he was driving at about eight miles per hour and got confused at a railway crossing. When he saw that he had passed a street stop signal he drove his car to the curb and apologized to the policeman for disregarding the signal. The cop wasn't taking any and handed the ticket to Walter. The incident was gleefully broadcast from Hollywood by radio, but Winchell took the wing out of all radio and newspaper blasts by telling the whole story on himself, and reiterating that it will not make a bit of difference in his crucifying reckless driving in his columns—one of the most notable of R. D. to be publicly scolded by Winchell was President Roosevelt's son, which shows that the Winchell is no respecter of persons—now if he can just catch a Hearst scion and hang him up at the top of his column we will believe he is the bravest man since Noah and Jonah and Captain John Smith. Hearst being his boss.

ONE OF THE OUTSTANDING EVENTS OF CHRISTMAS IN BELLEVILLE is always the Salvation Army Band serenading the citizens. It has become so usual that it is taken as a matter of course and receives only superficial attention perhaps. If it were omitted for a year folks would wonder and perhaps complain. The Army folks certainly do a good job of it, the full cold or warm and still the air with seasonal tunes. Besides that Comrade B. W. Brown does his annual act as the Santa Claus of the Streets—and does he do an act? No more jolly Santa Claus ever stepped into a red flannel suit than the same Santa Claus B. W. Brown, Campbell street businessman, who has always taken a deep and active interest in the work of the Salvation Army. He also officiated as Santa Claus for the Victorian Order of Nurses Christmas Tree, besides other functions during the festive season.

GREAT NECESSITY MORE POPULATION

Hon. R. B. Bennett Says This of Dominions in Empire Speech

Glasgow, Scotland, Jan. 9 (CP)—Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Canada's opposition leader in parliament, arrived here today to wait for his return last after a four-months tour around the empire.

The former Conservative Prime Minister left London last night after telling the empire in a broadcast address he hopes policies could be developed that would produce a wider distribution of British people throughout empire countries.

Mr. Bennett spoke of the achievements of British, French and Dutch peoples in settlement and development of Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Canada, declaring: "They have not proved unworthy of the sacrifices of their ancestors."

He did not discuss immigration policies nor suggest any concrete plans for the future, but said:

"The great necessity of the dominions is increased population. I hope we may, by co-operation, develop plans which will enable those who find lessened opportunities for employment, by reason of development of the dominions overseas, to assist in that development and take their part in maintaining the intellectual and national heritage of owe their organization and existence to the enterprise and vision of men and women who once lived and moved and had their being within the sound of my voice."

In tribute of enthusiasm to the functions of the crown, Mr. Bennett declared:

"I should like to assure you that in every part of the empire which I visited men and women found the common bond of union and allegiance in the crown, their devotion to which we are all familiar and which are repeatedly spoken and sung by one-quarter of the population of the world—God save the King."

BRITISH EMBASSY BOMBED, 2 HURT

Socialist Authorities to Forcibly Evacuate Civilian Population

Madrid, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Spanish Socialist authorities were reported today planning to evacuate forcibly the capital's civilian population after bombs from night-raiding insurgent planes damaged the Soviet British Embassy building in the heart of the city.

While Madrid's defenders threw stiffening calm over estimates about the northwestern siege front, the defence Junta turned to drastic measures to relieve congestion within the city proper.

Belleville Conservatives Prepare for Election By Holding Annual Meeting

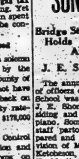
In introducing the executive following the balloting, President Harry Rollins expressed the desire, that the same complete harmony, that had existed within the organization during the past year would continue. He welcomed also the large attendance of members and pointed to a new acquisition, that had been injected in the ranks during the past few months. Each new officer spoke briefly.

First Vice-President Richard D. Arnold in expressing his appreciation for the confidence that had been bestowed upon him also cited the growth of a new spirit — so plainly evident at the meeting. "This can mean only one thing and that is that a complete victory will be ours when we again go to the polls to elect a new provincial administration," he added.

Herbert Collins, chairman of Foster Ward, declared that the hall forces of the ward he was happy to represent would be used for the furtherance of the work of the association and the party it represented.

Chas. Hyde expressed the assurance that during the coming term he would be happy to be a member of the spokes in Harry Rollin's wheel.

"I'm behind the party one hundred per cent. at all times and when I am elected to office or not," stated David Rollins, chairman of Sampson Ward.



Mr. Frank Bird, chairman of Ketcheson Ward, briefly outlined that his efforts during the past year would be directed toward enlarging the ward he represented at the top of the list in the city.

Ward Chairmen Heard

"I can only say that I, too, will be happy to work for my ward in an effort to make it one of the best," assured Mr. Geo. Hobbs, chairman of Baldwin Ward.

Geo. Chalk, chairman of Coleman Ward, declared his ward was "getting started" and he was confident that his efforts during the past year would be rewarded by enlarging the ward he represented at the top of the list in the city.

Thanking the people of Belleville for the assistance they had so freely given during the past election campaign, he cited the reverse vote suffered by the Hepburn government in the city as being largely due to the influence of the local Conservative party members in the Conservative part of the riding. He referred to the election as not being entirely past an election but an appeal to the principles of the electorate in East Hastings.

Represents Every Voter

"Now that I have been elected, however, I represent the Liberals, the Tories and the Socialists of the riding."

Paying tribute to the sterling worth of the late James F. Hill, Conservative member for East Hastings, Dr. Welsh cited his election as being the highest tribute that could be paid by the people of East Hastings. "In that I am privileged to follow in the footsteps of James Hill, take up the work that he left behind, I am happy," he added.

Declaring that the offer of the Bancroft Agricultural Society had been by Premier Hepburn, had been more in the nature of a challenge to the rural new representative added that it had been accepted without consulting the Liberal organization of East Hastings. "Mindful of keeping single I took it upon himself to do so. The Premier has done his duty nobly. But the Premier did not know the nature of the residents of East Hastings when he did offer," added Dr. Welsh.

The election simmered down to a straight fight between two counsellors, Ward No. 1 and Ward No. 2 did not happen to be on the right hand corner.

Mitchell Hepburn and his party came into East Hastings with the knowledge that they would be met with him his famous machine. headed by Wm. Ward. In the campaign moved forward they started to realize, that it wasn't going to be so easy. Duncan Marshall through the course of the meetings he held the smaller and smaller the attendance got. He was defeated by Dr. Welsh. His party burn's appeal turned from a challenge to one in which he tried to gain the sympathy of the electorate. He did not succeed by his promises to help them. The Great Retreat from East Hastings before only one incident of others lately", continued Dr. Welsh citing the resignation of Senator Frank O'Connor lately as one of the damaging blows suffered by the party. "With the resignation of Frank O'Connor Mitchell Hepburn has lost the best friend he had in Ontario."

Opponent Held in Esteem

Declaring that he held Dr. Boyce, his colleague and defeated candidate in the highest esteem, the member-elect for the riding of the Hepburn party in their attempt at winning the Hastings election indicrous.

"Work on one township road was being carried out with snow on it which was a waste of money and it could be made. New gravel was simply taken and dumped there on the snow as we saw. It is provided some work.

"Hepburn and his helpers tried to create the impression, that it would be an overwhelming victory for their side by offering bets at ten to one but the odds only dwindled down until the day before the election you could hardly get a bet at all.

"I have affidavits that intimidation was used in five or three cases where Old Age pensions were concerned. If this was intimidation, these would be cut off unless the right vote was given. There are many other points that could be brought out."

Result of the East Hastings election was only a fair indication of the attitude of voters throughout the rest of Ontario, declared Dr. Welsh in the province is a more representative riding to be found. declared Dr. Welsh, pointing out that in its confines were large representations of railroad workers, lumbermen, canning factory operators and employees, miners, farmers, trappers, businessmen and laborers. "Thus we had the opinion of the majority of people in every walk of life. They condemned the administration in no uncertain manner. It is just an indication of what will happen at the next election," he added.

Premier Hepburn was condemned on two counts, one for what he promised to do and did not do, and the second for what he did without a mandate from the people, continued Dr. Welsh. "At the present time the provincial debt has been added to by $160,000 each day since taxes have been in. Hepburn promised to take the gas tax and apply it to road building. Yet one-fourth of it has had been spent in road maintenance and the construction of a few miles.

Highway Again Discussed

Highway No. 7, on which a solemn agreement had been made by the late J. R. Cooke and Premier Hepburn, that the road would not have to pay for it, was thrown back on the shoulders of the county rate payers when he got in, a $175,000 load.

"We condemn the Liquor Control Act for its maladministration and the growth of beverage rooms on every corner simply as an aid toward more revenue.

"The Game and Fisheries Department has been neglected. The only notable act of the Department of Health which is in a deplorable condition as far as social hospitals and the lack of accommodation within them is concerned, brought out the province.

"We have had decreased service in almost every department, and yet our rate has increased.

"It was Hepburn who signed the Assessment Act was the main issue of the last election. He has done the issue, and hasn't touched it. Instead he has given the electors.

"This Act has done more to undermine the Public School system than any other. A system, whose doors are open irregardless of religion, or nationality, is one of the Roman Catholics cannot support because their schools would be closed up and the pupils attend the Public Schools. Their faith will not permit them with.

"Neither Ontario or Canada can stand for a religious war. If there is going to be constant difference of opinion on religion," stressed Dr. Welsh.

Victory Adds New Life

The Eastern Hastings by-election, declared the speaker, was the prelude to what would happen all over Ontario at the next election.

"The by-election has added new life to the Conservative party. It has given the people hope that the party has always been called upon when an important crisis has arisen. It has never failed now nor has it before, but has constantly looked to the people for a future. It will be called upon in two years or less to lead the province out of the mire," added Dr. Welsh.

"Our Provincial debt may be cited at 700 millions of dollars, but we must not forget that we have the finest highway system in the world and that three small mines in Northern Ontario alone are worth more than that sum. We must open that north, provide our young people with work and a sound employment than has been given them in the past. Hepburn has been conscious by his neglect of the north. Then also on relief and break their hearts and health. The Premier was not on the march behind the best leader it has ever had. The Conservative party in history will be experienced at the next election. We are going to make a complete legislation passed by a floundering Hepburn Government from back which only a Conservative Government could effect," concluded Dr. Welsh.

During the evening community singing was led by Richard D. Arnold, while at the conclusion of the meeting lunch was served by the ladies of the association. Refreshments were given by Mr. Jack Boyd. Music was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Warham.

TO DECORATE LONDON

Miriam Gentile, talented young Belleville artiste, whose stage career is now Mrs. G. Guy Wormum of London, will design the color scheme that will transform the streets of London into a blaze of pageantry for the coronation of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth. Closing her San Francisco art studio five years ago, she went to London to give an exhibition of her paintings . . . and was presented at the court of St. James. She married the manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway

Infant Feeding Subject of Talk To H. and S. Club

The King George Home and School Club met yesterday afternoon in the Teachers' Room with Miss Beatrice Hall, B.A., as guest speaker of the day who was Dr. Austin Walters, his subject being "Infant Welfare or Prevention of Children Under One Year."

Dr. Walters spoke of the two methods of feeding, breast and artificial, the former being the better in his own food, is more convenient. Regular hours should be adhered to for beginning proper calming habits. For the artificial method use water or pasteurized milk, water and sugar in some form. If raw milk is used, mothers should be sure it is free from a tuberculin-tested herd. Boil milk three minutes for the first month and three minutes for the next, and cool quickly. Between feedings, give plenty of cool boiled water. A two months' diet for all children, start cod liver oil and orange juice. Next is cereal, vegetables and gradually increase, and give this between feedings. At six months, add the baby's own small quantities of cereals, potatoes, cream of wheat, an egg, at four or five months begin vegetables in soup or purees, and raw fruits.

This supplies iron that is necessary for the child's blood and development. The infant does not like the taste, persist and he will gradually accept same.

At six to seven months, the diet will include meats—begin with a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful—feeding may be discontinued. Finally, at one year the child should be able to eat from a spoon and drink from a cup. His diet should consist of milk, cereal, cereal, raw food, stewed food, custards, vegetables, but very little sugar or starch. Fresh air helps the appetite. Clothing must not be too tight on too heavy.

Watch for signs of tuberculosis in children as the death rate is still high in spite of education. The signs are, the child becomes pale and thin, the weight has swollen glands. Dr. Walters referred to the splendid work of the Tuberculosis Clinic held in this city. There is a Preventorium at Weston where children of tubercular parents stay while their parents are being treated.

Mrs. Bankey expressed the appreciation of the Club to Dr. Walters for his instructive and interesting address.

An interesting interlude was provided when the audience adjourned to the auditorium where they were entertained by some talented pupils of the School with tap dancing and recitations. These items were provided by Norma Smith, Margaret Smith, Joyce Wilson, Betty Brown. The accompanists was Miss Dorothy Soy.

Mr. Grant Proctor then put on for the entertainment and instruction of the members, some talking pictures depicting radio telephoning from ships at sea, different parts of the telephone and the progress in the use and usefulness of the very necessary adjunct of civilization.

The appreciation of the Club was voiced by Mrs. R. Ashbury. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Revell, Mrs. Laughlin, Mrs. Nevery and Mrs. Aeschlimn.

The autobiography of one of the busiest women writers in the world is related in the book "Oil Paint and Grease Paint" by Dame Laura Knight, R.A. The story of her life is the story of a successful struggle against hardship. Many of the pictures produced in her career are of interest, especially those dealing with the gypsies and the intimate glimpses of circus folk at home. "Oil Paint and Grease Paint" is illustrated with many reproductions of the work of the first woman actually to be appointed Royal Academician. An artist's work is never finished and with the writing of an artist it grows as well as colour, Dame Laura Knight has completed her book. "The world is full of undiscovered beauty —no petty scene but can be glorified in the eyes of him who sees as it truly. Above all I wish that my joy may be expected and that I may learn to see."

A highly individual travel book is Geoffrey Gorer's "Africa Dances". His latest book differs from the others in that it is not the author pro-jects his personal and in many instances humorous views on the history of religion and culture in Sumatra, Java, Bali and other islands. We went to Bali "half-unwillingly" expecting to find nothing "picturesque" left intact to the Hollywood standard". He left the island "almost with regret" and convinced that I had seen the nearest approach to Utopia that I am ever likely to see". From what he saw in Bali and Angkor he concludes that the living meanings of a thousand years still move the people and they dance them.

A timely book on world problems is Douglas Jerrold's survey, "They Shall Take Arms". The author begins by analysing the nature of the present world crisis which he finds to be the result of movements back of peoples. He points out that the basic reason it is wholly different from the crisis of 1914, It has its origin in the World War, in the collapse of European civilization, a civilization which was a form of Christianity. Of Christian belief and economic liberty. He then goes into the solutions offered today and maintains that collective security on the one hand and the other, are both equally ineffective and dangerous. We want to be left "half-unwillingly" appealing to that "blessed word" Mesopotamia and to the Hollywood standard". He left the island "almost with regret" and convinced that I had seen the nearest approach to Utopia that I am ever likely to see". From what he saw in Bali and Angkor he concludes that the living meanings of a thousand years still move the people and they dance them.

AT THE BELLE

All New "Tarzan Escapes" and Kirma on the Stage.

The best known character of modern fiction, Edgar Rice Burroughs' Tarzan the most popular adventure hero in all history, the idol of untold millions of readers of every race, color and creed . . . the delight of boys of thirteen and seventy, is "TARZAN . . . again to unreel his thrilling jungle life on the screen of Goldwyn-Mayer picture

This time it is "Tarzan Escapes" and again Johnny Weismuller is Tarzan and again Maureen O'Sullivan is Jane. The amazingly awaited picture will be presented at the Belle today and Monday and Tuesday.

Hordes of jungle beasts, with enough thrills for a dozen pictures, and with a brand new romantic idea, the two have surrounded an adventure yarn takes Tarzan and his beloved Jane into the land of the giant beak where perils never before filmed are encountered.

Since her last appearance in a Tarzan picture Miss O'Sullivan has been crowned queen by an unbroken series of hit pictures including "The Barretts of Wimpole Street", in which she appeared with Norma Shearer and Fredric March; "David Copperfield" and "The Thin Man", "The Voice of Bugle Ann" and numerous others.

Prominent in the supporting cast of Tarzan Escapes are Benita Hume, recently seen as the malevolent spy in "Sylvia", William Henry, Richard Murdock and Forrester Harvey, one of the most promising young juveniles on the M.G.M. lot, plays the role of Jane's cousin who braves darkest Africa to find her and induce her to return to civilization. Mundin adds considerable hilarity in another of his typical comedy characterizations; Buckler is seen as Major Fry, the explorer, a villainous a character as ever fought his way through the African jungle.

Battles with hostile African natives, an eerie encounter with giant bats, Tarzan's fight with a pride of lions captured for menageries, the battle of the white apes' tribe with wild Cameloni tribesman, the mad elephant stampede which ends in the scouting party, the escape of Tarzan from a cage in which he has been imprisoned, native torture, a plunge over a cliff, a perilous adventure in a crocodile-infested river . . . these are just a few of the many thrilling sequences in "Tarzan Escapes".

The picture was given the same spectacular production that marked the two preceding Tarzan adventure dramas, during a year of extensive location shooting being required to give the atmosphere and background the details of authenticity. A selected program of varied entertaining short features will be exhibited.

Kirma On Stage.

The world's master psychic marvel, Kirma, is announced for appearance on the Belle Theatre stage, for one week commencing today, January 11th.

Kirma, who is making a coast-to-coast tour of the Famous Players Theatres in Canada, after a highly successful tour of the Paramount-Publix circuit in United States will answer your questions. Let him help you with his uncanny power to read the minds of the past . . . the mysteries of the future! Love . . . marriage . . . health . . . business, his amazing mentality penetrates and solves the most baffling personal problems. This grand stage attraction has been presented before and screen show fans everywhere will be given an opportunity to see and hear him in person. On the stage "Montana Frank's Circle M Rangers", a miniature rodeo frolic in the modern manner with Montana Frank and Fresco Rose, World's Champion Rifle Shot in trick and fancy sharpshooting. Also introducing Cattle Annie, the World's youngest cowgirl in songs of the Western Ranges. This is a wonderful show with artistic ability by everyone on it in rope manipulations and songs and music of the far and famed Ranges.

Also on the screen two small features.

Murder is essential ingredient of every detective picture so that the suspense of tracking down the culprit provides the chief entertainment factor.

But in new twist is offered in RKO Radio's new comedy-thriller, "The Plot Thickens", seen with the Ellery Queen sleuthing Maude Eburne at 12.05. Although two satisfactory murders take place with the customary lack of evident motive and clues, there are incidentals leading up to the real plot, which is based on the daring scheme of a band of international crooks to steal the priceless Cellini Cup from a museum.

And just to make it all the more mystifying, there are two detectives instead of one in the picture—inspector Oscar Piper of the New York police, and his unofficial assistant Hildegrade Withers, who, between them, have already solved over five vious film mysteries, and who blunder through this one with entire success.

Since the real Cellini Cup is one of the most revered treasures of the Metropolitan Museum in New York city, and would not be loaned for the picture, a Los Angeles jewellery firm made an exact copy of the famous 16th century relic for the purposes of the film.

James Ellison and Jean Pitts play the detective duo, and the supporting cast is headed by Owen Davis, Jr., and Louise Latimer.

Added Attraction

A "spanking heard 'round the world" is delivered by a radio performer to a spoiled ten-year-old, is one of the comedy moments of "Sing and Be Happy", and also Pathe's "Easy to Take", at the Capitol Sunday Monday and Tuesday. The film has Marsha Hunt and John Howard in the leading roles. The child, an important character in the story, is Douglas Scott.

"Easy to Take" tells the story of radio "uncle", who gets forty dollars a week for telling stories to the kiddies of the land over a big broadcasting station. Howard, the "uncle", has the job; he likes it, even less when an eccentric woman of wealth, charmed by his voice, decides that he is the man for her to be the guardian of her nephew, Scott.

At first he wants to refuse the job, but Miss Hunt, the boy's sister, and accepts. Complications set in when the estate proves legendary and Howard attempts to support the pair on his own meagre earnings. Miss Hunt misunderstands a publicity story which tells the world about what he has done, and flees. Radio brings them together in the end.

AT THE CAPITOL

Starting Sunday midnight at 12.05 and Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the Capitol presents the greatest show value ever offered to Belle film fans. A grand stage show and two smash features at no increase in prices. On the stage "Montana Frank's Circle M Rangers", a miniature rodeo frolic in the modern manner with Montana Frank and Fresco Rose, World's Champion Rifle Shot in trick and fancy sharpshooting. Also introducing Cattle Annie, the World's youngest cowgirl in songs of the Western Ranges. BETHEL MOVES TO FIRST PLACE

Bethel And Foxboro Victors in Twin Bill at Stirling

Stirling, Jan. 9 (Special)—The double bill of the Hastings' County Hockey League on Friday night provided the fans with plenty of thrills in spite of the soft condition of the ice which slowed down the speedsters considerable.

Foxboro went on a scoring spree in the first fixture of the twin bill and buried the West Huntingdon crew, who were also up against by their flashy centre man H. Metz and his sterling winger "Chuck" Wright, beneath a barrage of rubber to the tune of 6-1, the latter scoring all the goals. In the second event Bethel moved up into first place by defeating 4 to 2 victory over the league leading Glen Ross team in a game hotly contested the first one to speed and action.

First Game

Starting at top speed the lighter team of Foxboro had a decided edge over their Huntingdon rivals in the heavy going and after seven minutes of play Simms beat Barden on a nice pass from Ronsky, who had skirted McGowan and got behind the defence for a clear shot. Ronsky broke away and tried Sarles and Lee was there to bang in the rebound. A few minutes later Ronsky scored on a counter unassisted. Jud McGowan got the hat trick when he cashed in on the "Westies" when he spilled one from centre ice.

Hall got a rise out of the fans when he scored on a shot the full length of rink. Hitting the far boards of a scrimmage in front of his own net he lifted it down the ice to reserve the pressure and was amazed to hear the crowd cheer as it rolled by the goal who never even saw it. The final score of the game was 6-1 for Foxboro. Lee was busy getting the assist to wind up the game with the Foxboro score of seven 6-1 for Foxboro. Ronsky and Simms were the standouts for Foxboro with Sherwood Barden receiving a good account of themselves. Metz and Wright, Huntingdon went well for West Huntingdon. "Hefty" Jud McGowan found it pretty heavy going.

Line-ups

Foxboro—Goal, Sinfield; defence, Wall and Guay; centre, Don Lee; wings, Ronsky and Simms; reserves, Barden, Simms, Guay and Cowan.

West Huntingdon—Goal, Sarles; defence, J. McGowan, Don Reid; centre, Hall; wings, Metz and Cook and C. Reid; alternates, Cook and Stapley.

Second Game.

In the second game there was more action and speed when Bethel moved up into first league leadership by virtue of their win over the fast tory over Glen Ross. The "Riverboys" put on a great display of fast speed but could get their combination plays clicking for the heavy ice and moved out of first place in the league standing for the time being by the victory. Bethel who defeated them 3-0. The Bethel team played pep up hockey for two periods and seemed superior in team play when they reverted to defensive tactics in the final period it was only the good work of Everett Dickey in their net that kept Glen Ross from scoring. The boys from the "Valley" were given him plenty of worry in the last few minutes of play but they received him with rubber from every angle.

BETHEL HALL DEFEATS GLEN ROSS

The first goal was scored by Faux, Ross with Dalnard brothers and from a scramble in front of the Glen Ross net. Ray Dalnard then scored brilliantly for the Greenshirts noiched the other two counters themselves, one when he took the result of a brilliant lone rush after getting through the defence he took plenty of time and drew Hagerman out of position before he let go a wrist high shot. Glen Ross was superior in speed and individual plays but Bethel's combination was too much for them in the first two periods. The last period was decidedly Glen Ross' Robinson and Guay, Hagerman were the best for Glen Ross with Dalnard brothers and Armstrong turning in a fine effort. Ray Dickie starred for Bethel with Parks, Lupinette and Culhane next in line.

Ross—Goal, S. Hagerman; defence, Armstrong and Brown; centre, Robinson; wings, F. Fraser and H. Hagerman; alternates, D. MacDonald, Brooks and the Dalnard brothers.

Bethel—Goal, E. Dickey; defence, Faux and Denyes; centre, Parks; wings, Lupinette and Culhane; alternates, R. Dickey, H. Dickey and Guay.

BALL MEETING SCHEDULED FOR TUESDAY NIGHT

Likely Old Executive Will Resign in a Body

HOPE FOR REVIVAL

Prospects For 1937 in Baseball Not Very Encouraging

For the past three or four seasons back baseball in general in Belleville has been on the downward trend, until it fell to its lowest level last September, when the Belleville O. C. B. I. club was forced to default its remaining two games in the league schedule. The summer pastime has not met with success for a number of years back, but efforts to revive interest in the pastime are sincerely looked forward to in 1937. For the purpose of perhaps reorganizing the management of baseball in Belleville or more particularly to place the situation, as it now stands, before the citizens, President Clarence Clapp today announced the annual meeting of the Belleville Baseball Club would be held at the Y.M.C.A. on Tuesday night of next week.

Baseball, once the leading sport of the Bay of Quinte area, has fallen to a very low level and it is a fast approaching possible oblivion. Many suggestions have been heard on the street relative to ways and means of rejuvenating or reviving the diamond game in this city. The executive of the 1936 club is ready to accept any or all suggestions brought forward and will resign it's body. Secretary Lorne McDougall stated this morning. The future success of baseball today lies in the hands of the citizens. If there are those sufficiently interested in the sponsoring of a senior baseball club in the city we sincerely hope they will be present and voice their views and intentions at the Y.M.C.A. on Tuesday evening. The 1936 executive will assist in whatever capacity is necessary to help the game, but will not take office, I understand," added President Clapp.

Whether baseball is sponsored by individuals or an association really does not matter, but it is essential that immediate action be taken in order to raise the standard of baseball in Belleville before the 1937 season rolls around. Baseball was once a successful and flourishing game back in the 'nineties. "Doc Hershey" and Harry Mills, "Wicky" Ross, Freddie Geyer, "Scotty" Weir, "Dollar" Jack Williams, Stan Hagerman, the Casey boys, "Crock" Williams, Jr., Harry Blakely and others and it is with fond memories of these old time baseball stars that somewhat of a perennial pennant winner, still at heart, looks for the welfare of baseball in Belleville attend Tuesday night's meeting at the Y.M.C.A.

BOWLING THEM OVER—

No. 1—Fundamentals First

Noted Fin-Crasher, With Jack Dempsey as 'Pupil' Begins Series Exclusive in Belleville in The Ontario Intelligencer

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mort Lindsey, who will lead Jack Dempsey's five-man team in the American Bowling congress championship in New York in March, is one of the greatest bowlers the sport has ever seen. Sixteen times during his career has he bowled finished over the 300 mark. He has competed in 26 annual A.B.C. classics and has established perhaps the greatest all-time competitive record in that event. He won the all-events title in 1918, was runner-up in 1919 for the all-events crown and is the only man to have bowled on two world's championship five-man teams. Another team on which he bowled finished second in the A.B.C. This is the first of a series of 12 articles, written especially for The Ontario Intelligencer and Central Press Canadian.

By MORT LINDSEY
Famous A. B. C. Bowling Star

Copyright, 1937,
By Central Press Canadian

In these articles with Jack Dempsey as "pupil", I hope to show the average bowler and the novice how to attain greatest enjoyment from his sport on the alleys.

We can't all be stars. Ten million Canadians and Americans bowl every winter. More than 30,000 representing top scorers from every section of the continent will come to New York in March for the American Bowling congress. Obviously they can't all be winners or even near the top. But they can have fun. After all, that should be the main idea.

Improvement and Fun

The doctors, the bankers and business men who have their own leagues and compete on my alleys in Stamford, Conn., and on thousands of other alleys during the winter months are not trying to become stars. What they want is relaxation and sport in the winter when golf and ice cream are the diversional and tennis courts.

In instructing these people personally, as I hope to instruct you in these articles, I don't try to develop experts. But I do aim to give every student bowler fundamentals groundwork which will enable him to improve steadily with practice and be better than the fellow while doing so. Jack Dempsey, as later articles in the series will show, discovered in a few days that punch are not enough in bowling. His experience is typical.

The main trouble I encounter is that some novices, on their first visit to a bowling alley, have been sinner's luck." without regard for knowledge of the fundamentals.

Jack Dempsey takes lesson No. 1 in bowling from Mort Lindsey, famous A. B. C. star. His instructor is they hurl the ball down the 60-foot drive, knock off a couple of strikes, are disappointed in a string of pins, and straightway are convinced they know something about the game. Soon they have developed faulty habits. Their pride, coupled with the fun of occasional strikes, reaches a certain point and fails to develop further. Then they become disgusted and decide that perhaps bowling isn't so much fun after all.

Others, content to progress more slowly at the beginning, will not be able him to improve steadily with practice and be better than the fellow while doing so. Jack Dempsey, as later articles in the series will show, discovered in a few days that punch are not enough in bowling. His experience is typical.

The main trouble I encounter is that some novices, on their first visit to a bowling alley, have been sinner's luck." without regard for knowledge of the fundamentals.

VAN HORNE CUP WON BY FLIERS

Defeat Prescott 6-4 in Third And Final Game of Series

Coming from behind on two separate occasions and then ramming home the winning counters, Trenton Air Force squad defeated Prescott in the third and deciding game of the Van Horne trophy series at the Prescott rink last night before one of the largest crowds to assemble in the Jock Harty rink in some time. The score was 6-4 and about representing the play, the Fliers putting on a great rally to lift the silverware but Prescott was not disgraced in defeat.

Prescott has been playing hockey on consecutive nights for more than a week and they were a tired outfit, when they trooped off the ice but were the first to congratulate the winners. Charles J. Hicks, president of the loop, which has been a success, with other officers of the league walked onto the ice and presented the handsome trophy to the Fliers and the presentation was greeted with rounds of cheers from the fans.

Fliers, Partnering bagpipe one from close in but Prescott turned on the pressure and tied it. Goodfellow and pave put the Eastern team in the lead and the squads went to the barn for the first period in that order. Lowery-Trentliest rookie ice star for the winners knotted the count at the opening of the second period and the pace again quickened. Christie again put his team in the lead with a neat goal but Lecompte scored the prettiest goal of the night when he took Lowery's pass and went in close on Cook before he let the shot go and drove it past the scorer.

Lalonde, the heavy hitting defenseman who was the winners hero for the first time, when he rushed the length of the ice from behind and Partridge put the game on ice when he split the defence on a play by pave and beat Cook easily. Prescott continued the pressure but the Fliers went into their shell and with a perfect "Ditty Bar" Door defence held the rampaging Prescotts back at bay. The squads are evenly matched with Fliers having just a little more finish and a slight edge in speed. They played all the rules, and took the penalties and luckily their plays were clicking. The lineups:

Trenton—Goal, Gibson; defence, Lalonde, Kelly; centre, Lecompte; wings, Eric McNeely, Virgale. Subs, Back, Partridge, Ernie McNeely, Cowey, Lowery.

Prescott—Goal, Cook; defence, McIntosh, Dexter; centre, Kennedy; wings, Fisher, Bowers. Subs, Farmer, Olsen, Urquhart Prattens.

Referees—Smith and Sherry.

HOCKEY FANS IN FOR HEAVY WEEK

Three Games Will be Played in Arena Next Week

Belleville hockey lovers face one of the heaviest weeks of hockey ever known in the annals of local O.H.A. history next week if the weather-man smiles upon hockey. Starting Monday night the Belleville juniors make their debut before the home fans when they meet the fast Peterboro club in a game that has considerable bearing on the standing of junior O.H.A. group No. 2. At the moment the Belleville "Pirates" and the Peterboro "Colts" are tied for the group leadership, each having decisively defeated the Tweed juniors with each Monday night's game at the arena will result in the leadership going to the winner of the game.

Then on Wednesday night R.C.A.F. "Fliers" will make their initial appearance of the season in the O.H.A. when they meet the Belleville Redmen in a scheduled intermediate tilt to be followed by a second game next Friday night when the battling Tweed juniors invade the Belleville arena with their backs to the wall and facing elimination in possible.

Getting back to Monday night's game, however, the juniors Redmen will face face a mammoth task when they take on Coach Rochefort's 1937 edition of the Peterboro Juniors. The Peks defeated the Tweed kids 11 to 4 in a practice game. The locals have stepped right into Sam Curry's village and added 5 to 5, so on comes the Belleville and Peterboro junior squads are apparently quite evenly matched. Eddie Starr, who catches for the Peterboro G.O.B.L. team, is one of the stars of the past year as a junior, is one of the outstanding threats of the Colts. The boast of a powerful defence in Brady and Connelly. Manager Eddie Thomas intimates he is satisfied with his present team and with a few more additions to his rosters who looked as good in the local red uniforms in Tweed. With that fame, Saturday at stake a sterling game can be assured.

AMBERS GIVEN SHADY DRAW

Enrico Venturi Believed by Many to Have Won Fight

New York, Jan. 9 (AP)—When Leo Ambers' six months of grace are up and he gets ready to defend his lightweight championship, he'll probably have a ready-made challenger to take to fight him from Enrico Venturi.

Enrico Venturi, the Italian flash, was already a more than likely challenger after drawing an unpopular 10-round decision with Ambers in Madison Square Garden yesterday. He had won a decision over the champion in meeting Ambers and remained undefeated after tackling the champ.

A crowd of close to 19,000 fans, who paid $18,383.50 to see the battle greeted the draw decision with a round of boos. Many of the outright Venturi had handed Ambers his third setback during their championship reign. Since he whipped Tony Canzoneri for the crown, Ambers has been beaten by Lou Ambers, Philadelphia lightweight, and brushed by Jimmy McLarnin in two mill-like bouts.

Although Ambers scored the only knockdown of the bout, he dropped Venturi for a one count with a right-hand smash in the seventh. The Associated Press score card credited six rounds to the Italian and three to the titleholder.

Perry Again Defeats Vines

Cleveland, Jan. 9—(AP)—Fred Perry of England defeated the all-time professional, Elwood Vines, Jr., of Los Angeles, last night 15-7, 7-5, 6-4 in their second match of a tour for which Vines is guaranteed $75,000 if champion turned pro.

Vines, tired out by the first set, which went into a terrific deuce battle, Members of the tennis troupe declared, also was suffering from influenza which affected his play when Perry defeated him in their first match in New York's Madison Square Garden Wednesday night.

The match was reduced to two sets out of three instead of the usual three out of five. Vines appeared in good spirits as he took the courts before 3,000 spectators in Cleveland public auditorium.

"Farmer" Burns Noted Wrestler Dies in States

Council Bluffs, Ia., Jan. 8 (AP)—Martin "Farmer" Burns, dean of United States wrestlers, died at his daughter's home near here last night. He would have been 76 years old Feb. 15.

Funeral director Thomas Belford said, "his body was just worn out. It is hardly possible to give the exact cause of death."

The "Farmer", a name he gained when a ranging boy, won several honors in the mat-ted arena, was heavyweight champion from 1895 to 1896. He won the championship by defeating the original Strangler (Ryan) Lewis in Chicago. He lost it to Tom Jenkins.

Burns held the light-heavyweight championship for years, passing the title on to Fred Beel around 1911. He engaged in 6,000 matches, and it was his boast he was beaten only six times, and that he taught 3,000 men to wrestle.

All-Star Team From London May Visit U. S.

London, Jan. 9 (CP) — Hockey leaders in England are reported working on a plan to send an all-star team to the United States on their conditioning tour. The trip would be made in February when National League Hockey in England is suspended while the world tournament is played.

If plans for the trip are worked out the team would meet clubs in the Eastern Amateur League.

The holding in the National League schedule will be the second break during the season. Over the Christmas season the league played the first round of the national "knock-out" tournament for the British Ice Hockey Association trophy.

Most of the Harringay games through their total-goal series as expected but Don Pennington's Brighton Tigers provided an upset when they eliminated Harringay Racers. The Montreal coast team won the first game 8-3 and followed up with a 7-4 triumph on Racers' home ice.

Harringay Greyhounds staged a great comeback to advance into the second round. Beaten 3-1 by the Wembley Monarchs in the first game they came back with a 5-0 victory in the second and won the round 4-3.

The round score was tied 3-3 at the end of the Canadian time in the second game and many English fans were fretting over the extra time. No extra time is played in league games and the match has been an overtime game in England in three years.

Wally Kilrain, of Saskatoon, brother of "Dede" of New York-American fame, was the local hero, past Jackie Nash of Port Arthur, who was Canada's goalie at the Olympic Games last year.

Wembley Lions, Eastcourt Rangers and Wembley Canucks were the other teams which survived the first round, the Lions defeated by the Richmond Hawks in their first game but came back strong with their home ice to win on the round.

INTERMEDIATES DEFEAT DEACONS

Exhibition Tilt Won by Older Players by 27-20 Count

In a fast, aggressive, exhibition basketball game played on the Deacon floor last night, the Belleville "Y" Intermediates defeated the Deacon quintette by the score of 27 to 20. Despite the fact that the tilt was of the exhibition type feelings rose to dizzy heights as the game progressed, while no quarter was asked or given. Referee Bert Forster to curb the rough play which developed.

The Deacon Juniors unleashed an aggressive attack in the first half as basket after basket and lead the aggregation 16 to 10.

The Deacons completely outplayed the kids in the second half, however, as they settled down to conditioning prior to the opening of the O.A.A.A. basketball season. The Deacon intermediates will use the services of three of their regulars, Art Cook, who scored seven with eleven points, while Bowerman and Hamilton, on the score sheet. The Deacons looked weak around the basket when passing to the "Y" boys in the second half and repeatedly missed when "close in" shots.

The weatherman has promised a drop in the temperature over the week end, which will be most acceptable to the hockey sponsors throughout the province. The present mild spell, which brought a certain amount of havoc with the ice at the local arena, has not helped Ghy Belleville Arena, but one cold night will lighten the ice up sufficiently to assure a good sheet for Monday's Peterboro-Belleville junior game. Naturally, Manager Thomas will not risk this important junior game on any less sheet than on Monday night, keeping in mind the fact, that it usually turns cold over each week end. In advance we ask all of the curmals or can be depended upon, we are in for some really cold wea-ther for the next change of the moon. Speaking of moons, it has been many a day since the Belleville and Peterboro has been represented in the same basket ball group. When the Peterboro Colts and the Belleville Pirates skate on the Monday night, if there is any ice to skate on, they will be seven and tied for first place in the group race. The winner will skate off the ice a full game ahead of the loser. That's the picture in a very few words.

President Clarence Clapp of the Belleville baseball Club, announced today the annual meeting of the club would be held on Tuesday night at the "Y". Most every person laments the poor showing of the baseball club last year and as a matter of fact the general fall off of the sensational club in the past three or four seasons. At the conclusion of the 1936 schedule, when Belleville finished in the cellar position of the O.B.B.L. for the first time in baseball history, many uncomplimentary remarks were made and regretfully, many of the fans whereby the status of the game might be raised to a higher level. Not to a position equal to the good old days "B. D." (before depression) but a all very good game to stand on the street corners and criticize the baseball or hockey teams, as is usually the case in Belleville when they lose, but if the fans would turn out to these annual meetings and present some constructive criticism they would be benefiting, while towards the rejuvenation of the game in general.

But no, the knockery clock themselves well and wield the hammer to a far-reaching degree, but they are safe from criticism themselves. Tuesday night's meeting is open and free to all to voice their opinions and elect whosoever they deem best to club executive positions. There have been rumors floating up and down the main steet to the effect that provision is being made for Belleville in 1937. When confronted with these rumors, President Clapp replied that he was quite willing to vacate office, as were his associates. "If you think it is easy comedy operating a losing baseball club in Belleville, as we did last year, you're nuts, but we will step out without leaving any debts behind us, remember that," he flung in our face. In Oshawa and in Peterboro they manufacturing concerns get back of their baseball team one hundred per cent, especially, in Peterboro. Why can't the same attitude hold good in this city. A good baseball team is good medium of advertising for any city and provides amusement for the employers, regardless as to their vocation.

To be perfectly frank the future of baseball in this city is in the balance. If those at all interested would only come out and show their interest, maybe there are others who in the past showed little interest in assisting the promotion of the game locally, will rally to the cause and help in the matter of procuring entertainment for the few imports, that are known to be necessary in order to get the 1937 baseball club to cope with such strong clubs as Oshawa and the Peks, who are at present reconstructing for next summer campaign. Why even in the town of Napanee they are anticipating a banner season in 1937. It's about time we kept up and saw the owl locally, we'd suggest.

While we're in the mood we might just as well add a few more asterisks to the "Overheard" list. "Say others see us" would be a good title for the fabulous radio writeup written by Harry Moore, sports editor and publisher of the Trenton Courier Advocate, Harry says—"Can anyone tell us why a city the size of Belleville cannot have good intermediate hockey team—without having to go and dress the sidewalks and the back concessions, yes and even going into towns like Napanee and Deseronto and Kingston for players. There is something wrong in Belleville that there aren't leagues to develop hockey players who can step right into the senior game, of course, but to a less extent can be said about Trenton."

If the committee in charge of the Y.M.C.A. dance can't see its hold a leg derby in connection with their next fantasy this year, Belleville should go ever with young Belleville, Harold (the Human) McMillan Derby". The idea is to have Junior Hitch "Easter" or "Jig" to his height and holler "Timber" when he's finished. If the derby is staged the finishing line will be in the Arena.

The sympathy of the district sporting fraternity goes to Harry Lowery, but his infant daughter after a short illness yesterday.

For the third time in four years a hockey club from this immediate vicinity may own George Van Horne Trophy, emblematic of the championship of the Kingston and District Senior League. Last evening the R.C.A.F. Fliers from up along open and free to all to view, defeated Prescotte 6 to 4 in the third and final game of the final play-offs at Kingston and won the league title. The Prescots drew first blood in the two game final scoring Col. Wilmot's Service team won the same honors in 1933 and 1934. The "Fliers" will now be able to extend their efforts in the realm of the O.H.A. where they should again hold their colors high.

The O.S.D. at Picton Collegiate junior interscholastic games was postponed last night, owing to continued mild weather.

"KING of HEARTS"

By Edna Robb Webster

Jack instituted a thorough search among the unlikely persons he met, with shuddering fear, even the recent suicides. But nothing led to Lynn.

He appealed again to Doll, but she had no word after their first letter from her cousin, which had followed her return north. And even shallow little Doll read between the lines of Jack's despair about not finding Lynn. She was sorry for him in a stab of fear, why it was he had gone seeking that girl, but she was interested in Lynn — after knowing her for one week as he never had been in her all the years of their association. But Doll was anxious about Lynn's whereabouts, also.

At his father's insistence, Jack went to New York for a week, to the vexation of Mr. Baurer, who was first opportunity.

Finally, a vaguе clue — discovered by Jack, not the detective, through Millie — speeded Jack to Milwaukee. Had the distance justified it, or even other fifty miles, he would have taken a plane, so fraught was Lynn's case with all respect for its characteristic northern speed.

Lynn had no sooner resolved to be more friendly with the Fireside Girls, than they turned upon her with ugly remonstration. The girls as a body resented her first unfriendly overtures and contrived in every way to accompany and entertain her. In the confusion of her new surroundings and the incredible and tinsly inviting luxury, the arrival of new stock for the fashion show, these opportunities for a private talk no matter what went wrong on the floor or in the dressing room with stock rooms, the other models invariably managed that Lynn was at hand.

At first, she was bewildered and hurt by these attentions. Then it appeared to be accidental, but their repetition became suspicious. She was sure that Mrs. Hemes had decided the wrong frock and left her own for Lynn. Then, she remembered that the new girl had made the error, in the dressing room, and left the wrong one for Lynn. But Lynn closed her lips firmly, resolved to say and do nothing; except to make a hasty apology for the error. Then, instead of these particularly bitty days, he only gave her an impatient glance and passed on to the next emergency.

A torn gown was traced to Lynn's clumsy efforts — she whose movements were as rhythmic as the rites of a ritual, and whose clumsiness she did. One day, Odette blamed her tardy appearance on the display floor upon Lynn's dawdling in the dressing room which they shared. It was then that Lynn knew that similar faults were traced erroneously to her other models, and that not as frequently as she was involved.

She spoke about it to Bertha that night.

"Sure," Bertha agreed soberly, "they're trying to get you all in bad with Weims, so he won't decide to keep you on after Christmas. But the rush is over. It's a rotten trick, but," she added with a belligerent note in her own voice, "you can't blame them so much, at that. Just another racket for keeping what they have and need — their living. Most of the girls have no one to take care of them, and some of them have others dependent upon them. Odette has a mother and a kid sister out, and she knows you have it all over her as a model — so it's up to her to queer you with the boss some other way."

Lynn understood. The explanation did not assuage the sting of those unjust slights, but it did justify them to some degree. "It's all a terrible trifle, isn't it?" she said thoughtfully, with a full light feeling in her throat, and wondered what was to be the end of her strength.

"Sure — dog eat dog. There are all kinds of weapons: graft, pull, persuasion, lies deceit and a big personality. Here and there, a combination of them. That's the racket."

It revived Lynn and she would head to, because at the end of two weeks she found herself several dollars richer than she had been on entering, even while he dismissed her, that Weims would afford her means to keep her in his employ, but she understood his position, and actually was grateful for the part he had left so. Had she remained and Odette gone, Lynn was sure that the baby would have haunted her for the rest of her days. But it was a relief to be free of the place much better than Dunning's.

CHAPTER XXXII

Lynn made inquiry at the larger shops in Milwaukee about openings or vacancies, decided to return to Chicago. It was more like home to her than any city, and there was more opportunity for work — and besides, Jack might be there. She was homesick for the place and wanted very much to return there, but would not do so, first. She would take a very cheap room and look for work, first. When she had decided definitely, she would return to Mrs. Hemes. Mrs. Hemes' best room rented at the regular rates, which he needed quite as much as Lynn needed employment, and would until she could afford its pleasant comforts would she claim it again.

So it was that Jack's swift journey to Milwaukee ended at the same closed door to which all of his clues had led him. Just a little too late. Interviewing Mr. Weims and Bertha, they only could tell him that Lynn had quit and would return to Chicago. Lynn had promised to communicate with Bertha, so, without much hope that it would lead to anything definite, Jack left his interviewers with Lynn's address. He came with him at once if she learned where Lynn was staying.

But the next day she had returned to Chicago gave him hope that she had made contact with Mrs. Kime's. He went directly there, again with keen anticipation. But Lynn had not arrived and Mrs. Kime was in tears over her shattered nerves refused to return unless she was wanted and welcome."

Lynn's unexpected presence in the city agitated further effort to locate her, but in vain. No one had seen her. Suzanne and Jed, Millie and all her former acquaintances were dumbfounded at the blank word from her. There was none.

It was obvious to Jack that Lynn was determined to solve her problems alone; but that fact only spurred him on to a more frenzied desire to find her and take care of her. His agitation and concern, coupled with weak sunshine and foggy days in the strange climate, caused him to grow pale and haggard as he never had been in his life. He had been gone from home for more than a month, and had accomplished nothing. That it, nothing which he could call success. Nothing. His sole purpose had been to find Lynn, declare his love for her and take her back to New Orleans to live in the sunshine forever.

His father's letters had suggested it was time he returned to headquarters, but he had ignored their implications and contrived valid excuses for prolonging his stay while he conducted more zealously his search for Lynn.

Then, he had received an imperative summons by wire. His father was desperately ill and could not go to the office. Jack must return to carry on for him. Jack returned to the South, without seeing Lynn — but he resolved that his search was not ended. He had to find her.

Dol was sympathetic, even though she suspected that Jack's desire to find Lynn was prompted by more than friendly interest. She also was alarmed at his appearance. Jack seriously could believe that anyone whom she had known all her life could change so much in one month's time.

"Jack, darlin', you look like a ghost! Whatever have you been doin'?"

"Making shoops in Chicago and New York," he attempted to jest.

"I know better . It's that horrid climate. Well, if that's what it can do to you, you're never goin' there to live, Jack reflected that he would go there to live gladly, if only he might be with Lynn.

"But, Jack, darlin'!" Dol deplored the strange situation of her cousin, and the unfortunate fascination of its gravity, "if she needs money, as you think, why don't she write to you in search of you? Why? We begged her to."

"I know. But Lynn wouldn't do that!"

"Why — I should!" Doll protested. Jack glanced from her happy dark little face which held a motherliness that was new to her cousin, to the beauty and comfort of her surroundings, to the fragrance of a flower folds about its fragile petals for their protection, and did not reply. But he thought with pain that valiant lovely girl who was struggling against odds, and was even appealing to those who profiered her assistance; which to her was charity.

Lynn was lingering over her dinner at the Fireside Cafeteria. She had selected the spot because it was near her fifty cents and was prolonging its enjoyment as much as possible. Her appetite had been diminished herself only light lunches, but she had never have yet been so hungry and her stomach felt squeezed together.

She had gone to the Fireside because she enjoyed its familiar atmosphere. She had dined there many times during the days they had assumed that aspect for her now — and Suzanne had launched them together. Watching the white uniformed girls step and yellow uniforms carrying huge trays, she would consider taking one of their places, even; but no — she'd always have to be bad. She dawdled over the Swiss steak and mashed potatoes, the fruit salad and banquet, and left the empty dishes, reluctantly.

Finally, she passed her check and one of her last remaining dollar bills to the cashier, and left the table, cheerfully. "Well, it's nice to see you again. Been away?"

Lynn was surprised that the girl had noticed or remembered her, although she had been in frequently during previous occasions.

"Yes, only just — a week."

"You work in Chicago?" interrogatively.

"Not that is, I did before I went south. Now, I'm looking for work here in Chicago. Do you know of any vacancies here, do you?" she ventured.

"Any kind?" guardedly.

"Oh, anything. I" she hesitated, and then added, "I'm willing to come down to the kitchen, if necessary."

"Why, I dunno, I think one of the waitresses is leaving yesterday. I don't know if Mr. Bauer has anyone yet. Would you like to ask him?"

"I certainly would!" Hostess at the Fireside. Well, that was much more encouraging than the Blue Chariot. It sounded like a refuge in her thoughts.

The friendly cashier spoke into the telephone, accepting checks and ringing the cash register industriously as she talked, and then waited for Lynn to come to the office." She directed Lynn to the rear of the restaurant.

Mr. Bauer was a small thin man, alert and quick in his movements, but much more than that in personal. His attitude became more attractive when he talked with Lynn. Her extraordinary beauty was decidedly in her favor. It might be superficial, but it was a modern criteria, but it was of the quality which adapted itself to the surroundings. It might be enhanced to striking and suggestive effect, or it might be modified to harmony with the staid and domestic atmosphere which the Fireside represented.

"What is your experience?" Mr. Bauer replied, as if addicted to form.

"I have been a dress model and," she added hastily, fearful of the effect, "I was hostess at a night club in New Orleans, but I didn't care for — the atmosphere."

Which statement appeared to be highly in her interviewer's favor, brightened. "When can you go to work?"

"Oh—anytime at all," eagerly.

CUPID-CUFFED CALIBAN RETURNS TO WORK

"Well, we don't need you tonight. But the seven to three shift, through breakfast and lunch, is open. Would that be agreeable?"

"Oh, yes!" Lynn lowered her eyes to hide their gleam of exultation. "I'll be here in the morning," she promised. "Thank you, Mr. Bauer!"

As she turned to the door, he reminded her crisply, "You haven't asked what we pay."

"Oh—no—that is, I supposed it was about the same as usual."

"I'm dollars," he said.

"Very well. I shall be here in the morning" she repeated. Again, ten dollars or two dollars, with two meals every day — was better than nothing.

She stopped to speak to the obliging cashier and thank her for the tip-off.

Well, I'm glad you got it. Kinda hard to find work these days," she remarked brightly.

"It's terrible," said Lynn, with a tone of anguish, but she left the restaurant more jubilantly than she had entered. How fortunate that she had decided on the extravagance of dining there! Supposing she had taken a glass of milk and a sandwich at a drug store counter, and missed that golden opportunity! She blessed fate for the inspiration.

The work was pleasant and not very difficult. There were few persons who came to the Fireside for breakfast and lunch who desired the attention of the hostess, particularly though she might be. Her duties were more accurately the supervision of the waitresses, and to assure patrons undelayed service. She enjoyed her uniform costume of black crepe with the tailored collar and cuffs, which added a reserved dignity to her position and identified her among the private uniformed girls. It was pleasant also to recognize familiar faces among the patrons, none of whom she knew personally. But they were faces she had encountered on the down-town streets or in that same place when she had lunched there in the days of her employment as a mannequin

CHAPTER XXXIII

After the first week, she began to feel the confidence of security, as if she really belonged somewhere again, and was there to remain. Of course, she hoped that she would not always be a restaurant hostess, but she closed her thoughts to any voluntary change until she felt very sure of herself and any other future. If Mr. Bauer still retained her after a couple of weeks, she would return to Mrs. Hemes, and take the comfort of sane living once more. But she would not venture too soon. She was sure, from recent experiences had developed her caution and intimated her confidence.

Then, one day, Jed walked into the Fireside, glanced about hastily, for a table, and saw Lynn. His quick strides covered the floor between them and he took her hand eagerly.

"Gosh, where've you been? We've trailed you everywhere!" Then he noted her costume. "You working here?" surprised.

"Yes," she replied, feeling warm and happy with his obvious concern. "And I like it much better than the Chariot."

"I don't doubt it. But you shouldn't be doing this," he protested with a frown of annoyance.

"It's much, much better than doing nothing," confidently.

"Oh, sure — but look here, if you really need work badly, I can fix you up. Why didn't you let me know where you were when you left Millie's?" He remembered Jack's anxiety to find her, started to tell her about it; then decided not to, as he looked down at her averted face, so white and lovely against the dark background of her frock.

"I—didn't wish to bother you," she replied quietly. "But I am settled in for lunch, presumably. I'll find you a table," she glanced over the crowded room, chaotic with voices and the clash of china and flatware. "Well, where and when can I see you?" he insisted, following her weaving haste among the tables.

Lynn hesitated. "Here's a place," she indicated, not replying to his question.

"Look here, Miss Bariel, I want to be friends. I've got you in a much better place than this, and I really want to help you."

"I don't. I haven't much experience. There isn't much that I can do," she insisted stupidly.

"You can't have experience as anything until you've tried it. When are you free, here?"

"Three o'clock."

"Well. We'll have dinner together and talk things over this evening. Okay?" insistently.

"All right," she smiled, and gave him her address. It could do her no harm to test him definitely. If he honestly could help her, why shouldn't she let him? Shocked, she liked Jed somewhat quite a lot. She felt a glow of happiness at seeing him again.

The next three hours were the longest Lynn had lived for a very long time.

The shaded lights and quiet beauty of the dining-room were soothing to Lynn's nerves, and the string trio played lilting chamber music, unobtrusively. Waiters glided about noiselessly, and had explained, "I thought this would be a good place to have dinner, so we can talk without shouting at each other. And we shall go to the theatre afterwards, if you feel like it."

Lynn's luminous eyes met his gratefully. "How glad you are! I preferred that kind of evening!"

Lynn's child innocence and the night club hostess deceived me, he told her brusquely.

She smiled her appreciation, glanced about her with a deep contentment. She felt as if she had just awakened from a very bad dream and was back again with reality, perspective and a little dearly but so relieved and grateful that the world really held a friend in Jed, who had been wrong.

Presently, she ventured, "But — what of you? You weren't ever?"

"I'll tell you anything," he grinned encouragement. "What is it?"

"Why did you ask Suzanne to bring you a girl for that evening?" Lynn's question was direct, but not unkind.

He laughed with amusement. "Oh, sure. Suzanne's been trying to put a stunt once in a while, just to see what turns up. Not many chances in Hicksville, you know."

"Is Mr. Hermes a friend of yours?"

"Yeah — frat brother. We've been quite chattering little friends, and I've been sorry for him for a date. By the way — she's not so bad when you get to know her."

"Not even that," Lynn averred loyally. "Suzanne has been among one of the thousands of girls who haven't had much chance—no background, no education, no concrete and enduring, on that excellent foundation."

"Oh, I see. You were trying to do — and it toppled down all over me." Big, an intellectual fool. But there were many times when her thoughts lingered with Jack, deliberately. They were safe and comforting, and she turned to them instinctively for him that it seemed that was where she belonged. That security and happiness, with out Jack?

Lynn started strange to realize that he never even had kissed her, except that quick kiss in token of his farewell, yet the thought of such a caress flowed over her with warm effortlessness. They only had seemed together a few times—not as many times as she had been with Jed, now; but the memory of them filled her with ecstasy. She remembered how few letters he had written, and had spoken close to her ear, whispered to her, and how still his insistent pressure of his arm about her.

But he belonged to Doll! Perhaps she never would see him again. It was not, she knew, in accordance to Jed that his smallest considerations hurt her, guiltily. She was not blind to Jed's interest in Suzanne Townsend. Every small attention he paid to Mrs. Anne Bull could not be blind to Suzanne's jealousy and distrust together, went to the theatre or drove miles in the sweet air. He sent her violets and orchids and Suzanne. She wore them and smiled, while her heart ached; with hoping for Jed and pity for Jed.

Each day, Lynn pondered tensely that she would see Suzanne and tell her that having a wretched time, she confessed, her eyes lifted to Mrs. Kime's across the dining room, and no one to trouble about me."

DAILY SHORT STORY

Pals

Waldo L. Clement

It was all Dad's fault, anyway, so the family said. He had ordered a companion on his hunting and fishing trips and kept saying he was going to get one, but he never got out of bed to do anything about it. Otherwise she might have married some harmless chap in the neighborhood and lived just around the corner.

Billie was a willing pupil. At an early age she contemptuously discarded dolls and took to climbing trees and pursuing the neighbor's cat over the garage roof. Dad helped. Big her with pertinent suggestions. Uncles, aunts, cousins and many relatives united in head shaking and prophesied that she would come to some bad end. Dad grinned and showed her how to wind a bamboo rod and cast a fly against the wind.

When Billie was sixteen Dad took her to his camp on the Arrowhead. There were heated objections by the family. It was Mom who fired the last shot in the pessimistic assertion: "All right, go up there and live with the spiders and bugs. I'll cure you. Ha! Both of you'll be mighty glad to get home inside a week. You'll see."

Billie travelled ten miles from the railroad with a twenty pound sack on her back and never flagged once. She drew in a deep breath and stretched out her arms saying, "Oh, Dad, isn't it wonderful. Let's stay here forever."

At noon she reached the camp well ahead of Dad, who was puffing and secretly wiping sweat from his neck. Dropping the sack she unlimbered her rod and ran to the stream. Within a minute later Dad found her with feet braced and rod bent double, playing a pound trout with her line snarled about a boulder.

For two years they visited the camp whenever they could invent excuses.

At eighteen Billie was as tall as Dad. Her slim, graceful body was straight and strong as a steel rod. Her full-lipped mouth was the color of wine, and her hair glowed with the rich brown of autumn leaves in a sunset pool. Good to look upon was Billie, and men desired her.

They came and went; doctors, lawyers and candle-stick makers. They told her she was beautiful, glorious, divine. They proposed marriage and promised to lay the world at her feet, and none of them could understand how she contrived to say no without damaging their self esteem. Billie was that way.

Dad and Billie were puttering around an open fire in front of the camp, which was the accustomed time and preparing supper at odd moments. The sun was just dropping behind the mountains when a young man came wading down the stream with a rolled blanket on his back and a slender rod in his hand.

Catching sight of Dad and Billie he stopped and waved his hand, and Dad beckoned him over. "Have supper with us" he invited in his offhand friendly way. "We're just going to eat."

Billie smiled and the young man did not hesitate a moment. "With pleasure," he said. Dropping his load on the ground and supplying quarts of water out of his bottle, "May I introduce myself? Name is Roscoe Turner—friends call me Rose." He grinned, "That's occurred to me I was hungry till you mentioned supper. Ravishing now."

They sat down to the rough pine table and Billie poured coffee and dished out a heaping mound of fried trout, shining hot. Rose closed his eyes and sniffed the aroma. "Fried in cornmeal", he murmured reverently. He glanced around at the brawling stream, the red sun dropping over the mountains and the pine woods billowing in the wind. "Worth ten years of any man's life." He added his head and smiled at Billie.

"Only the favored few". Billie quoted, and blushed as his eyes dropped to hers.

Rose ate hungrily. "Engineer", he told them between mouthfuls. "South America next month to build steel bridges for the railroads pushing in from the coastal cities. Dad's chief engineer," he added proudly. "Stays maybe I'll get enough of roughing it down there."

Ross stayed with them a week. Dad insisted on it though the young man needed little urging. They roamed the hills together, and Rose spent nights under the stars and days climbing mountains. Even Dad could find no fault with him.

The day before he left Dad sat on the porch and heard them talking. He heard Rose say, "Billie, it's a wild country; mountains and deep recessed rivers. . . Primitive people—Indians, Spaniards and a few mighty hard on white folks . . . Expect to stay down there . . ."

Silence. Then Billie's voice, eager, thrilling: "Oh, Ross, I'd love it."

The stakes marking the site of the swimming pool above while in the dusk. Dad pulled them up one by one and tossed them into the stream. He glanced around and sighed and rifled his pipe with fingers that trembled a little. "If I were young," he muttered. "If I were young . . . Darned if I wouldn't go with them."

FOXBORO

Foxboro, Jan. 8—Mr. and Mrs. Clare Fields and daughter spent New Year's dinner at Mr. Harry Scouts.

Mr. and Mrs. Horton and the Misses Freida and Doris Horton and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Oswald had New Year's dinner on Friday evening at Miss Ethel Oswell's.

Mr. Richard Yorke and Mrs. A. Shaw had dinner on Friday at Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Carmel.

Miss Allison Vandervoir spent a couple of days with her friend Miss Marion Daniels.

Mr. and Mrs. Murney Reynolds and Mrs. Embury had New Year's dinner at Mr. J. Reynold's, Carmel.

Sunday guests at Mr. J. W. Daniels.

There was no service in the United Church on Sunday evening owing to a special service in Bridge Street, Belleville, with Rev. P. Bryce as speaker. Mrs. Horton assisted with the service.

Miss Vera Wallbridge spent a few days with her friend, Miss Milligan of Melrose.

Mrs. D. Love and Stewart of Belleville returned home after visiting relatives here.

Mrs. W. Hodgen spent Wednesday afternoon with her sister Mrs. D. Montgomery of Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stewart and Jackie had Saturday evening supper at Mr. John Stewart's.

Mr. Ralph Stewart is erecting a new gas station.

The weekly meeting of the Young People's Society was held on Monday evening with the president Mrs. (Rev.) Horton in charge. After the regular worship service, the roll call was answered by each member with a resolution for the New Year, and many and varied were the answers. Some business items were discussed and the Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Spencer, after which a pleasing duet was given by the Misses Freida and Doris Horton, and a reading containing New Year resolutions was given by Miss Verna Sherry. A splendid topic on "Faith and Religion" was given by Miss Helen Davis. "The crosses we fear are heavier than those we bear." After singing a hymn, the meeting was closed with the Mizpah benediction.

The W.M.S. and W.A. held their joint meetings at the Sunday School rooms on Thursday afternoon.

THOMASBURG

Thomasburg.—Rev. H. B. and Mrs. Herrington solemnized the members of the United Church Choir at the Parsonage on New Year's Eve.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Prindle were guests on New Year's Day of Mr. and Mrs. E. Sherry in Belleville.

Mrs. MacRae of Stirling was a guest recently of Mrs. J. R. Bateman.

Master Donald Elliott of Napanee spent a few days last week at Mr. J. R. Bateman's.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Sherry are holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. E. Sherry in Belleville.

Mrs. W. S. Embury has returned home after spending a short time with friends in Tweed.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Houston and children of Belleville were guests on New Year's Day of Mrs. Jas. Way.

The Thomasburg Mission Band held their January meeting on Saturday afternoon in the Sunday School rooms of the United Church.

Miss Marion Fargey who was convener of the meeting gave a very interesting and helpful talk on the topic, "Christian Fellowship." Miss Roberta McBurn gave a piano selection.

The remainder of the evening was spent in games and contests. A lunch was served a dainty lunch. A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Fargey and Miss Marion for their kindness in opening their home for the meeting. "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" was sung. The meeting was closed by all repeating the Mizpah Benediction.

ROSLIN

Roslin.—The regular weekly meeting of the Young People's Union, of the United Church, was held at the home of Miss Marion Fargey on Monday evening, January 4th, with an attendance of twenty-two.

The president, Miss Evelyn Davidson, presided, and the meeting was opened by all joining in singing hymns No. 399 and 474. Mrs. Frank Abbott offered prayer and Miss Mary Davidson read the Bible lesson. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted.

Miss Kathleen Carter favored with a piano selection.

TARZAN AND THE LEOPARD MEN

By Hamlin

"We did as you ordered," Orando told Tarzan, "and the Leopard Clan is no more!" Meanwhile, the white girl was relating to Old Timer the story of her mission to Africa. "Back home, Jerry shot a man to protect the girl he loved. He thought he was a murderer."

"Jerry ran away—to save the girl from notoriety rather than to escape punishment. The man didn't die then, but was killed later in a brawl. The whole thing blew over. I discovered that Jerry had come to Africa. I came to find him. Through you I did," she smiled.

"Soon you will be home," Old Timer nodded sadly. "You are coming with us," said the girl, looking straight into his eyes; "because I love you. You will come!" . . . That afternoon, a canoe freighted with happy humans moved down the broad river toward civilization.

In the distance, smoke rose from the smoldering ruins of the Temple of the Leopard Men—grim evidence that Tarzan, too, had fulfilled his mission. Through his mighty efforts, the evil clan had been destroyed; and peace reigned once more in his jungle homeland.

Beginning SUNDAY "Tarzan's Quest"

Separately—each answer of the ape's danger — Tarzan and his mate, Lady Jane Greystoke, battle for life against a new and seemingly supernatural terror that strikes at the heart of the jungle. . . . Start this new Tarzan story Monday.

The answer is simple; the attic of Smith's house is insulated with Johns-Manville Rock Wool Insulation, so that heat doesn't leak out through the roof.

That also explains why Jones was 25% more fuel than Smith, yet his home is cold and drafty—and why, in summer Smith's home is up to 15 degrees cooler than Jones'.

Let us tell you about Insulation and how easily you can finance it—J-M House Insulation for your own home under the easy terms of the J-M "$1.00/Week-to-Lend" Plan.

Dairying Instructor Expresses Appreciation

Fifty years' service as Ohief Dairying Instructor for Eastern Ontario by Mr. G. O. Fubow who recently retired from that office was recognized this year by members of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association, who have designed a special calendar in his honor. The frontispiece of the new 1937 calendars which have now been issued, features a full size photograph of Mr. Fubow. The former chief has expressed his profound thanks for the honor to all members by letter received today by the secretary of the Association.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Slggar and Crawford by Financial Services.

The decline in the mining list which developed yesterday were rather short-lived and it did not take long for prices to rebound within sight of opening prices. The mid-winter season, combined with the activity and strength recently evident in the industrial list, has served to steal the limelight from our mining stocks of late. However with the approach of the spring season with its increased activity up north, especially as regards prospecting and surface development, should serve to again accentuate interest in the junior issues.

Siscoe is being recommended by conservative commission houses as a stock with interesting speculative possibilities.

The failure of the building industry to keep pace with other lines of business has been one probably of excessive taxation and to public uncertainty as to the future. With a returning confidence the second of these obstacles will be removed and there will be a resumption of building, particularly of dwellings, the construction of which has been out of line with the natural increase in population. A general building revival is of first-class importance from the standpoint of the numerous trades directly concerned, the number of men engaged in those trades, and the welfare of associated industries.

Bank Shares Are In Demand

Over a long period of time it has been noted that the bank shares generally have sold on a three per cent basis. With business conditions improving in Canada steadily, earning power of our Chartered Banks will be increasing. Investors seeking a satisfactory yield have been on the buying side of these issues of late.

A group of employees at a Detroit Chevrolet plant telegraphed President Roosevelt a request that he "use all the influence of your high office" to effect an "early settlement of this strike."

Governor Murphy, acting as peace-maker, conferred with the union leaders last night, and their final session ended at 2:15 a.m.

No Written Agreement

The last time Homer Martin, the president of the U.A.W.A., entered the governor's hotel room he was carrying a paper presumed to be an outline of the union's position on the negotiations Murphy hopes to arrange, but Martin had no signed allegiance to the document.

"I have received no written statement from Martin," Gov. Murphy said upon his return to the governor's chief executive.

"We are still at work. There will be further conferences during the day and over the week-end."

It was learned there were notes in the governor's suite from both the union and the corporation, but their contents were unknown. Gov. Murphy returned yesterday from conference with William S. Knudsen, executive vice-president of General Motors, bearing a paper which he seemingly showed to James P. Dewey, union attorney.

Martin said the union's views will be "clarified" at the conference today.

Minor Disorders

Minor disorders connected with the Labor crisis occurred in two cities last night. Police reported who said he was an employee of a Philips Radio plant in Eindhoven, not a striker, told police he was hit on the head by a brick thrown from an automobile from which an amplifier carried apposite for union support. At Utrecht, 15 bricks were thrown at sound trucks announcing a union meeting. At the plant of General Motors, gearing a paper which he seemingly showed to James P. Dewey, union attorney.

Three clergymen dispatched telegrams to Knudsen and Martin offering their services as mediators. The five at a "national understanding" between the corporation and the union."

The signers were Rabbi Barnett Brickner, chairman of the Social Justice Committee, Central Conference of American Rabbis; Rev. George Myers, Industrial Secretary, Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, and Msgr. John A. Ryan, director of Social Action, National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Premier Hepburn Is Confined to Bed

Toronto, Jan. 9 (CP) — Premier Hepburn was confined to bed in his hotel suite here today with a severe bronchial attack, but his doctor said it was "nothing very serious."

It was said the premier would be advised to remain in his rooms during the next couple of days, was not known whether he would be able to return to his office Monday.

Meanwhile ministerial activity at Queen's Park was at a standstill due to the premier's absence and the usual week-end quiet.

Jan. 18 is Deadline For Motorplates

Toronto, Jan. 9 (CP)—Less than ten days remain for motorists to have obtained their license plates for 1937, J. P. Bickell, Registrar of Motor Vehicles, said today.

Deadline for license plates and drivers' licenses was extended from Jan. 1 to Jan. 18 and there will be no further extension under any circumstance, it was learned.

Mr. Bickell said a rush for new licenses is anticipated next week but to date the demand throughout the province had been small.

PATRIARCH OF THE WHOLE WORLD

One hundred and fifty-seven years is the age of this patriarch Yelnp Sinoun, the oldest man in Soviet Russia, according to the old soldier's birth certificate he has in the face of the earth. His son Ahoua's families are still in good working order. He walks a mile or two each day in the mountains near his native Greek. U.S.S.R., and looks forward to many more years.

FREE, ROOSEVELT REPORTS ON "STATE OF THE NATION"

President Roosevelt is pictured addressing the 75th congress at Washington, D.C., on the "state of the nation." It was a speech the big congressional audience declared "magnificent," the chief executive recommending legislation to continue to effect governments reorganization, agriculture and unemployment relief, and Canadian relations, the objects of the government as well as closer neutrality laws.

Farmers Pessimistic Regarding Weather

A decided note of pessimism was heard in the city markets on the small groups of farmers discussed the heavy rains of the past few days and the weather to date in general. Low-lying lands in the northern part of the county are under water while swamps and meadows are readily filling, it was stated. Prince Edward farmers feel that many of their fields are already inundated while in a few cases water has entered the cellars of some farm residences.

Fields near Allisonville, owned by two seedsmen, still have a number grains are under water and fear was expressed that the crops would be destroyed. Creeks in the northern part of the county are swollen and in some cases are overflowing their banks. The flood menace, it was thought by one group, was remote as lack of heavy frost has prevented water from accumulating in the back areas of the county.

Import Russian Apple Tree Roots To Improve Orchards

Hardy Russian apple tree seedlings upon which any native variety of apple may be grafted may answer the prayer of orchardists of this and other sections, who have sought to avoid periodic loss of trees by unseasonal Canadian winters, according to the opinion of Mr. C. Richardson, Dominion superintendent of the Fruit Department of the Department of Agriculture, and inspector for the Eastern Ontario Division, of the local office.

Importations to Canada of the Russian apple roots, is one of the latest efforts of the Department now operating on this variety. Full details of the progress made during the past year or so were outlined in a paper submitted by D. S. Blair of the Horticultural Division, Ottawa, at the Northumberland and Durham Apple Growers' Association Convention held in Port Hope on Thursday and Friday.

At the meeting a resolution was passed asking that the Dominion Government take test samples of soil of orchards of this and other districts in an effort to find any deficiency which could be remedied. A second resolution passed was that the government determine the best variety of apple tree to be planted in the various sections.

Buy Fertilizer on Guaranteed Analysis

Unsatisfactory fertilizers, to sell, fertilizers of doubtful plant food content or of such mechanical condition as will not feed satisfactorily through a drill, are warned by farmer every year, according to O. S. H. Peart, Chief, Fertilizer Division, Seed Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture. Occasionally, however, inspectors of the Fertilizer Division find such shipments. Usually, it is the canny vendor who most often violates the Fertilizer Act. Manufacturers and exporters who intend to stay in the business do not deliberately hurt their reputations by delivering unsatisfactory goods, and, therefore, they are the most dependable source from which to buy.

Farmers are advised to buy subject always to guaranteed analysis and satisfactory mechanical condition, and they should refuse delivery when the bags are improperly labelled, or not labelled at all, or when the label is lower than that of the fertilizer ordered. Also, when the mechanical condition will not permit of uniform application as indicated by too high moisture content or inadequate screening, the fertilizer should not be accepted.

Any complaint on tainted fertilizer delivered without the official registration number, together with a statement of guaranteed analysis, on the label of the bag is being sold illegally, and as Mr. Peart points out, should be guarded against at all times. The only exception to this is when the fertilizer has been bought under inspection, in which case the buyer waives protection under the Act. Purchasers should remember this when agents offer to sell them unregistered fertilizers by prescription. There is believed to be a wide enough choice of registered fertilizers to give satisfactory results under any soil condition or crop requirement without resorting to prescription buying. The official results of fertilizer analyses for the registration have just been published and may be obtained free on request from the Publicity and Extension Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

DAIRY PRODUCE MOVES QUICKLY ON LOCAL MART

Butter at Two Pounds For 55 Cents And Eggs at 25 to 30 Cts.

FOWL PLENTIFUL

The city market resumed a semblance of its pre-holiday activity this morning as vendors taking advantage of the mild weather offered a fairly good display of fruits, vegetables and dairy produce.

Prices ranged moderately-in the inside market were anything but static with buyers and sellers effecting the retail ones especially in eggs while butter prices remained fairly steady omits the pound to two pounds for fifty-five cents. The latter commodity was plentiful although a threatened rise in the price of cream, which is now having a minimizing effect on future stocks. While the latter quality of vendors offered their produce at the higher price a goodly number were holding their butter stock at the fifty-five cent rate. On the outside market 30 cents a pound butter at low as 26 cents a pound.

Eggs also were plentiful and ranged in price from twenty-five cents for the thirty cents. The majority however sold at twenty-five cents a dozen with several medium being quoted at twenty-five cents and the pullet variety twenty-three cents.

Whipping cream remained at the all winter price of fifteen cents the bottle cents the half-pint and pint respectively.

Fowl in Abundance

Chickens were also in abundance and moved well at prices ranging from scrawny cocks as high as $1.50 each. Turkey sold at fifty cents the five pound pail. Home-dressed fowl also found a ready sale having a wide choice of pastry for the Sunday meal.

Fish-lovers found a wide range of their favorite food today with mackerel selling at fifteen cents the pound; salt whitefish at the same price; fresh whitefish at twenty-five fish at eighteen cents the pound; fresh haddock at twenty cents and flounders also quoted at that price.

Staple winter vegetables formed the predominating feature of the fruit-side mart, with a variety of winter apples also in evidence.

Onions were quoted at $1 the 75-pound bag; carrots and parsnips at 75 cents; turnips at 50 cents and winter cabbage at forty cents each. Celery and parsley were offered at two quarts for ten cents.

Potatoes Higher

A distinctly higher trend was noted in the potato market although there was some variation in the prices asked by different vendors. The average prices were from the ninety-pound bags mostly with seventy-five pound bags moving well at $1.35. Some vendors were offering pound lots at $1.35 while others offered at 35 cents the pound. Selling on the part of this particular commodity was the best seen in a week while due, no doubt, to the cold weather stated, to the threatened sharp rise of price in the immediate future.

Hindquarters of beef were offered at from twenty-two to twenty-four cents. Pork hindquarters were quoted at fourteen cents the pound.

Winter apples were plentiful. Snows were quoted at $2.00 the bushel, McIntosh Reds at $1.90 and $1.75 according to quality, Wealthy at $1.75, Spies at $1.75, Northern Spies at $1.75 for the cultivated variety and the cooking Ben at $1.00, Tolman Sweets at $1.75 and $2.25 according to quality and Delicious at $2.25 the bumper lot.

HOG QUOTATIONS

Toronto, Jan. 9 (CP)—Seven loads of hogs were bought at all reporting markets today, unchanged.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS CLOSE

Toronto, Jan. 9 (CP)—The Toronto industrial share market topped off the week with the heaviest industrial trading in months and the close was up for the day from a price angle. More than 26,000 shares of Canadian Marconi changed hands on a price gain of ¼ to ½ over Friday's close and the year's high price at 6¾.

Trading was active in Beauharnois at a gain of about ¾ to 8¼, a new high, other strong spots in the utility list were Montreal Power, Shawinigan and Union Gas. The investing list had more gains than losses. Nickel and Smelters improved generally.

Massey-Harris pfd. registered a jump to 58, a new high and up about 2 points for the day. Canadian, Dominion Tar, Cement pfd. and Steel of Canada also chalked up gains in the building group.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 9 (CP)—Base metal stocks closed the week with a measure of strength while in the gold group the field was left to the junior and penny stocks and a few of these changed hands in fair volumes and firm to strong prices.

Buying centred on Wright-Hargreaves and that issue advanced in price to 94, a new high record, most of the other base issues, Chromium, Sherritt-Gordon, Aldermac and Noranda also closing firm to strong and Noranda at 74 was down a half-point.

Secondary golds posted a majority of newer records with Pamour the issue down a few cents each included Red Lake Gold Shore, Siscoe, Pamour, Lebel, Bidgood, Parkhill, Arntfield and Lake Cadillac.

Wood-cadillac moved about 7 cents to around $2. In theatre, Famous Players and Paramount-Public had gains of 5 to 10 cents each.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Selected Steels and Specialties continued to push upward in today's stock market, but offerings in other categories were sufficient to put the brakes on the advance.

Efforts to settle the General Motors strike apparently were making little headway and many traders decided to cash in profits that had piled up during the past few sessions. Transfers approximated 1,600,000 shares.

Moderate selling appeared in such fields as Railroads, International Nickel and Canadian Pacific, Simms Walker, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams and Anaconda Wire actually even. Canadian Government bonds were unchanged. Foreign issues were 1-64 of a cent lower at par.

While the major motor stocks showed little better than even during the greater part of the session, Yellow Truck was a star performer with a gain of about 3 points at the best.

Up fractions to 2 were Vanadium, Bethlehem, Gulf States Steel, International Harvester, International Agricultural Corp., Fullman, Inspiration Copper, Kenyon Copper and Standard Oil of N.J.

CLOSE CALL FOR WALLY HAMMOND WHEN ANTIPODEAN FIELDERS TRAP HIM

England won the first two test matches of the current series against Australia without much trouble, but rain washed out the wicket for the third meeting and gave Aussie batsmen a chance to hammer away at the M.C.C. bowling. Prior to start of the International series the English side played a representative New South Wales eleven, and here are the teams in action. Wally Hammond, great Gloucester batsman, playing for England, has a narrow escape in the slips, the cluster of tense fielders under the ball indicating how close Hammond was to elimination. He starred throughout the Test series.

PERRY AND HIS FIRST PRO, RIVAL HAVE FUN

When these star tennis players, bitter rivals in action, meet off the courts they seem to find a jovial mood. The two stars are Fred Perry of England (LEFT)—and Ellsworth Vines, American, are starting a professional tour. Here they indulge in a bit of horse play just before embarking for Philadelphia, where they were honor guests at a luncheon. Perry, world's amateur title holder until he turned pro. last fall, seems to be attempting to "strangle" Vines with his coat belt.

HEADLESS RUGBY PLAYER IN COTTON BOWL?

See anything strange about the player with number 25 on his jersey? He's Capt. Roach, Texas Christian university right end, who figuratively lost his head during an unsuccessful attempt to snare a touch-down toss from that passing man, Slingin' Sam Baugh, on the Marquette goal line in the first quarter of their Cotton Bowl clash which Texas won 16-6. In addition to the camera angle, this illusion of a Horned Frog player, turning turtle, was caused when Roach's head, tilted back in a supreme effort, was hidden from view by his padded shoulders and outstretched arm.

UNCLE SAM'S CUSTOMS WATCHDOGS GATHER RICH HARVEST

Smuggling, which seems to be in the blood of most people from those who make it their livelihood to European travellers who bring back gifts without declaring them — is difficult when one has to pass the United States customs officers. The Enforcement Division of the customs might easily be called "Uncle Sam's Pickpocket Squad," for the division saves the "old gentleman" thousands of dollars annually in revenues he would not receive if the lynx-eyed officers were not on the lookout.

Varied and ingenious are the methods employed by smugglers to beat the government out of duty on dutiable goods. Not only are narcotics and sweepstake tickets brought into the country illegally, but even human beings who do not come by the legal quota route. But running ar the many schemes are few fool the custom officers for long for the officers know people and all their tricks. In the UPPER photograph may be seen a conglomeration of articles seized by the wary officers. There are opium pipes, an opium cooking lamp, the drug itself, hasheesh, part of a ship's bulkhead with holes bored for smuggling sweepstake tickets, a smuggler's vest with secret pockets and a rubber hose with a smuggling compartment. The LOWER LEFT hand picture has one of the officers in the chain locker of an incoming ship. These cramped quarters where the ship's anchor chain is stowed is one of the favorite hiding places for contraband. The LOWER RIGHT photograph shows members of the Enforcement Division watching the docking of a ship from their patrol boat.

CUDE TUCKS PUCK UNDER HIM SO SCHRINER MISSES A GOAL

The mouth of the Canadiens' goal is filled with arms, legs, and waving hockey sticks, as hard-worked Goalie Wilf Cude of Montreal Canadiens' breaks up an attack launched at his sanctuary by the New York Americans during a game at Madison Square Garden. Schriner of the Amerks led this attack, and he and Goalie Cude are snuggled up together on the ice at the net. The visitors from Montreal were too much for the New Yorkers, the game ending with the final score reading: Canadiens 4, Americans 2.

BATTLE ROYAL IN RANGER-AMERICAN N. H. L. TILT

First-class fights have been notably absent from Madison Square Garden of late, but when New York Rangers took on their inter-city rivals, Americans, for a N.H.L. encounter, things took a turn for the better. Here is a first-class hockey scrap with Frank Boucher, Ranger centre (SECOND FROM RIGHT), and Baldy Cotton, No. 8, of Amerks, swapping punches during the second period. Referee Stewart is also seen trying to break up another row. Rangers won the hockey game, 5-1. The fight was called a draw.

HITLER PLEDGES STATUS OF SPANISH MOROCCO

Spanish Morocco Officials Promise to Get Germans Out of N. Africa

Reduction of Expenditures Need, Says Mayor Arnott at Inauguration; Relief Problem One of Most Pressing

Discussion in Open Council Promised by Mayor on Various Issues

VOTERS' EXPRESSION

Busy Year Ahead for City Council Chief Magistrate Tells Aldermen

With all the quiet dignity accorded the occasion, Mayor Richard D. Arnott was officially invested with the chain and authority of office in the council chamber this morning before an audience of citizens which filled the hall.

Present among those who attended were Hiram R. D. Corby, wife of the newly-elected Chief Magistrate, and Mrs. Richard Arnott, mother of the mayor, a number of whom were present at the calling of the chamber. Mrs. William Harrey, wife of Alderman William Harvey, was also in attendance.

The investiture was dignified in its simplicity. Upon the election of Alderman Jerome Bateman, seconded by Alderman Thos. Chaling, Mayor Arnott was accommodated with the chair by Alderman Baldwin and Kennedy, whose reservation of the Mayor's chair was made.

Divine blessing upon the newly-elected Mayor and Council was then invoked by Rev. Dr. James Semple who then called the three prayers. In closely measured tones, Dr. Semple asked the blessing which is common of occasion, the Mayor and audience stood with bowed heads.

Mayor's Address

In his address to council and citizens which it furnished in full in another column in this issue, Mayor Arnott thanked all those who had made his election possible. He pledged himself to immediate consideration of the wishes of taxpayers as voiced on the question of reduction of the Council expenses, reduction of the Board of Education, city management and public utilities commissions.

"A heavy responsibility has been placed on me now and consequently," he said, "that I can ask is that I be given the sympathy and co-operation of every member of this council during the coming year," added the Mayor.

"During the coming year I hope we may formulate a common policy for the conduct of business," continued the Mayor, pointing out that during his administration actions of committee of council would be upon an effort to work for the common good of the taxpayer and place before council.

He promise also that nothing but necessary expenditures will be made during the coming year," declared Mayor Arnott.

The new Chief Magistrate voiced the feeling of the year that the year would be a happy and prosperous one for all.

Mayor is Thanked

A vote of thanks was then moved by Alderman Burton Jennings, and seconded by Alderman Harvey Ellis, among the excellent address by the mayor.

At this point a short recess of five minutes was asked by the Mayor in order that the new members of council could meet the large number of taxpayers and citizens who were present.

Committee of the Whole

Resuming business after the recess the council went in to the committee of the whole for the consideration of accounts and other business with Alderman Ellis in the chair, a letter was read from Harry Hill re-greeting his inability to be present at the inaugural meeting of the council but wishing the council every success in the coming year. Alderman Ellis also announced that a letter of appreciation for his services he sent the ex-mayor and also express sympathy for Mrs. Harry Hill in her recent accident with the hope that she would soon be restored to complete recovery. The motion passed unanimously.

Relief Costs

The Relief costs for December were $4,000 and amounted to $3,000 for groceries, milk, bread and meat while the rest cost $1,149.10, clothing $430.84 and shelter which included rent, light and heat, $418.26. Medical services and supplies based on 1,006 persons at 25 cents each amounted to $251.50 making a total of $6,231.67. The account was passed without discussion.

Mayor's Address at Inaugural

The full text of Mayor R. D. Arnott's inaugural address delivered today is as follows:—

I wish to first thank you my fellow citizens for the honour you have conferred upon me in electing me as your Mayor for the year 1937. The responsibilities of the office are undoubtedly heavy, and I appeal to each and everyone of you for your support sympathy, good-will and co-operation for myself and the members of the newly elected Council, and I have every confidence, that we shall receive it.

Your Council this year has a great deal of work to perform as you know. The majority have spoken at the polls in favour of employing a City Manager, establishing a Utilities Commission and reducing the number of the Council and the Board of Education, and I feel that we as your elected representatives should take immediate steps to carry out the will of the majority.

Relief

One of our gravest problems during the six years has been that of Relief. As I have heretofore stated, I feel that any Council should always bear in mind that they represent every citizen and every class of citizen in the City and should endeavour to formulate a policy that will work for the common good. I am sure that this year's Council will do the best of their ability serve in that way.

I feel strongly however that the property owner who is paying taxes here and who has relief recipients as tenant, should receive his rent.

Limitation of Expenditures

For that same property owner and taxpayer I say that all but the most necessary expenditures should be eliminated not only for this year but in future years until the taxes borne by the citizen can be materially reduced and the time to commence cutting down expenditures is at the beginning of the year.

In approximately five years' time I am advised that a number of our debentures will be retired and will relieve to a certain extent the tax payer's burden. Until that time comes it is endeavour to conduct the affairs of the City as economically as practicable in order that the tax payer will receive the benefit when the debentures are retired.

Sinking Fund

I would suggest to Council that our Sinking Fund surplus be examined closely by qualified opinion and if it is found that we have a greater surplus than is reasonably required for Sinking Fund purposes, then I feel that we should take steps through the proper legal channels to obtain for the tax payer, who is responsible for that surplus being there, the benefit of it.

I am of the opinion the prosperity of our City is founded primarily on our home, and I feel that it is only by making the purchase of a home attractive to the citizens and thereby have him invest his money here that conditions will improve.

Discussion in Open Council

Many of our citizens feel that there is not sufficient discussion of the City's business in open Council. I propose to continue the Thursday night committee meetings for the purpose of dealing with the City's routine business such as checking the accounts of the various Departments, but I feel that in view of the attitude of the public in that there should be no committee meeting held on the regular council nights, but that Council should proceed immediately into the Council Chamber and transact the City's business there with dignity and despatch.

I hope and trust that I will receive from the members of the Council loyal support and loyalty during the coming year, and that we shall all work together for the advantage of the Municipality which we are proud to represent.

In conclusion may I on behalf of 1937 Council extend to every citizen its sincere appreciation my sincere wishes for a successful and prosperous New Year.

Ultra-Violet Floodlight Promises to Cure Influenza

Flu Virus And Other Disease Bacteria Killed

FLOODLIGHTS USED

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)
Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 11 (AP).—A new ultra-violet floodlight which promises to curb flu, the common colds of winter indoors and more dangerous air-borne diseases, as well as today for "field" tests on human beings.

The light was developed at the Harvard School of Public Health by William E. and M. W. Wells. It kills the virus and other disease bacteria.

It was ready today to be switched on for the first time, setting up a "barrier" of invisible light across the middle of a hospital corridor. The barrier divides the infectious diseases in one wing of the hospital from those in the other. Nurses can walk through it, but infections can't pass through.

The floodlights have been installed also in surgical operating rooms

James Hopplestone Drowns But Miss Violet Cox Rescued

(By the Canadian Press)

Icy waters, train and auto accidents took their toll in Ontario during the week-end as eight violent deaths were recorded. Seven persons were drowned, when treacherous ice plunged them into the water; one person was killed in a fall under a train; two lost their lives in auto mishaps, two more found death and one body was taken from a canal where it had been for several days.

Ann Duffus, 15-year-old Grenford girl, died in the Otonabee River waters yesterday after falling through the ice while her father, J. S. Duffus, clung, unconscious, to her body and her mother collapsed amid the shrieks of horror. Two young companions, Edith Mercer, 13, and Christine Bryan, 14, were rescued from the frigid river by rescuers, one of whom suffered ill effects from the cold.

BRITISH PUT BAN ON VOLUNTEERING

Enlistment Act Bears Against Volunteer And Recruiting Agent

By George Hamilton
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
London, Jan. 11 (CP) Under a British ban on volunteering for Spain went into force today. Foreign Enlistment (Spanish Service) Act of 1870 will be applied both against the volunteer and against the recruiting agent.

But there will be no retroactive application to British volunteers already fighting in Spain. A band of independent labor party malcontents left London only yesterday to fight with the Spanish government.

Irish Free State

The Irish Free State is the only Dominion from which volunteers in groups have gone to Spain. The position of the Irish Free State is now under study by the Dominions. It is probable all the Dominions will be invited to consider the advisability of taking parallel action.

British representatives in Spanish Morocco have received instructions to watch and report fully and report fully on the alleged German penetration there. The government has already received independent reports of German activity in Spanish Morocco, but these reports do not confine themselves to the landing of German soldiers and the construction of fortifications and airdromes. The French and British governments, however, are apparently in step on the whole situation.

By the Franco-Spanish convention of Oct. 2, 1904, Spain undertakes not to alienate or cede in any form, even temporarily, the whole or any part of her territories in Spanish Morocco. Furthermore, Spain undertakes that if obliged to take military action to implement the convention, "in no case shall the occupance of a foreign power be invoked."

COURT RULES ON SCHOOL TAX

No New Class of S. S. Supporters Created Says Appeal Court

Toronto, Jan. 11 (CP)—Ontario Government's legislation providing for a division of taxes paid by separate corporations for school purposes was not intended to create a new class of Separate School supporters but to give existing Separate School supporters a new right, the Court of Appeal held in a unanimous decision rendered today.

The judgment was in connection of findings to the court headed by Chief Justice Sir Wm. Howell in Ap-

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Detroit, Jan. 11 (CP)—"Before I retire from Alaska, I plan to see an ice-ridden country, with bears and Eskimos all over the place," Rev. Bernard R. Hubbard, zoologist and explorer, said in a sermon here today. The Jesuit priest-scientist has just returned from the Mount St. Elias region of Alaska and the Yukon.

"Coldest temperature in Alaska during my years was 75 below zero," Father Hubbard declared, as the "Glacier Priest," said. "There are bears, yes, but they won't bother you—if you don't bother them. They're not very hospitable, however, though, and you can't leave your camp unguarded."

Hampton Bay, Wis., Jan. 11 (CP)—Sheriff Michael Wheelock's alleged Fox Chief, has effectively quashed the bootlegging rumor that he'll relish because of age.

Chief Fox, 74 year old, has his cross to a blazing house and carried out a raid on a meeting and her two children to safety down a ladder.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 11 (CP) — For Billy Mackrell, born to a prison mother.

Mackrell, on parole, received permission to re-enter the Nebraska State Penitentiary to which he was committed in 1934 for cattle stealing.

Mackrell entered his job as prison barber, glad by his own admission to be in Nebraska's sub-zero cold wave.

Granite Falls, Minn., Jan. 11— (CP)—Birth of a child on a train between Granite Falls and Pejhastadt was of more than passing interest.

The new arrival at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ole Lee, Granite Falls, the population count to an even 100, arrived on the train en route to every Pejhastadt family.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 11 (CP)—Oysters "grown" in trees in the Florida Everglades will be delivered to Miami Ernest F. Hoe, head of the Everglades Oyster Company. The red mangrove trees growing in the brackish waters of Florida's the park region are partly under water when the tide is in. At low tide the oysters attached to the roots and lower branches of the trees are exposed. It is said the tide is out they are left high and dry, but are not endangered several feet from the water.

Montreal, Jan. 11 (CP)— Ten Montreal night club and cabaret owners will be brought into court this week on charges of disregarding the 1:30 a.m. curfew law, police said last night.

Chief Constable Ald. Peel said in persuading dancing and vaudeville to their places after the deadline despite repeated warnings. Proprietors assert they were losing too much trade and do not believe nights during the week should be closed as on Saturday nights, when patronage is at its peak.

Thamesford, Ont., Jan. 11 (CP) —John H. Holder of Thamesford is proud of Columbia Peach Blow, a cow. The young Holstein cow is following in the footsteps of her dam, Columbia Peach, she also owned, and her 1936 record of performance has showed she produced 17,227 pounds of milk and 650 pounds of butter fat, flier mother, grandmother and great granddaughter averaged 26,- 000 pounds of milk and 900 of butter yearly.

SPINAL INJURIES SUFFERED

Chatham, Ont., Jan. 11.—(CP)— Dr. James W. Bullerford, M.P., Kent, in St. Joseph's hospital here since September 4, with spinal injuries suffered in a motor accident, left last night by special coach attached to the train to enter Toronto Western Hospital. Mrs. Bullerford will follow him Tuesday.

Plain Cow Recognized

Chicago, Jan. 11 (AP)—A group of staid Chicago business men will sit down at a banquet at a loop hotel tomorrow night and see what they can do to get some social recognition for the plain cow that does a good job of giving milk.

Too long, they say they feel, have the cows that answer to the name of "Bossy," been denied places in the social register of cowdom, while other bovines like "Princess Eugenie III" have found their names in newspapers with high class names and aristocratic family connections.

They hold that all a cow has to do to get on their lists is to give a lot of milk.

SPAIN'S INTEGRITY PLEDGED BY BOTH FRANCE, GERMANY

"No Foreign Troop Contingents in Morocco" Says Commissioner

ALGERIANS MARCH

Arrival of Warships on Coast of Spanish Morocco Reported

Berlin, Jan. 11 (CP-Havas) —A pledge to respect the present status of Spanish Morocco was given to France today by Chancellor Hitler.

After a speech before the diplomatic corps at his delayed New Year's reception, Hitler assured French Ambassador Andre Francois-Poncet that Germany does not intend ever to violate the integrity of Spanish possessions.

In turn, the French ambassador assured Hitler that France also is firmly determined to respect the territorial integrity of the Spanish Morocco as provided by existing agreements.

Tardi Premier Mado

Paris, Jan. 11 (AP)—Authoritative French sources said today they considered that Spanish Moroccan officials had given "formal promises" to get Germans out of the Northern African zone and to prevent "new" German troops from landing.

Reading between the lines of Tuesday's speech by Premier Blum, General soldiers were in Spanish Morocco or were "expected," these sources said the Spanish Moroccan insurgent commander could hardly admit the presence of Germans in violation of treaties.

It is now up to General Francisco Franco as to whether he will carry out the "promises" and live up to promise to end a reported German incursion in Morocco, French officials said. They added they were willing to give him "a few days" to act.

Denial of Contingents

French official Havas released a statement by J. Reigbeder Allenza, the Spanish Moroccan High Commissioner, that "there are no irregular formations and no contingents of foreign troops in Spanish Morocco and that none were expected."

Algerian troops were reported on the march to join the Moroccan garrison already swollen from 40,000 to 100,000 men—a colored army of regulars, Foreign Legionaires and Moors.

German Press, Radio Charge French Staff With Annexation Plan

Sensational Story Told of French Seeking War in Morocco

SEIZURE OF POWER

Berlin, Jan. 11 (C.P.-Havas) The German press and radio in a sensational campaign today charged the French general staff was preparing to "annex" Spanish Morocco and set up a "New Gibraltar" at Ceuta.

The official German news agency based three dispatches early today, dated from Paris, in which it was also claimed "Communist potentates" had seized power in southern France and gained control of the Spanish frontier zone.

At the same time the Voelkischer Beobachter, official Nazi organ, headlined in main story today: "Paris Wants War in Morocco!"

The dispatches were broadcast from every German radio station at midnight. They escalated in vehemence the Nazi attacks against Soviety Russia at the recent Communist congress.

The agency credited French flight at scenes for its "information" regarding the alleged general staff plans and the "Communist Republic of the South of France."

The first dispatch read:

"Paris is receiving alarming information from Perpignan, power passed from the hands of the authorities and gone practically to the Communist Committees. Governmental control is no longer exercised.

"Such analogous situation is being prepared all over France. Thanks to this Soviet system, deliveries to Red Spain have unceasingly increased, and it has permitted number of soldiers to go to Spain.

"Among French Rightists utmost concern is felt.

'A New Gibraltar'

Another dispatch was headed: "The leap of the panther Leon Blum towards Morocco. The fraudulent manoeuvre of Paris unmasked! A new Gibraltar!" It read as follows:

"The attitude of the Paris newspapers in face of the reserve behind the information received from Perpignan, according to which the French general staff has elaborated plans for the occupation of Spanish Morocco and has already taken preparatory measures necessary for this occupation.

"France wants in this way to protect by the Spanish civil war and establish herself directly on the Straits of Gibraltar. Now that France's auxiliaries are unmasked and clearly it can be asked with curiosity what England will do.

"It cannot be a matter of indifference to Great-Britain that France should establish herself on the shores across Gibraltar and organize a second Gibraltar there.

should be clear that from that moment the Mediterranean would be closed at any time to Britain, which would be a vassal dependent on the good graces of France."

City and District News

POLICE RECORDS SHOW DECREASE

Police records for the year 1936 in Belleville show a decrease in the number of arrests made in this city than during the corresponding year of 1935. There were seventy-four less cases of burglaries and robberies reported in Belleville in 1936, than in 1935." local police officials announced today after reviewing the last year's statistics and comparing them with the previous year. Double-less the decrease in break-ins can be attributed to the success of the Belleville police force, which has proved successful and is known by alleged law-breakers. The Belleville police force, numbering at 980 kilocycles, has the call letters of CJH.

FIRE IN CHESTERFIELD STOPPED IN TIME

Awakened at an early hour this morning by clouds of smoke which filled the house, residents of 52 Alexander Street, south, an alarm to the Fire Department. The blaze was located in the garage in a chesterfield and is thought to have been started by a cigarette which was dropped on the floor the night previous. Fireman rushed the furniture outside and extinguished the blaze. No damage was done apart from the chesterfield which was covered by insurance.

HIGHWAY TRAFFIC HEAVY OVER WEEKEND

Increased motor traffic was quite in evidence in Belleville and the surrounding district, doubtless owing to the exceptional weather conditions that were in evidence during the week-end. "Not since the balmy days of last autumn have I seen such a heavy traffic on the highways," stated Motorcycle Policeman Jack Harvey today as he reported "all clear" on local and adjacent highways. "Motor traffic was equal to that of any September day and even pedestrians were out to enjoy the splendid weather in evidence", added P. C. Evans, who added that no accidents inside the city limits over the week-end.

PORT IS MOVED TO WESTERN POST

N. P. North, a former superintendent of the Belleville division of the Canadian National Railways, who has been serving as superintendent of transportation at Windsor, was recently transferred to the superintendent's post at Prince Albert.

STREET SWEEPER STARTS SEASON EARLY

"We can't even get time to overhaul the Machine," commented Mr. Fred Ray, pilot of the city's street sweeper this morning, recalling that not since the sweeper was purchased by city council ten years ago has it worked during the month of January.

While the season may be a disappointing one for the local resident who drained the contract for snow removal on local roads and streets the sweeper will be on a brief period earlier in the season, has continued its rounds daily.

SKATING ON BAY NOW TOO DANGEROUS

While ice of the Bay of Quinte and local harbor daily grows thicker and more porous under the action of warmer weather and a brighter sun, skating has become one of the more dangerous sports, warn members of the local South End Yachting and Athletic Club under whose jurisdiction most of the ponds has been carried out. Large blow holes in various sections of the ice, and open patches where water have made ice boating and all skating in particular almost a forbidden activity.

MAPLE TREE SHOWS SIGNS OF BUDDING

With reports from northern part of the county to the effect that the buttonwood, willow and other harbingers of spring have been observed, it is clear that spring cannot be so far behind. And not to be outdone, Nature, by adding her bit to the gaiety of spring generally, the maple tree is now growing in the gardener's Park near the fire station is in bud. Little buds of green buds cover the tree and if the present mild weather continues it will be interesting to note whether the buds will continue their premature growth or not.

SPRING-LIKE DAY BOILS OUT RADIATORS

One of the most noticeable sights on the streets this morning was the unusual number of steaming radiators on cars that had been left unprotected under the influence of a summary spit and sizzle. Numerous local garages and service stations were replaced by log costs in many instances while a number of shops and stores along the city's business row swung into action early in the day and almost sold-enjoyment.

Farmer Given Ten Days Term For Intoxication

Displaying a black eye, of considerable coloring, Harry Harrington, Madoc Township farmer, appeared before Magistrate R. J. Butler, K.C., in today's local police court, charged with intoxication and a second charge of resisting a police officer while in the pursuit of his duties. Harrington pleaded guilty to both charges, was sentenced to ten days in jail on the common jail on the liquor count, while sentence was reserved in the second instance.

Harrington readily pleaded guilty to being drunk in Madoc on Saturday, but when charged with resisting a police officer his accused man merely mumbled—"I guess I'll have to plead guilty all right."

"You don't have to plead guilty unless you are guilty," sternly replied His Worship. "How do you plead?"

"Guilty, sir," was the reply.

Chief Danford of Madoc, gave evidence and told of placing Harrington under arrest on a charge of intoxication. "He was raising considerable disturbance in a restaurant and using loud and profane language," he said. "I had quite a scuffle with him and had to resolve assistance to get the handcuffs on him," explained the officer. "Did he bite you?" interrupted Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan, K.C.

"No sir, he got the worst of it," replied the officer as Harrington's eye seen to glance rather glaringly towards the witness and at the same time fully opened the other "shiner".

"This man has a record, I believe. He has been in trouble on numerous occasions so I believe you should have an extra heavy fine or criminal records before passing sentence in this matter of resisting an officer", prompted Mr. Donnan. Accepting the advice of Crown Attorney, His Worship sentenced the accused to ten days in jail on the charge of resisting an officer count. Harrington was held in custody.

POLICE COURT

Clarence Gallinger, former Cornwall and Toronto St. Patrick's professional goalkeeper and frequent companion, George Vincent, were arrested in Belleville on Saturday on charges of theft.

Gallinger and Vincent appeared before a Justice of the Peace and were remanded in custody until Friday next. The pair were charged with the theft of a leather coat and one pair of leather leggings from in front of Goodman's department store. "They were panhandling also," stated Chief Kind today.

Emile LaPleur, Ottawa truck driver, appeared in today's local police court charged with reckless driving. "This man has no counsel. He has been trying to procure the services of a lawyer and asked me to take his case, but I'm a personal friend of the other party concerned in the matter," interrupted Charles A. Payne. "I will enlarge the matter for one week in order to give the accused an opportunity to obtain the services of a lawyer," advised Magistrate R. J. Butler, K.C.

The charge against LaPleur was laid by traffic Officer Sam Irvine following a recent motor accident that happened near Milltown when the truck driven by LaPleur, allegedly crowded a motor car, driven in the opposite direction by W. H. Roe, Napanee, into the ditch where the latter vehicle turned over on Belmon River. The automobile was a total wreck.

Two local citizens appeared on charges of intoxication, their cases being enlarged for one week at the request of the accused persons.

PATRICK PALMER GIVEN THREE YEARS

Admits Accusing His Father-in-Law of Indictable Offence

Patrick Palmer, 22 year old Frankford laborer, was sentenced to serve three years in the Portsmouth Penitentiary after pleading guilty to a charge of accusing his father-in-law of an indictable offence with intent to extort money.

Palmer immediately elected summary trial and pleaded guilty after the charge was read, "Do you understand full what you are doing when you plead guilty to a crime such as this? You had better consult a lawyer on your behalf as the maximum sentence for such a crime is 14 years," explained Magistrate Butler, Crown Attorney R. C. Donna, K.C. noticing that Mr. S. Howell, local barrister, was in the court, suggested Mr. Howell consult the accused, which the latter consented to. A ten minute recess was immediately called by the court for accused to receive the counsel of his solicitor.

Upon the resumption of the proceedings, Palmer again pleaded guilty to charges. "What led you me his wife related a tale to him regarding her actions during his absence, which prompted you to do this thing. The amount was small, only $35.00," stated Mr. Howell.

"According to his own signed statement given to the police that is not so. This duress act was done as the accused prompted his wife to write the note in question. This is a grave charge. I can think of nothing to say on his behalf. He will go to any length to obtain money and I suggest a substantial sentence," added Mr. Donnan.

"Have you anything to say on your behalf before the sentence of the court is passed?" asked His Worship. "I got into bad company after father-in-law away from me house," replied Palmer.

Three years in the Portsmouth Penitentiary," was the only added statement then passed by His Worship.

Inspector T. D. Ruston, of the Children's Aid Society, immediately made application to have the children of the family made wards of the association. "We tried to have these kiddies made wards two weeks ago, but now there is sufficient evidence to substantiate our efforts," Mr. Ruston stated in court.

Young Father Finds Way To Independence

Two weeks ago in the depths of despair. A young wife and husband and two pretty children huddled on the lone cot which constituted the bed for the entire family. The age old struggle of providing food for the little home. Days of trudging the streets in a vain effort to obtain work. Then the case drew the attention of Chief Lyrch and his firefighters. Assistance not forthcoming and the little family helped.

The sympathy and interest taken in his case by the people of Belleville gave the young man a new lease of life. Work was unobtainable. But he refused to acknowledge defeat. A week ago he said he had then he would make a job for himself. He obtained two vending machines and started out to look for business. Business was too hard to do or too "dirty" to do.

This morning as he trudged along Front Street with a well filled bag of washing, a smile was on his face. Business was good on dad less money although in small quantities is beginning to come into the tiny coffers of the little home. His wife was erect and his shoulders were thrown back. A new light was in his eyes and his probable thoughts were that this isn't such a bad world after all.

BUY NOW AND MAKE WORK

Ex-Mayor Walmsley is 83 Years Old

Hale and hearty and still "in harness" Mr. J. R. Walmsley, hon.2 of the firm of J. R. Walmsley and Co., local wholesale grocers, celebrated his eighty-third birthday yesterday in the quiet of his home, 11 Isabel Street.

Ex-Mayor Walmsley has seen eighty-three winters' suns he still maintains an active partin operations with his business. Every day sees him seated at his desk in his office looking after affairs of the firm with the same keen mental agility which has characterized him down through the years. An ex-mayor of Belleville and associated with many civic and fraternal organizations, Mr. Walmsley enjoys a warm popularity with a large circle of friends in the city and vicinity.

He has been the Superintendent of the Tabernacle United Sunday School in Belleville for many years and is still active in that capacity, Appreciation of his years of service in that field was shown and congratulations on the attainment of his eighty-third birthday were voiced at the Sunday School yesterday, by the Rev. L. B. Naylor, pastor, and by Colonel Mr. Walmsley with a book of devotional and helpful thoughts and members of the school. He was the recipient of many congratulations and wishes and many years of active life in the seclusion of his home yesterday.

Golf on Jan. 11

Kingston and Brockville golfers who boasted of a round of golf on the first day of January, New Year's Day, not only equalled in Belleville's golf record when a local trio played a round of golf at the Belleville Golf Club yesterday and reported the course in splendid shape. Miss Marjorie Cook, Billie Cook and Albert Faulkner were the three who played a round of golf yesterday.

The course was very good, the weather was ideal and it was fortunate enough to make four holes in one, by one player and a hole-in-one in this country, on Jan. 10th of 1937, are equal to any of those boasted of in the sunny south." Mr. Faulkner stated this morning.

No New Year's Day card was to come in 1937, Messrs. G. B. Smith, R. L. Brown, Wm. Colby and W. D. Waldorf, all members of the Belleville Golf Club, enjoyed a fine round of golf on the course and at that time reported splendid golfing conditions.

Primary Election For C. of C. Directors

In the primary election for Directors of the local Chamber of Commerce which was extended last week, 31 members were nominated for office. Those receiving the highest number of votes in that number, listed in alphabetical order, are as follows: Jaggard, Bone, H. E. Fairfield, R. J. E. Graham, E. V. Hisey, J. H. Lepell, W. H. Morton, L. B. Riggs and W. C. Springer.

The election committee was composed of R. J. S. Dewar, B. O. Elliot, E. H. Martin.

The final ballots have at once been sent out to all members and the final election will be concluded on January 15th.

POLICE BLOTTER

Frenzieis causing a disturbance in the vicinity of the C.P.R. freight yards on Saturday night, were charged from that city over the week. Residents of that area complained that four men were generally disturbing the peace and making a general nuisance of themselves. The arrival of two constables resulted in the rounding up of four transients, who were fined $10 each and costs or sentenced to seven days in jail.

Provincial police reported the theft of a 1931 model Buick roadster from that city over the week-end. The vehicle was painted tan and bore 1937 Ontario license plates number 282-4.

Twenty-three transients were housed at the police station over the weekend. 13 Saturday night and 10 on the Sabbath. No accidents or serious crime were reported by local police, however.

ENLARGES SLOT MACHINE CHARGE

Magistrate Refers Pointedly to Operation of Machines in City

"It has come to my attention that slot machines are being used for gambling purposes. Just how many of these machines are in operation in Belleville?" asked Mr. Magistrate R. J. Butler, K.C., during today's local police court sitting before Mike Marmaka, local pool room proprietor, who pleaded guilty to permitting gambling through the operation of a slot machine. The machine was confiscated.

"There are quite a few machines licenced in the city, but they are not licenced for gambling. The machines are not licenced as gambling devices, but some are played as such," replied His Worship. "I do not like to be stated it was practically impossible to have city policemen apprehend operators of gambling devices using slot machines through this medium.

"I did not say that, can you know of!" queried His Worship, referring to the Marmaka charge.

"There is discrimination in these cases, whenever we procure evidence of gambling we seize the machine and present the case in court," replied Chief Lyrch.

"Why does the city licence such machines when it is common knowledge that gambling is being carried on with them. Whenever I go into a place of business where they are operated the players seem to be gambling," asked Magistrate. Is it true, that a syndicate owns and controls these machines?" continued His Worship. "I am intimated that steps would be made to discontinue the practice of gambling gambling by the medium of slot machines in Belleville when before the last questions asked by His Worship, however.

Mike Marmaka, Belleville, pleaded guilty to a charge of permitting gambling in his pool room. Charles A. Payne, K.C., appeared on behalf of the accused and stated his client was ready to pay the fine, but asked that the slot machine, which had been confiscated by the police, be held in custody until a later date. This machine does not belong to the accused and I would suggest the machine be held over for its confiscation be held in abeyance", suggested Mr. Payne.

"I'll enlarge the entire matter for one week for judgment," replied His Worship, who ordered the slot machine to be held by the police. The case was thrown out of the court by reprehension of four teen aged boys by P.C. Arnott coming out of Marmaka pool room where they later admitted receiving cash awards from slugs received after playing at the slot machine game.

Authoritative statistics from the city Treasurer's office today revealed that 18 slot machines and five pin tables were licenced in Belleville in 1936. The license fee for slot and pin machines were recently raised to $200.00 per machine by by city council. For the coming year of 1937, it was added, these machines are not licenced for gambling purposes, however.

MAY STRENGTHEN ENLISTMENT ACT

This Would Follow Action Taken by United Kingdom

Ottawa, Jan. 11 (CP)—The Cabinet will meet today for the second last scheduled council before parliament opens Thursday and reports were current a new and unsuspected piece of legislation arising from the Spanish civil war might be placed before members.

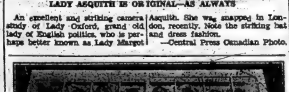
The government, it was said might find it desirable to strengthen the Foreign Enlistment Act of 1871, barring Canadians from taking part in conflicts against nations friendly to this country.

Following the United Kingdom's action, announced last night, of invoking the Foreign Enlistment Act to prevent its nationals fighting for either side in the Spanish conflict, it was learned Canada's Settlement Act applies only to international warfare and does not cover civil war.

Legal observers here said it would be necessary to amend the act or pass new legislation before Canadians could be barred by law from participation in the Spanish conflict.

However, a check of well-informed persons in military circles disclosed none knew of any Canadian going to Spain.

The government last night announced its choice of John Wallace Dell. Farris, former attorney-general and Labor Minister of British Columbia, to fill the Senate seat left vacant last summer by the death of Hon. Charles McDonald who had held it less than a year.



Mae West who has three "Tall Dark and Handsome's", in her latest uproarious comedy "Go West Young Man" featuring Randolph Scott, bowing to the Hollywood row with Kirma, on the stage.

LADY ASQUITH IS OR IGINAL—AS ALWAYS

An excellent and striking camera study of Lady Oxford, grand old lady of English politics, who is perhaps better known as Lady Margot Asquith. She was stepping in London, recently. Note the striking hat and dress fashion.

Domestic Peace Built on Respect For Law, Courts

London, Ont., Jan. 11 (CP)—The foundation of domestic peace and security in Canada is built on respect for the law and for the courts which administer it, is the opinion of Hon. Newton Rowell, Chief Justice of Ontario.

Speaking at a dinner in his honor here Saturday night Chief Justice Rowell said it was the duty of those who loved liberty and believed in enforcement of the law as opposed to arbitrary power to support Canadian institutions and maintain respect for the courts.

The dinner for the Chief Justice completed the one-day annual mid-winter meeting of the Ontario branch of the Canadian Bar Association. About 400 jurists and lawyers from all parts of the province with numerous other prominent figures in the judicial and political life of Canada paid tribute to Mr. Rowell.

Comparing the "rule of law" as it was developed in the British legal system with that prevailing in Europe and some communities in the United States, Mr. Rowell said it was easy to appreciate "the blessings" enjoyed by Canadians.

"Another important protection of the individual against arbitrary action lies in the independence of the judges," he continued. "It is this independence of the judges in the exercise of their judicial functions which makes possible and the safeguarding of the life, liberty and property of our citizens against arbitrary and unlawful action."

Retirement From Board

Next in order were a number of by-laws, which were passed through the various stages. Mayor Arnott announced the retirement of Col. W. N. Ponton and George F. Ostrom from the Board of Education, these gentlemen instructing the council to appoint them this coming year as pressure of business would not allow them to give the attention that such a responsible position demands. His Worship expressed the appreciation of the council and the citizens for the long service of Col. Ponton to the city, he serving thirty years on the Board of Education and George F. Ostrom, who has served ten years. A motion was passed for the clerk to forward a letter of appreciation, moved by Alderman Harvey and seconded by Alderman Barlow, both of whom sat with the retiring members for some years on the Educational Board.

Borrowing By-law Passed

In order to meet current expenditures until such time as taxes are collected the council passed a by-law authorizing the Mayor and Treasurer to borrow $450,716.00 from the Bank of Montreal. This is a by-law that is always passed at the inaugural meeting of the city council. The council also adopted the assessment made in 1936 as the assessment upon which the taxes will be levied in 1937. Another by-law was also passed providing for the collection of taxes and fixing the penalties for non-payment of same also setting up machinery for the prepayment of taxes in the coming year. A by-law was passed extending the time for the return of the collector's rolls. The committee for the sale of city property of Aldermen Chalkley, Clapp and Barlow, which functioned last year will again have charge of this department until their successors are appointed. The council then adjourned.

FLIERS PLAN GOLD HUNT IN ARCTIC CHICK

Two flying gold prospectors who plan to take-off for a midwinter flight inside the Arctic circle are Charles Gropstia and Corey C. Brayton, Jr., of Oakland, Calif., aviators. The two men will stake their lives against the odds of finding riches amid the snowy wastes of the north. Their aeroplane will be the Bellanca Skyrocket, formerly owned by Wallace Beery, motion picture star. Gropstia will fly the aeroplane north from Oakland to Prince George, with stopping as a pilot. At Prince George, Brayton will return to Oakland, while the pilot will be joined by another aviator who will continue the remaining distance. Their northern base will be about 120 miles east of Dawson City, and they hope to locate veins of ore through study of earth faults.

YOUNG ESKIMO TURNS ARTIST

Twok is "Epic" in His Sense of Perception" Says Artist

New York, Jan. 11 (CP)—Far up in the frigid reaches of Alaska, Twok, a 25 year old Eskimo, has turned from the usual native occupations of fishing and hunting to become the only professional artist in the Arctic Circle, Rockwell Kent, illustrator and explorer, spade known in New York today.

Samples of the untutored Eskimo's work have been sent to Kent who journeyed extensively in Greenland, Labrador and Alaska. He described Twok as "unique, not only in that he is probably the only professional artist of the Far North, but in that his limited lack of range of experience and physical handicaps have made him a ranking artist, epic in his sense of perception and remarkable in his straightforwardness."

The physical handicaps to which Kent referred, provide the background for what the illustrator calls "an original, artistic talent, arising spontaneously, without suggestion or nurture, to meet the emotional and practical needs of an individual."

The Arctic artist's christianized Alaskan name is George Aden Agnupik. But to those in the tiny settlement of Shishmaref in the interior of Northwestern Alaska he is Twok.

Kent "discovered" Twok when he visited Noorvik, a village about 200 miles north of Nome on the Kobuk River and about 50 miles north of the Arctic Circle.

Twok confessed he was self taught and that he had begun drawing in his earliest childhood. In his early years he suffered an accident that left him crippled, and, with his widowed mother and a 13 year old brother to support, he turned to painting and drawing for a living.

He perfected a process of using reindeer and sealskin parchment for his canvases. Before long his drawings of everyday Eskimo activities attracted wide attention among the natives and in the end he acquired a patron in Mrs. Oliver Weaver, wife of a Nome utilities executive, who aided him by the circulation and sale of his works.

Kent said Twok's works will be in the New York showings of the American Artists Group, Inc.

GIRL TAKING A BATH INTRIGUES AUDIENCE

New York, Jan. 11 (CP)— One of the spotlighted scenes in the Broadway showbosh today is one in which Betty Lawford, daughter of Ernest, nonchalantly takes a bath in full view of the her audience. It occurs in the musical play "The Women."

Long before the opening in Philadelphia it was know the script called for an actress to take a bath on the line. Broadway refused to believe the scene would remain in the comedy beyond the opening night, and, truth to tell, though the conservative Quaker City ladies goers were properly stunned to see a fair daughter-of Venus soap herself before their very eyes, they enjoyed the experience along with the censor, who found nothing scandalous about this stage adventure.

Elsie New York took the same pretty much in stride, though obviously enjoying the novelty.

Many suspected scenic trickery. Others suggested the beauteous Miss Lawford was climbing for the bath. Both were wrong, for the actress actually makes full use of the tub. However, instead of being immersed in water she lies in a sea of soap bubbles, pumped into the tub by an electric blower through a tube. Thus, down front or in the balcony, the audience sees the shoulders, head, arms and one dainty, waving limb—shop with a great mass of bubbles.

Proprietorman Frank Hughes, responsible for the contraption, is certain the electric pump will not break down. What would happen if it did, and the supply of bubbles be cut off, he said "would be too frightful to contemplate."

FATHER COLLAPSES

Robert King, who rescued one of the girls, became delirious at his home from the effects of the chill water and William "Bill" Mann, former Ontario Hockey Association president, was placed under medical care. Mr. Duffus, manager of the Mc-Lagan Furniture Company, of Strafford, plunged into the water after his daughter, clung to her even as she sank and was dragged to the surface by rescuers, the girl's body still in his grasp.

Father Unconscious

Mr. Duffus, unconscious when brought ashore, recovered at his home where his wife was in a nervous state after witnessing her daughter's death. The Sayers girl told her parents they had made the trip on the ice "just for fun"—a fact that brought fall a down pour of blame through the ice, fighting up to their necks in the cold water in a vain attempt to save Ann Duffus.

A skating party ended in tragedy at Barrie when Richard James Heppistone, 22 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Heppleistone of Barrie, plunged through Kempenfelt Bay's thin ice. His body was found in 25 feet of water by Barrie fire department members and Coroner Dr. W. G. Little decided an inquest unnecessary.

The youth was skating about 400 yards from shore with Miss Violet Cox, 19, of Barrie, as scores of revellers skimmed over the ice nearby. A hockey stick handled expertly by daring Fred C. Skinner, 25, saved Miss Cox from death. Skinner thrust the stick into her hands as she struggled in the water and despite cracking ice dragged her to safety, suffering from shock but otherwise unhurt.

Young Heppistone and the drowned youth worked himself into exhaustion trying to push her out of the water where they had fallen when the ice gave way beneath them.

Youth Shoots Self

William Reid Slesser's body was found in a barn on Farm Lot 10, Hamilton township, Bruce County, a bullet-wound in the head and a rifle nearby. Coroner Dr. Robert Slesser, said the 17-year-old Kincardine high school pupil had been carrying about going to school and had apparently left the house immediately after. The body of the boy was found by a younger brother, it inquest was learned.

The body of Thomas McGagne, 27, prominent Stratford sportsman, was found in a bush near his home city yesterday, a shotgun wound in the head and a rifle nearby. Dr. J. H. Smith and Coroner Dr. M. J. Fraser ordered an inquest conducted.

Searchers found the body of William Steed, 56, of Campbell's Bay, Que., on the Ship Canal at Merrilton. He had been missing since last October. The inquest will be held. Steed, a partial cripple, left a widow.

Hamilton recorded two violent deaths. Leonard Wilson, 19, died in hospital Saturday night, a few hours after he had suffered the fracture of the skull when he fell beneath the wheels of a passenger train. Mrs. Ann Harris, 60, was struck by the rods with Bruce Haydon, 21, Hamilton. Returning from a visit at Ancaster, Mrs. Harris crossed the tracks, the youths jumped from the train to the platform. Gibbard missed his footing and slipped under the grinding wheels.

Mrs. Charles Hibbard, 47, Hamilton, was killed in that city when struck by a motor car driven by Ernest Harris, driver, swerved his machine but the side of the truck struck the woman, matron at the juvenile detention home, causing instant death through a fractured skull.

PLAINFIELD

Plainfield—At the annual meeting of Plainfield Presbyterian Sunday School, Mr. Charles Treverton was appointed Superintendent. James Goodman, Secretary and Treasurer and Mrs. Clarence Goodman Organist.

The congregational meeting for the Mount Pleasant congregation was held at the home of the Misses Moult on Wednesday evening. The treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of $17.00 after all accounts had been paid for the year 1936, this being an improvement over the previous year Mr. Russel Glass was appointed steward in the place of Mr. C. Elliott who is this year attending Normal School in Peterboro Mr. F. Treverton was re-elected steward and Mr. Albert Gibson was re-elected member of the session. The caretaking of the church was given to Arthur Boldrick while Mr. Frank Treverton took the job of supplying the wood. Mr. Albert Gibson was charged with the task of having some repairs done to one of the church doors.

At the annual oyster supper of the Plainfield Women's Institute held in the Orange Hall on Thursday evening in an address given by Mr. Joseph Wilson, Agricultural Representative for Hastings, emphasis was given to the fact that cankrank in large numbers suffer from lack of certain ingredients such as iodine, iron and minerals in the food they eat, which is caused by the same lack existing in the soil where the food stuffs are grown and is becoming more common as the country grows older. It was also influenced by the drought on dry seasons and excessive moisture on wet seasons. When animals are found chewing bones and leather, this is due to a lack of mineral in their regular diet, Mr. Wilson stated. He quoted incidents in Tyendinaga, at Read and Thomasburg, in Sidney township and north of Stirling where tests had been made which varified certain conclusions reached in this regard by soil specialists.

Mr. Wilson exhibited some potatoes of cold and unusual shape which he said it was stated were caused by lack of certain minerals in the soil where they were grown.

Mr. and Mrs. George Collins spent a few days recently visiting friends in Bellville.

Robert A. Hall spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Norman Hall in Bellville.

Mr. Cyril Latta is the guest of friends here.

Mrs. James G. Latta has returned home after visiting with friends at Campbellford.

The Quarterly official Board held their January meeting in the church on Tuesday evening. Reports were given by Zion, Mount Pleasant and Plainfield congregations.

HIGHEST SALARIES IN MOVIES

One paper puts it "Business men and movie stars got the highest salaries paid in this country (the U.S.) in 1935". Perhaps it would be truer to say "Movie stars and business men got the highest salaries."

For the movie folk rank high. W. R. Hearst, publisher, with $500,000 and Mae West, screen writer and performer with $480,833 head the list. Then come two steel and automotive executives and fifth stands Marlene Dietrich, actress $368,000. Then a film executive and a motor executive, then Bing Crosby, radio and screen star $318,907 and Gary Cooper $311,000, and a business executive.

Among the great film star salaries are Charles Chaplin $260,000; Will Rogers $258,000; Charles M. Schwab executive $203,332; Paul Muni $150,000; Kay Francis $115,167; Jack Oakie $101,625; Joe Penner, $100,000; Carole Lombard $166,083; Charles Ruggles $106,275; Gladys Swarthout, $101,833; Fred Astaire, $127,875; Katherine Hepburn $121,572; Harold Lloyd $125,000; Warner Baxter, $108,000; John Boles $117,416; Ronald Coleman $108,916; Claudette Colbert, $100,000.

In this glorious company of not only fame but wealth it is not at all to be wondered at that there is charm or attraction which round the earth. The glamor of the screen is like the sun on a pile of gold coins. Fortunately there is remuneration also for a few stage figures like Katharine Cornell, one of the outstanding of actresses of this age.

Business executives are being driven a close race by the entrancing figures of the screen. That the screen folk are more attractive than the business executives is to be expected. They have charm, they are apt vehicles for the telling of a story in drama form.

No one can say that this generation does not like its pleasures when it pours such a treasury of wealth into the pockets of those who delight them in the theatres. Pleasure and entertainment no doubt are running business a hard race for the leadership of the interest of mankind. But science is helping these pleasures and entertainment with its inventions while it is assisting business.

Study of these high salaries means more than a study of salaries of business heads who are not well-known to the public. Everyone has a knowledge of Mae West or Marlene Dietrich or Great Garbo, Katharine Hepburn, the Herbert Marshalls and others and so even while the people almost gasp with wonder at the salaries, they take pleasure in reading what their favorite film star earns because they know so much of their lives and manners at least as actors if not as individuals.

Most people never get into the treasury class. They can just read and wonder.

DICTATORIAL CAPRICE

How placid this world would be without dictators dragging it about, first into Ethiopia, then into Spain, and now into Morocco! Montreal Star on Saturday carried a story "Mary and Her Lamb", the lamb being "dictatorial caprice" and Mary being Europe. Under the picture of the rampant lamb tugging Mary into the field of international troubles are the lines:

"Mary had a large-sized lamb,
Its fleece was not like snow;
And everywhere that that lamb went,
Mary was forced to go."

Bluff, followed by notes and notes and notes! How long is this bluffing on the part of the German leaders to go, is the question asked by democratic nations which are weary of Europe being dragged about by "dictatorial" whim.

Leon Trotzky, arriving in Mexico, said on Saturday the chances it seemed to him were seventy per cent for war, but he has lived in a turbent atmosphere and may naturally be expected to expect war anywhere. France has the feeling that war is not inevitable, according to reports, which also indicate that a showdown to the bluffing of the Germans—if such it be—is near as Britain goes to clamp down on volunteers and with France proposes a semi-international blockade and as France gets ready to point out to Germany and Spain what the Spanish-French treaty of 1912 had to say about Spanish Morocco, where imperial Germany back three years before the World War almost embroiled Europe.

I have seldom seen much ostentation and much learning met together. The sun, rising and setting, makes long shadows; and mid-day when he is highest, none at all.—Bishop Hall.

Learning is wealth to the poor, an honor to the rich, an aid to the young, and comfort to the aged.—Anon.

"LEE'S OLD HEN" has achieved fame, or had fame thrust upon it, because this old hen persists in laying eggs when it should have been pensioned off long ago, or steamed out of life via the pot-pie route. Farmer Lee Edwin lives at Walnut Ridge, Arkansas, and he has a black Spanish hen, 18 years of age and blind, but still laying eggs with regularity and precision and every evidence of good workmanship. Ultimate age expectancy of hens is given as fourteen years, if they escape the pot that long but "Lee's Old Hen" goes right on laying eggs and making history.

"MR. DEEDS GOES TO TOWN" was voted the best picture of 1936 by eighteen critics from thirteen metropolitan newspapers. The decision was unanimous. It may be mentioned that the picture was not based on sex in the modern manner, harking back, rather, to the Laura Jean Libby days of "Beatrice the Beautiful Cloak Model," where ignoble motives are exposed and righteousness and virtue emerge triumphant from the shadow of prisons and lunatic asylums and too much money.

M'AKEE, IN TORONTO GLOBE MAIL, does not think much of "Gone With the Wind" which has passed the million copy mark in sales; nor of "Anthony Adverse" which has reached one and a half millions. However he puts "Anthony Adverse" ahead of "Gone With the Wind" in reader interest. The success of both these tremendous tomes was amazing. To have to spend so much time reading one story seemed a bit thick but of the two Margaret Mitchell's story of the Old South "befo' de Wah" during the war and after the war seemed to us to carry more interest for the general reading public of the United States and Canada. We sensed that the South would welcome "Gone With The Wind" but the cordial reception in the North by "Those Damned Yankees" was a surprise. Shows that the wounds of the bitter civil war of the sixties has at least healed in the North where they were never very deep. The Old South, however, never forgets and seldom forgives.

High Ranking Admirals Of British Navy Called To Port of Gibraltar

Lieut. Charles Bonham-Carter, Governor of Malta Present

ENLISTMENT BANNED

Britain Hopes to Plug Flow of Volunteers To Spain

London, Jan. 11 (AP)—Four high ranking admirals of the Royal Navy have been called to Gibraltar, it was learned today, in advance of the spring manoeuvres of the home and Mediterranean fleets around the Spanish and Moroccan danger zones.

Adding to the significance of the conference was the reported presence of Lieut.-General Sir Charles Bonham-Carter, governor of Malta, Britain's great Mediterranean naval base.

While London coupled the meeting of the admirals with the return to London of Prime Minister Baldwin to meet his cabinet, Great Britain again made the last in a desperate attempt to keep Spain's civil war within the peninsula.

Bans Enlistment

Britain placed an absolute ban on enlistment of her citizens on either side and dispatched a new note to the five principal powers involved, asking them to do likewise.

The British note, sent to its ambassadors at Berlin, Rome, Moscow, Paris and Lisbon, sought to plug the stream of volunteers to Spain without waiting for the slow-moving efforts of the non-intervention committee.

In effect, Britain demanded that interested powers stop intervention at once, if they are sincere in their professed desire to do so.

Officials were optimistic there should be no flat turndowns, but it was regarded as unlikely Chancellor Hitler would be favorably inclined to her new gesture. He set out definite conditions for his participation in any non-intervention scheme in answering a previous demand.

Rome was expected to act in close harmony with Berlin, but here the complicated picture took a new turn when the important political review 11 Mario emphasized Italy was not favorably inclined to having Germany established as a power in the Mediterranean through Moroccan influence.

France in Agreement

France, government sources said, already had agreed to the ban on volunteers and was devoting her attention to the reported influx of Germans into Morocco.

Atlantic and Mediterranean fleets were steaming in the troubled waters near Gibraltar.

Authorities held secret the measure of co-operation promised France but the conference of admirals was regarded as bearing on the situation. Present at the meeting were Admiral Sir Dudley Pound, commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean fleet; Vice-Admiral Geoffrey Blake, his second in command; Rear Admiral Charles Kennedy-Purvis, commander of the British naval forces in Spanish waters; and rear Admiral James Pipon, administrative superintendent of Gibraltar.

Under their command and that of Admiral Sir Roger Backhouse, commander-in-chief of the home fleet, Britain has at least 70 of her men-of-war in the vicinity of Gibraltar and in the complete Fred French fleets of more than 70 ships will form one of the greatest naval concentrations since the Great War.

Premier Confined With Bronchitis

Toronto, Jan. 11 (CP)—Premier Mitchell Hepburn, confined to bed with bronchitis, will not be able to return to his Queen's Park office for two or three days yet, it was stated today.

Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Ontario Health Minister, is attending the Premier, in his hotel suite here.

LONDON PUBLISHER DIES

London, Jan. 11 (CP Cable)—William Furlong, publisher of the Sunday Graphic, died at work yesterday, aged 61.

He came from Manchester to become publisher of the Daily Sketch in 1911, taking over the Graphic in 1915. For many years he published both newspapers.

SEEK BOMB VICTIMS IN MOROCCO WHERE FRANCE FEARS FASCISM

While friends and members of the family stand by, rescue workers search the ruins of a house at Tetuan, Morocco, demolished by a Fascist bomb, for victims. This was the first bomb to explode in Morocco, while the loyalists were still in possession of the Spanish colony. Reconnaissance flights over the town, which was outside the loyal can colonies, have revealed increasing activity of a Fascist-Germanized colony in Morocco, perhaps governing from Berlin, that would menace her Atlantic coast. France has shown increasing nervousness over possibility of a Fascist-dominated colony in Morocco, perhaps governing from Berlin, that would menace her Atlantic coast, and Spain's, if ever hostilities broke out between Germany and France.

How about the ice drop this winter? Isn't it about time someone told us that it is going to be chilling?

Mr. B. A. Holgate left last evening for Edmonton where he will remain for several weeks.

There was a tremendous crowd at the rink to see the hockey game match between Belleville and Picton. The boys had a good deal at stake in the match, for if they lost it was a cinch in all probability, the tall timbers for theirs. So they went upon the ice prepared to do all in the game of their lives and they did just that as the score at the finish was 7 to 1. However, the score does not by any means tell much the merits of the two teams; the visitors, though at times they played rough, did not play marked in a way most aggravating to their trainer, "Doc" Gilbert, as other times played pretty hockey. Belleville would have beaten them in any event, but there would not have been such a big-handled score had the Pea Canners had a little more of the luck. "Doc" Gilbert was time-keeper for Picton and Herb Fish for Belleville. "Doc" had a stop watch and Herb Fish had an ordinary watch. When time was up according to "Doc" the score was 7 to 0, but Herb Fish said there were yet four minutes to play. They called the referee, "Chaucer" Elliott, who decided to split the difference and play two minutes. In the time the Pea Canners scored their only goal. The following composed the teams:—Belleville—Boland, Pepper, Connolly, Allen, Burke, McGraw and Spangenberg. Picton — Croft, Thorne, Scarborough, Bezzo, Williamson, Walsh and Reid.

Mr. Fred Gillies has returned to the city from the British Columbia mining country.

Mr. John Parker Thomas and Mr. A. D. Lazier have formed a partnership to carry on a general law practice and insurance business.

Mr. Henry Jones Lott of Munsden, formerly of Ameliasburgh, is visiting friends in the city and district after several years' absence.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Bannockburn Gold Mine, owing to the satisfactory progress which has been made, the directors increased the price of the shares to stand 30 cents per share.

Sousa Simpkins and his "troopers" arrived in town today. Their street parade at noon attracted a large crowd at the corner of Bridge and Front Streets in front of the hooder band played several selections in a creditable manner. The make-up of the musicians could only find their counter part in a rural hoe down or country husking. They should draw a big house this evening.

Babson Predicts Big Gains For Aviation during 1937

Noted Statistician Says Aviation Will Register New Peaks in All Branches
By ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Park, Mass., Jan. 11.—Early each January I try to select for my own satisfaction one particular industry which I believe has especially encouraging year ahead. My nominated building. Up until a few days ago I was prepared to write for it specific forecast. In spite of recent unfavorable accident publicity, aviation fans have been released which have abilited my preference to aviation.

Aviation

In a recent review, while summarizing the 1937 outlook for transportation securities, I said: "Railroads may be a feature marketwise, but airline issues offer better long-pull possibilities." My preference in addition on railroads for the last four years has been that the coming one of prosperity may be the last opportunity to get rid of rail stocks. They have a long damage factor and some may show sharp advances in the next few years. Eventually, however, a big portion of present railroad mileage must be scrapped. Labour, power and equipment replacement will alone what cream is left after all charges and taxes the high-paying and preferable traffic. That is why I favour aviation in the transportation field.

There are four basic reasons: (1) transportation between cities is much short; (2) express, and (3) manufacturing—have enjoyed tremendous growth, particularly in the last two or three years. They are recently registering new peaks in volume of business. Figures released recently show that not even the coming of stormy weather and unfavorable publicity has been able to halt the month-to-month gains in passenger miles flown by the transportation field.

There are four basic reasons: (1) transportation between cities is much faster

Recurrence of Pain
Experienced by Pontiff

Vatican City, Jan. 11 (AP)—Pope Pius is suffering from recurrence of pain in the right side, where varicose veins, similar to those in his partly injured left leg, have developed, Vatican sources reported today.

The Holy Father passed several restless hours last night, prelates declared, when sedatives administered to relieve the pain were ineffective.

Dr. Milani, the Pontiff's physician, was summoned and remained at the Pope's bedside for several hours before his patient's pain was eased.

Friends Honor Roy Snider

On Friday evening last, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Snider, Front Road Thurlow, about forty friends gathered to bid farewell to Roy Snider who leaves on Monday for Toronto. The evening was spent in cards and dancing, the latter being supplied by music of the local boys.

During the course of the evening the following address was read by James Maldmond and a brown leather club bag was presented by Miss Claudia de Schiel of the Sunday School and neighborhood.

Dear Roy:

It is with feelings of regret and admiration that we, your neighbours and Sunday School friends have gathered here tonight. We regret your decision to take up new studies in Toronto and admire you for it as we do and the community.

We shall greatly miss you in our Sunday School, church and social activities. You have been a most willing and helpful worker and are ready to help in every possible way.

As you enter upon this new work, our wish is that you may find it pleasurable and profitable; that you may find new and worthy friends and that you will continue to be the splendid example of an industrious and good-living young man you have thus far been.

Although we hope you will not be away from us long, we could not let you leave us without telling you how we feel. We now ask you to accept this gift as a slight token of our admiration and appreciation of you.

May it sometimes bring to mind your friends and neighbours of Front Road, whose best wishes for your success will follow you wherever you may be.

(Signed) Roy A. Clarke
Mrs. Gordon D. Cressitt.

HEAVY DEATH TOLL IN S. CALIFORNIA

Orchardists Relax After Effort to Save Citrus Crop

Los Angeles, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Snow-marooned scores were brought food by plane and automobile today from the worst winter storm toll in the West counted at 19 or more in Southern California's $100,000,000 citrus crop were cheered by forecasts of warmer temperatures.

The death list included seven in the Sierras, four in Arizona, three in Utah, and five in Texas.

Blizzard-like snow and sleet-lighting orchardist relaxed after three consecutive nights of fighting and the promised loosen from sub-freezing weather, unofficially estimated at 15 per cent of the orange crop and even more of the lemons.

In the southern San Joaquin Valley, far to the north, blizzards left hidden damage which caused a heavy loss in lambs. Sheep raiser said the storm, striking during the lambing season, claimed probably 20 per cent of their young stock.

Ash Thursday, Mrs. Ida Hall, San Diego mountain, Pala Settlement, 39, was found frozen to death.

Elsewhere in Southern California Mountain and desert parties brought supplies to scores marooned by drifts and blizzards. Flying Tigers, pilots of men dropped foodstuffs for 35 men at an isolated mountain cabin and four families in the Greenhorn Range also received food from the air.

Nine Lost in Mine

A second flash on Sunday failed to locate nine persons at a mine in the gold district of Nipissing north of Lake Vega, Nevada.

A ground party reached the mountain-top mine that Camp Northeast of Kingman, Ariz., and found Hamilton's dynamite-shaken food.

Two deaths from carbon monoxide poisoning by gas heaters were reported as chilled Los Angles residents sought relief. Many homeless sons were rescued by inhalator squads. Two were fatally burned when their clothing was set afire by open grates.

In Imperial Valley, rich producers of winter vegetables, a temperature of 21 degrees Fahrenheit was cold records for the 23-year history of the weather bureau.

Northern California reported two more deaths on Sunday. In Arizona where two persons previously were found frozen to death, search over hope were abandoned for two lost Indian girls.

Vast areas of Texas continued in the grip of an ice storm which left dozen towns without electrical power temporarily and caused damage to communication and power lines estimated unofficially in excess of $1,000,000.

Billy Labelle Buried

Trenton, Jan. 11 (special)—Billy Labelle 13 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Labelle, Glen Miller, was killed shortly after being crushed by a truck in a driveway on the farm of the boy's father. The boy was buried in Mount Evergreen cemetery yesterday following services in Faith Mission, Rev. Earl Whitmore officiated and a host of number of playmates and citizens attended with the family. Pall bearers of the deceased boy's Sunday school class acted as pall bearers and included, Wilfred Jeffery, Douglas Buck, James Blight, Cecil Mulder. The boy was born in Trenton. He attended Dufferin street public school and was a member of Faith Mission Sunday school. He was a favorite among his pals and enjoyed sports of all kinds. Mourning his loss are: his parents, three sisters, Evelyn, Mary and Jessie one brother, Norman. Others surviving are a grandfather, Hiram Labelle, Escamilo, Rose Hall, and a grandmother, Mrs. Matilda Labelle of Trenton.

Preliminary Inquest

After viewing the remains where Billy Labelle, 13, was crushed to death, and hearing the sad story in a few minutes later a coroner's jury consisting of Mr. Walter B. Crowe on Saturday released the body for burial. The accident occurred in a driveway at the rear of W. Gardner's home on Friday night about nine o'clock. Eyewitness said the right hand wheel of a truck operated by Mrs. Mary Thompson and owned by Frank Taverna ran over the boy's right hand and when he grabbed the wheel it dragged him beneath the moving vehicle. Police said a group of boys were playing in the driveway at the time prior to the mishap. The truck came in from the east and turned sharply into the driveway, when the reflection from the headlights blinded one of the boys on the southeast side of the lane and he ran directly across the truck's path. Constable Galinforth, Arthur Hydock, Russell Haines, G. Thigpen, E. Begin and Frank Sager.

Three Machine Be Accident

On Saturday afternoon early, when a Smith's transport operated by W. J. Hazlitt was backing into a yard, left hand turn into Kinney's service station on Dundas street east a solo driven by Bernard York about to pass was wedged between the truck and a car parked on the north curb. The York vehicle was badly damaged, particularly on the right side, while the left tire on the transport was ripped off. Cars parked car the property of Robert Ireland of Smithfield escaped with a decided rear fender. Trenton police investigated.

Weather Warm Here

Trenton and district enjoyed the warmest Sunday January 16th in many years. The river was open down to the town bridge and the village of Batiste had the novel farther out in the bay. An icebest did vanish alone and a group of skaters hugged the shoreline closely, as the bright sun moved slowly across the sky. With dark coming on the temperature fell again and one knew that winter had not disappeared.

"WINGS OF LOVE"

(The Love Story of a Sky Pilot and Girl Who Planned on a Fifty-Fifty Financial System that Almost Wrecked Their Happiness)

By Janet Doran

CHAPTER I LOVE ON A BUDGET

"I'm not getting married," Sheiny Herbert said, frowning at him over a long room, yet! Maybe never!"

That was before Sheiny had met Jim Leighton. Before he took one long breathless look into her wide, deep, shining amber eyes, and was lost forever. Before he began carrying around a heart suddenly covered with indecipherable rows of figures. Plain garden arithmetic. How to keep a total income of $42.50 a week, plus debts and expenses that made it totally inadequate for one healthy young bachelor of 26, and stretch it to include one very pretty, very hungry, but also very healthy girl of 22.

A girl who made his every little interest on part of a million. Has that said, Sheiny's very slender figure met in snoozy disdain. Silks, fragile little slippers that had a breath-taking affinity for runs, models marked, discreetly, $18.50 in the smartest shops, and accessories that knocked a fellow's eyes out, because they were so darned expensive look about them.

A fellow who just couldn't offer anything less than $75.00 a week plus a diamond from Tiffany's, and a church wedding with all the last guest gardenias, and an apartment in the Ritz Carlton. Sheiny didn't know would like caviar, and squash, and lobster patties, and French pastry.

"Who's got any money to get married on?" he had demanded, soberly, after that, and finally, when he could get no answer but a little sob of his despair to himself, he began eating it of Suzanne.

"What have you money these days to even live on?"

"I have." Suzanne told him gravely, her amber eyes glowing with a brilliant light. "I have love. That's enough for myself, and more, too! I've quite a bit saved ..."

"Saved!" He tried avoiding her. He tried deliberately, to stay away from her, but always her eyes, her wide eyes, and soft mouth, and cloudy, curly hair, had crashed through his guard, and left him more hurdle, to the secret, inner shrine of his heart. Where Suzanne alone, true waited for fulfillment.

It was finally himself that he was fed up with parties, with dancing, with bridge. He tried to convince himself that he was going to stay away from Suzanne until he got over it. Until he could keep away from her like a reasonable human being. But always, in his heart a voice shouted: "Liar, Liar, you know you're just whistling in the dark, hoping against hope that you could never be fed up with her! You don't want to. You're in love with me, Suzanne. You've got to stay away from me until I ... get ... over ... you ... the ... idea ... it ... can ... never be!" His glue hand on the back of his head in despair; like the Mediterranean, and Sheiny, with a groan, gave up the fight of defeat. "I can't do it alone! I ... want ... you ... too much!"

It's been, Sheiny, he's been good softly, gently, "but not by staying away from me. I'm not going to be too! I think I've known from the first."

He twisted her napkin in tense, unsteacy fingers, and spilled a little water from the glass at which he began to drink thirstily.

"What can you do Suzanne?" Sky blurted, "I make nearly enough to get by on. Not enough, when things go wrong, like illness, or when the dentist bill, a doctor's bill, or something, comes in. Suzanne, Christmas! Lately, I've had to let my insurance wait over, and last month had. I've got to get out!"

Then it," Suzanne insisted earnestly, "you'll have to. I'll keep getting by, alone, Sky. We might as well quit seeing each other, if that happiness there is for us. We'll save some, by cutting down on one place, and another. We're not going to be content with getting by on bare necessities. Instead of ... cut. We ... aren't ... getting ... cut ... anywhere ... yet ... younger!"

Sky received a lump in his throat, and imprisoned her cold hands in his own. "I'm a darned fool, lying flat. His jaw tightened, and the glow of a grim determination in his eyes up.

"You're right, Sue." His blue eyes met hers, and said, "you're always right ... and always will be, you darling!"

They started to pay their bill, but Suzanne unzipped her little purse and took out a dime, and laid it on the check.

"My share," she said smiling bravely, shyly.

Sky started to protest vigorously, then changed his mind. Instead, Suzanne laid slim, eloquent fingers over his clenched fist on the table and something like wonder crept into his heart, his bewildered eyes.

"If you love me enough. Sky," she whispered, "we can do it."

She did not say any more. It was part of her inimitable fascination that she never said more than was necessary, to kindle his own imagination into lively pursuit, shy, she was the only way. Our kids don't say: "It's to get together, side by side!"

She did not need to. But Sky's boyish mouth was a sober, grave line as he picked up the money he had laid down for her share of the

CHAPTER 2
SKY ENCOUNTERS THORNS

Sky woke the next morning with a headache, and a "I'm not getting married" chill in his stomach. He had so many things to do that he had a list, made out the night before, after he had left Suzanne.

But it wasn't the things he had to do that gave him the queer sense of panic. It was something he could not define. Suzanne he had never had time for self-analysis. His had been the life-long ambition of a real man. There had been no lengthy intervals for introspection.

He "fired" certain things. He "did" things this way, and decided, later on, other things. He "got" and "turned" with him.

"I'm Dutch," he said often, 'slow, and plodding, and not given to imagination. My mother's people settled that little trait of mine! I'm all Canadian, but all I want is the plain facts about it. I like things. It's natural with me."

The Four-Way Air Lines agreed with him. He had paid $42.50, and up to the time had times deserved. He was a commander, they had him assigned to a plane, and a regular run.

Now, for seven months, he'd been on ground work, repairing, looking after machinery, and mail. The usual runs were held by a few aces, brilliant fliers. But as soon as times picked up, he'd be back in the air again. Everyone said so.

Even so, the job was important, he had set down, heading the list "call Suzanne" on the pad.

Suzanne had protested, when he mentioned it.

"Sky, honey, Sky!" and as his troubles from deepened, "what difference does it make, Sky, what you're married or single?" He had stirred uneasily at that. "What can we do if we're not ... husband-down?"

Sky snapped out of it, at that. "Get married! Just the minute I said briefly, "and not let him find out!"

Suzanne had acted exactly as he were a brave, heroic idol, scorned to be straight from school, and never know that Sky's job was the only one he had ever had. He had gone to it straight from school, and had at it ever since. She knew that Sky had made a success of his job, took elsewhere for work, of losing it. Sky was "steady" and "true" and simply couldn't imagine himself hunting down, a strange job, getting used to strange ways, strange ways and people. It filled him with horror.

"Darling," she had whispered gently, tenderly, "Madden won't, Madden won't worry over it. If married himself, isn't he? I saw a picture of a Mrs. Ralph Madden christening some new air-liner at a big field-some time back, in the Sunday Rotogravure."

"Yeah," Sky had agreed listlessly, "he's married, all right. I know. I'd better call him and ask off."

He got up, waited for Suzanne's head on the end of the bed, shaved and dressed. He was sure he'd been sick and ought to have next decent enough to be married to Suzanne. Suzanne, who made things it throws a strain on my little girl. Suzanne, who was not a regular cost-sheet hound. Wait and see!

He grinned. Thinking about Suzanne and her dear,sweet, wonderful ways, always brought him that. He looked more than ever like a wildly disappointed boy as he cradled Suzanne's head against his shoulder with his other arm.

"Sky, honey, I shouldn't," Suzanne pointed out practically, "it things that way. We've been engaged for a few years, where would we be, Sky? Much older and more disillusioned, and terribly discouraged, I'm afraid. Don't you love me enough?"

Sky's head, in answer, arguing mentally and buried his pride, his fear of failure, his love and panic for back into the inner sanctuary of his mind, and gathered her close to his heart.

"You know I do, Suzie. Will you kiss me?" And he smiled as he can collect our other shirt and bobbleshirt?" I love you, darling. Nothing matters to Suzanne like this was against her soft face, and the sweet, tender mouth that, for a long moment, afraid to breathe for fear she should wake up and find it all a dream.

Then she reached up a slim finger, traced the outline of his lips, his lips, and with a soft little sigh of content, nestled down under his chin again.

"Tomorrow," she agreed rapturously, "I'll get married, Sky. I'll get paid, then, and we'd have three days off, from Saturday noon to Monday."

"Mrs. Hicks!" Sky said softly, starting off into the star-studded darkness. He liked the dreamy sound expression to his boyish features. "Mrs. Suzanne Hicks! Sounds perfect. It's an old name, Susie, but we're bringing it a brand new set of traditions!"

His cool lips found her mouth and Sky, Suzanne, forgetting all their eloquent kiss. He pushed her away, finally, laughed unsteadily.

"I guess," he said roughly, boyishly, "we'd better get married in a hurry, or else quit seeing each other, sweetheart!"

"And I'm paying for half of everything," Suzanne insisted, "half the wedding ring, half the license, half the whole cost!"

"Uh," Sky objected furiously, "I'll get married myself, until you've got your share of it—the office, got the ring, and the license, and the price of the dinner."

"You promised, Sky!" Suzanne reminded him soberly, "you said, fifty-fifty! Didn't you, Sky?"

"Dutch-treat," Sky repeated after her, "a little uneasily, "Dutch-treat!"

CHAPTER 3
SKY ENCOUNTERS THORNS

Sky woke the next morning with a headache, and a "I'm not getting married" chill in his stomach. He had so many things to do that he had a list, made out the night before, after he had left Suzanne.

But it wasn't the things he had to do that gave him the queer sense of panic. It was something he could not define. Suzanne he had never had time for self-analysis. His had been the life-long ambition of a real man. There had been no lengthy intervals for introspection.

He "fired" certain things. He "did" things this way, and decided, later on, other things. He "got" and "turned" with him.

"I'm Dutch," he said often, 'slow, and plodding, and not given to imagination. My mother's people settled that little trait of mine! I'm all Canadian, but all I want is the plain facts about it. I like things. It's natural with me."

The Four-Way Air Lines agreed with him. He had paid $42.50, and up to the time had times deserved. He was a commander, they had him assigned to a plane, and a regular run.

Now, for seven months, he'd been on ground work, repairing, looking after machinery, and mail. The usual runs were held by a few aces, brilliant fliers. But as soon as times picked up, he'd be back in the air again. Everyone said so.

Even so, the job was important, he had set down, heading the list "call Suzanne" on the pad.

Suzanne had protested, when he mentioned it.

"Sky, honey, Sky!" and as his troubles from deepened, "what difference does it make, Sky, what you're married or single?" He had stirred uneasily at that. "What can we do if we're not ... husband-down?"

Sky snapped out of it, at that. "Get married! Just the minute I said briefly, "and not let him find out!"

Suzanne had acted exactly as he were a brave, heroic idol, scorned to be straight from school, and never know that Sky's job was the only one he had ever had. He had gone to it straight from school, and had at it ever since. She knew that Sky had made a success of his job, took elsewhere for work, of losing it. Sky was "steady" and "true" and simply couldn't imagine himself hunting down, a strange job, getting used to strange ways, strange ways and people. It filled him with horror.

"Darling," she had whispered gently, tenderly, "Madden won't, Madden won't worry over it. If married himself, isn't he? I saw a picture of a Mrs. Ralph Madden christening some new air-liner at a big field-some time back, in the Sunday Rotogravure."

"Yeah," Sky had agreed listlessly, "he's married, all right. I know. I'd better call him and ask off."

He got up, waited for Suzanne's head on the end of the bed, shaved and dressed. He was sure he'd been sick and ought to have next decent enough to be married to Suzanne. Suzanne, who made things it throws a strain on my little girl. Suzanne, who was not a regular cost-sheet hound. Wait and see!

He grinned. Thinking about Suzanne and her dear,sweet, wonderful ways, always brought him that. He looked more than ever like a wildly disappointed boy as he cradled Suzanne's head against his shoulder with his other arm.

"Sky, honey, I shouldn't," Suzanne pointed out practically, "it things that way. We've been engaged for a few years, where would we be, Sky? Much older and more disillusioned, and terribly discouraged, I'm afraid. Don't you love me enough?"

Sky's head, in answer, arguing mentally and buried his pride, his fear of failure, his love and panic for back into the inner sanctuary of his mind, and gathered her close to his heart.

"You know I do, Suzie. Will you kiss me?" And he smiled as he can collect our other shirt and bobbleshirt?" I love you, darling. Nothing matters to Suzanne like this was against her soft face, and the sweet, tender mouth that, for a long moment, afraid to breathe for fear she should wake up and find it all a dream.

Then she reached up a slim finger, traced the outline of his lips, his lips, and with a soft little sigh of content, nestled down under his chin again.

"Tomorrow," she agreed rapturously, "I'll get married, Sky. I'll get paid, then, and we'd have three days off, from Saturday noon to Monday."

Two Ace Hits on the Screen

Complicating matrimonial affairs in frequent hilarious passages comprise the basis of "The Perfect Clue", new detective thriller seen as Hit No. 1 on this 2 Star Show.

The picture which again brings the sleuthing team of Inspector Oscar Piper and Hildegarde Withers to the screen, deals with two killings that result from the operations of a band of international jewel thieves. But the seemingly unrelated murders of a member of the band to steal the famous Delhi Cup, constitute baffling problems that tax the deductive powers of the audience as well as of the two film detectives.

James Gleason, who has been seen as the swaggering Oscar Piper in the four previous pictures featuring the amusing sleuths as this star role, but a new Hildegarde comes to view in Zadu Pitts, who adds much to the comedy scenes.

Owen Davis, Jr., and Robert Lord wrote the screen play based on the novel by Craig Rice.

AT THE REALE

Miss West Goes Rural in Delightful Comedy

One of the most hilarious and delightful comedies of the season comes to the Belle tomorrow and Wednesday, matinee daily, when Mae West and Warren William will step through her latest starring vehicle, "Go West Young Man", a story of ardour and fun on a typical Pennsylvania farm. It is the first time the curvaceous beauty appears in a modern outdoor picture.

The West Young Man" is the story of a romantic movie actress who is forbidden to marry by censor rules. Warren William, her press agent, is paid to see to it that the screen's vedette is contracted. After breaking up what promises to be a romantic evening with Mae, he is attacked by a bull, William starts for Harrisburg, Pennsylvania with her.

The car breaks down and they are forced to put up at Mae Tandy's farm where Randolph Scott, an auto mechanic and inventor, has a shop. Randolph is the local fan for the handsome inventor.

Then follows several meetings between them and is finally forced to resort to the ruse of a fake wedding to get up the budding romance.

With all three swains around her, Miss West makes her choice. It wouldn't be fair to tell who it was and why, since the solution is one of the high spots in the delightful concoction.

"Vocalizing" is the title of a very funny Edgar Kennedy comedy to be presented on the same program with the Belle late weird new, flesher, hardshire o this popular real this week include "The News Parade of 1936", revealing outstanding highlights of the year packed with great events....an engrossing review of Nazism, Communism, Gober highlights, Italy becomes Empire, Germany and Peace Treaties, Civil War in Spain, and fabulous highlights of the "World's Greatest Love Story".

Kirma on Belle Stage

Kirma, the Indian Marvel, is appearing on the Belle Monday Tuesday and Wednesday matinee daily, 2.00 and 9.00 p.m. Ask Kirma any question and he will answer writing on sealed questions pertaining to lost love, stolen articles, health, business success, love, courtship, marriage. He will help you. Throw off those shackles of melancholy and live!—adv.

"Tarzan Escapes" Leaving

The long awaited new Tarzan drama, "Tarzan Escapes" reuniting Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan in the third of the adventure pictures based on the world-famed Edgar Rice Burroughs characters opened before three capacity audiences at the Belle on Saturday and proved to be every inch as enthralling as the exciting predecessors. Leon Navarro of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios provide fifteen minutes of delightful comedy that thoroughly pleased the large audiences, a most unusual and interesting feature in color "Christmas Comes But Once a Year" proved a highly popular unit on the same program, and is the first kartune in some time that many patrons stayed over to see the second time.

Kirma, gave a startling exhibition of mental telepathy, he will appear on the Belle stage, twice daily at 2.00 and 9.00 p.m. and you will be amazed and astounded at his uncanny knowledge of the past, present and future.

Hypnotism by Radio

You are cordially invited to witness a remarkable free exhibition by Kirma on Wednesday evening at 7.30 p.m. in the window of the Percival Furniture store, opposite Victoria Avenue, when you will see mental telepathy put into a hypnotic sleep via the Majestic Phantom Radio, where she will remain for twenty four hours. On Thursday at 12 noon you may again witness a unique exhibition when the sleeping lady will be fed seven ounces of Kirma's Daily Pasteurized Milk, and a morsel of Purity Bakery Bread, necessary to maintain the vitality needed by his subject, during her 24 hour hypnotic sleep in the window of the Percival Furniture store.

McGILL REDMEN STILL UNBEATEN IN COLLEGE LOOP

Trounce Princeton 12-1 With Paul Pidcock Leading Scorer

HARVARD WINS

University of Montreal Speeds to 7-1 Win Over Yale

(By The Canadian Press)

The college boys who do their hockey playing in front of the "Rah-Rah" crowds in the International-Intercollegiate League wrenched away their gear today until Friday with McGill Redmen on top and Harvard established as the leading threat to the Canuck team.

They, along with Queen's, who have played only one game, remain undefeated over the week-end in three-way scrimmaging below the border. In full stride, McGill trounced Princeton 12-1 Saturday while Harvard edged past Dartmouth 2-0 and University of Montreal drubbed Yale 7-1.

The Indians from Dartmouth provided the only opposition for the tough team, holding Harvard scoreless for all but seven minutes of the game.

Then at 10,000—the largest crowd at a college game since 1930—bowling points to McGill's six.

Princeton's defence was helpless against the free-skating Redmen, who drew five goals in each of the first and second periods. A heavy fog settled over the ice in third period and McGill counted only twice while Barnicle punched the single Tiger tally past Conant (Freeman).

Paul Pidcock threw the strongest punches for McGill, scoring four goals. Eling Crosby, Russ McConnell and Lamb each fired home a brace while Mackay and Fisher finished off the total with singles.

Yale had no answer to the blinding speed of the Frenchmen from the University of Montreal. Leveque, Lapp, L. de M. to the Front in less than four minutes and they kept adding to the score, while the Elis tried desperately for an attack to counter the Montrealers' swiftness.

Roger Gagne and Jean Arnaud divided scoring honors with two each while Ouimet and Mignault got one apiece. Fifty-six seconds after Ouimet's tally in the second period, Clint Childs slapped in the lone Yale goal on a solo rush.

N. H. L. Moguls Pack 'Em in While Players are Figuring to Beat $7,000 Salary Rule

58,300 Fans Attend Week-end Games With Top Crowd at Detroit .

LEAFS WIN, LOSE

Rangers Win and Lose To Maroons And Detroit Takes Bruins

By A. K. Fulford
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Watching the attendance figures closely, many a National League hockey workman has made up his mind by now that there should be a salary boost coming to him next fall. For the boys are pulling them in all around the circuit and the depression, which only hit the game lightly in the first, is definitely gone.

There was something like $90,000 in the various club treasuries today from the games played every week-end before 58,300 persons. That's important money and many a star will be signing contracts light figuring how to beat that $7,000 maximum salary rule, when contract signing time comes along.

Detroit likely will benefit most. Bruins played to the biggest crowd of the five—13,486—a season record at Detroit's Olympia. They saw Wings win a one-penalty game 4-2 and hold top spot in the International-United States Division they had shared for a night with New York Rangers.

Up For 34 Hours

Lester Patrick's team stepped up beside Wings for 34 hours by day-ing Montreal Maroons to a Saturday night bed they slipped back when they dropped a 3-1 decision to Tommy Gorman's team in New York last night.

The win in Montreal left Maroons only four points behind Montreal Canadiens, but Rangers who were beaten 3-1 by Toronto Saturday, Maroons are still four points in arrears. Leafs who were declipped 3-1 by Black Hawks in Chicago last night, was the fifth Hawk win in 22 games this season.

Bruins held their score tied at 1-1 for most of the second period but a smart Detroit passing attack broke them out of the picture in the third. Here's how the Detroit-ers in front with his first period goal and when Jones tied it up early in the second Wilson held them off until there was only six seconds of the period to play. A pass from Ebbie Goodfellow to Syd Howe paved the way for the tie breaking score.

Modern Brunisteau and Marty Barry rapped goals early in the third before Bill Cowley gave Boston the second counter on a play with Jerwa and Ray Getliffe.

First Defeat In Ten Starts

When Maroons took Rangers last night they broke a string of ten Maroon-Ranger scheduled game in which Rangers were undefeated. The Montrealers ran out the beaten Patrick's team since the spring of 1935.

Saturday night's game was close but Maroons were much the better team in the New York encounter. Bob Gracie gave Maroons a first period lead in the Montreal game but Neil and Mac Colville put the New Yorkers ahead in the second. Earl Robinson tied the score for Maroons half way through the third and set the stage for Frank Boucher to win the game. There was less than four minutes to play when the veteran centre took Cecil Dillon's pass for the important counter.

One of the Maroon goals last night was a gift from Ching Johnson. In the third Johnson rapped the puck into his own net while trying to clear Jimmy Ward's long shot.

Jerry Shannon scored twice in the first to send Montreal away from a good start and when Bill Cook and Dillon got goals in the second Rangers were in a position to make things interesting. After the game Manager Patrick threw everything into their attacks and Robinson and Baldy Northcott broke away for goals.

Jackson Get Winner

The Canadiens-Toronto game was the most thrilling of the Toronto season. One goal was the difference pace from the start and Toronto only won because they were trying every minute George Mantha scored for Habitants in the first period, Bill Thoms tied it up in the second and Harvey Jackson got the winning counter in the third.

Red Horner was the centre of a wild second period when penalties were handed out. Horner got three minges and Referee Babe Dye kicked him out of the game for conduct, when the big defenceman protested.

Hawks cashed in on two penalties to Leafs to score their first goal against Leafs last night. Jimmy Fowler and Nick Metz were serving tripping penalties, when Louis Trudell beat Turk Broda. Paul Thompson broke away with Trudell from a Leaf gang attack half way through the second to give Hawks two up and Reg Hamilton saved Leafs from a shut out with his third period goal.

Sport Callings

By Ken Colling

The welcomed drop in the temperature over the week-end assured a splendid sheet of ice for tonight's Hockey-Belleville Junior O.H.A. game. This will be the first opportunity for the fans to get a look at the local Ponies in action. To demonstrate the relative strength of the two contesting clubs it might be in order to refer to the two games already played in the junior group. At home the Peterboro club defeated the Tweed Juniors 11 to 4, while the local Ponies downed the Tweed club on their own ice by the tune of 9 to 5. On paper it would almost seem as though tonight's game is a one-sided natural. Apparently both squads have considerable scoring punch while the defensive ability also seems about on a par. Manager Eddie Thomas looks for one of the best junior O.H.A. games that has been played in this city in many a season. Of course the first and second goals defeated the Tweed Juniors in the regular playing schedule but Peterboro had their eyes on the big prize and not to take any chances but to make each group game highly important. It is the desire of the club finishing in first place to have the choice of the venu of the final series. Should this be the case the group finish Manager Thomas will have the opportunity of playing the game on their home ice, so every possible fitting of rare importance tonight's bring to completion is necessary.

x x x

Following right on the heels of tonight's game of importance at the Memorial Arena the Belleville Intermediates meet the Peterboro team on Wednesday night. The hockey ability of the "Airmen" is quite well known locally for after they having won the Van Horne Trophy by defeating Lindsay representative case. The "Fliers" only lost one game in the O.H.A. series season and gained not only the honors, but plenty of credit-blending for the Belleville club. Of course the local intermediates have the benefit of one game played and one already won. In the case of the latter contest however, neither the Ponies nor the Orts have had any decided advantage over the other, but the matter of games or practice, both being considered the same in this matter, Manager Thomas says he will use the same team together that was used in Tweed last week: Sharpe, McCreary, Derry, Cain, McCann, Thomas, Slocum, Green, Rausky, Robinson, Jackson and one other to be filled in.

x x x

Harry Moore, sports editor of the Trenton Courier-Advocate again comes to bat with suggestions and solutions to what he terms as the "ails of hockey in Belleville". Harry, in his sports column, says—"What should be done in Belleville is for hockey-minded sportsmen to sponsor juvenile and junior league in order to develop hockey players for the intermediate team. It will take time, of course, but it will stop importing players, even though the players Belleville has been bringing into No city from the surrounding country this past couple of years have shown considerable class when properly coached." Well, Harry, there may be some truth to your suggestions, but maybe you are not aware of the fact that a Ki-Y Leagues has been in operation in Belleville for a number of years and fosters midget, juvenile and junior hockey. Service as Belleville importing hockey players from the surrounding district, all the time it is, but were it not for these players being able to play hockey in Belleville, they might not be playing at all. What hockey player does not want to play in better and better company? Of course, Mr. Moore, we always were in sympathy with the sponsoring and fostering of hockey and baseball among the rising generation.

x x x

We understand there is a magician by the name of Hirma appearing at the Belleville Theatre. He does all sorts of marvelous and mystifying tricks, such as pulling article out of hats, etc. We'd suggest the local baseball moguls attend the Bells one of these nights and get Hirma to pull Lefty Grove's left arm out. There are out of some place, whether it be his hat or his pocket. Of course maybe there is not any great rush to press Hirma into service, especially if Tuesday night's baseball meeting is attended as meetings are for the last three or four annual meetings called in this city.

x x x

There are current rumors floating about more relative to floodlights being erected in a park, where we cannot ascertain as yet for the purpose of sponsoring nights baseball and nocturnal rugby football. Before they take to the erection of floodlights and all that expensive-ness, there is the item of these sporting activities should provide themselves with winning combinations before diving into more and greater expense. They should also realize that the other ball clubs in the loops do not have to play night baseball unless they so desire, which itself would be doubtful also.

x x x

What is more important at the present however, is whether or not Belleville is to have a rugby ball club in the O.R.F.U. in 1937. Last year's gathering was seen firm and decided in their stand relative to their decision to enter the rugby field and in a body. When and if they do the responsibility and ems of baseball falls upon the shoulders of the citizens, or any individual interested. Many years ago the city looked as though senior baseball had gone to the dogs, but a couple all-washed up, Eddie Thomas initimated to us he would not see the game pass out of the picture but we wonder if Ed is in the same frame of mind as he was in any rate there is a perfectly good baseball franchise in the O.B.A.A. awaiting some interested person and from what little birds we have heard there is a couple who can easily place the Belleville franchise in the hands of some necessary. Think it over and be on hand Tuesday night at 8.30 p.m. at the "Y". It's urgent, men.

The Detroit Red Wings gained the most ground while the Boston Bruins were idle over the week-end registering points in the N.H.L. standings. The Wings, the Toronto Leafs need out the Canadiens 2 to 1 on Saturday, but lost by the identical same score to the Chicago Black Hawks on Sunday. The Rangers and Maroons split over the week-end games, each registering their home game. Detroit now leads Boston 4 to 1, for the week defeat handed either of those clubs by the other, thus far this season. In all three games played Detroit has only been one goal difference between them, two contesting goals. To date in five games played Detroit has scored 13 goals while the Bruins have bagged but ten, making a game average of three for Jack Adams' outfit and two per game for the Beantown crew.

x x x

The International Intercollegiate Hockey League is progressing right favour throughout the entire circuit. Large crowds witnessed the week-end games at Raymond Park and Yale beat Princeton 13 to 1, Montreal University won over Yale 7 to 1, while Harvard hung up their second consecutive victory by taking Dartmouth 2 to 0.

HORNETS BEATEN IN LAST 7 GAMES IN INT-AM. LOOP

Donie Hughes, Coach of Team Quite Discouraged With Showing

STARS STILL LEAD

Defeated by Springfield on Saturday They Beat Indians Sunday

Donie Hughes went into a huddle with himself today to try and find some scheme to put an end to thunderbird losing at his Pittsburgh Hornets. Ranked a classy outfit at the outset of the campaign, the Detroit Red Wings' farm team has absorbed their sixth seventh straight losses at the week end.

They remained in second place in the International-American League by virtue of having more points in front of Cleveland Pat-ers, but the margin is fast disappearing. Hughes hoped that goalie Jimmy Roberston, who replaced Sonny Jinkins last night, has seen the tide but it seems as though it will take more than that to win ardy.

The lowly Falcons rose from the depths to smite Pittsburgh 5-3 Saturday night and Hughes looked even more wobbly on home ice as they took a 4-1 pasting Sunday afternoon. Meanwhile Bill Hudson saved the hire from a shutout, getting a marker early in the third period.

Win Two

It was Ramblers second win of the week and the latest moved one point ahead of Springfield Indians in the Eastern section, the Boot Brahs were unable to do no better with Syracuse Stars, winning at Springfield in overtime and handing a 6-1 decision in Syracuse, Providence Reds remained an safty lead to drub Providence Reds 3-1 Saturday night, with consecutive Hugh Gustafson and Vernon Ayres scoring two of the winners' goals. Providence has only two games back ed out, both for tripping.

New Haven Eagles fighting desperately to get out of the Eastern basement cellar, made complete fiasle of the week-end for the Providence entry by overwhelming them 6-1 Saturday night. Haven headed in the hard but clearly fought contest which set only four minor penalties.

Young Marcel Raymond was hero of Springfield's 2-1 victory over Syracuse Saturday as he scored the third overtime goal. George Pervosa gave Stars the gumb's first goal in the second period, but old Alex Smith tied it up to pave the way for Raymond's heroics the following night Syracuse took no chances and banged six goals before Indians clicked late in the last session.

Schmeling Unwanted Because Drawing Power Questioned

New York, Jan. 11—(AP)—This is the inside story and study of a man of courage; a man who was good, too smart.

Max Schmeling was the only known fighter who dared to really defy Nazi Leader, by establishing negro boomer with the pin cushion as a reward for unquestionable ring heroism, he now finds himself unwanted as a fighting man in the "land of the free".

Unwanted not so much because he's a German citizen under the contrary Nazi rule, but unwanted because he's now a sure and big enough drawing card to insure Jimmy Braddock, a tottering, lide champion, a return to fistic goals for losing his heavyweight crown.

Long before the Jews begin organizing a boycott of a Schmeling fight, Braddock and his manager Joe Gould, backed by Mike Jacobs, Older, slower and fat, Braddock realized his real fistic value by bring in plenty of money.

For various reasons, excluding anti-Nazi sentiment, Schmeling never has been a big drawing card. In the Braddock crowd last only one match in sight—a battle with Louis before a million dollar crowd, instead of a fight against Schmeling before a 500,000 fight mob.

The current boycott, naturally, comes like manna from heaven for the Braddock crowd, since the New York Americans have no logical champion to fight Schmeling before Louis.

FIGHT MANAGER TURNS PROMOTER

Jack Kearns Offers $400,000 For Louis-Braddock Bout in Detroit

Detroit, Jan. 11 (AP)—Jack Kearns, erstwhile fight manager turned promoter, entered his new field of endeavor tonight a $400,000 offer to heavyweight champion Jimmy Braddock to fight Joe Louis here.

Referring to the Max Schmeling "boycott" in New York as offering Detroit the opportunity for the title fight, Kearns said he had sufficient financial backing here to "hit with any promoter in the country."

Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey, turned fight promoter a few weeks ago, his first such venture under an agreement to stage shows at Olympia, the big indoor arena where Detroit Red Wings play hockey games. He would make his fight debut in June at Navin Field, home of Detroit Tigers.

The $400,000 offer to Braddock, Kearns said, was accompanied by a $200,000 guarantee to Louis. He said he gave Braddock the privilege of a percentage as well.

CANADIAN SPRINTER OF 25 YEARS AGO DIES

Winnipeg, Jan. 11 (CP)—John Amy Howard, 46, colored sprinter of 25 years ago and a member of Canada's triumph team at Stockholm, Sweden, in 1912, died here Saturday after a short illness.

Member of the Winnipeg North End Athletic Club, Howard was the Dominion's outstanding sprinter from 1912 to 1916. His graceful form and awkward style belied his great speed but his tremendous stride carried him to the head there of many of the nation's fastest athletes.

Howard served with the Canadian troops overseas during the Great War. He is survived by his widow and four daughters here.

BOWLING THEM OVER

No. 2—Dempsey Finds Power Isn't All

MAULER DOES A FEW THINGS WRONG BUT EXPERT MORT LINDSEY COORECTS HIS FAULTS

N N By MORT LINDSEY

One of the fine things about bowling is the fact that champions of other sports are not nearly so essential as in most other sports. That is the reason why there are millions Americans, including almost a million women, who are able to bowl scientifically and well.

Good physical condition is a factor, but it is secondary to brain intensively for bowling, as for any sport. Jack Dempsey has the strength, plays a small part in the recording of high scores. The average people believes the game is a matter of throwing the ball at the pins. After that, they trust to luck.

Technique, Not Speed

Luck, however, is a small factor and too much speed can be a definite disadvantage. Take the defenceless pins, 60 feet away, and Cutcheon, who has bowled a number of 300 games and who rolls a ball probably slower than that of the average novice. Mrs. McCutcheon, however, knows where that ball is going and where its action will be when it strikes. She has mastered the fundamentals of bowling technique.

The fact that poise and physical co-ordination are more important than mere strength is proved to me again since I have been practising with Jack Dempsey in preparation for his debut in A.B.C. competition. Since his retirement from the ring Jack has kept himself in top physical condition, and all the world knows that Dempsey, at his best, was a marvel of co-ordination. It is his perfection in timing, as well as his strength, that made him the greatest hitter of all time. But Jack, starting to bowl, had developed the idea that speed was all he needed. On the first day he played at the defenceless pins, 60 feet away, and decided it would be easy.

"Watch me knock 'em," he cried.

Wild Pitch!

His first ball burned the runway but barely toppled off into the gutter before reaching the pins. The second ball went over only the No. 10 pin. Jack tried again. This time he held the ball longer and got into the left gutter. He turned with a sheepish grin.

"Mort, I'd better have a little coaching, Mort," he said.

Now Jack is really showing him fundamentals of the approach, delivery and co-ordination I'm coaching to tip you. Before he left that day his great gift of co-ordination and his remarkable ability to learn had been removed. Now Jack is practising consistently and I'll bet he'll be one of the greatest first-year bowlers in the history of the A.B.C. when he goes to the line with his team in March.

"KING of HEARTS"

By Edna Robb Webster

Queer, she reflected, how she had stubbornly refused to permit those who loved her and knew her best to protect her; yet in her ragamuffin sense of independence, she had accepted the same assistance from a stranger. What perverted conceit was Independence?

"You will write to Mr. Thorpe, then, or shall I?" her landlady inquired saucily.

Lynn laughed. "I'll write to Dol this very night, which is all the same. Mr. Thorpe was only Dol's personal messenger, and he is very conscientious about doing everything as Dol wishes."

"She must feel anxious to see you," persistently.

"I'm sorry to have missed him," Lynn said lightly, and added for her reassurance, "but I shall be here the next time he comes looking for me," laughing. Her head ached. She never will come again."

Mrs. Kime smiled delightfully and bustled away to finish the dinner which had been prepared especially for Lynn's return.

Before she slept that night, Lynn wrote a gay note to Dol, apologizing for her long neglect. She had been away, and very busy, she lied gallantly, not knowing how much they knew of that absence. But she still held in her memory the happy days of her life in the lovely old house among the oaks and magnolias. She had now returned to Mrs. Kime's and was happy to be back again.

As Lynn prepared for the night she felt so very secure and hopeful again. As if her feet were on solid ground and she could take a deep breath without shattering something. The next day, she would write Jed and planned a joyous holiday in spite of her mild protests. They would drive up to the shore for a roomby dinner somewhere and return whenever their fancy dictated. Henceforth, he had commanded she was to rest a great deal and be happy as it was her right to be, in a manner was very authoritative, and yet very gentle.

She wondered what she was going to do about Jed. He was such a dear. She was very much fond of him and was so happy when she was with him. If it had not been for that stronger revelation, she might suspect that she was falling in love with Jed? And why not. She had so much right to devotion and production as Dol had, and Dol had Jack. And then the thought of accepting Jed's affection made her feel guilty. Jed deserved more than that—being a substitute. That would not be fair to Jed, that surely. And then she dismissed the idea, because she told herself there was plenty of time—years of time —in which to decide so momentous a question. She need not worry about anything all at once, just because she was free and secure once again.

Her work would absorb most of her time and thought from now on. She wished very soon to take her first upward step which Jed had suggested could be done, and long to show her the way. It was going to be pleasant and gratifying to become more and more important in the affairs of her little world, to build magnificently and enduringly upon her foundation. The foundation with which her mother had provided her so lovingly.

Her thoughts turned to her mother, and her mother's love and all it had ordained for them both. Thinking about that, she wondered why love should be such a devastating thing. It never should be like that, surely. It would not be for Dol.

She was rearranging her possessions, putting things back into their accustomed places. And suddenly, she came upon the little collection of trifles that were souvenirs of the carnival pageants. Jack's ring spinned with almost genuine enthusiasm, as she turned it in the light. What if were her real engagement ring from him, she dared to think frivolously, and slipped it on her finger. It was too large and looked absurd on her slender hand.

It was a match, like her love for Jack. And like the ring which she treasured for a tangible reminder and had no other significance whatever... her memories would have to be put away. They were remote hobbs of her consciousness where they would not command her attention so much of the time. She took off the ring, pressed it to her lips impulsively and put it into her jewel box, which had been her mother's and had once held a much more valuable collection than it did now: a single necklace of seed pearls which had been her mother's small emerald brooch and a set of matching earrings. She thought sickening the day when she could afford some new clothes for every occasion, and with Jed, that the moment set would be effective with the right gown. She would remember to use them.

CHAPTER XXXV

At first, when Jack betrayed his deep personal concern for Lynn, Dol was angered. The feminine elemental fear of losing her man gripped her, and the tendency to fiercely renounced her cousin. No one ever had denied Dol what she wanted, and this first suggestion of competition aroused her defense. She thought scathingly: Lynn would not accept her offer of financial assistance, the shelter of her home, the prestige of her influence for obtaining a position—but she would take away her most valuable possession, like a thief in the night.

Then she blushed with acute remorse. Actually, she did not believe that Lynn had stolen Jack's love from her, that he had gone so quickly and unobtrusively away—it was not fair to accuse her like that. Jack he had followed her so soon, and so eagerly. How did she know how much Lynn had influenced that trip north? Then reason assured her. But he never even found her! Had Lynn lured him to her city, she certainly would have been there to greet him! No, it was Jack who had gone in search of Lynn, he had done so voluntarily.

But as her first anger toward her cousin subsided, Dol was piqued at Jack's desertion. All their lives the fact had been inferred and accepted that they would marry him and they would prolong the name and fortune of Merchon & Thorpe, forever.

The idea had been so fixed that she felt lost at the mere suggestion of any other arrangement. Their families expected it, their friends, all the southern city expected it even those who did not know them knew by the intimacy of their prominent names. What chagrin would be hers, if Jack jilted her!

As the days passed into weeks after Jack's return home, he continued to see Dol less. The demands of business and his prolonged absence from the office, was his continued explanation. But he grew irritable, and though his healthy color returned with the vigor of the tropical sun, a subdued expression did not disappear. And Dol knew that the pressure of business cares did not warrant that. Jack was unhappy, he had not grown hard, even if occasionally impatient and difficult.

They went about together, but the old camaraderie had disappeared. Jack was no longer vengeful casual little intimacies which had seemed so natural as their childhood affections. Dol felt his remoteness, even when they danced together; felt his thoughts detached, even while he talked with her.

Gradually, she saw him less. Finally, there was an entire week when she did not see him at all. And to her surprise and dismay, Dol discovered that she scarcely had missed him. She had grown so accustomed to his presence that his absence was more like that of her father or mother. She missed him, and thoughts of him, but only with the assurance that she would see him soon. Her days and evenings were filled with delightful pleasure. There was always a gallant escort for the dance or the theatre, and she was being filled more frequently of late by Gwen Duke, who was also a novelty for her instead of a habit.

With a shock which was a mixture of regret and relief, Dol realized that was exactly what Jackson Thorpe had become to her—a habit. So long as she had him, she accepted him without consideration. When she first lost him, she was a little bewildered and frightened. But when she no longer missed him at all, she recognized that he had not been even necessary to her happiness.

It was soon after this discovery that she received the apologetic note from Lynn. Her first sensation was joy that Lynn was safe and happy, as Jack's fears and disclosures had indicated she was not. Dol was genuinely fond of Lynn, and had not done justice to her love for Jack, but she was not sorry that if Lynn had taken that from her which she treasured. Besides, Lynn had not done that at all. If Jack loved her, so much the nicer for her that he had gone hold a much more valuable collection than it did now: a single necklace of seed pearls which had been her mother's small emerald brooch and a set

SHE DREADED GOING UPSTAIRS

Woman's Fear of Rheumatic Pains

One of the many troubles that afflict rheumatic sufferers is the difficulty of getting up and down stairs. Such was the case with this woman, before she started taking Dodd's Kidney Pills, but now she finds it no trouble. Read what she says:—

"I have been suffering from rheumatic for over 13 months, a half-housewife in hot water first thing in the morning, and I feel a new woman. I had very painful rheumatism in my knees and back and also my head was getting very bad. I used to dread walking upstairs, now I am very thankful to say it is no trouble at all and I scarcely have any backache. I feel better in health than I have done for years."—(Mrs.) O. M.

Two of the ingredients of Dodd's Kidney Pills are notable for their work in dissolving uric acid. Other ingredients of Kruschen assist bladder and kidney functions.

CHAPTER XXXVI

Jack explained that his impulsive departure had landed him in the northern city on Sunday, when he might go directly to Mrs. Kime's and find Lynn. That is, he hoped to find her there. Mrs. Kime's ill-mannered landlady had not deceived him. So many times had hope lured him to the same destination, in vain, that he was still skeptical at seeing her there at last. Lynn was actually living there again, as the letter had assured him she was, it would be time enough for him to begin the spring day of her leisure.

His first startling emotion was decidedly more gracious than her first one had been. "She's come back!" were her first jubilant words.

"She's here!" his words were half interrogation and half confession.

"No—she isn't here, just now, but she'll be back some time this evening. She went away for the day with a friend of hers," she finished with an apologetic tone.

Which tone betrayed to Jack that his friend was deceiving him? He exclaimed with bitter disappointment. He hesitated, then decided, "I'll wait. I'll come—and wait for her." He—turned away slowly, reluctantly.

The spring sky was a deep vault of blue, high above, pricked with stars and dusky-silver showers of light so remote, and beyond the seven twinkle Lynn remembered the low ceiling of the lounge with its multitude of flashing lights out over the bayous in the throbbing summer nights, and the low moon like suspended in the air like stars falling to earth in a shower. The night was divine, but ah! the magic was not there. Not alone the heavens and the stars and the atmosphere were different. On that other night, Jed had come to her through the star-filled night. Tonight, it was Jack who returned and beside her in the cool, thin silence was the breeze. And their conversation had progressed beyond the casual business to very direct personal questions.

"Well, how do you like it?" he had referred to the new work.

"I love it, Jed! It was an sweet of you to help me get started."

"Love anything else?" he suggested quickly, bending toward her.

"Why—" she laughed, and hesitation, wondering how to reply to him, "what do you mean?"

"I mean that I've missed you!" he declared vehemently, and took her in his arms with a gallant gesture. "Lynn — darling. I hadn't planned to tell you so soon, but I can't help myself. I want you to know how it is with you—" he was looking down into her white face eagerly, searching the glowing dark circles of her eyes, the tense place watching her lips as they parted a little with her gasp of consternation.

"So soon?" she thought, with regret, and wondered why she said it. "Why—Jed—"

She could feel in the slightly taxed tension of his arms the faltering of his hope with her first words of doubtful response, and with all he pleaded. "Don't say it—yet. I'll wait. I'll be as much as that's necessary, up and groping around for a balcony, yet. I don't blame you. Poor darling, you've had a hard time. But that's all over now," he assured her. His arms were still around her, still held held with a protective tenderness. "Since Dol, when you get more adjusted. I'll ask you again. Meanwhile, you get your thoughts straightened out, and I'll wait. If you don't discover something that may surprise you a little," he drew a voice spoke whimsically, close to her face; and she thought how chivalrous and gentle he was even while a romantic southern heritage.

He was not gentle, and she did not love him—and never could. With his ardent nearness, it was a most difficult to understand the cause of the reason why she could never love anyone else. He was the best friend in the background — Jack and the only friend, in the background of life and the purpose of it all must she sacrifice everything else? He had promised her he would wait—until she had discovered her love for him. But how could she discover that, when her heart had been left far away with another? She drew away with regret. "Jed, you're wonderful."

"That's something!" he rejoiced. "Maybe I can be more than that."

"You are — very much more. I don't begin to thank you—"

"Don't do it now dear. Let me know your thoughts of me are all mixed with my great gratitude for all you deserve. Let's skip it, shall we? From now on, you just forget I have done anything for you—if I have— and think about me—just me. Will you?"

"I can't very well forget you," Lynn reminded him with a rough laugh, "seeing you every day at the bank, and almost every evening."

"Oh, that isn't half enough," he laughed softly, and pressed his lips against her face before he released her with sudden determination.

Then he drove on toward the city.

The night was palpably warm, and sweet with the fragrance of a thousand flowers. The stars hung low, as if cowlicon of human joy. The palms whispered in the breeze, the strange story of the lovers who sighed with ecstasy beneath their fantastically lingering and swaying arms.

"To think, I am home at last!" Lynn murmured with content rapture.

"To think—if I never had found you!" Jack's voice was tense with the agony of the thought, and his arms gripped her with the fear of that loss. "Lynn — my—darling, my wife!"

In silence of the night closed about them, protectively.

Later, she stirred in his embrace. "I've been thinking of them to give me a wedding in my mother's home? Dol, Aunt Zoe—everyone. Her heart so wonderful to me!"

"Wonderful, yes!"

"It's going to be just heaven, living here."

"Wife me?"

"With you!"

They laughed together softly.

"I never should have let you go away that first time," he regretted but it might have spared much terrible wretched months."

"I'm glad now that you didn't," Lynn comforted him. "How should I have known how serious Inggie was? But I did not learned the depth of loneliness and despair, I'm glad, Jack darling—glad that I can now the full sweep of that glorious ecstasy in the heights of love and happiness with you."

"My sweet! I shall take you home—dear."

The night breathed its blessing and the hovering stars winked with delight. The moon sank to the horizon behind a fringe of waving cypress trees, and prepared to rise upon new conquests.

Little Benny's Note Book

After school I went back to the kitchen to see if I was rite about having took the last one to eat and then ma started to come down-stairs, saying, Is that you, Benny, I want you to run around to the store for me and get a pound of suger and a loaf of bread and a cake of soap.

We're out of apples, too, ma, I said, and she said, Well, no wonder with you having at them morning noon and nite like a prevention medsin. It's high time to call a halt to this perpetual apple eating, she said.

Well O, ma, a apple a day keeps the doctor away, I said, and ma said, That's no excuse for one continuous apple every time you turn around. I'm sick of seeing doctors are you trying to keep away? she said.

Being a good asker, and I said, And anyway, ma, anyway, just what about them grate materials that dont coat to stop exercising because their hearts and lungs would be libel to shrink if they did, and I'm a active apple eater so why wouldn't my stummick be libel to shrink if I eat a sudden stopped eating apples?

I guess this will shrink it, I'm sure, and ma said, Benny, you're a caution, and I said, No, ma'am, but I bet they do, and ma said, Bet they do to bet ma?

I'm not in a betting mood and with you I'll bet a couple of pounds of apples it'on feel so strongly about it, I suppose you could eat worse things, ma said, and I said, Sure I could, ma, do you want me to name some?

If you're not off on that errand in 30 seconds I'll cancel the whole part, ma said, and I said, I'm off.

Wich I was.

Chapter 7

"All right," Sky said gruffly, but his sentiment under the cool, polished surface of his exterior somehow counted out her share of the cost, and placed it with his own. The only thing that kept him from holding, from reading back into that atmosphere comforting security of masculine priority that had been his, up to the moment of relinquishing his standard of always paying for everything, was the horrible bogie logic of his final budget-book. And the fact that he could not give Suzanne up. He could not give her up, because he had tried, and failed. He could not expect her to help any by giving him up, because she loved him with equal intensity.

As hard as this was, as terrible as he was finding it, to adjust himself to a standard he rebelled against with every outraged instinct, he knew that the alternative was worse. He had tried it, and he knew. He knew that being Suzanne, meant absolute distrust. And he was learning that having her, on these strange new terms, was that, also.

"Buck up, Sky," Suzanne whispered, as the two walked up the high stone steps to the registry office, "it won't be so bad! At any rate, We're two against a very old, very silly world. We'll make a new world of our own. And happiness! It will be a fight, but it's going to be worth it . . . isn't it?"

Sky swallowed painfully, somehow ashamed that he had let her down. His finger closed over her little gloved hand briefly, and for a moment his throat was burned, and his throat tasted salty and thick.

They took the little slip of paper and went hesitantly, slowly, into the room marked "Justice of the Peace"

"I, Suzanne, take thee, Sahay-ar . . ."

Outside the grimy registry window, a gentle September rain began to fall, but within the glory of sunsets, of new dawns, blazed in Suzanne's eyes, in Sky's widely smiling as they took their vows for the final benediction.

"Darling," Suzanne whispered huskily against Sky's chin.

"Sweetheart," Sky began gruffly, blinking her brave in hasty confusion, "write! Let's get out of here! I want you—like yours!"

Sky took a bill from his wallet, to pay the Justice of the Peace, and Suzanne reached hastily, guiltily for her purse. She did not like her part of the transaction. She was unprepared for a bill, and handed it to the official with a shrug that would not see the goods biting into his salary severely. He would not read to them. Until he could play the game.

Chapter 8

Honeymoon Problems

It rained all the way up the steep, winding road, to the camp, high up in the Adirondacks. The rain beat against the canvas top of Sky's roadster, and made a steady, monotonous rumble in his engine.

Sky glanced down at Suzanne, snuggled against him to avoid the gusts of rain and wind that came against the open roadster.

"All snug?" he asked. Suzanne nodded.

"I like the rain." In this mood she would have liked snow and drought and hurricane and lightning. Her voice was a drowsy, sleepy echo of the curtain of gray. "I love a storm! They're home to me. I'm not," Sky agreed vaguely aware that she meant the loved him, loved being with him so much that everything about it was beautiful, sounds like a motor. Like a crate, winging along in the dark."

Toward night, they had to stop and buy gas and oil, and Sky was confused when Suzanne handed him her share. He was glad she had waited until he got back in the car at the gas station attendant's questions in, and he was vaguely ashamed of the guilty feeling he had when he paid the bill. Suzanne and Suzanne knew they were going Dutch on the feed.

"It's my car, Suzanne, and I ought to pay for running it! I always have!"

"Then I go along," Suzanne said firmly, "I pay half, Sky."

They began hunting road signs after that, and had an interesting time finding the way to the camp.

"Eagles' Lair" read a sign, almost hidden in bracken. Sky thoughtfully down to a still, clear mountain lake, appearing in a park-like area of lofty firs.

Suzanne drew a soft, careful little breath after that first startled glance around the picturesque setting. Impulsively, her glowed against Sky's big fist, and he laughed huskily.

"Hot bed, it is!" Sky killed the ignition, opened the car door and lifted Suzanne down.

The bare brown column of his throat was like a satin-smooth statue of bronze framed in the open collar of his dark blue wool shirt, and Suzanne's cheek against it, under his chin, flushed softly, in a sudden, impish delight. Sky was so dear, so lovable and sweet.

His hands, awkward and clumsy, patted her shoulder, grazed her face on either side, and tipped it up to meet his. His strong blue eyes and he set his lips gently, firmly, over her mouth.

"Wife," he said huskily, "alone together, at last! And all this is ours!

"For two whole days!"

The murmuring silence of forest and wilderness, the faint distant chuckle of the lake against shore and rock, was a new symphony to their city-bred ears.

"I like it," Sky said, opening the camp door, and bringing in their baggage, "there's something magnificent about solitude, isn't there?"

He kept saying it, over and over, throughout their stay, as if he couldn't escape from the wonder of it, "like being up in your own castle, with the whole world below you, and the world so far away it no longer counted!"

"I wish we could hope for a camp of our own some day, Sky," Suzanne said that night, when they had cooked their simple meal, cleaned away, and settled themselves the huge field-stone fireplace, curled up with a big fire. "It would be something to work toward."

"We will," Sky agreed soberly, "after we get out of debt, and times are a little better, so we have enough to buy it on." He didn't say, "so we don't have to stick to this Dutch-treat stuff," but Suzanne knew he thought it.

"I've never had time for a vacation, before," Suzanne went on dreamily, "I had to work, always. School, boarding-house, and then the job. We'll have to recapture this magic again, next year."

"It won't be the same, Suzanne," Sky pointed out gravely, "nothing is ever quite the same afterward, can touch this Paradise."

"Why, Sky!"

Suzanne's voice was a sharp, thin protest; the ageless regret of woman since Eve, that the stuff dreams are made of, must be so fragile, such tender, evanescent materials. Under human touch, "why can't it be the same, always? Why can't we keep love alive, keep romance from dulling?" She did not say the rest . . . the glad day to-come, start and humble, in her wide golden eyes: "why won't you love me the same next week as you do now? What can happen to our love, that it won't be the same?"

Sky stirred, uneasily. Tightened his arm about her shoulder. Pulled her head down on his shoulder, so that his chin rested in her soft, shining hair.

"I don't say that, Sweetheart," he began slowly, "I meant, we'd come back here . . . if we can . . . and we'll love each other just the same . . . more, perhaps . . . only life changes things. Values. People love each other in ways unthinkable, but in a thought so profound he hasn't words to put it into form."

"But it isn't the same!" Suzanne's wistful little voice shook slightly, with a nameless dread that was like a knife - edge, across Sky's heart. "It is changed, I can't bear it, Sky! I won't! Somehow . . . we must keep it always the same!"

Sky did not answer. There was no argument beyond that shimmering thread of agony in Suzanne's voice, that terror in her wide, pleading eyes. And deep in his troubled young heart, he made a vow, solemn, passionate enough to be a prayer, that never, so long as he could humanly help it,would anything happen to break the pattern Suzanne had built, the idea of their love, their marriage.

"When times are better," he planned soberly, start to the danger of the topic they had just foundered on, "when I'm making more . . . say seventy a week or so . . . you're going to quit writing, and keep house."

"Oh, of course," Suzanne agreed readily, the fear almost gone from her voice, the old confidence swinging back, "we'll buy a house somewhere in the suburbs, buy some insurance and a bond or so, and then settle down like old married folk."

They had slept to the rhythmic beat of rain on the log cabin roof, and awoke to a world ablaze with the sting a mean coffee pot. I may easily September glory.

Sky got up, and built a fire, insisting that Suzanne wait until he called her, it was so cool.

"If this Dutch-treat business is to be real," he explained, "it's more than just a financial matter. It's sharing fifty-fifty on everything."

Suzanne grinned, watching him tame the unruly blonde hair sticking up every whichway, with deft, brisk strokes of his military brushes.

"Do you think you are going to wash dishes, Mr. Nichols?"

Sky grinned slowly. "Sure thing," he agreed, "if we both work, and both share expenses, why should I save and let you struggle?"

Suzanne decided she had married a modern miracle, "why should you work all day in an office, buy half the food, pay half the expense, and then shoulder all the chores? If I duty about, I wash 'em! Now watch me sling a mean coffee pot. I may even surprise you with pancakes!"

He did more. He brought a tray, laden with crumbled eggs, toast, coffee, and pancakes, and set a small table beside the bed, cocktail-ing his own breakfast.

"Like being an old married woman, Mrs. Nichols?"

Suzanne's eyes crinkled with delight.

"Love it, Sky, darling. Only I hadn't thought about you doing things like . . . this! It seems like . . . my job!"

Sky grinned delightedly. "Now you know how I feel, when you haul out your purse and begin counting out cash! It seems like my job!"

They lingered through the week, climbed a mountain, canoed on the lake, and ate ravenously at every meal they prepared together. The activities became quicksilver drops, flying away, out of sight, whenever they glanced at a watch or clock.

Sky flished for catfish in the lake, and Suzanne found buttons to sew on his clothes, and—not to mend, incredibly, it was Monday noon, and they had to clear up Eagles' Lair, and head back to town again.

On the porch, after everything had been locked up tight against intruders, Suzanne paused a moment, her eyes lifted to the dull gleaming gold eagle, that formed the huge knocker on the door.

"Sky, my sky!" she whispered softly, "I want to . . . say . . . good-bye to it!"

Briefly, she laid her soft cheek against the shining gold wings, brushed her lips against the proud, lifted head, and then turned to take away, against the rough wool of Sky's shirt-front.

"Sky, my—heaven!" she whispered huskily.

"Paradise," Sky agreed gruffly. "We'll come back!"

His carried her to the car, tucked the robe about her knees, and then turned for a last look at the camp. His arm and hand went up in'a strange sort of salute, as he cast a last glance at the shining gold eagle on the door of Eagles' Lair, and Suzanne knew that it was tribute . . . some sort of masculine tribute that ranked with her own farewell to a golden tidelands, a milestone.

"Now," Sky said softly, finding her gloved hand, and holding it tight, as the car got under way, and fell down the steep mountain road, "to conquer this old economic bugaboo, and tame it into some sort of order!"

His profile, Suzanne thought wistfully, outlined sharply against the sinking sun, was so beautiful it hurt. Like a god's. A blonde, Olympian god.

FRANCE, GERMANY MAY NEGOTIATE VAST ACCORD

$10,000 Reward Offered for Information in Mattson Kidnap—Murder

KIDNAPPED BOY TERRIBLY BEATEN BEFORE KILLED

Nude Body of Charles Mattson Found Frozen Near Everett, Wash.

ABDUCTOR HUNTED

Family Heart-Broken as Police Intensify Search

Washington, Jan. 12 (AP)—President Roosevelt declared today the murder of 10-year-old Charles Mattson in Washington State has "shocked the nation" and added every means at the command of the United States government must be enlisted to capture the perpetrator of "this ghastly crime."

Simultaneously, Attorney General Cummings offered a $10,000 reward for the arrest of the kidnappers of the boy.

In an official statement, the President said the justice department was engaged in a search which "will not be terminated until the murderer is caught."

Stephen T. Early, a White House secretary, telling of the chief executive's reaction to first news of discovery of the boy's body and that in effect Mr. Roosevelt had directed Cummings to "go get them."

President's Statement

The text of the President's statement follows:

"The murder of the little Mattson boy has shocked the nation. Every means at our command must be enlisted to capture and punish the perpetrator of this ghastly crime.

"Attorney General Cummings informs me that he has offered a reward for information leading to the arrest of the criminal and that the special agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice are engaged in a search which will be pursued relentlessly and will not be terminated until the murderer is caught.

"I bespeak for the agents of the Department of Justice the continued and wholehearted co-operation of the local police and all other law enforcement agents in this necessary work.

"A crime of this kind is renewed evidence of the necessity of united effort in dealing with the criminal menace."

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 12—(AP)—From the battered body of Charles Mattson, 10, found nude in the snow, a mighty force of detectives today sought a definite clue to the child's killing and the killer—"the most hunted man in the nation."

Finding of the young victim on a brushy area near Everett, Wash., yesterday was the culmination of a far a wide-flung search of men with all the modern weapons of scientific detection in their command—a search nervously withheld until them to private citizens, the boy's father, Dr. W. W. Mattson.

In a guarded monitory United State, government agents and physicians examined and identified the battered remains of the victim, attended Dec. 27 by a kindly person, which the boy's father strove desperately to get to the kidnappers —but failed.

Dead Long Time

Paul Sverra, a close friend of the family, who helped identify the body, said: "Charles had been dead a long time, probably between three days and a week"—long before Dr. Mattson's last frantic effort to pay the ransom. Blood on the body was frozen.

"The kidnapper has acted like a coward coming-out of his hole," Sverra declared. "Almost taking the body and crawling back in again."

From their careful survey officers hoped to find clues leading to the swarthy bearded man, who broke into the Mattsons' living room two days after Christmas, while the boys Charles and Dorothy still were under the tree.

No Definite Clues

Federal agents under the respected veteran, Hugh Clegg, were silent. Other authorities admitted they were as yet without one definite bit of information which might send the kidnapper to the gallows under Washington's kidnap and murder laws or the Federal Lindbergh law.

The Mattson family, grief-stricken by the horrible ending of the abduction, hid within their English-styled home and refused to see anyone but intimate friends.

"Dr. Mattson asked me to tell you he has made every effort humanly possible to pay the ransom to gain the return of my son," Sverra said.

"The doctor has broken down for the first time since Charles was kidnapped, and the entire family is badly shaken. Mrs. Mattson is under a nurse's care.

Ransom Not Paid

"The ransom definitely was not paid, although the doctor made many attempts to pay it. The kidnapper was too yellow to come out of his hiding to obtain the money."

BELGIUM ASKS PROMPT RETURN OF BARON'S BODY

Threatens to Expel Spanish Residents and Break off Diplomatic Relations

SECOND NOTE

Brussels, Jan. 13 (AP)—Belgium threatened today to expel Spanish residents and break off diplomatic relations unless the prompt return of the body of Baron de Borchgrave is answered speedily.

The warning was contained in a second, strongly-worded note to the Socialist government at Valencia demanding the body of Baron de Borchgrave, allegedly slain by other Belgians outside Madrid during a mutiny in the International brigade.

Specifically the government threatened these retaliatory measures:

1. Expulsion of Spanish residents in Belgium.
2. Repatriation of Belgian residents in Spain.
3. Recall of the Belgian ambassador to the Spanish Socialist government and severance of diplomatic relations if the Spanish ambassador to Belgium refuses.

The original note gave Spain 48 hours to deliver with military honors the body of Baron de Borchgrave, secretary of the embassy in Madrid, slaughtered by a mob in indemnity of $30,000.

Borchgrave was said to have been slain with other Belgians outside of Madrid while visiting wounded Belgian volunteers in the fighting during a of a mutiny in the international brigade.

(The Havas News Agency reported yesterday that Borchgrave's body had been sent to Alicante, where it would be placed aboard a French destroyer for carriage to Belgium. Full military honors would be accorded the body on the authorities at Alicante, the dispatch said.

5-CENT-HOUR WAGE BOOST

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 12 (CP)—A five-cent-an-hour wage boost for 1,000 Ford of Canada employees was recommended to the labor committee today by City Engineer Ralph Young. The move was taken on the proposal but it will be considered by the committee within the next few days. The increase would cost $11,325, according to Dominion.

25 Year-Old Woman Found Strangled in a Bathtub

Bloodstains Showed N. Y. Victim Had Battled For Her Life

SKULL FRACTURED

Police Find Machinist's Hammer in Basement—Money Missing

New York, Jan. 12 (AP)—Slayer of a 25-year-old housewife whose beaten and strangled husband, Frank, when he returned to his Brooklyn apartment early last night.

Bloodstains in the kitchen gave evidence that Mrs. Clegg battled violently with her assailant and official sgested she possibly was slain there and her body carried to the bathroom, also spattered with blood. A sheet covered the tub. A rubber stopper was in the drain pipe.

Similar to Titterton Murder

The slaying was similar in circumstances to the murder last April of Mrs. Nancy E. Titterton, 34-year-old writer. Mrs. Titterton was strangled and her body left lying in a bathtub in her apartment.

John Florenza, 20 year old upholsterer, was charged with the Titterton, is in the death house at Sing Sing awaiting execution next week.

Case, an employee of the American Hotels Association, told police he received no answer when he attempted to telephone his wife and tell her he would be detained.

Mrs. Clegg's brother, Queens County medical examiner, said 30 bloodstains showed the woman's skull was fractured by a blow from a heavy object. Her throat bore indications that she checked into a fight with her slayer.

Blazing on the door of a chute in the hall police to search the incinerator in the basement. There detectives found a bloodstained upholsterers' hammer, two empty pocketbooks identified as Mrs. Case's and a worn and stained pair of trousers.

Detective Ryan said Case told him his wife was about 15 minutes late in arriving home from the Royal Bank of Canada branch here and the Mayor or other members of council. Then all scrip in the town's possession will be burned.

SABOTAGE, LEAK IN NAVY YARDS ARE INVESTIGATED

British Yards Dismiss Five Men From Service

DOCUMENTS IN BOXES

Pieces of Metal Found in Machinery of Submarine

LONDON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Five men were dismissed from service in two British Naval yards today after a "two-year investigation of suspected sabotage and leakage of confidential information.

Five dockyard workers have been dismissed, four from the Devonport dockyard and one from Sheerness dockyard," an official admiralty statement said.

The Devonport dismissals resulted from discovery of "certain documents" in the workbooks of four employees. It was said the nature of the papers was not disclosed.

Officials said the lengthy inquiry into alleged sabotage had been provoked by uneasiness in connection with reports of numerous foreign spies operating in England.

Submarine Damaged

Detectives were called in to investigate damage to the Submarine L-27 at Devonport in April, 1936. Another case which received official attention was ther discovery of two pieces of metal in the machinery of the Griffin.

Two other vessels, the Royal Oak and the Oberon, were delayed for four days in December, 1936, when short circuits in their electrical systems caused postponement of their cruise with the Mediterranean fleet.

Later, the battle cruiser Repulse, the Submarine HA-28, the Destroyer Vidal and an unidentified submarine suffered mysterious interference.

Portugal Refuses To Ban Passage

London, Jan. 12.—(CP-Havas) — Portugal today refused to accept any form of international control over the passage of arms and war supplies through its territory bound for Spain.

The Portuguese delegate informed the non-intervention sub-committee of the waiting of the matter to the committee's proposed plan of action.

2 NEW CABINET POSTS IN U.S.

Washington, Jan. 12.—(AP)—President Roosevelt recommended to the United State, Congress today a sweeping reorganization of the government's administrative machinery that would give two new cabinet posts—social welfare and public works—and eventually bunch 100 federal agencies, in 12 departments.

British Fleet May Blockade Spain Against Volunteers

Powerful Fighting Fleet is Again Mustered in Mediterranean

Great Britain's action moving its mighty Mediterranean fleet to strategic spots off Spain is interpreted as a warning that Great Britain and France are prepared to block further shipments of men and war supplies to either side in Spain. The maps show how the fleet has been deployed, with various units at the ports of Gibraltar, Malta, Alexandria and Palma.

War Clouds are Lifting From Anxious Europe; Final Settlement Seen

Acute Tension Broken For First Time Since Before Christmas

VOLUNTEERS BANNED

Strict Neutrality Law Seen As Advantage to Spain

By HENRY CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Paris, Jan. 13 (AP) — In a sudden breaking of the acute tension which has bound Europe since before the Christmas holidays, France and Germany were reported today to be negotiating a vast accord in "full and lasting settlement" of their difficulties.

Ambassadors of both countries returned to their capitals bearing dispatches which, diplomatic circles said, signaled overtures for a broad economic and political agreement.

It was a sudden and welcome lifting of war clouds that had become increasingly darker since France and Britain stiffened their demands on Germany against volunteer aid to the insurgents in the Spanish civil war and reported German infiltration in Spanish Morocco.

Mutual Assurances Given

The first break came in Berlin where Chancellor Hitler and French ambassador Andrew Francois-Poncet exchanged mutual assurances of territorial integrity in Spain and her territories, including Spanish Morocco.

Immediately after the exchange, Francois-Poncet left for Paris with reports the Third Reich was leaning nearer and nearer a return to economic collaboration with the western European democracies.

Simultaneously Count Johannes Von Welczeck, German ambassador to France, left for Berlin.

A German Minister of Economics Affairs, Dr. Hjalmar Schact, was understood to have made arrangements to come to Paris before the end of the month. Certainly the representative of the government at the inauguration of the German building exposition, was to be reported vested with powers of an economic ambassador to conduct last moment conversations.

Britain Watch on Morocco

FARMER CRUSHED BY FALLING TREE

M. Ogle, Wellington, Sustains Serious Spine Injury

M. Ogle, 54, an employee of E. D. Grier, Wellington, Ontario, farmer, lies today in Picton Hospital, in a critical condition as a result of severe injuries sustained when he was crushed beneath a falling tree in the Grier woods early this morning.

Ogle, it is stated, was working with another man, Fred Davis, and had completed the cutting of the tree, when he stepped back to watch the tree fall. Brilliant sunshine temporarily blinded him and he stepped directly in the path of the falling tree.

He was rushed to Picton Hospital where examination revealed a severe fracture of the spine and other injuries. Dr. R. M. Sarles, Wellington physician, who attended the injured man held but little hope for his recovery.

Orillia To Wipe Out Town's Scrip System

Orillia, Ont., Jan. 12 (CP)—Orillia authorities today prepared to wipe out the town's scrip system after it had been in force less than one month.

When the town's finances looked none too bright, it was decided last year to issue scrip to help carry the relief burden. The system came into force last Nov. 20.

Last night the 1937 council met at its inaugural session and at end of scrip was written without a dissenting voice. Council approved a by-law repealing the two which inaugurated the scrip scheme. There will be no scrip issued henceforth and that in circulation will be redeemed at the town office or at Orillia banks starting Feb. 1 at one per cent discount.

Under the new by-law all unused or unissued scrip will be cancelled or defaced in the presence of the manager or accountant of the Royal Bank of Canada branch here and the Mayor or other members of council. Then all scrip in the town's possession will be burned.

Rocky Mountain Glaciers Decreasing

Montreal, Jan. 12 (CP)—If the Rocky Mountain glaciers continue receding at the speed of Dan McCows, Western Canada's rivers will be reduced "almost to nothing" in the next fifty years.

The glaciers, which the Banff naturalist described as the "reservoirs" of the prairies, are decreasing slowly, McCowan told the Montreal Women's Club yesterday.

"The climate is changing in the Rockies," he said. The glaciers are losing more in the summer than they gain in the winter. If this continues, rivers like the Saskatchewan will have dwindled almost to nothing in 50 years. The only thing we can do is to plant more trees to conserve the moisture.

Farmer's Hands Burned Trying to Save Cash in His Burning Home

Joseph Kelleher, Seymour Township farmer, was badly burned about the hands when he tried to extinguish fire that destroyed his home which he had hidden in an upstairs room.

Kelleher was in the barn when he noticed the smoke and flames. He tried to enter by the door, but he was met by a wall of flames. Neighbors rushed to his assistance and hastily formed a bucket brigade to fight the fire, but it raged out of control. Only two chairs and a table were recovered from the house.

The loss was estimated at $3,500, and was said to have been partly covered by insurance. Kelleher's collie dog was burned to death when trapped in the house.

The fire was believed to have started from overheated pipes in the kitchen. The house, on what is known as the Hugh Shannon Estate, was one of the first brick farm homes in this district. The fire did not spread to the outbuildings.

Rev. Father McAuley drove Kelleher to Campbellford for medical treatment.

9 Aboard Transport Are Feared Lost

Mexico City, Jan. 12 (AP)—Eight hope remained today for nine persons aboard a Mexican Aviation Company transport plane, missing since yesterday in the wilds of Vera Cruz State.

Three planes prepared to resume the search for the skilled workmen here and Mexican aviation after adverse weather conditions forced abandonment of earlier rescue efforts.

MAKE STATEMENT IN NEAR FUTURE

Col. D. F. Pidgeon Resigns From Ontario Securities Commission

Toronto, Jan. 13 (CP)—Col. D. F. Pidgeon resigned as chief investigator of the Ontario Securities Commission effective Dec. 31, 1936, it was announced today at the Securities Commission Office in Queen's Park.

A statement will be made regarding the resignation when John M. Godfrey, K.C., Securities' Commissioner, returns unofficially from his present illness and returns to his office.

Col. Pidgeon has not been at his home since the end of the year. He has been closely associated with Commission affairs for the past two years and was credited with being chiefly responsible for the Government's clean-up of several "racketeering" situations which developed in Toronto with United States operators as sponsors.

Col. Pidgeon assisted the succession duties branch on several occasions in recovering large amounts of money not paid for when large estates were settled.

King George's Marconi Wins Steeplechase

Birmingham, Jan. 12—(AP)—Great cheering greeted the announcement today of King George's Marconi who won the two-mile Sandringham Handicap steeplechase by eight lengths over Lady Dunraven's Dolphin.

H. Loyd's Royal Mail, a Grand National favorite, ran third in a field of 14. Marconi was quoted at 7 to 2, Dinton Lad 10 to 1, and Royal Mail 4 to 1.

Majorie Constable Refused Appeal

Toronto, Jan. 12.—(CP) —Concluding Marjorie Constable had become associated with men who had criminal records and had co-conspired with them in an attempt to foil the Brewers' Warehouse Wiarton July 27, the Ontario Court of Appeal declined today to reduce the sentence 18 months Magistrate Makins imposed after her conviction by a jury at Walkerton.

"It may be this woman proof to be separated from those men," said Chief Justice Rowell, who pronounced the court's judgment.

LITTLE HOLY MAN BURIED IN TOMB

Sombre Dignity of Pontifical High Mass of Requiem Celebrated

By John Lebanc, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Jan. 12 (CP)—Brother Andre's body, the repository of apparently miraculous powers in life, was laid in the tomb today with all the solemn splendor the Roman Catholic Church accords her great children dead.

Amid the sombre dignity of a Pontifical High Mass of Requiem, the little Holy man of Mount Royal was buried beside his imposing shrine atop the Mount, the $4,000,000 shrine he erected to St. Joseph from the gifts of pilgrims who called him a worker of miracles.

Archbishop Gauthier, at the ceremony, jammed into the low, vaulted crypt of the shrine to St. Joseph. Outside, while a trickle of snow slanted down and a chill wind gusted across the mountain, an estimated 15,000 more pressed against the doors.

All walks of life were there, in mingled grief at the 91-year-old friar who died last Wednesday af-

Madrid, Jan. 12—(CP-Havas)—A pounding government counter-offensive today sent German shock troops and other insurgent forces reeling back through the fog north-west of Madrid and cleared the strategic Madrid-Corunna road, the only northwestern life-line, defence council claimed today.

By 2 p.m. today, General Jose Miaja, Madrid commander, buried his crack international brigade and militia auxiliaries of the insurgent positions in the Majadahonda-Las Rozas sector.

The sector through which the La Coruna highway runs is about 10 miles northwest of Madrid.

Supported by tanks, the government forces swept the insurgents from positions commanding the highway which forms an intersection with the road to Escorial at Las Rozas and runs to the Madrid-Avila Railway. It was announced.

The government forces were pressing the insurgents back toward Majadahonda and the Villanueva Del Pardillo and Pozuelo sectors, in a southwesterly direction, it was claimed.

Second-Hand Desk Gives Up Secret

Vancouver, Jan. 12.—(CP)—A second-hand desk, hiding place of the 17-year-old will of an Alberta rancher, today had given up its secret but on the day of its discovery the will's sole beneficiary, the rancher's widow, died in ignorance of the document's contents.

Drawn in Havre, Mont., in Feb. 1926, by James Harvey Wallace, Lethbridge, Alta., the will voided a previous will and left the rancher's then substantial estate to Barbara Ellen Wallace.

After Wallace's death, his widow moved east from Lethbridge and she took the desk with her. Last Saturday, the day the missing will was found hidden in a secret drawer of a drawer in the old desk used by D. L. Leaghman, advertising manager for a departmental store here.

The desk had been in the store's possession for the past several years, but had been in Leaghman's office the past four. How it came first to the store was not known.

City and District News

RESERVISTS ASKED TO SEND ADDRESS

As one instance of the concern felt in British militia circles over the present European situation, it is reported that Imperial Army Reservists now residing in this district have been communicated with by the War Office in an effort to place their exact residences and other particulars.

One local ex-service man who maintains the list of names in the service group has forwarded the necessary details in answer to a communication received late last week.

SOME RECESSION OF EPIDEMIC SEEN

Some recession of a wave of mild influenza prevalent in the city during the past week or so has been noted in medical circles, it was reported today. Colder weather has been held responsible by nurses of the local Victorian Order for the abatement of the unusual number of contagious cases previously reported.

MAJORITY WORKING ON SEWER PROJECT

Engaged on various jobs now being carried on by the Department of public works, a total of 35 men were being given employment in the city the week. The majority of these workmen have been taken from the relief lists and employed on the chief job, that of constructing an emergency drainage sewer on Memorial Park on Cannifton Road.

FIREMEN EXTINGUISH BLAZING CHIMNEY FIRE

Answering an alarm shortly after nine o'clock this morning fire squads rushed to 21 Cedar Street where a blazing chimney and red hot stove pipe threatened to develop into a dangerous blaze. Prompt application of chemicals removed the fire hazard with little or no resultant damage.

TWO ROBINS SEEN ON ANN STREET TODAY

The reports that pussy willows, frogs and budding trees, and other harbingers of Spring have been in the mid-Ontario district have apparently reached the sunny south where migratory birdlife is preparing the signal to return. The mild springlike weather of the last few days has apparently had its effect on the latest news in spring styles comes from Ann Street, where Mrs. W. J. Cook reports seeing two robins perched in a tree in the family yard chirping merrily. Undaunted by the cool breeze which drifted through the branches, Mr. and Mrs. Robin, with their scarlet breasts showing a vivid patch of color against the barrenness of the tree chirped a spring roundelay, which although a trifle premature, born witness that spring cannot be far away.

SELLER OF STOVEWOOD CHANGES HIS MIND

Not even the mild Springlike weather of today enticed a single vendor to the city market this morning. Not a vegetable not an egg, nor an apple was in sight. The market square was deserted except for three optimists who paradoxically enough posted out-door on the mildest days of the winter to offer to the public their stock of stovewood.

"How much for the load," queried a local man of the owner of a truckload of capricious "fight oil-lers" came the answer. "Too much, give you six for it. "No, I'll take it back to Stirling with me," came back the truck driver. The polite local purchaser walked away.

"Hey, just a minute," he heard a voice shout. "I'll take that six dollars. Where do you want it delivered."

Mrs. R. J. Bell Ill In Chicago Hospital

Reports coming to the city, stated that the condition of Mrs. R. J. Bell, who is now in a Chicago hospital is very grave and little hope is held for her recovery.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Jan. 12 (CP)—A deep and wide-spread low area is centred in the Hudson Bay region and a trough of low pressure extends from Alberta northwestward to the Yukon with high pressure covering the greater part of the United States. The weather has been for the greater part fair from Manitoba eastward with some local snow in northwestern Ontario, and light snowfalls have occurred in Saskatchewan and northern Alberta. Temperatures is above normal throughout eastern Canada but it has become somewhat colder again in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Lake Superior: Fresh west to northwest winds; partly cloudy and colder tonight and Wednesday; Wednesday local snowflurries.

Kemora and Rainy River: Fair and cold Wednesday, partly cloudy and cold with snowflurries.

Western Provinces: Partly cloudy and milder tonight and Wednesday with light snow in some districts.

OPINION DIVIDED UPON REBUILDING OF CITY CHURCH

Another Meeting Will be Held by John Street Congregation

John Street United Church members met on Monday evening in the parlours of Bridge Street United Church to hear reports on matters arising out of the fire which destroyed John Street Church last autumn and divided almost evenly on the question of rebuilding or not rebuilding, that in the opinion of the meeting it was considered the part of wisdom to adjourn until a week from tonight when in all probability a definite decision will be made as to the future of the congregation.

Rev. Dr. Robert Laird, Toronto, treasurer of the United Church of Canada, occupied the chair, and Mr. J. B. Findlay was secretary of the meeting.

A brief financial statement of the work of John Street congregation for the year 1936 was presented at the wish of the members and showed the most successful of recent years in the church's history.

Mr. Bews, chairman of the property committee, presented a report on the problem of reconstructing the church buildings. This contained estimates of the cost of restoration.

There were about one hundred and fifty members in attendance. The Rev. Robert Hall, minister, took the devotional portion of the meeting.

Deplores Leniency Of Game Laws

Hull, Que., Jan. 12 (CP)—James O. McCuaig, secretary of a four-county Game Protective Association, today made public a memorandum sent to Sally Ward's Domilion correctional well life conference maintaining that under present laws "fish and game bootleggers receive more protection than do the fish and game."

The memorandum, from a Fish and Game Protective Association meeting at Gatineau, Hull, Pontiac and Pontiac, Que., declared that game and game fish were available "in almost any hotel, restaurant or club in Canada at any time, season or no season, law or no law."

Match-Tosser Loses Scarf by Carelessness

The boys were in a playful mood. Seated at the counter in a local restaurant last night, one of them lighted a cigarette and flipped the burning match over his shoulder. A cry arose from other occupants of the restaurant as flames and smoke curled in the air. He lighted match had ignited a scarf hanging on a hook on the wall. A moment later the match-tosser proudly held up the charred remnants of a silk scarf. Of the number of articles hanging on the hooks he had accidentally picked out his own in which to throw the lighted match.

HYDRO BOARD IS REORGANIZED

1936 and 1937 Boards Both Meet Today at Commission Offices

Belleville Hydro Commission, the old and the new, the 1936 and the 1937 boards, met for the first time today at the Hydro Commission Offices. Frank Street, Chairman G. A. Reid, Commissioner Duff and Ex-Mayor Harry Hill, the board for the year ending up the business and the new board of Chairman Reid, Commissioner Duff and Mayor R. D Arnott assuming the work of the new year. The mayors of last year and this were present at all throughout the sessions.

The 1936 commissioners, Chairman Reid stated that he could speak for the commissioners that we have enjoyed the year's work and co-operation which we have had throughout the city and council. Just here I may say we should like to express our appreciation with organisations or clubs in the city which are likely to approach the commission for favors of any kind, begun. If these organisations, will first come to the commission, they can obtain rates, there may be some difficulties avoided. I hope all such organisations will keep in mind date before us and I know that the commissioners duties and regulation, to carry out.

Ex-Mayor And Staff Praised

"I wish to thank Ex-Mayor Hill and the staff generally for the help given for their co-operation. There has been less a let on the board during the past year. I want just here to thank the manager and the commissioners for the kind way in which I am pleased to nominate Mr. Duff as chairman for 1937."

His motion to this effect was seconded by Mayor Arnott and Mr. Duff took the chair.

"I wish to welcome Mayor Arnott to the commission and I am sure that we shall have the same co-operation from him that we have had from Ex-Mayor Hill.

Commissioner Duff on assuming the chair, said he would have pre-ferred to have Mr. Reid continue as chairman, but Mr. Reid had seen fit to nominate him, Mr. Duff thanked the board for their confidence in him. He was delighted to have Mayor Arnott on the commission board.—Ex-Mayor Hill that the commissioners appreciated the co-operation of Mr. Hill during the past year.

On motion of Commissioners Reid and Arnott, the commission decided to take out membership in the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

The commissioners and manager will attend the annual meeting of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association.

Hydro Service

Commissioner Reid asked if there was too heavy a load on transformers Manager Scott stated that there was not, but said there was a little low voltage on the lines.

Mr Scott pointed out that the load is going up considerably. The average increase is about 600 H.P. This and further increases have to be taken care of and the commission has been preparing for this development. Some changes to be made about the first of spring, ought to overcome some of the conditions. Mr. Scott said that the utility was facing some obstacles, through the new lighting, which power was being fed in the city. This has been met in part by raising the voltage here somewhat.

Mr. Reid said "We must take care of our customers."

Manager Scott replied that the service will be maintained.

On the question of lighting on Victoria Avenue and Bridge Streets, Mr. Scott said the supplies had been ordered and would soon be delivered. He said that better results would be obtained by raising the lights about two feet to overcome dark spots. The lighting would greatly improve the streets.

Ex-Mayor Hill's Thanks

As the meeting was about to close, Ex-Mayor Hill took the opportunity to voice his appreciation of the co-operation he as mayor last year had received from the commissioners. "I enjoyed every meeting of the year," he said, "I did not attend a meeting at which I did not learn much about Hydro. Every meeting was straightforward business throughout the year. I wish to mention the co-operation of the manager and also of the chairman, Mr. Reid, and of Commissioner Duff, which went far to make the past year one I shall long remember."

SAWING MACHINE BADLY WRECKED

Radiator Damaged Beyond Repair by Unknown Persons

Apparently with malice aforethought three unidentified persons damaged and attempted to destroy a sawing machine, the property of W. Pratt, when some time during the week-end. Provincial Constable Wm. McBrien was notified of the incident yesterday and investigated, but little progress could be made. According to Mr. Post, he had left his sawing equipment in the vicinity of a woods along the second concession of Huntingdon on Saturday, with intentions of returning to cut wood on the following Monday. Upon his return however, Mr. Post found the radiator of the motor of his sawing machine had been damaged beyond repair. Those responsible for the alleged wilful damage had apparently taken the blunt end of an axe and hit the radiator with considerable force in numerous places.

POLICE BLOTTER

"Peace and quietness" local police officials reported today when it was revealed that no arrests were made during the week-end, the past 48 hours. Dr. J. Doyle, Provincial Constable Wm. Hall of the city today on official business, during which time he had before him for examination, three 'drunk' cases. No reports as to the disposition of same could be obtained however. The trio of persons to be examined by Dr. Doyle followed recent police court cases, one included a man, a teen aged youth and a woman.

Sergeant Thos. Moore, of the R. C. M. P. and Chief of city early today on official business.

Inspecting the local detachment of the Provincial Police were reported Constable Horan, of the local detachment of the Provincial Police, and of the Tyendinaga Reserve which come under the jurisdiction of the R. C. M.

Fifteen transients were given a warm night's lodging at the police station last night.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 2 (CP)—Among the answers of Purdue University students in a recent question department questionnaire was:

"Hate Sclassic was the grand champion Angus steer at the Chicago livestock show."

"Wallis Simpson was the husband of the woman Prince of Edward loves."

"Shirley Temple is a child movie star."

That last one? Ninety per cent score is correctly, but not a single student identified Maxim Gorky.

London, Jan. 12 (AP)—Eight men were dismissed from the naval dockyard at Devonport today following discovery of "certain documents" in their possession. The action resulted after an investigation of more than 20 workers suspected in sabotage of warships and leakage of confidential information.

Bowling Green, Ky., Jan. 12 — (CP)—Couples who want to be married here can have the service free of charge.

The newly-appointed Justice of the Peace, Kenneth D. Harris, 24, announced: "If you don't see anything else to do, I might just as well give them a free start in life."

Tulsa, Okla., Jan. 12 (CP) —At any rate let's be stylish, but Margaret Bell Ferrington, 17, found it is convenient at times to wear boots that are slightly too large.

At a Zoo here she stuck the toe of her right boot into a spotted leopard's cage. The animal took a savage bite.

Happily, the boot was "just enough big so big as my foot to easily and quickly," said Miss Ferrington. Keepers found tatters of remnants of the boot in the cage.

New York, Jan. 12 (CP)—Moses L. Paschkis, Brooklyn, N.Y., recently man was $1,000,000 power of attorney but went free on suspended sentence after pleading guilty to an indictment charging income tax evasion as far back as 1918.

The suspended sentence, handed down yesterday by Federal Judge Robert Inch carried five years' probation. United States Attorney said he believed the acceptance of $2,000,000 was the "largest money settlement in income tax fraud in the history of the country."

Millet, Alta., Jan. 12 (CP) — Schools were closed and business was almost at a standstill in this town 32 miles south of Edmonton today as an epidemic of a new form of influenza afflicted about three-quarters of the 350 population.

208 HOSTAGES BLOWN TO BITS

Mass Executions on Land Sea Causes Wave of Terror

At Bilbao, capital of the Basque regional administration supporting the Spanish Socialist government, 208 Rightist hostages were reported blown to bits or hacked to death in a mob orgy.

At sea, said advices reaching Bayonne from Bilbao, the captain and male of the Spanish insurgent freighter Virgin del Carmen were executed for "piracy" in connection with the killing of the crew and passengers of the government ship Celerca last Saturday. The Virgin del Carmen's officers were condemned by a Bilbao court. The number of victims aboard the Celerca, a trans-Bay of Biscay steamer was not announced, although one was said to have been the Basque journalist Jose de Arsitizabalo.

At Bilbao the mob executions spurred tension between the Basque Nationalists in control of the regional government and the Anarchistic elements which likewise support the Spanish government, but want direct and violent action against Fascists.

The cabinet of Juan Aguirre remained in power but reports from Bilbao said some of his ministers were threatening to resign because of the dissension.

The Havas news reported spreading to Santander, further west on the Bay of Biscay in Northern Spain.

Basque spokesmen insisted, however, there was no danger of the conflict opening the territory to the insurgents.

Diplomatic sources said most of the 208 Rightist prisoners were killed by mobs of Extremists who stormed the prison and blew them to bits with hand grenades.

ROYAL FAMILY RETURNS

LONDON, Jan. 12.—(CP Cable) —The King and Queen returned to London last night from Sandringham to supervise arrangements in connection with the moving of the Royal family to Buckingham Palace from their residence at 145 Piccadilly.

They travelled in the Royal coach attached to a regular express train. They will return to Sandringham in a few days.

3 AVIATORS KILLED

LONDON, Jan. 12—(CP Cable)— Three aviators were killed yesterday in two Royal Airforce crashes.

Flight Officer R. A. Watson and Aircraftsman L. Dies died when their plane crashed in flames near Aylesbury.

NEW CITY COUNCIL ROTARY GUESTS

Annual Function Mark of Good Fellowship And Co-operation

The annual ceremony of getting better acquainted with the new Mayor and Aldermen and civic officials was carried out by Belleville Rotary Club Monday when the City Fathers and officials were guests at the regular Rotary luncheon at the Hotel Quinte. The affair was most enjoyable and the spirit of fellowship and co-operation very manifest. Rotarians pledged their co-operation to the City Council and the Mayor and Aldermen pledged their co-operation with the Rotary Club in its good work for the unfortunate.

Jollity and good fellowship marked the occasion and much good natured heckling which added humor to the program, the impromptus being rich in humor and laugh provoking qualities.

President Jos Shorjt occupied the chair, and was his face red when he received the congratulations of the gathering upon his birthday which takes place this week. With the aid of a dainty cake and a monster golden bell President Joe controlled the turbulent hilarity of the gathering and imposed suggestion that those on the right leaders Mack Robertson Ed. Bernstein,' Jimmie Rose, et all, all for the benefit of the crippled children fund.

President Shorjt read messages of regret from Alderman Wills, unable to be present on account of being called out of town on his law business; Dr. Cronk, Medical Officer of Health, detained through official duties; and Ted Smith, Manager of the Waterworks Department, confined to his home through illness. Magistrate Hulley was accorded a welcome back to the court at Trenton. Assessor Ketchesen and Solicitor Bernard Collins were also unable to be present.

Mayor Richard Arnott was introduced and in a brief address congratulated the Rotary Club on its splendid work it was doing, mentioning particularly a case where an artificial foot was purchased for a young man at a cost of $100. A member of the Klansen Club himself, Mayor Arnott was familiar with and cheerful of the record with the splendid work being accomplished by the Rotary Club of Belleville in the care and cure of crippled children and assistance given adults fallen upon evil days through sickness, accident or infirmity. Co-operation in its good work was promised Rotary by Mayor Arnott on behalf of himself and the 1937 City Council. He then introduced members of Council present, all of whom spoke briefly, as follows:

Alderman Harold J Armstrong, Chairman Waterworks.

Alderman Laurie Lewis, Chairman Welfare.

Alderman Jesse Barlow, Chairman Fire.

Alderman Clarence Clapp, Chairman Public Works.

Alderman Burton Jennings, Chairman Gas.

Alderman Glenn Thompson, Chairman Light.

Alderman Harry Greenleaf, Chairman Board of Publicity.

Alderman Thomas Cushing, Chairman Market and City Property.

Alderman Cliff Barrager.

Alderman Wm. Harvey, Chairman Printing and Stationery.

Alderman Andrew Kennedy, Chairman Industries.

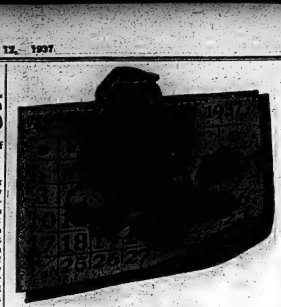
Alderman Jas Baldwin, Chairman Labor.

City Clerk Wilfred Holmes introduced the members of the personnel of city staff and City Engineer Peck introduced the personnel of the Hydro Commission in Chairman George Mitchell's absence through himself. Hydro Chairman George Reid spoke briefly.

Rotarian Perry McGuire was appointed Rotary representative to the Y.O.N. board.

Community singing under the leadership of Sandy Burrows, with Leo Riggs at the organ, put pep into the proceedings and the entire program was unique and enjoyable.

MAN DROWNS AS CAR SUBMERGED



Breaks Through Ice And Two Companions Swim to Safety

Des Joachims, Que., Jan. 12 (CP) —Armand St. Denis of Mackey's Station, Ont., was drowned yesterday, when a truck on which he was riding plunged through the ice of the Upper Ottawa River. Two companions escaped by smashing windows and struggling to the surface.

Denis, 36, was believed stunned when the heavy, log-laden machine crashed through the ice. Jamie Carey, the driver, and Reginald Brudeau, both of Mackey's Station, held their breath as the vehicle sank, smashed the cab windows and swam to the surface.

The truck broke through at a point where a stiff current keeps the ice worn on the under side. Mild weather was believed to have prevented the river, from freezing as solidly as usual at this time of year.

St. Denis' body was recovered. He was unmarried.

GOOD EVENING!

I AM YOUR 1937 BABY—YOUNG MR. BELLEVILLE OR WHAT HAVE YOU.

I REALLY HAVEN'T A NAME YET but that will arrive shortly.

I arrived early on the morning of New Year's Day, and brought nothing with me except a whole lot of grit, determination and the will to win.

I arrived naked and as there is a long journey ahead of me and I have no desire to be a nudist my requirements in the clothing line are many.

Unfortunately at the present time the family exchequer is low, my Daddy is out of work, and temporarily as least, we are rather up against it, to say the least. However, we believe that God is in His Heaven and all's right with the world, and that folks more favored by fortune than us have kindly hearts and will help give me a good start on that long journey ahead of me, if I am spared to travel it.

Listen, Neighbor, here's where you come in.

Through the kindness of KIRMA, THE MYSTIC, who in his mysterious way became acquainted with this New Year Baby directly he reached Belleville, I am enabled to start a Hope Chest, with the assistance of all good wishers in this great family of Ontario Intelligencer readers. KIRMA assures me that the kindly people of Belleville will gladly help fit me out for my journey and that a generous Hope Chest is already assured. KIRMA knows all the answers so I am full of Hope—and here's How. Listen to my friend The Editor who will tell you all about it.

Questions Answered in Paper

KIRMA, called the Man of Mystery, who answers all sorts of questions and has mystified and intrigued many citizens of Belleville already with his uncanny divination, has consented to answer questions FREE in this newspaper, the only condition being that a small or large donation be made for the 1937 New Year Baby. This can be made in clothing or goods of any kind suitable for a young baby, or cash donations from ten cents up. all to go to the Baby.

Questions will be answered by INITIALS only or any CODE letters furnished by the questioner to identify the answer which will be published in this newspaper.

Strictly Confidential

Names of questioners will be kept strictly confidential and their letters will be seen by the eyes of KIRMA only.

The answers will not have the names of the questioner only the initials or any code letters or word supplied by the questioner.

Miss Margaret Reynolds Heads Young Canada Club Of Thurlow Conservatives

Dr. H. E. Welsh, Member For East Hastings Gives Brief Address

MUSICAL PROGRAM

Officers Elected And Poll Leaders Appointed For Township

At a meeting, which taxed the capacity of their club rooms in Orange Hall, a meeting into which a noticeable new spirit of enthusiasm had been injected members of the Thurlow Young Canada Conservative Club held their annual election of officers at Canniffton last evening.

Unanimous choice for president for the ensuing year was Miss Margaret Reynolds, who acted during the past term as secretary.

Other officers elected were: Hon. Presidents, the Hon. R. B. Bennett; the Hon. Peter Bowe and E. H. D. Welsh, newly elected M.P.P. for East Hastings.

The local executive is composed of 1st Vice President, Wesley Orr, Jr.; 2nd Vice President, Miss Vera Thompson; Secretary - Treasurer, Miss Grace Millar; Pianist, Mrs. H. Harrison.

Representatives of each Poll are: Point Anne, H. Hollister; Poll 1, Concession 1: James Maiden; Second Concession, Chester Gardiner; Donoran Poll: Herbert Vrch; Collingwood, Adaline Rose; Canniffton: Mrs. Clayton Kingston; Coeyville: Mr. Ryan; Wallbridgeboro: Stanley Sherry; Zion Hill: Clinton Townsend; Plainfield: Mrs. Roscoe Rodgers.

Retiring President Praised

Full appreciation for the services rendered by retiring President Fred Mitchell, was voiced by the members present. In opening the business session Mr. Mitchell took occasion to thank all members who had made the year of office so enjoyable. "During my term of office my burden was much lightened by the efforts of every member present," added Past President Mitchell. Then he called upon Mr. Mitchell was not remonstrated in defeat.

Dr. H. E. Welsh, guest speaker of the evening, in the briefest of addresses declared his pleasure at being present, where he had always been made to feel at home at home. He thanked electors of Thurlow for having made my election possible, and pledged himself to the support of the club and members at all times. To the new President, Miss Reynolds, the hope, that her tenure of office would be an enjoyable and interesting one.

"Clubs such as this have a place in any community," declared Dr. Welsh. "They develop and foster greater community spirit and tolerance toward each other; they help make better citizens. This club has many possibilities and I sincerely suggest, that during the coming year more educational topics be dealt with, as the regular meetings. This will be especially welcomed, and, to the younger members of the Club. Don't be too anxious to import outside speakers all the time. Train your own members to rise and speak; train them to learn to think on their feet and to take a keener interest in the local and national affairs. And I can foresee further Young Canada Clubs being formed in districts where their worth has already begun to receive recognition."

Sweeping Victory Predicted

Dealing with the present Hepburn government briefly, Dr. Welsh could see no cause for alarm, and to the younger citizens of Ontario as the result of any of its actions since assuming office.

"I cannot feel that the present government will place any measure of good citizenship before the people." The main issue recognized by the newly elected representative hinged upon declared laxity of Liquor Control administration in the granting of contracts; the cut in services to those described as the needy and the passing of legislation in various forms without receiving a mandate from the people it represented.

A sweeping victory at the polls for the Conservative party at the next provincial election was prophesied by Dr. Welsh.

"Under the leadership of the Hon. Earl Rowe we intend to sweep on to victory and we will not rest until this is done," added the speaker amidst thunderous applause.

Mr. John M. Reynolds, introduced to those present took the occasion to wish the Thurlow Club every success and to promise his aid in any effort during the coming year.

Introduced by Mr. Harry Scallan, Mrs. E. A. Clarke, who as first president of the Young Canada Club held that office for three years, was also given a warm reception. Past President Mrs. Clarke paid tribute to the growth of the club since its formation in 1934 and the enthusiasm with which its affairs had always been carried on. "The enthusiasm of our young people in this club must be an inspiration for the older members also. We need those young people for without them the Club would not be able to progress as it has done in the past. Let us keep going forward at all times," added Mrs. Clarke.

Musical Program

Called upon for a brief remark, Miss Margaret Reynolds, newly elected president voiced the hope that during the coming term she would be given the same loyal support that had been accorded other presidents. The hope rested, that we may keep this club in the same good condition and shape that it is at the present time when I take it over," added Miss Reynolds.

Mr. Bruce Martin, well-known active member of the club declared that the present was one of the most successful in the whole history of the club, particularly during the past few months. "But now that we have come through we intend to keep right on doing our work and make the Club bigger and better all the time," he added.

During the evening a community singing was led by Mr. Martin with Mrs. Harry Harrison as pianist.

Other entertainers were Ila and Leslie Reeves on the guitar; Mildred Day and Joyce Woodhouse, clever little dancers; Adelaide Rose and Vera Thompson, songs Diane Martin, piano; the Plainfield Quartette, composed of H. Harrison, Jr.; James Arkille; Sherman Parks and Homer Hoard, who offered several selections.

Previous to the close of the meeting, Norman White of Thomasburg, Master of the Liberal Association, M.P.P., was introduced to the gathering by Dr. Welsh who cited him as one of the most influential young men in the country on current affairs.

Following lunch served by the ladies, a social dance, dancing was then held until a late hour.

DOUBLE FUNERAL AT PICTON

Picton, Ont., Jan. 12.—(CP) — Double funeral was held here yesterday of a mother and daughter, Mrs. James Patterson and Mrs. Hamlet Xipp. They died within a few hours of each other, at their home in London, Ont.

Mrs. Patterson in her 100th year, resided here until ten years ago when she went to live with her daughter in London.

OLDEST IN CANADA

Obituary

MRS. CHARLES DRAKE (Trenton)

The death occurred at the Belleville General Hospital early this Tuesday morning of Mrs. Charles Drake, age 18 years, residence Trenton. She entered the hospital Monday evening.

MRS. EDDIE BROWN (Wauseon)

Picton, Jan. 12 (Special)—A sad death occurred at her residence in Wauseon, on Thursday, January 7, when Ethel Mae Norton, beloved wife of Eddie Brown, passed away, aged twenty-seven years. The deceased was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ben Norton, and had been in failing health, for a year. She had been confined to her bed for the past three weeks. She is survived by her husband and three small children, nine, six and two years of age. Also surviving are three sisters, all residing at Wauseon, and six brothers, Will and George Norton, of Picton, and four residing in Ontario. The deceased was a member of the Anglican Church, and the funeral service was conducted at her late residence on Monday afternoon, January 8th, by Rev. Allan Anderson, of Wauseon, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives, friends and neighbors.

MRS. MARY JANE PATTERSON (Picton)

Picton (Special)—One of the oldest residents of Picton, Mary Jane Bongard, widow of the late Joseph Patterson, passed away at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. Hamlet Xipp, London, Ontario, on Thursday, January 7th, in her 100th year. The cause of death was "ill-ripened by old-age," and the deceased had enjoyed remarkably good health her long lifetime until a short time previous to her death. For many years her home was on Bridge St., Picton, but when she went to Ayr to live alone, she went to Lorne Park to live with her daughter. A sad incident in connection with her death was the death of this daughter, Mrs. Xipp, on the same day as her mother, and from the same cause, namely, old age, only a few years ago, and was born in Picton where she spent her girlhood until her marriage. She was a strict adherents of the Anglican Church. The only surviving children of Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. Byron Harrison, passed away in Picton two years ago. The two bodies were brought to Picton for burial in Glenwood cemetery and a short service was held in Glenwood Chapel by Rural Dean, O. G. Waller on Monday afternoon. Mrs. Harry Clark of Picton, Mrs. Ivan Bongard of Wauseon are granddaughters of Mrs. Patterson. Mrs. Clark went to London on hearing of the illness of the grandmother and aunt, but on continuing worse, also was forced to return home.

MRS. JOHN VANCLEAF (Picton)

Picton (Special)—After a long illness, the death occurred 4th here yesterday morning of Mrs. Thimsley, January 7th, of Emily Maude Vanclief, aged seventy-four years. The deceased was born in Athol township, Prince County, a daughter of the late Capt. Sealy and Mrs. Ann Jane Cole. Early in life she married Mr. Vanclief, a farmer of Rest Lake, who predeceased her twenty years ago. Surviving are one son, Harvey Vanclief, of Picton and one daughter, Mrs. Clair Pearson, of Picton. The deceased was a member of the Presbyterian church. The funeral service was conducted by her pastor, Rev. Mr. Stone, at her late residence on Saturday afternoon at 2.30 and interment made in Cherry Valley.

MRS. WILLETT HEARELY (Picton)

Picton (Special)—At ten-thirty o'clock Saturday morning, at her late residence, Main Street, Rev. David Wren conducted an impressive funeral service for an elderly and respected resident of Picton, Lucinda Maddison, wife of William Hearely, whose death occurred at her home on Monday, January 4th, following a few days' illness with pneumonia. The deceased was born in Athol township, eighty-four years ago, but had spent her long married life in Picton where Mr. Hearely conducted a jewellery business until his retirement from years ago. Surviving are her husband and two sons, Everett and Norman, both living in the western part of the United States, who came to Picton on hearing of the death of their mother. Interment was made in Glenwood cemetery.

"A NEW RACKET"

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 12.—(CP)—A new racket has sprung up in Windsor and district, according to Archie P. Gignac, solicitor for Sandwich West Township, which has struck hard at the prominent making trade here.

Mr. Gignac said slugs were being brought in Detroit at $1.50 a thousand and used to play machines here where each token is worth five cents in merchandise. Mr. Gignac thought that was hardly a paying proposition for manufacturers to have the machine on their premises.

NEW COUNCIL

Everyone will wish the new city council the utmost success in the performance of the duties which will fall to its lot to perform during the coming twelve months. Mayor Arnott, the young chief magistrate, in the course of his inauguration address pointed out to the aldermen that there was a heavy task resting on the council this year as a number of very important questions will come up, some of them problems which are becoming perennial, others as a result of the expression of the will of the voters in the election on the bylaws last week.

His sounded a note of economy—limitation of the outlay wherever possible. He said the tax-payers and property owners are entitled to the utmost economy in expenditures, because the taxes for many years cannot be reduced appreciably. He pointed forward five years for the first sign of lightening of the tax burden at the end of which period there will be a number of debentures matured.

Those who own property naturally take interest in the reference of His Worship that "the prosperity of the city is founded primarily on our homes, and I feel it is only by making the purchase of a home attractive to the citizen and thereby have him invest his money here, that conditions will improve."

His Worship's promise of the utmost open discussion of matters in council meetings meets a criticism which has been heard against some previous councils in regard to committee meetings held on the night of council meetings. He promises to do away with this system of meetings of committees on council nights, which practically means, citizens naturally infer, that what would ordinarily have been discussed in committee on such nights before coming into council will now be discussed in council in its entirety.

TWO TRUSTEES RETIRE

Col. W. N. Ponton, K.C., thirty years member of the Board of Education, has retired from the trusteeship in which he has served so long and so faithfully for the young and for the rest of the community. As the termination of his three years as collegiate trustee arrived, he expressed a desire not to be reappointed by the city council.

What Col. Ponton has given to the cause of education is bound up in a very large measure with the state of education in this city and in the Province of Ontario. The trustee who served Belleville for a generation has served the University of Toronto as a member of its Senate for thirty-one years, in this way touching and moulding not only the life of his native community, but also advancing the higher education leading into the professions those who were to fill outstanding positions in the Dominion of Canada.

His active service will be missed on the Belleville Board of Education and his name will long be remembered in this regard.

Another trustee who has retired is Mr. George F. Ostrom, well known business man. He has given ten years to the cause of education in the city and has been one of the most faithful and assiduous of the members in the performance of his duties. Mr. Ostrom has offered a solution of many problems which have come before the board. His seat as trustee and his keenness of perception made him one of the outstanding members of the Board. Of him too it can be said that he will be missed.

Both these men have served this community in many other ways, as members of the city council in years past, and have rounded out their public service with the application of the wisdom gathered in a lifetime of activity to the cause of the oncoming generations.

MANY DO NOT VOTE

Too few Belleville voters voted at the recent municipal elections, somewhere about 3,725, that being the number who cast ballots in the mayoralty contest. Many more electors should have voted, but what might be called a fair vote was rolled up. Somehow it seems impossible to get anywhere near a complete vote. An interesting fact is that none of the bylaws polled so large a vote as the mayoralty, the chief reason being of course that the human interest is always greater than in the problem, the personality of mayoral candidates can be depended upon to draw more votes than the questions "yes" and "no" on the public utility commission establishment, reduction of Council and Board of Education, or city management.

The franchise is one of the most priceless liberties won down through the ages in the development of British freedom. Taken as a matter of fact, to some it seems not worth troubling one's self to exercise the right; deprived of it, a man would find the loss momentous and would agitate for its revival. The law allows no interference with a vote, but a voter through lack of interest may reject and disregard his right as if it did not exist.

WINTER RAIN

Your touch was gentle on the shingled roof
That leaned so nearly to my sleeping head;
In its soft dropping like the hushed reproof
A mother murmurs by the tumbled bed
Where the untamed, the wayward and the wild,
Returned from darkness to this place of light,
Is, in his slumber, still a little child
Whom she may cherish for another night.
Your voice was quiet, and my name it said—
The note that childhood and a hearth-fire knew.
You spoke it softly, and as softly sped . . .
I heard your running steps. I called to you.

What small, what simple things to miss so much—
The rain's soft speaking and the rain's sweet touch!

WOMEN SHIVERING ON THE MARKET starts something in the breast of a Sidelight reader who wishes to broadcast the opinion that Belleville, in view of the importance of the rural trade to business-men, pays little attention to cultivating it by promoting the comfort of the visiting vendors to this market. Suggests an umbrella roof for outside vendors and a larger and more comfortable inside market, besides attractive and comfortable rest rooms for our market day visitors. Talk of spending money on signs and sich in the rural sections asking prospective buyers to come to Belleville and patronize the stores would not seem to be nearly as important as making their stay more pleasant and memorable when they do come. Something to talk about and bring return visits. A little more pep and progressive spirit this year should pay big dividends.

WHEN LAURIER AND THE LIBERALS TOOK OVER THE GOVERNMENT AT OTTAWA in 1896 Laurier picked what was called the "Cabinet of all the Talents", the greatest bunch of brains and statesmanship ever gathered together under one cabinet roof, it was alleged Belleville's 1937 City Council may be classed as a council of many and varied talents. Counting the Mayor there are two lawyers, one active merchant, one retired merchant, several railway men, one travelling salesman, one baker, two service station managers and such dabs as a barber, a sanitarium shop expert. Now if that isn't a combination city council of all the talents, what is?

MAX SCHMELLING IS PEEVED. It has come to Der Mex's ears that his proposed match with James J. Braddock for the world championship is liable to be a box office frost on account of an alleged boycott now being organized. Herr Schmeling came over from Germany with little else than a return ticket. He was not permitted to take any German money out of that country, except just enough for expenses, but he hurried back with his big Yankee purse to spend in Germany. Naturally he is not a popular figure in the United States on his own account and on account of his Boss, Herr Hitler. Maxie might better cross the water and settle down here where the picking is very much betterich.

CORRESPONDENT TO THIS GREAT FAMILY JOURNAL REJOICES in the fact that the citizens voted to subsidize a city band and suggests more and better open air concerts, particularly in Victoria Park where the motor cars cease from troubling and tired mothers are at rest while their children gambol on the green and in the pool. As mankind emerges from the red into the fringe of a greater prosperity than has been there is a definite trend toward mass gayety. With more work there must be more play, and the music that is said to have power to sooth the savage breast, melt a rock or split a cabbage, is an essential ingredient in outdoor enjoyment.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Jan. 12th, 1917.

At eight o'clock this morning the thermometer registered fifteen degrees below zero and at nine o'clock it registered twenty degrees below.

Mr. Randolph Thoker, son of Ven. Archdeacon Tucker of Hamilton, Bermuda, is spending a few days in the city, the guest of Mr. Harry Wagner, George St.

Mr. D. V. Ellis will represent Belleville as a member of the Temperance deputation that will wait upon the Government today in the interest of Dominion wide prohibition.

Mr. Wendell Osborne, son of the Rev. H. S. Osborne, the former pastor of Bridge Street Methodist Church who studied law with the legal firm of Messrs. O'Flynn, Diamond and O'Flynn in this city, has passed his third year in law. In a list of 72 candidates Mr. Osborne stood third and we congratulate him on his high standing. Mr. Osborne's chances of success won him many friends while he resided here and they will be pleased to learn of his success.

KIDNAPPED BOY

Skeva, when asked if Dr. Mattson ever went out to make "personal contact with the kidnappers," said he would not "deny that."

Three times Dr. Mattson contacted the kidnapper through letters addressed to Skeva in an effort to get the $28,000 ransom, but failed to receive assurances that it would be forthcoming. Expressions of fears were confirmed when Gordon, aged 12, found the dead boy in a slight depression in the snow during a hunting trip.

The State Legislature, as it opening session, prepared to put a spending session, prepared to put a head.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Bureau of Investigation, threw the full force of the bureau into the case at Chicago. Hoover debated flying here.

Feelings Run Strong

Feeling against the child's slayer ran strong in Tacoma and was echoed in legislative corridors in the State capital at Olympia. The bitter wish was expressed that Hauptmann would be found and a short-cut taken to place him on the gallows.

Sentiment rose as the brutality of the crime was reflected in medical findings.

At seattle, Otto Mittelstadt, King County coroner, reported evidence the boy had been bound and roughly treated before he was killed.

Dirt and grease in the skin indicated the body had been taken to the spot where he was found on the floor of a dirty, jolting old automobile, the coroner said.

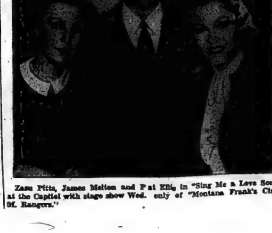
"Besides an ugly wound on the left side of the head, where the boy had been struck with some blunt object, there were other marks and bruises on his body," the coroner said.

Dumped Near River

Blue-gray clay on the fingers led the coroner to believe the body first was dumped along a river bank. Mittelstadt said the boy was beaten to death.

Federal agents made cast, of a single set of footprints leading from a highway to the place Charles' body was found. Likewise, they recorded automobile tire tracks at the scene.

Similarities, between the Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., kidnapping in New Jersey in 1932 and the Grace Weyerhaeuser kidnapping in Tacoma in 1935 also were visible in the Mattson case.



Pick-up Orders Issued

To these were added the possibility a demented person or a "chance" kidnapper had committed the crime.

Pick-up orders were out for many persons whom authorities considered possible suspects.

Prowling about the George G. Franklin mansion and the finding of a ladder there late in November were not overlooked. The Franklins, believing an attempt was underway to kidnap their five-year-old son, John, fled to California. Their place is about two blocks from the Mattson residence. A ladder found there was sent to the F.B.I. at Washington, D. C.

The Mattsons' two remaining children, William, 16, and Muriel, 14, remained in seclusion with the family. They have not been in school since their brother was captured in their presence.

LEGIONNAIRES IN FRENCH MOROCCO WILL REFUSE GERMANY

This aerial of French legionnaires is typical of the hardy breed of fighting man that France relies upon to defend her African possessions. The squad was pictured during mountain manoeuvres at Fez, occupation of Spanish Morocco. All French Moroccan garrisons have been placed on wartime footing and normal strength raised from 40,000 will use force to prevent German to 100,000.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was starting to go upstairs to bed last nite and I shawt, Aw back whats a use going to bed every nite just to get up in the morning to go to school again, cood tie what a life.

Wich just then I had a idea, thinking, if I hide my cap terrible in some good place I mite get quite remarkable where it is tomorrow morning, and by the time I find it I mite be late for school and ma mite have to stay home for the whole session so as not to spoil the class's record for promptness.

And I went down again and hid my cap, thinking, There's nothing crazy about it as long as I dont tell any actual lies.

And this morning after breakfist I said, Ma, can you where my cap is? and ma said, Now is that old scrip and dance starting again? Now before you start running around like a chicken with its head cut off, look in your hat rack.

Being the worst personal question she could of asked, and I said, Mam? Do you mean that place? I said.

Now for land sakes can anybody possibly put anything anywhere unless it's some place? ma said, and I said, Sure, ma, you can put it somewheres you dont remember, and that's no place till you remember it, is it, ma?

I'll put a smack some place where you'll remember it, this is no time to be splitting hairs, ma said.

Wich just then I remembered about Miss Kitty going to give a prize this morning for the best work in drawing in school, drawing being my best thing, and I said, O well I bet I can find it if I concentrate, and ma said, Then concentrate.

Wich I did, yelling, I got it, ma, I got it.

Where was it? ma called, and I called back, Under the mat in the vestebule.

Saying it when I was half ways from the front door so as not to leave room for any more questions.

ROSLIN COUPLE MARK FORTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kincaid Entertain Large Gathering

Roslin—On Wednesday evening, January 6th, about 60 guests gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kincaid in the form of a surprise party to celebrate with them the occasion of the fortieth anniversary of their marriage.

On Jan. 6th, 1897, Miss Elizabeth Allen became the bride of Mr. Robert W. Kincaid. They were married at the old Grills Homestead on the 4th concession of Hungerford by Rev. M. H. Scramith of Actinolite at the home of P. J. Allen. The ushers were Mr. Frank Grills now of Wreck Bay, and Elmer Allen, brother of the bride. The bridesmaid was Miss Mary Kincaid, sister of the groom.

The weather was identically the same 40 years ago as it is at present and with the exception of mild weather. The groom resided on the farm now owned by his brother, Mr. Dan Kincaid on the 4th concession of Hungerford or what was known as the Rankin Homestead.

The young couple lived in a log house for nine years and then built a frame house which still stands there. The barn is the original one built about 70 years ago by Mr. Ramsay.

Mr. Kincaid is the oldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Kincaid and was born on May 20th, 1866 on the farm now owned by Mr. Dan Kincaid on the 4th concession of Hungerford or what was known as the Rankin Homestead.

He has engaged in farming all his life and in his early days cut cordwood for 65c per cord for body maple. Wood was cut and hauled by Isaac Bellefleur a distance of 20 miles for from $2.00 to $2.50 a cord. In those days the hotels were very numerous through the country and did a rushing business.

Mr. Kincaid has been a member of L. O. L. No. 638 Montgomery for over 53 years and also a member of Tweed Lodge A. F. and A. M., No. 369 for nearly 15 years. He is a conservative in politics and a member of St. Pauls Anglican Church.

Mr. Kincaid has three brothers living namely John of Kingston, Dan of Moneymore and Thomas of Dundas, a brother William passed away in the year 1931 and a sister Mrs. Archie MacKean of Moneymore died in the year 1931.

Despite his 71 years Mr. Kincaid takes an active part in all farm duties.

Mrs. Kincaid was born near Thomasburg on Canada 9th, 1871, on the farm now occupied by Mr. George Schwager, and is a daughter of the late Samuel Grills and Jane Trumpour. She has always enjoyed good health and spends her spare time knitting socks and mitts. She has been a member of the church for making butter that has been in use for over 43 years. Baking bread has been a household duty since her marriage and is one of which she is very proud. She has always been a good neighbor, ready to lend a helping hand in cases of sickness or trouble. Even at 61 years she still is able to do her share of the chores on the farm around her in her home.

Of the union three children were born: Ethel, Mrs. Percy Hamilton of Marysville; Mary, Mrs. Willis Wilson of Belleville and Robert at Lewis Cummins of Belleville. There is one granddaughter, little Shirley Ann Hamilton.

The immediate family were present at a supper at 6 o'clock with all the other guests arrived. The evening was spent in music and games and lunch being furnished by Messrs Stanley Carter and Jean Tracey at 11.30 a.m. when all departed for home.

During that long period of matrimonial life you have known grief and sorrow, but you have also maintained your optimism which has strengthened you in your fighting spirits. On the other hand, you have had the pride and joy of seeing your family grow and mature, it must be a source of great pleasure to you to know that Providence has dealt so generously with you.

We hope that this golden book which can favour anyone, namely, health and strength, may be showered upon you in the years to come and that you will be privileged to see not only your Golden Wedding anniversary, but also the Diamond Jubilee of your married life.

As a small memento of this event we would ask you to accept this gift. We trust that you will be long abundantly blessed you during advancing years, and your remaining days will continue to be your Pilot and Guide through the years that lie ahead and that peace and happiness may reign supreme to the end of your lives.

Signed, Frank Coulter, Jack Johnson.

A beautiful walnut chesterfield table, the gift of the community, was presented by Lois and Carmel Coulter, the twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Coulter.

Mr. and Mrs. Kincaid both very graciously expressed their thanks and appreciation to those present for their kind wishes and lovely gifts.

B.Y.P.U. NOTES

Rev. Dr. James . Semple entertained ministers of Bridge Street United Church of this city, was guest speaker at the regular meeting of the B.Y.P.U. last night. He spoke on behalf of the Fellowship Group of which James Ardiel Thomas is leader.

In the absence of the president, Miss Edith Locker, the very capable first vice-president, Miss Audrey Rowland, took charge of the meeting. This was the first meeting of the New Year and during the hilarity good representative attendance was noted.

Mr. Lorne Andrews in charge of the Motorcycle Road Race for the Fellowship Group, gave the splendid a report on the race. Of the four Groups, four were in the race, bunched together with the fourth one not far behind, showing that a collective interest is being taken. The Groups in order of merit with their respective point standings are—Stwardship Group, leader Miss Vivian Hamilton, points: Devotional Group, leader Miss Wanda Rowse, points: Fellowship Group, leader Miss Janet Grant, 278 points: Service Group, leader Mr. Ross Orr, 218 points. The contest ends within three months.

Arthur Locker introduced Rev. Dr. Semple as the B.Y.P.U.

Dr. Semple took as the theme of his address "Social Mindedness of Christianity". The speaker dealt with the Social Order throughout the ages and then led up to Communism in which a very splendid account of what it stands for, its good points and it failings were given. Miss Janet Grant thanked Dr. Semple for his interesting address.

Ask Your Husband to Help You

END A COLD Quicker

with the 3-Minute VapoRub Massage

Of course, you can really do most of this yourself. But he'll gladly help you end that misery of cold.

Massage VapoRub briskly on the throat, chest and back (between and below the shoulder blades). Then spread it thick over the chest and cover with warmed cloth.

Already, your VapoRub has begun to bring relief—two ways at once:

1: Through the Skin: VapoRub acts direct through the skin like a poultice or plaster.

2: Medicated Vapors: At the same time, its medicinal vapors, released by body heat, are breathed in for hours—about 18 times a minute—direct to the irritated air-passages of the nose, throat and chest.

This combined poultice-and-vapor action eases the tickling cough, starts relief from relieves irritation—helps break congestion.

While you relax from comfortable sleep, VapoRub's two-way treatment keeps right on working. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Now White—Sweetless

Thanks to a new process, VapoRub now comes in pure white odorless form. Only the color is removed; it is the same VapoRub—the same formula and the same effective double action.

Belleville Junior "Redmen" Defeat Galloping Petes 4-3 To Lead Entrants in Loop

Locals Progress as Game Advances But Tired at End

SWELL GOAL TENDING

Petes Score Three Goals in Last Period Drive

Flashing a second period offensive which netted them a brace of goals, and a brand of hockey which satisfied the packed rabid crowd, Eddie Thomas' non-roving puck-chasers turned back the speedy Peterborough junior sextette at the Arena here last night by a 4-3 count, which not only brought them their second win of the current season but cemented their hold on first place in their particular O.H.A. group. Setting a clamp upon the Petes in the first, the Peterborough Colts opened and effected hostilities early on the offensive, but during the interval the local Pontiac ran in four sweet combination plays for counters, one individual play. The score by periods was 0-3, 2-0.

Although the hockey played in the initial period was not on a par with that seen as the game progressed, the game proved a typical junior hockey with the players trying all they knew and neither sparing the rod. The Peterboro visitors, the Petes seemingly could not get started and were seen at a poor advantage while the Colts effected in the initial frame, but early in the second canto the Petes grabbed the lead and from that point never were headed.

Sharpe a Standout

Sharpe, the Belleville nets, played nothing short of a sensational game of net-minding in the local defended area given considerable support by Gord Derry and McCreary, The latter also checked well and did assist in the defensive work, while carrying the puck occasionally up the ice. Tompkins, Storme and Cain took the best, with Tompkins standing out as the best bet, and he was harassed over the boards by either speed Harding, in the Peterboro camp and Clark on defence, Kingdon and Bradley on the forward line proved good hockey for the losers with "Stuart" Rea starring with his clever skating and rather rough playing. The Petes showed a little more polish and skill in the finishing process, but the local Ponies proved themselves speedy and invariably in numerous drives into their territory successfully with good defensive work of Sparks and Cain to circle around the nets, however.

Play was rather ragged and slow during the initial 20 minutes, with the Petes getting the first counter of the first few minutes. Once the local Colts gained confidence, however, they checked the visitors well in every department and many a dangerous rush was broken up right at the goal-mouth with both Harding and Sharp at opposite ends of the Arena. Tompkins on several occasions, McCreary, Derry and Morgan all were checked off well by the Peterboro' goal-mouth, while Sharpe proved a capable defence as Heal, Al Clark, Kingdon and Starr all, at different intervals, were in potential scoring position, but could not score on the invincible Sharpe who was the regular entered in the initial frame.

Speed Marks Second

The second period opened with the Petes on the offensive, but later the Ponies assumed the power drives and after several unsuccessful attempts Tompkins scored the goal, when following a nicely executed combination play Don Tompkins passed to Tommy Cain after drawing all the Colts' defence to have Cain make sure with a hard low drive that completely baffled Sharpe. Two minutes later with a hair-raising bit of stick-handling Bill Storme raced through the entire Peterboro' outfit to score a second. Belleville in command, the Petes terminated the period on the offensive as Jopling, White and Heal were thwarted by Sharpe's close in.

The last stanza was doubtless the most thrilling of the night as both teams played a bang-up sensational style of hockey. This period Belleville opened on the offensive and after one minute of play Tompkins batted in a rebound from Cain and Morgan, Heal then took White's pass to score for the Reds and on an individual effort Clark shot from outside the local defence and the rubber sifted past Sharpe to make the score 3 to 2 for the locals with the Petes pressing hard. Tompkins sailed through all, but failed to pass and himself, but came back again on a counter-play to stick-handling through the Petes and to pick the upper corner of the net for what proved to be the winning goal. Heal netted the final counter after a hectic scramble in front of the Peterboro goal. The visitors applied numerous power plays and moved five players forward to try in vain to scoring the equalizer, but the Ponies stayed off their advances and deserved victory. The game was clean throughout, only four penalties being meted out by Referees Weir.

The lineups:

Peterborough—Goal, Harding; defence, Clarke, Crowe; Centre, Starr; wings, Heal, Wright; Subs—Kingdon, Bradley, White, Jopling, Cornish.

Belleville—Goal, Sharpe; defence, McCreary, Derry; centre, Morgan; wings, Morgan, Tompkins. Subs—Green, Romsky, Robinson, Storme, Jackson.

LYNN PATRICK MAKING GOOD

Ranger Player Out For Ten Days With a Twisted Knee

New York, Jan. 12.— (CP)— Severely wrenched knee suffered in the game against New York Americans last Tuesday and aggravated in the match with Montreal Maroons Saturday night has put Lynn Patrick, flashy wingman of New York Rangers, on the shelf for at least ten days physicians said today.

The type of injury is particularly exasperating to the big, blonde son of General Manager Lester Patrick. Not only is it the first leg handicap he has suffered since he jumped to the National Hockey League from Edmonton Royals three years ago but it is also the first time he has been forced to the sidelines since turning up and gliding about the frozen surface learning the fadeway shift of Manager Conn Smythe, Frank Boucher, Cecil Dillon and sharpshooting of Bunch Shelling.

Young Patrick was a crude skater when he first went from the Royals to Rangers' Broadway Blue.

He had had only one season with Royals after coming west from Toronto, B.C., where he was unable to find ice to skate on during four years. Naturally he was awkward and to correct this fault Patrick skated at every opportunity. It is conservatively estimated that since signing his first pro contract he has spent upward of 500 hours skating in an effort to correct his lack of speed and poise.

His determination to reach the top as a skater and his ability to absorb the knowledge so willingly proffered by his teammates is due to pay 22-year-old Lynn good dividends. He is valued on the Putnam market today at $13,000, according to Art Ross of Boston Bruins and is in a position to force Patrick to pay a tophand salary next season.

HOCKEY MATERIAL STILL HIGHCLASS SAYS D. MANNERS

Coach of Pittsburg Team Does Not Fear Death of Players

TALENT ON INCREASE

Believes Canada Will Be Able to Supply Players Needed

(By George McGuire, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 12 (CP)—Fears held by some hockey-minded people that Great Britain and Europe will drain all the first class puckchasers from Canada are considered groundless by Dinny Manners, veteran Ottawa mentor, now guiding the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets through the rugged schedule of the United States Eastern Amateur League.

Before departing with his team for Atlantic City today he laughed at the suggestion Canada's production of talent is falling off, co-incident with the lavish spending on the border and across the Atlantic.

"I don't believe that at all," he said. "After our playoffs were over last season I travelled extensively in Eastern Canada and found the supply of top-notchers plentiful. The pro-season finishing this season I had 26 players in my camp. They were all good; so good in fact I had a real problem on selecting the squad I could use. If I had wanted I could have had 50 of the best type of boys reporting to camp. I think Canada is going to be equalling to supply the world with hockey players for a long time to come."

One of Best Teams

Manners has certainly cut one of the best teams in the eastern circuit. During the past few years that laid players out for days, and numerous scars to show, he has held second place in the standing, a game and a half behind Atlantic City this season.

The Jackets have whipped the league leaders twice, the first time by a 7-6 count.

Manners seems partial to Ontario puckmen. Of the seven newcomers he has added to his roster five hail from this province. A majority of the holdovers, too, are from Ontario.

He is unusually enthusiastic about the future of Gus Gelsenbrich, 18-year-old centre from Pembroke, and Colin Sherwood, right winger from Windsor. The latter is a twin brother of Red Sherwood of the Detroit Reds in the League's leading marksman.

Other newcomers are defenceman Leroy Goupille, Sudbury; Pete Desaulnis, Springfield; Byron McDonald, left wing, Moncton; Johnny Thompson, left wing, and Harry Duran, centre, both from Pembroke, and Colin Sherwood, right winger from Windsor. The latter is a twin brother of Red Sherwood of the Detroit Reds in the League's leading marksman.

Holdovers from last season are goalkeeper Mike Brimsek of Eveleth, Minn.; defencemen Hubert Collet; Pock Donald, Carleton Place, Ont.; Norman Mackie, Toronto; Monty Mackie, Winnipeg and Jack Smith, Port William.

FLIERS APPEAR AGAINST REDMEN

Game on Wednesday Night at Arena Should be Thriller

Following their triumphant march through the Kingston City League to win the George Van Horne Trophy, the R.C.A.F. "Fliers" make their initial appearance in the intermediate O.H.A. ranks versus the Belleville Redmen at the Belleville Arena on Wednesday night. The game is a regular scheduled "A-B" interlocking tilt in the local intermediate loop, with considerable hanging in the balance resulting from the outcome. The Belleville, Intermediates are tied for first place in the standings with Peterboro, while the "Fliers" are making their initial O.H.A. appearance of the season.

In winning the Kingston league the double blue-clad "Airmen" established a near record, losing only one game in nine played. The "Fliers" boast of many former Ottawa Valley puckstars who already have proven their ability as outstanding hockey players. Lecompte, alternate centre player, formerly played with the Ottawa Senators in the Montreal senior league and is an outstanding player. Cowley and Leary have played hockey in Northern Ontario as well as in the Ottawa Valley, the McVeety brothers, Ernie and Eric, are both products of the Ottawa City. Eric having starred with that great little Ottawa Junior squad, the Fairview H. C. Carling-Keily is a product of R.M.C. while Gibson, Partridge and Winslow are junior hockey players of note.

Manager Thomas has added Fred Bentley to his roster to replace Harry Ingram for this game. Bentley should team with Jack Zihler on the defence, both being rugged hard-hitting rear guardsmen. Cy Barriage will team with the Jackson brothers in place of Tompkins on the first line while Jimmy McGuire, "Buster" Whitton and "Speedy" Wilson will round out the second line leaving Carl Morgan and Bailey as alternates. The R. C. A. F. "Fliers" will line-up as follows—Goal, Gibson; defence, Partridge, Lalonde; centre, Cowley; wings, Cowley, Eric McNeely; subs, Kelly, Ernie McNeely, Whipple, Lecompte.

New York, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Jack Kearns hasn't much chance of landing a Braddock-Louis fight for Detroit, but it will not be lack of concussion. Doubtless Kearns' Madison Square Garden director will tell Detroit authorities have given Helen Hicks the golfcrette, auto license No. "HH-40" and a season box for the Braddock-Louis fight. Bob Pastor is spending his evenings viewing slow motion pictures of the Schmeling-Louis fight in order to learn the right blend used to massacre Joe at evening is the identical type of right Mr. B. Pastor loves to toss. . . A lot of folks would go for a Jimmy McLarnin-Freddie Steele fight just for the privilege of seeing Vancouver's Jimmy in the ring with someone he didn't outweigh.

The experts now estimate Fred Perry's pro tennis tour will gross him $250,000.

TWO STAR LINES READY FOR FRAY

Canadiens Can Increase Lead by Defeating Red Wings

(By A.—R. Pullford)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

There should be a pretty hockey picture in Montreal tonight if the coaches co-operate and toss the starting lines of Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens on the ice to oppose each other. . . .

Imagine Larry Aurie, Marty Barry and Herb Lewis, the world champion Detroit line. In a passing duel with the Habitant veterans, Howie Morenz, Aurel Joliat and Johnny Gagnon. The prospect should fill the Forum as it hasn't been filled before this season.

With 46 points the Aurie-Lewis-Barry trio are leading the League's scoring lines and you will get little argument from anyone that they are not the best attacking division in the game at the moment.

But the Canadien Oldsters have compiled a record, that is truly unusual and many consider their back-checking makes them more valuable than the Red Wing line. Morenz, Joliat and Gagnon have 53 points, the same as Sweeney Schriner, Lionel Conacher and Art Chapman of our New York entry.

If the possibility of the great line of Detroit and Montreal display isn't enough to draw Montrealers to the contest in hordes there is the added attraction, that the Canadiens are leaders of the National Hockey League at home and Detroit has invaded the Forum and have provided smash hockey in their three meetings this season.

The Happy Habitants are a game up on Wings, each team has won a home game, besides a Habitant win in Detroit. Neither is far ahead in the standings that they won't be trying every minute for two more points.

Montreal Maroons play Americans at New York and Chicago Black Hawks meet Bruins at Boston in the other games tonight. Results of the contests can make a change in the standings but the first positions of the teams involved. A win for Montreal Canadiens tonight would put Tommy Gorman's within two points of Detroit and Chicago Black Hawks would be within four points of Conacher's Rangers' layoff to go four points up on Conn Smythe's boys.

Sport Callings

By Ken Colling

It would be expedient for local baseball fans to take a few minutes off and attend tonight's annual meeting of the Belleville Baseball Club that is if they are interested in the future of the game. Until the last few seasons Belleville has repeatedly fielded an outstanding baseball club ever since Hector was a pup, but not until the 1936 season did Belleville get into fields in the cellar in the old O.B.L. That in itself should prove sufficient interest to assure the revival of the diamond pastime in 1937. Last year the Peterboro club finished outside the money in regular league play-offs and what happened along the shores of the Otonabee at the close of the season should be a lesson to the fans of all interested persons, at which the heads of all manufacturing concerns were in evidence, was called with the result that already plans to reconstruct baseball here and bring it back to its former status in Intlock City have been completed.

The executive of the 1936 edition of the Belleville baseball club has apparently all done and washed up. "Unless some other person decides to take over the franchise and operate it, I'm afraid there'll not be much senior baseball in Belleville in 1937, as our executive has been unable to find anyone to call it quits," stated President Clarence Caldwell through past club executives we are hopeful that the club will be the support of baseball in Belleville for the next decade or more has come right off the bat. Eleven players are under contract and there's no reason why they (all.) Of course if the local industries would get behind the game and support it, maybe Saturday baseball could be introduced once, again in this city, but the senior baseball fans would have to take a more pulsied interest than is evidenced at the present time. The only alternative left for the Belleville Colts, are both members of the Peterboro baseball club. For the Petes Heal, Jopling, Storme and Harding looked the best, while for the locals Sharpe and Tompkins stood out with Derry, Cain and Storme playing good games.

Bob Hay Schmeling is not a drawing card in the U.S.A., eh? It wouldn't be that James J. Braddock is the champ and Schmeling might be the heavyweight crown by any chance. Of course everyone knows Schmeling intends to retire if he ever regains his title, which incidentally was wrested from him under rather questionable tactics and awarded to Big Jack Sharkey, who along with Schmeling are both ex-heavyweight champions. If it was o.k. for these two to step out of the ring and rest on their laurels, why do the critics continue to jump on Joe Louis, who does not deny the fact that he is interested in doing the same thing? Of course the knee ails across the border are still smarting under the Schmeling-Louis upset. When it comes to the heavyweight championship of the world there should be no discrimination as to race, color or creed. If Braddock refuses to meet Schmeling, who is next, the loss of his father, who died in Toronto on Saturday.

To William J. Walshe, sports editor of the Kingston Whig-Standard, we extend our deepest sympathy in his recent bereavement, the loss of his father, who died in Toronto on Saturday.

GRANTS IN AID TO BE REDUCED

Hon. Norman Rogers Gives "Interim Report" on Relief

Toronto, Jan. 11 (CP)—Relief grants-in-aid to the provinces will be substantially reduced in 1937, Labor Minister Norman Rogers told the Canadian Club here today in what he called an "interim report" of the Dominion Government's progress in dealing with unemployment and relief last year.

"I believe these reductions will be fully justified by the extension of business recovery, by the marked improvement in municipal tax collections and by the improved financial position of most of the provinces," the minister said.

All Governments—Dominion, Provincial and Municipal—must accept their full responsibility to reduce relief costs during the present year."

Relief Camps Costly

The minister reviewed the permanent closing last July of relief camps which at one time afforded shelter to 21,000 men and in the last year of their operation cost the government $9,000,000.

"They were even more costly in terms of dissatisfaction, bitterness and human frustration," he remarked. "They may have been necessary to meet an emergency but the on-to-Ottawa trek and the Regina riots showed the danger of maintaining them on their existing basis.

"They were not work camps in the proper sense of that term. They were not training camps in the proper sense of that term. For the single unemployed they were a blind alley—a dead-end street. For the government they were an expensive luxury.

"The Communist agitators they provided a ready-made forum for the propagation of subversive doctrines where teachers and pupils were given shelter, food and clothing at the expense of the government."

MANASSA MAULER IS SHAKEN DOWN

Jack Dempsey Pays Out $285 For Protection Fees

New York, Jan. 11.—(CP)—Jack Dempsey, the old Manassa mauler of the prize ring, has been "shaken down" for $285 in protection fees for his fashionable Eighth Avenue restaurant by racketeers, it became known during the week-end. He has fixed up with special Prosecutor Dewey in what he termed "a fight to the finish" against the mobsters.

He was somewhat sheepish when he admitted having paid out the $285 to a representative of the racketeers who are said to have taken $2,000,000 from Manhattan's restaurant operators in the last year.

"But I hope that's the last dollar anybody must pay to racketeers infesting a legitimate business," he said.

"When Special Prosecutor Dewey sounds the gong in Supreme Court next Monday with Justice McCook the referee, we restaurant men will fight back, round by round, until the racket is buried beyond recall."

Fourteen men have already been indicted as members of the restaurant racket and will appear before Justice McCook January 18.

DAILY SHORT STORY

COURAGE

By Stanley Jay Forrest

The boys couldn't quite believe that Pat was actually going to ride in the show for Miss Phillips. They had a sneaking hunch that he was stringing them along—still, those two fights he had had with her in the office, and that meant there was something in the air, all right. Yesterday for folks and helping them one way or another seemed to run in the Phillips family. Old Andrew had the reputation for doing just that, and now here was his daughter picking out Pat to ride.

Pat of all people! That scrawny, half-starved kid who had wandered in one cold stormy day the winter before, fairly begging for a job in the stable—and getting it.

Too quiet the boy was, though. Afraid to call his soul his own. The horse game sure hadn't for him. Even after he got on to the work, steering clear of Ginger at feeding time, just because the old horse laid his ears back when you walked behind his tail. Afraid of all the polecies, too: especially Tipton, and gosh! that little devil wouldn't hurt a flea.

Miss Phillips must have had confidence in him though. Maybe she figured now that he got over being so scared he might develop into something worth while. Anyway she asked him to ride Black Cloud, and Pat said he would.

Well, if the horse show folks wanted something to laugh at that night, they were going to get it. Patrick Dale O'Brien, who, shortly after his arrival at the Twp. Oaks bridling academy, had been nicknamed the Irish Ambassador, had no pleasure in seeing a boy younger and had never been up on Black Cloud.

Nobody liked that horse. He had two bad points; a rough canter and a well-deserved reputation for being tricky. Quiet enough on the bridle path, but rattle-brained and not to be depended upon in the show ring, as the crowds and judges had learned all worried him.

The morning after he'd helped Miss Phillips Pat worked the big horse in the ring. A little after the o'clock, it was. The boys had come over and were standing by the door as he dismounted a half hour later, wiping the perspiration from his face.

"Don't forget your parachute, fella," said Red, "never know just what that there horse is goin' to do—or how high up he's goin' once he gets started!"

Pat's face got red; but he had promised and he intended to go through with the thing no matter what happened.

Pardon Me, the previous year's sensation, had just taken the last hurdle, bewildered, and changing at a "regular Midas," Trilly murmured. "Even his eyebrows are golden!"

A ripple of laughter ran around the room as Claude glared at Trilly, and Professor Arnold rapped charply for order. Then the big room was quiet, except for the scratching of pens.

Presently Claude went forward to consult Professor Arnold about a question. He returned, his eyes intent upon his paper and he tripped over Trilly's feet and fell sprawling in the aisle. He picked himself up with dignity and glared at Trilly.

Trilly rubbed his shin and looked at him in pained surprise. "Are you trying to climb the golden stairs, Reagan?" he asked.

Again laughter rippled over the room and this time Professor Arnold suppressed a smile before he rapped for order.

"Trilly pay for this!" Claude said in a hoarse whisper.

"I expect to," Trilly whispered back.

The gong sounded at last, and the class began to file out through the narrow entrance. Trilly, directly in front of Reagan, stopped abruptly, blocking the exit; then he bent over slowly and proceeded to tie his shoe string. Claude stared, and the students behind him unrestrained by the gavel, started to laugh.

Claude's face reddened, then his expensive shoe came up and landed a vicious kick right where the threads were weakest. There was a moment of stunned silence as a long, jagged tear appeared in Trilly's pants.

Trilly straightened. He smiled and bowed in Claude. "Thank you, Reagan," he said as he strolled away.

Ranks of his barren room Trilly turned two somersaults and rubbed his hands together gleefully. "Hot Zigzity!" he said.

Then he rummaged the landlady's boy and wrote a note' It said:

"My dear Reagan: You probably know enough law to know that you owe me the price of a pair of pants. (You know. Assault, presence of witnesses, etc.) Please send me ten bucks by bearer.

Trilly Winfield.

"P.S. — The pants were not exactly new, but the fact that you were permitted to administer the needed kick should equalize matters.—T. W."

Give and Take

By B. NEIL SMITH

Tully Winfield picked up his good looking, carefully creased trousers and held them up to the window that overlooked the campus. He sighed. A deep, broad-chested sigh. "They're down to the last threads," he told himself. "If I could sit on a cithion they might last a week, but on those hard seats they won't hold me three days, let alone three months!"

His shirt tail flapped as he moved about the bare little room, for every minute of wear on those warning rear threads must be saved. Three months to graduation day and then—he would be Tully Winfield, Attorney-at-Law.

He spit on a burnt finger tip and it sizzled against the flatiron on the gas stove. Then he set about the business of ironing his shirt.

Back of it was split, but his sweater was still intact. Sweaters and shirts were a cinch! But how could a fellow hide the seat of his pants?

He put on the trousers with uneasy satisfaction. If they were only as good as they looked, what a triumphant finale it would be!

Thoughtfully, Tully made his way across the campus. Pants he must have! But how? He couldn't earn them. There wasn't a half hour to spare. And he couldn't write home. He'd seen how things were at Christmas though they had all tried to hide the worst. Dad hadn't gone to his lodge on Wednesday night. Said he was too tired to change, and the truth of it was—his shoes were holes!

Tully scowled fiercely, remembering young Jack's too indifferent air. Pretending he didn't want to go to the Junior Ball!

"Say! Just who do you think you are?"

Tully came back to the campus and stared into Claude Reagan's pale blue eyes. "What?" Tully asked, mildly curious.

"I started," Claude said, "that if there isn't room enough on the campus for you to walk without walking on me, I'll throw you off."

Tully looked at him, beginning to understand. He looked down and saw the imprint of his own large foot on Claude's expensively shiny shoe. He, Tully Winfield, had been wondering about pants and he'd actually stepped on Claude Reagan, who threw an imported roadster and changed his suit every day in the week!

Tully's seat, during Professor Arnold's written quiz, was across the aisle from Claude Reagan's and as Claude deposited his ornate brief case on his desk, students caught the flash of a diamond ring and a platinum wrist watch.

"Regular Midas," Tully murmured. "Even his eyebrows are golden!"

A ripple of laughter ran around the room as Claude glared at Tully, and Professor Arnold rapped charply for order. Then the big room was quiet, except for the scratching of pens.

Presently Claude went forward to consult Professor Arnold about a question. He returned, his eyes intent upon his paper and he tripped over Tully's feet and fell sprawling in the aisle. He picked himself up with dignity and glared at Tully.

Tully rubbed his shin and looked at him in pained surprise. "Are you trying to climb the golden stairs, Reagan?" he asked.

Again laughter rippled over the room and this time Professor Arnold suppressed a smile before he rapped for order.

"Trilly pay for this!" Claude said in a hoarse whisper.

"I expect to," Trilly whispered back.

The gong sounded at last, and the class began to file out through the narrow entrance. Trilly, directly in front of Reagan, stopped abruptly, blocking the exit; then he bent over slowly and proceeded to tie his shoe string. Claude stared, and the students behind him unrestrained by the gavel, started to laugh.

Claude's face reddened, then his expensive shoe came up and landed a vicious kick right where the threads were weakest. There was a moment of stunned silence as a long, jagged tear appeared in Trilly's pants.

Trilly straightened. He smiled and bowed in Claude. "Thank you, Reagan," he said as he strolled away.

Ranks of his barren room Trilly turned two somersaults and rubbed his hands together gleefully. "Hot Zigzity!" he said.

Then he rummaged the landlady's boy and wrote a note' It said:

"My dear Reagan: You probably know enough law to know that you owe me the price of a pair of pants. (You know. Assault, presence of witnesses, etc.) Please send me ten bucks by bearer.

Tully Winfield.

"P.S. — The pants were not exactly new, but the fact that you were permitted to administer the needed kick should equalize matters.—T. W."

Bank President Paints Bright Future for Canada

Higher Grain Prices Added $30 Millions More to The West Than in '35

ABUNDANCE OF CAPITAL

Sir John Aird Hopes That Over-Speculation Will be Avoided

An optimistic picture of conditions over a large area of Canada and an impressive record of business improvement during the past year were presented to the shareholders of The Canadian Bank of Commerce at their annual meeting in Toronto this morning by the president, Sir John Aird, and the General Manager, Mr. H. R. Logan.

Many of the hopes, said Sir John, which he had expressed last year had been realized, and in a more widespread degree. Canada had stood the test of this development and so well that her present economic condition was sound and healthy and had actually arrived at this stage in many sections of the country, notably in the lumbering and coal mining districts and in areas where good harvests had been reaped. The Prairie Provinces as a whole had had a most satisfactorily high quality, though of enhanced quantity, which was worth, at least 30 million dollars or $35 million more than the year before. When quantity and quality were both could be stimulated by a further development of the sense of confidence and of recovery, by normal crop conditions this year, by a practical policy of agricultural relief, by sound reconstruction measures in the West, by the maintenance of the principles of good credit and by more liberal effort in the field of public bequests. These were requisite factors if Canada was to share fully in the world's progress which was now in progress. These were also an abundance of capital for investment. "Indeed", he continued, "the question appears to be rather, not whether the present business revival will continue, but firstly, whether it will not develop into excessive speculation in the stock market, with consequent over-speculation in the stock market, with consequent investment in industry; and, secondly, whether rearmament which never hastens to meet demand for certain materials, can be replaced by complementary and more desirable enterprise."

Tariff Revision Urged

Referring to the dependence of Canada upon her export trade, and since about 30 per cent. of her national production was sold abroad, Sir John said that the tariff policy should be plentiful for a partial return to the old trade basis of exchange policies and continued, "I shall not quibble about the expression of the present excessive rise in restrictions because of their depressing effect upon trade, but I do say that I urge world-wide tariff revision for the very reason, namely, to prevent the consuming masses against possible sharp increase in the cost of goods; and to prevent the large governmental expenditures still necessary for the relief of unemployment from being so high as to nullify efforts to achieve a balanced budget."

The tripartite agreement announced by Great Britain, France and the United States last autumn was in a sense renounced the system of national currencies, which had grown formerly in vogue, and although there was no return to the old system and much time might elapse before actual stabilization was accomplished, the fact that these three nations there were how less hazardous than when wide fluctuations occurred in the foreign exchanges was highly gratifying.

"It should be a source of pride," said Sir John, "to all citizens of Canada that we have come through the deep and unprecedented depression of the past years without any default on the part of the Dominion, and, still more conspicuously, that its Provinces in meeting principal and interest upon their broad securities, whether maturing in Canada or elsewhere. Apart from the sense of satisfaction which attends the honourable fulfilment of public contributions, Canada will undoubtedly reap the material benefit of an influx of capital which, had we failed in method or in our financial credit standing, would certainly not have been forthcoming."

Unemployed Urged Problem

The solution of Canada's most urgent problem, that of unemployment, he said, was to be found in carrying into the subject which would give definitive information and a complete classification of all persons employed according to trade and aptitude for the purpose of the nation's industrial life. "Once an authentic census is made", he said, "as to the classes of the unemployed and their distribution throughout the Dominion, governmental policies can be intelligently directed toward the relief of the situation by public works or otherwise, as may be deemed most expedient." Stability of currency was essential to any sound system of construction, as such enterprises are influenced by the issue of long-term securities of a fixed money value. "As long as national budgets remain unbalanced", said Sir John, "with accompanying currency or credit inflation, uncertainty is bound to persist concerning the future value of the monetary unit. Investors will therefore hesitate to commit their savings to securities maturing in the distant future insofar as to principal and interest in currency whose purchasing power may be found on long-intervening period suffer material decline. The main cause of inflation is unbalanced national budgets. The remedy for inflation is the balanced budget."

Sir John deprecated the institution upon a guaranteed price for wheat. "While I am glad to admit that the problems of the Prairie Provinces were not as well understood at the time of the last annual meeting as they are now, I am pleased to record that further measures of relief to agricultural credit and chasing power were desirable, he pointed out that the people of the other Provinces, who shared the heavy burden of taxes for relief and unemployment, were in aid of distressed brain, faithfully looked upon as a very generous one. Within up year after year, any difference between a required guaranteed price and the world price of wheat. "For my part", he said "I retain the faith that fails to rise ability of the West to achieve a well-balanced, profitable agricultural system, and I cherish the belief that the great prosperity of the past and still more brilliant citizens will favour the policy of meeting price conditions resulting from world causes without seeking to impose upon themselves the full consequences of such conditions by maintaining an artificial price level for home and foreign consumption."

MARKET COMMENT

There is much interest on the Street centering around the report that negotiations are under way which, if successful, will result in the sale of 100,000 to 200,000 horsepower in Ontario, N.Y. concern by Beauharnois.

"Horanda stands out as the choice stock of the Canadian copper issues and up to date has performed to a very small extent its full possibilities in the event of success," state Drury & Thompson in their letter to clients. "We also calculate that the advance of copper from 9½ cents to cents adds about $47,000,000 to the gross value of ores developed. Over twenty dollars per share outstanding—some less may be obtained of the Horanda stock in a close, but a strong copper market. Management is conservative in estimating ores and the company has many subsidiaries, one of which is Wallace-Andrews, copper ore deposits which Noranda has an option to buy interest."

T. H. Gibbons, formerly Assistant to President W. J. Hume, has been appointed assistant of Hiram Walker - Gooderham & Worts Limited.

While a number of market analysts believe that 1937 may bring about considerable readjustment in commodity prices with labor, legislation, higher production costs, and a possible change in equities, they assert nevertheless, that underlying the whole situation is a bullish factor of great potential importance, namely, the existence of every classification of basic commodity.

Last year saw 496 million shares sold on the New York Stock Exchange, a 30 percent increase in volume from 1935 and total transactions for the year were the largest since 1929. Of the total, 60 percent consisted of listed issues and 40 per cent. of the amount of all issues transacted was in unlisted issues, including the grain trade, 18 per cent. in miscellaneous industrials, 12 per cent. in finance, 7 per cent. in wholesale and retail merchants, 14 per cent. in miscellaneous public utilities and 11 per cent. in railroads. Odd lot purchases never force loans on unwilling borrowers. The vast majority of them are added to stock at a time like proving his position and were paid for by him at maturity without difficulty.

Farm Income Higher

Mr. Logan then reviewed some of the outstanding points in the year's farming. Industrial and trade recovery. In spite of widespread crop failures, the total value of Canadian field crops was $90,000,000 greater than in 1935, and the farm income had risen by 15 per cent. farm purchasing power was also up by 15 in 1936 level, and two-thirds of the farming community were in an improved position. Mining and Gold. Corresponding with about 40 per cent. increase in the average price of gold per ounce, the production of gold in Canada in 1936 was 3,000,000 ounces more than one-third greater than the year before. The heavy increase in production was 40 per cent more active than two years ago and other metals, such as nickel, copper, were beginning to bring life capital into the mining industry, especially in the base metal equipment. Canada now stood in the front rank as an exporting nations, her export trade during 1936 having touched $1,000,000,000 for the first time in history. "A notable achievement", said Mr. Logan, "as it represents a gain of 20 per cent. in general price level in that interval of time." Trade with Empire. It therefore, our present volume of export trade were calculated in terms of 1926 values the result would exceed the total of that year by about $90,000,000. On a comparable basis it would be about $45,000,000 higher than exports in 1926, which is generally regarded as a normal post-war year. It is, moreover, doubtful whether at any time the benefits of our export trade have been so well distributed among Canada's various industries as in 1936."

For the first time in months of 1936 Canada's rate of increase in exports was not only larger than the world as a whole but was greater than that of any other major exporter.

Mining Boosts Business

Onward side export trade, Canada's domestic trade also made a spectacular record contributed about 25 per cent. to the 1936 total of a new record. "The Canadian market", declared Mr. Logan, "has shown great strength in recent years and has gained a leading position in the world's industrial and metal market. In 1936 our production of metals alone reached the $200,000,000, the largest amount on record, and more than double the production of the return paid on foreign capital employed, and the cost of recent years. Indeed, the whole country, virtually all of this sum was paid to Canadians, distributed in Canada to pay for labour, supplies, transportation and mining service, and as dividends to Canadian investors. We have developed metallurgical skills to a high degree among the most important in the world; and we are now smelting and refining a large proportion of the metals we mine. In the field of gold, Canada has laid the foundation for establishing a great industrial development upon our mineral resources and their conversion in bullion, thus manufactured goods for home and foreign consumption."

TORONTO MINES

Toronto Jan. 113—(CP)—Wheat shares were unchanged to slightly lower, gold mining shares were generally lower in prices, on Toronto exchange today. Oils were firm to strong with Dalhousie going to 1.73, more than 30 cents above the 1936 top 30 cents, and Calgary-Edmonton to 3.25, a new high. Strong spots in the base metal were Noranda, Bay, Horanda, Sherritt, Ventures and Waite-Amulet, Sherritt and Hudson registered new tops.

In the gold list Lamaque set a new high at 8.80, up about 50 cents on the day; Kirkland Lake, Kirkland Francoeur, McKenzie Red Lake; Central Patricia; Sladen and Towagmac were all well ahead on the day.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Jan. 12—(AP)—After skidding on profit selling during today's early proceedings, the stock market later displayed a firm support to cancel or reduce widely diversified losses in addition to points.

Specialties furnished the buying just for the come-back, gaining 1 to 5 at the best. Farm implement issues were in demand. Among Canadian stocks, Distillers, Corp. Seagrams pushed forward more than a point, while Dome, International Nickel and Canadian Pacific became fractionally to slightly lower. On the curb, Lake Shore gained 4 points and Canadian government 4s improved a point each. Canadian dollar was here 1-64 of a cent higher at 100.01 at the close.

Among prominent share gainers were Deere, Case, International Harvester, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Commercial Solvents, Hydro-Electric and Standard Gas.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, Jan. 12 (CP) Some stocks in the industrial list moved up in Beverage, Steel and miscellaneous issues on Toronto exchange today. Mill at the Cline

Construction of the mill at Cline Lake Mine, subsidiary of O'Brien located in the Goudreau area, is reported in full swing and nearing completion. Buildings to accommodate about 200 men have been erected and installation of mining plant is well under way. Two diamond drills are in continuous operation. It is indicated that the ore zone is still being extended, both laterally and vertically.

Livestock

Toronto, Jan. 12 (CP)— Cattle and calves slipped down 10 cents on trading today on the Toronto Livestock Market today and late bids were still lower. Lambs were down 25 cents and calves and sheep were steady. The hog market was unsettled by early afternoon. Cattle holdover from Monday was 1,200 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 1,630; calves 480; hogs 1,360; sheep and lambs 340.

All grades of cattle eased in the dull slide. Choice heavy steers and weighty steers were from $5.50 to $6.25. Some choice steers offered sparingly, $7. Good butcher cattle sold at $5.75 to $6 with common cows down to $4.25. Cows made a top of $5 with plain at low as $3.

Good butcher bulls went at $3.85 to $4.25 and bologna at $3.25 to $3.75. A few fed calves ranged from $6 to $7.50.

Choice veal calves were priced at $11 to $11.50 with occasional tops reaching $12. Common light calves brought $8 to $9 and some grassers $4 to $4.50.

ter a life of humility and pain and suffering. Monsignor Kelly, who had arrived with the infirm hobbled up the long hill on crutch or cane; soon Bishop Kidder arrived in his car.

Cardinal Hinds Throng

Cardinal Hinsley's presence was a great throng of churchmen, seated at a red-canopied throne before the sanctuary and directly before the altar. Behind the throne were the tall six candles and guarded by six of Montreal's firemen. In the front pews of the sanctuary sat the Governor K. I. Patenaude of Quebec, Premier Duplessis, Premier Hepburn, Mayor J. Adhemar Raynault.

At the Mass, late in the gospel in the purple of mourning, Bishop J. C. Kidder, Bishop of Montreal, celebrated the mass and afterwards conducted the Brother Andre Office, the special ritual of the service for the dead.

The gray-robed priest, its massive pillars graven with the figures of Christ's Passion, then delivered the address for a full hour and a half. Only those standing of the mass and service over the body came when Cardinal Hinsley took the pulpit. His funeral oration, briefly and in terms of eulogy.

"The Prince of the Church," his Eminence said, "could have as inscription on his tombstone: 'He died.' To death. It is a great awakening of faith, confidence in eternal happiness."

CLASH OF WILLS CAUSE OF BREAK

Premier Aberhart And C. C. Ross Both Issue Statements

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Edmonton, Jan. 13.—(CP)—It was a clash of wills, rather than a clash of policies, that led to the resignation of C. C. Ross, former Alberta Minister of Mines, who left the Aberhart Cabinet Jan. 2.

Premier Aberhart yesterday in press statements released by the former Minister and Premier William Aberhart, each giving his explanation of the rift. At the same time, the Premier denied that Social Credit members of the legislature had communistic or socialistic tendencies or that division were forming in the party ranks.

The Aberhart statement laid down the principle that a Premier must be free to call men into the cabinet in whom he has complete faith. When it conclusion: "If at any time any member of a cabinet tries to dictate to the Premier in matters of constitutional right, by a threat of resigning or in any other manner, the Premier is free to act. Such is only one course for me, as Premier, and that is to ask for the resignation of the government. It was for this reason I was compelled to call for Mr. Ross' resignation."

Disagreed With Policies

Mr. Ross' statement, made in Calgary, Ross said he disagreed with the Premier on the proposed cabinet appointment. "My resignation from the government pend was tendered through a letter of opinion with the Premier over the matter, and I was requested to accept ment to a government portfolio."

Neither statement indicated what cabinet change was proposed, although it has been known for some time that Premier Aberhart has favored another portfolio, probably Agriculture, for Social Credit municipal affairs under one minister.

WAR CLOUDS ARE LIFTING

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

"Ce West Young Man"

Mae West among the cows and chickens! Romance in a barnyard and love among the haycocks! That's "Ce West Young Man," Miss West's latest starring vehicle with Randolph Scott, Allie Brady, Lyle Talbot and many others, and the feature screen attraction at the Belle today and Wednesday. Miss Mae does all the assuring, the speaker of the enjoyment of one of the most hilarious and clever comedies in many months.

With Miss West cast as a high strung and romantic movie actress engaged by her contract from including in romance, and with Warren William as the press agent who accompanies her to make sure she doesn't violate the contract, "Ce West Young Man" deals with the curvaceous actress' attempts to find love and William's efforts to frustrate her.

After a personal appearance in Washington, Miss West meets Talbot, an old flame, and makes a date with him. This is "crabbed" by William who invites the press to the tete-a-tete, she promises to meet Talbot in Harrisburg where she is to make her next appearance. On the way her car breaks down and she is forced to put up at the farm of Allen Brady while Scott, a mechanic, fixes it. She is furious at the delay but when she sees the handsome mechanic she decides to remain.

She learns that Scott is working on an invention for talking pictures and she accepts his invitation to inspect the invention in his workshop. He fails to fall for her obvious ploy for him. Youngen begin to babble, and Margaret Perry, Scott's sweetheart, is broken-hearted at the turn of events.

William prevents a private meeting between Miss West and Scott by inviting the entire countryside to the farm to get the star's autograph. But when Miss West comes to Scott's room to inspect his plans for his invention, he breaks it up again.

In the meantime Talbot has been trying to locate Miss West. He gets the impression that she has been kidnapped and an alarm is broadcast for her. Isabell Jewell, maid-of-all-work at the Brady farm, hears the alarm. She gets her boy friend to go for the police, believing William to be the kidnapper. The police arrive and in order to get even with William, Miss West tells them he kidnapped her. With her three swains around her, Miss West makes her choice. It wouldn't be fair to tell who it was nor why, since the solution is one of the high spots in the delightful comedy. Especially worthy of note is the work of Miss Jewell.

"The News Parade of 1936" is revealed in the Belle late World News, including outstanding highlights of a year packed with great events, in engrossing review of epochal history in the making. Other highlights are Italy Becomes Empire," "Germany Scraps Peace Treaties," "Civil War in Spain," graphic result of what has so far cost 500,000 lives, intimate studies of the principal actors in a drama that stunned the world and finally the world's greatest love story," "New Year's Gets a HAPPY Start", gay carnival in grand ballroom on Waldorf-Astoria filmed as celebration reaches its height. AT THE CAPITOL

"Sing Me A Love Song"

Filmed

"Murder With Pictures"

Another of our 3 star shows with two swell features and Stage Show with Stage Show only today and Wednesday.

Lilting music, rollicking laughter and glowing romance combine to make "Sing Me A Love Song" opening tomorrow at the Capitol Theatre, one of the most entertaining musical comedies of the year.

There is an all star cast headed by James Melton, the radio singer, Patricia Ellis, Hugh Herbert, Zasu Pitts, Allen Jenkins and Nat Pendleton.

The story by Harry Sauber deals with the colorful adventures of a wealthy and somewhat irresponsible youth who goes to work incognito in his own department store to find out why the wheels aren't going around as they should. In doing so he falls in love with one of his clerks, gets himself and her tangled up in a series of innocent misadventures which land both in jail.

Melton's rich melodious voice will be heard in six songs altogether, three of them written by that famous song team of Harry Warren and Al Dubin, especially for the picture.

One of the songs, "Summer Night", is sung in connection with a production number staged and directed by Bobby Connolly. It takes place on the roof of a department store, with the city lights twinkling in the background. Melton sings with a male chorus, to Patricia Ellis. "The Little House That Love Built" is sung in one of the Connolly numbers which is staged in an elaborately built house for lovers on the floor of the big department store.

Hugh Herbert, as a wealthy Hepplecamaize, Allen Jenkins, as an elevator operator in love with Zasu Pitts, also a clerk and chum of Miss Ellis, Nat Pendleton, a befuddlered chauffeur, Walter Catlett, pompous floor walker and Hobart Cavanaugh, furnish most of the comedy.

Ace Hit No. 2

A mystery calculated to baffle the most ardent mystery fan as it did the police, comes to the Capitol Theatre tomorrow as Hit No. 2, when "Murder with Pictures", starring Lew Ayres and Gail Patrick, begins its run.

"Murder with Pictures" reveals how a photograph, taken in a crowded room during a slaying, betrays the killer after the police accept defeat. With all eyes on him as he is about to be photographed by five newspaper cameramen, the victim, Ernest Caesar, suddenly stoops over and fall dead with a bullet through his heart. It is a perfect crime—until the accidental picture is discovered with its grim, tell-tale evidence.

Stage Show

Appearing for the Stage today and tomorrow only with shows at 2.45 and 8.46, Montana Frank's Circle M Rangers, a miniature Rodeo, that has everything in the way of pleasing entertainment. Songs of the West, sung by Cattle Annie, the world's youngest Cowgirl, who although only six years old, is already destined to go far, on the stage. Her father, and mother, Montana Frank, and Fresno Rose, do a novel trick shooting act from a galloping horse, while Montana Frank, Fresno Rose and Cattle Annie

NAVAL OFFICERS TO KNOW TRUTH

British Members to be Given Carte Blanche in Morocco

London, Jan. 13—(CP Cable)—British Naval Officers from Gibraltar are to know the truth about Spanish warships in Moroccan waters either today or tomorrow—when arrangements are completed—the British Admiralty Yanow will put in at Melilla and other ports, afterwards proceeding to Ceuta.

The British observers will be given safe conduct carte blanche to proceed anywhere in Spanish Morocco to see for themselves what is being done, and to investigate the truth or otherwise of reports of German naval activity.

The visit is to be paid on an invitation from Colonel J. Beigbeder y Atienza, acting High Commissioner of Spanish Morocco, which was extended through the British Consul at Tetuan.

COMMERCIAL PILOTS HAVE BEEN GROUNDED

Ottawa, Jan. 13 (CP)—A number of commercial airplane pilots in Northern Ontario and Quebec have been grounded for failure to meet new regulations, it was learned here last night.

Officials declined to discuss the groundings, but it was learned from a usually reliable source about eighteen pilots had suffered suspension or their flying licenses for disregarding flight and other infractions of air regulations.

It was said the suspensions affected pilots chiefly in the northern parts of the two provinces where large cargoes of heavy pieces of machinery and considerable quantities of other supplies are flown into the mining fields.

Names of the disciplined pilots or the aviation companies for which they worked could not be learned.

BATHTUB SLAYING OF MRS. M. CASE QUICKLY SOLVED

Major Greene, Harlem Negro, Charged With Crime After Probe

ARRESTED IN HOME

Bloody Trousers And Fingerprints Identified as Greene's

New York, Jan. 13 (AP)— Bathtub slaying of pretty Mrs. Mary Robbins Case ended in a startlingly unexpected denouement today when investigators seized a 23 year old Negro handyman and charged him with the crime.

Thirty-six hours after the 26-year-old housewife was strangled and beaten to death in her Jackson Heights, Queens, apartment, District Attorney William F. Dodge announced Major Greene, wiry negro porter employed in the apartment building, had confessed to the woman's murder.

Greene, arrested at his home in Harlem, New York's negro section, and taken to the apartment where Frank Case, 36, and his fellow employ company employes, found the bloody clothes of his wife Mathday.

Greene was kept there two hours and then taken to the Newton police station. Greene's brother, Henry, 38, and William Henry Johnson, also a negro, were questioned.

Johnson and Major Greene were employed at the Jackson Heights Bachelors' Club overlooking the Case apartment.

Fingerprints Identified

District Attorney Sullivan reviewed the fingerprints found on the panel of the door in the bathroom of the apartment where the murdered woman was identified as those of the defendant (Major Greene), Sullivan's statement said.

The bloody trousers recovered from the incinerator in the apartment house building have been identified as the property of the defendant.

The defendant at the time of his arrest was wearing a shirt taken from the apartment occupied by Case and identified as the property of the deceased's husband.

The shoes taken from the defendant's feet at the time of his arrest were identified as the property of Case.

Greene's arrest came a few hours after Case, 36, returned to find his housewife had been taken to Lancaster, Pa., for burial in the city, her former home, where they had married Nov. 25, 1936. Funeral services are to be held there tomorrow.

Mrs. Case waged a fierce battle with her assailant in the tiny bathroom of her apartment before she strangled and crushed her skull with a hammer, Dodge declared, after dumping her body into the bathtub filled with water and with a sheet, stopping the drain and turning on the water.

They had definite clues to guide them toward the man who played the principal role.

Stirred to Pay Ransom

Dr. W. E. Case, father of the boy, who drove in vain to pay the $40,000 ransom demanded, testified in an anguished cry he believed there was more than one kidnapper. When told the battered and nude corpse found near Everett, Monday, was that of his boy, he cried:

"I feared it. I feared when they pulled that boy out into the night they were taking the life they had begun."

Close friends, however, have intimated only one kidnapper was involved. Paul Berman, a friend of the family, invariably referred to "the kidnapper" as "he."

Searchers sought a man who answered this description:

Weight, about 200 pounds; height, five feet seven inches; complexion, swarthy; hair, black; beard, black; eyes, brown; speech with slight accent; voice, deep; age, about 35; when last seen he wore dark trousers, a blue blazer and a light cap.

Authorities suggested that in all cases of suspects investigators obtain if possible samples of the man's handwriting, his fingerprints and his shoe prints.

Young Boy Rides 'Bear Back' While Hunting Rabbits

Jumps on Top of Brush Heap Under Which Bear is Sleeping

LEAPS QUICKLY

Lindsay, Ont., Jan. 13—(CP)—Alfred Switzer, 10 year old school boy of Troy Mill, 60 miles north of Lindsay, was hunting rabbits in the brush woks a large black bear from its winter slumber, rode its back for a short distance and lived to tell the story.

Alfred was setting snares for rabbits near McQue's bridge when he noticed a hole under a brush pile. Looking in he thought he saw a buck rabbit. Setting the snare at the entrance he climbed on top of the brush and began to jump. The thinking he would frighten the animal from its lair. Things began to happen. The brush pile rose in the air and planted off bodily. It wobbled backwards, forwards and then sideways. Out from under it came not a rabbit but a big black bear who wasn't sleeping as soundly as he was supposed to be at this time of year. When the bear proved to light to hold Ruth. Alfred waited just long enough to see the frightened bruin bear went going—he had already decided to go in the opposite direction.

Alfred got some friends to back him up with guns and a couple of days later went out to meet Bruin again. The bear, having had decided he had friends by, left in the Wilberforce district. The hunters tracked him for about five miles and returned home.

JURY NAMES MAN AS RESPONSIBLE FOR DEATH

Ottawa, Jan. 13 (C.P.) — A coroner's jury last night found Ernest Mahlig, 53 year old Canadian National Railways policeman, killed Jan. 6 at the Union Station died from effects of a fractured skull and lacerated brain and criminally negligent, criminally responsible for his death.

The jury found that Mahlig's death resulted from a blow by Kennedy and brought on a cerebral hemorrhage.

Kennedy is in custody charged nominally with the slaying. He was arrested after a disturbance at the station during which he was alleged to have aimed a blow at the constable's head with his fist.

Mahlig is 43 years old and told police he came here from Arnprior, Ont., to upper Ontario Valley town.

SIMPSON ENTERS SLANDER SUIT

Alleges Woman Said He Received Money in Connection With Divorce

London, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Ernest Aldrich Simpson, former husband of Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, has filed a slander suit against Mrs. Jean Simpson Sutherland, alleging she said Simpson received a sum of money in connection with his wife's divorce, it was learned today.

Mrs. Sutherland is the wife of Lieut.-Col. A. C. H. Sutherland.

Simpson declined to discuss the case except to confirm that notice of the suit had been issued and service on the defendant made.

The suit, sources close to Simpson said, was the result of Simpson's efforts to quash talk of his divorce and alleged payment of money which arose after the decree nisi was issued to his wife at Ipswich, October 27.

Simpson also declared to have been irritated by discussion in both the London financial district and in Mayfair.

Simpson's solicitors refused to disclose details of the suit beyond the fact notice had been served.

The action was based on alleged remarks made by Mrs. Sutherland at a luncheon party in which it was said, after the ruling Edward VIII.

Simpson's friends at the luncheon repeated the asserted statements to him. Informed sources declared, and furnished the evidence which the former husband placed before his lawyers.

Mrs. Sutherland was described as a young society matron. Her husband is enroute to India. He served in the famed Black Watch regiment during the Great War.

FAMILY SPENDS 6 DAYS IN OPEN

Most of The Children Suffer From Frostbite And Hunger

Orwell, Ont., Jan. 13 (CP) — A French-Canadian trapper and his family of ten were recovering today from the six days they spent in a spruce bough shelter in below-zero weather after their log trading post at Hog Lake burned to the ground January 7.

Dog Lake is 40 miles north of Iroquois Falls, Timiskaming.

Flying over the trading post of Frank Lapalme yesterday, Pilot Fred St. John discovered the ruins and notified the family. He returned to Nakina and loaded supplies and clothing. On his return he found the family had left Nakina and were all in a weakened condition from frostbite and starvation.

During the six days they had shared a rabbit. Two young girls were said to have suffered frozen feet and plans have been made to transport them by air to hospital at Nakina.

ROEBUCK HINTS PROBE IS LIKELY

May Deal With Charge Made By Organized Workers

Toronto, Jan. 13 (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Roebuck said today an investigation is the most likely thing but not without the consurrence of the government" when discussing charges brought against the Auxiliary Corporation, which Toronto private detective agency, by officials of Trades Unions.

G. W. Anderson, Sudbury, organizer for International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, charged before the Ontario cabinet Tuesday the International Nickel Company is sponsoring sabotage of the union at Sudbury. The actual work being done by the auxiliary corporation.

Mr. Anderson said the Nickel Company employed the auxiliary corporation to send "spies" and "spotters" to Sudbury to "create trouble" and urge mining areas to wreck the union.

Mr. Roebuck said charges have been lost to the workers organization, he said.

Attorney General Questioned

"Is there any taint of illegality to the corporation's activities as reported to you," Mr. Roebuck was asked by the Attorney-General.

"Not that I know of unless it be there are incidents of a character without a license," said the Attorney-General.

Today the Attorney-General received a deputation from the Ontario section of the Canadian Congress of Canada to hear furthur details of alleged labor union activities of certain corporations.

The appointment was made Tuesday by the Ontario Cabinet to investigate the labor deputation.

The delegation will press for enactment at the forthcoming session of the Legislature of a bill designed to guarantee the rights of workers to organize in unions of their own choice.

Inquiry at Provincial Police offices today was unlikely Corporation has held a private detective license for some years. It expires in February.

Tube Put on Wrong, Car Trucker Dies

Woodstock, Ont., Jan. 13 (CP) Samuel Smith, Woodstock, was found dead in his garage early today from fumes due to carbon monoxide poisoning. Smith who was a trucker, believed with his car had rigged up a piece of tubing to carry the fumes out through a window. It was the door while his car was working on the car but had attached the tubing to the heater exhaust rather than that of the engine. No funeral will be held. Smith, who had returned from a trip to Chatham but a few hours before, was one of the leading workers in the church here and was one of the best known colored residents of the community. He leaves a large family.

For First in More Than Month The Pope is Able to Get up

Vatican City, Jan. 13 (AP) Pope Pius left his sickbed today for the first time in more than a month.

The Pontiff, ill with a variety of bad complications, was placed in a wheelchair especially constructed to allow him to rest without discomfort in his bed, and wheeled into various veins.

The move was pushed from the Holy Father's bedroom to a private chapel where he heard Mass and prayed. Then he was taken to an antechamber where he received members of the diplomatic corps, before, the shorter the time will be."

Prelates said the Pope's improving health was enabled to resume his private audiences in the papal chambers.

Pius is his legs and stomach have disturbed the Holy Father, Vatican source declared, although his doctors considered him in no immediate danger.

Rearmament Inevitable Eden Warns the Nations, But Britain Seeks Peace

Britain "Prefers Butter to Guns" He Tells Press

SAFETY ESSENTIAL

Madness Lies in Way of Isolation, Safety in Co-operation

London, Jan. 13 (CP) — Europe today pondered a warning for Foreign Secretary Eden that the powers must choose in 1937 between co-operation and isolation leading to disaster.

It also had his promise that any country sincerely committed to peace could find a friend in Great Britain.

Speaking before the Foreign Press Association, Eden stressed the inevitability of Britain's rearmament, but declared "we definitely prefer butter to guns."

"The British nation has no desire to spend money upon armaments," he said. "We do think it no mistake, in existing conditions that we show a stubborn determination as any other nation in equipment which they regard as vital to their national safety."

Butter Better Than Guns

"But there is a better way. We definitely prefer butter to guns and we are prepared to do our best by economic co-operation to secure that other nations butter too in a world which has no need of guns."

(Germany, faced with a shortage of food products, recently announced a system of butter rationing as one means of insuring economic sufficiency.)

Eden warned that policies of national isolation, if continued, would bring the world nearer an even greater disaster than the Great War.

Isolation Is "Madness"

"That way lies madness," he said. "There may have been a time when nations could be independent and self-sufficient, but that day is long past. No nation today can powper on the ruin of another."

The Foreign Secretary declared his belief that a new period of international co-operation already was beginning and cited as an indication the recently concluded Anglo-Italian Mediterranean treaty.

Speaking of Spain, Eden said that this country's "overwhelming desire is to see peace, of government and the less foreign interference there is the sooner the time will be."

He rejected the idea the government of Spain is unable to hold either Communist or Fascist. Neither force of opinion being half genous to Spain, he said, neither would be likely to endure.

Britain Renews Defences; Reply by Franco is Awaited

Funds For Supervision of Non-Intervention Almost All Promised

VOLUNTEER BAN

London, Jan. 13 (AP)— Great Britain's cabinet turned from Spanish non-intervention today to plan defence plans and called up for review her rearmament program.

Premier Baldwin's own first lines of defence were held to the fore. French aggression to control arms and volunteers to Spain through strict supervision of ports of departure, although control of the French and Portuguese borders were felt to have left an escape to sea.

The new French plan, said to have been submitted yesterday, was considered to dovetail with the British proposals for immediate stoppage of volunteers to the Spanish civil war.

All thought of land and sea supervision of Spain's frontiers was apparently postponed by yesterday's session of the non-Intervention subcommittee, pending a reply from General Francisco Franco to the proposal.

The reply of Socialist Foreign Minister Julio Alvares del Vayo was by the governments concerned."

Has Every Cent of $45,000 Sweep

Toronto, Jan. 13 (CP)—Joe Louis, Toronto hotel club washer who won $45,000 in the Irish Sweepstake on the Grand National, still in possession of every cent he won, according to his friend, R. Ray Pitcher, who left in June on a visit home to him under Canada's "Common Informer" law.

"Joe doesn't work," said Mr. Pitcher. "He just walks up and down Church Street every day with a cigar in his mouth. He still lives in a $3-a week room he always had. He hasn't changed, doesn't drink or gamble, except those formerly."

A trust fund was established for him on the advice of Claude Bosgard, hotel chef.

Definite, Valuable Clues Aid in Search of Kidnapper

Police Search Widely in Washington And California

OPERATIVES SECRET

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 13 (AP) Armed with definite, valuable clues, officers hunted widely today from Northern Washington to the California-Mexican border for the kidnapper of Edward Mattson—urged on by President Roosevelt's belief that the brutal crime be solved quickly.

A man who became frightened and ran away from a newsstand was sought in the vicinity of San Bernardino.

Federal investigators displayed some interest in an unidentified man, described to have acted "queer" while travelling on a bus ticket issued in Kelso, Wash., and whose frozen body was found in Central Missouri. He was described, however, as 60, older than the age generally attributed to the kidnapper. The search was for a listless as it was wide, federal agents checking from house to house in the Tacoma area.

Department of Justice operatives kept secret whether they sought one or two men for the crime, but his shoe prints.

Underwood to have been Juke-warm.

A statement of the sub-committee said the answers from the participating governments indicated "that almost all the funds required to finance the proposed supervision scheme]

Spanish Briefs

Ceuta, French Morocco, Jan. 13 (AP)—Three persons were killed and two wounded in an air raid by a Spanish government seaplane over the insurgent port of Melilla, Spanish Morocco.

An Associated Press correspondent witnessed the bombing yesterday during a trip into the Spanish zone to investigate reported influx of German troops.

No German regular soldiers were to be seen, but the only evidence of foreign activity was an Italian ship in the harbor of Melilla.

Salamanca, Jan. 13 (CP-Havas)—General Francisco Franco's staff formally denied the presence of German troops in Spanish Morocco.

"Everyone knows that Spanish Morocco is open to all citizens who can visit it at will," the statement said the falseness of the insidious reports disseminated," the insurgent commander said in an official announcement.

Gibraltar, Jan. 13 (AP)— Spanish insurgent armed trawlers stopped the British steamer Brambill in the Straits of Gibraltar last night. Fascist officers questioned the Brambill's master and later allowed the ship to proceed. The vessel was reported carrying a general cargo from Malaga to Barcelona.

Madrid, Jan. 13 (CP-Havas)— Dispatches from Ojon declared today that the German cruiser Koenigsberg had joined a crew of the captured Spanish government ship Jaime Jungera.

The Spanish ship was one of those seized by the Germans in retaliation for the sinking of the Basque autrolitos to return a peaceful vessel. Part of the cargo of the German freighter Palos.

Wealthy Backelor Leaves Fortune for Educational Purposes

New York, Jan. 13—(CP)— $50,000,000 foundation for the advancement of the moral, mental and physical welfare of the men and boys now left today to be established under the will of Charles Hayden, New York banker who died last Friday night.

The will, filed yesterday, directed that the foundation be established because he believed that the future of the world depended in large part on young men and that their proper training would lay the groundwork for "A nobler race of men."

The foundation will be established within the next few months after several trust funds and gifts have been provided. The trust will provide for the gift of $1,000,000 for the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, named a number of close friends who will receive bequests is Princess Migzel de Bragance of New York, the former Leila Stewart, who was given a life income of $10,000 a year.

GUILTY OF ASSAULT

Stratford, Ont., Jan. 13 (CP)— William Bradshaw, 22, of Stratford was fined $25 and costs with the option of 30 days in jail when he pleaded guilty before Magistrate J. who Mathie today to a charge of common assault. The charge resulted from an alleged attack by Bradshaw at last night's hockey game in which Robert Modgrwell, an Avonton youth, was received a blackened eye.

Modgrwell had asked the defendant to stop smoking until he got outside.

City and District News

STORIES ARE TOLD OF HYMNS SUNG

"Old and favourite hymns and their origins" was the topic of John McSherry, of the Continental Life, in his address to the T'y Man's Club. The early definition of a hymn was "a song to please God." Modern definition is that a hymn is a sacred song for private and public use. David wrote many of the old hymns when he wrote the Psalms, which were used in the Church until the middle ages, Mr. McSherry spoke on a variety of songs and hymns, telling of their many stories of their origin and their writers. He divided the hymns into different classes those written by the Roman Catholic priests, those by non-conformists and those by the English Church ministers.

Stan Wilbur provided the Club with songs while George Purvis was the stellar sing-at-arms.

OLD BELLEVILLE BOY CONCLUDES SERVICE

Earl W. Van Slarkom, K.C., who is an old Sidney township boy, has just concluded two years' service as Mayor of Tisdale, Sask., where he is a member of the legal firm of Van Slarkom & Hamilton. On each occasion he was returned by acclamation. Previous to occupying the civic chair, he was a member of the town council and headed the polls. Mr. Van Slarkom, who is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Van Slarkom, is a graduate of Albert College, Belleville, and Queen's University, Kingston, and before going West taught school for some time in Hastings County. He is prominent in Masonic circles in Saskatchewan and is succeeded as Mayor of Tisdale by Mr. Hunt. Buckley, who is a former Minister of Agriculture for that province.

MISTAKE IN NAME OF CORRECTED

In the sub-heading of a news story from Toronto headed "Frank A. Ralph is Trafalgered", appearing in the issue of Tuesday, December 30, it was erroneously stated that the appointment of President of the Royal Bank to become Board Chairman. This should of course have read "Resigns Presidency of Imperial Bank to Become Board Chairman."

COUNTY ROADS IN FAIR CONDITION

In spite of present weather conditions, roads through the north-east section of the county are in fair shape, and so far little rutting has been observed, according to reports of stage and bus drivers. Many of the back concession roads have shown little sign of thawing and are still hard and firm.

FLOWER BEDS MAY SUFFER FROM FROSTS

Fears that the present mild weather would have a damaging effect upon flower beds of local homes where perennials and other roots have been planted were somewhat eased today by amateur gardeners who point out that perennials of recent rains was followed by frosts and heaving of the beds. On the other hand pastures and seeded land through the district has not as yet been seriously affected and will not be unless below zero temperatures and alternate thaws are experienced. Little snow is received, at the opinion of several agriculturists.

MILD WEATHER SET TO MAKE A RECORD

"Give us a little more of this kind of weather and we'll probably have an all time record of some kind," commented Mr. Cliff Brooks, manager of outside operations of the local waterworks department this morning pointing to the fact that so far this winter not one major freeze up of outside services has been reported.

For the first time since its purchase it is late a date, it was also noted, the services of the electrical thawing machine have not been needed.

Depth of frost in the ground at the present time as reported by the waterworks department and the department of public works stands as fair shape, and so far little rutting from eight to ten inches.

JOE E. SHORTT IS NAMED AS DELEGATE

At an executive meeting of the Belleville and District Fish and Game Protective Association held last evening Mr. J. E. Shortt was named as local representative to attend the annual meeting of the Provincial Anglers' Association of the Fish and Game Committee at the next meeting of Provincial Parliament.

C. OF C. APPROVES OF HIGHER SPEED LIMIT

Belleville motorists are following with considerable interest the news that the Hon. Mitchell F. Hepburn is considering the elimination of the 35-mile speed limit on Provincial highways. It will be recalled that some time ago members of Belleville Chamber of Commerce who studied the matter of abolition of the 35-mile law expressed their opinion by vote that the higher speed limit in many ways would tend toward safer driving and be a greater factor to safety, particularly during the tourist season.

TO PURCHASE TRAILER

Travelling southward in independent fashion, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Trevertion and children who expect to join Mr. Trevertion, Miami-bound, will make the major part of the journey by car and trailer. It is the combined intention of Mr. Trevertion to purchase an up-to-date trailer immediately upon his crossing the border.

TO CHOSE CHAIRMAN FROM 3 CANDIDATES

At the inaugural meeting of the local Board of Trustees to be held on Friday evening it is expected that three names will be advanced for the office of Chairman of the Board for the coming year. Those mentioned as likely candidates are Trustees J. H. Allins, Chas. Doyle and Jas. Thompson, three of whom have had the longest service on the Board and as the announcement has been made as to whether the nomination would be forthcoming.

A fourth member, Mr. Reg. Moncrief, is also eligible for the old-set in point of service, declared himself in opposition not to accept the nomination.

FLOODED FIELD USED BY SKATERS

Apparently undaunted by the repeated thaws the ice on the Bay is unsafe for skating, Belleville lake enthusiasts sought their favourite pastime on the flooded field but not far to seek for a field near Bull Dog Island, which has been covered with water and frozen over provided an ideal condition for the sport of skating. Last night a happy crowd of youngsters and some grown-ups were busily skating and all down the splendid ice surface. A bonfire built by the youngsters in the vicinity provided a colorful setting and also in the sight skimming figures were seen casting fantastic shadows on the ice in the glow of cheery flames.

CORONATION NOVELTIES IN LITTLE DEMAND

The coming coronation of King George VI has had little effect upon local stores as yet, it was revealed by a tentative canvass of some of the stationery and novelty shops this morning. Requests for souvenir pieces of the coronation have been few and far between and a singular reluctance has been noted in many cases to display heavily in the anticipation of trade.

Marsh Grass Ignites But No Damage Done

Clouds of smoke rolling up from the marshes near the Bay bridge caused considerable alarm in the minds of nearby residents shortly after four o'clock yesterday afternoon. Alarms were sent in to the city fire department which rushed to the scene. Grass in the marsh had become ignited in some manner but the damp conditions prevented what might have developed into a serious blaze and it was soon that a strong breeze was blowing.

Farmhand Chased By Angry Steer

Andy Craig, Sidney Township farmhand, yesterday had a good idea of what it means to be chased like in working hours.

Entrusted with the delivery of a thoroughbred two-year-old steer at a local slaughter-house, Andy escaped injury only through the fact that by some fast and clever footwork when the annoyed animal broke loose while being unloaded from a stock truck and charged the scattering workers.

Tailing the sprinting Sidney resident, the steer made a wild circle around the standing truck several times, the maddened eyes of the distinct winner of the race until the fifth or sixth lap when a sudden and unexpected leap placed the quarry on top of the truck rack last out of reach of the angry horns. Rallying to the trucker's assistance with stout poles, the slaughter house employees managed to lasso and subdue the snorting animal in approved western fashion.

Train Despatcher Moved

St. Thomas, Ont., Jan. 12.—(CP) —J. W. Farrah, chief train despatcher of the Canadian National-Wabash Lines between Windsor and the Niagara Border, has been appointed dispatcher at London, Ont., succeeding W. Rogers, promoted to Assistant Superintendent at Belleville. Mr. Farrah is a member of the St. Thomas City Council.

DOG HELP S SKATER

"Buck" has as much fun on the ice as his master, even though he does most of the work in this instance. The big fellow can pull Dewid Blackburn of Belleville over the frozen harbor at a pretty fair clip, and has been known to take part in the combination of Belleville hockey games the boys play.

CHILDREN MISS VISIT OF SANTA

Unused Toys Will Be Appreciated at The Shelter

While Christmas has practically passed into the limbo of forgotten things, with Belleville revelling jubilating to the fact, that very few if any of her underprivileged families were unprovided for, thanks to the untiring energies of her various organizations, yet there were seven little children who looked in vain for the visit of Santa Claus. Seven childish hearts were broken on Christmas morning, as empty stockings greeted their eager gaze.

The bells ringing the glad message of Christmas brought these youngsters no joy, none of the childish delight that is characteristic of this festive season. Christmas was just another day in the lives of these little tots, only it was filled with a blank disappointment. Santa Claus had not gotten them.

Seven little children in the Children's shelter gazed wistfully at empty stockings, little eyes filled with tears, and white little faces grew unbelievably at what they say. And these youngsters have not forgotten.

They are still of the impression that Santa Claus visit was only postponed. And Belleville citizens can help them in their belief by donating any used toys, they may have and which have outlived their local usefulness.

You can bring unlaid joy to the hearts of these forgotten kiddies by calling Miss Harris at the Children's Shelter and telling her, that you have a few toys, which you would like to donate. They will be greatly appreciated.

ARTHUR BAGLEY TO BE HEARD

Making Tour of Canada in Interests of Physical Education

A former newspaper man and a member of the New York Advertising Club and the New York Rotarian Club, Mr. Arthur Bagley, Director of the Bureau of Physical Training of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, will be in Canada a tour of Canada in the interests of physical education, will be the principal speaker at the regular meeting of the Belleville Rotary Club on the New Queen Hotel on Monday evening. He will speak to the Kiwanis Club on Tuesday.

Belleville City Council and members of the newly formed Citizens' Commission will be the guests of the service club at the banquet to be held in conjunction with the meeting.

Mr. Bagley, who is head of the physical education departments of several important business organizations, has established an envious record, but his most notable achievement perhaps was the construction of health exercises over a national radio network. Many Belleville citizens will recall his famous song, two, three and four" as an early hour in the morning to the accompaniment of popular music.

During the World War, Mr. Bagley was a director of physical training and education in the army camps. Himself a gymnast of repute, he has made a study of physical fitness as a trainer of athletes and as an organizer of community recreation.

Trenton, N.S., Jan. 13 (CP) — Business is booming in the steel and car plants of the little industrial town and the town councillors are happy. A good many unemployed have found jobs in the last three months and in that time the town's relief costs have been reduced 45 per cent.

LOCALS BASK IN SPRING ZEPHYRS

Marbles Replace Hockey Sticks as Old Man Winter Stays Away

Marbles replaced hockey sticks and roller skates, skis in the city as summer temperatures and bright sunshine continued today, adding a mid-May touch to mid-January. While thermometer levels continued to mount during the day there was no indication that winter was even around the corner. Complete disregard for Old Man Winter and the date is evident on the streets and school grounds where "knuckle down" was being played with marbles, "alleys" were being chosen for impromptu baseball games and scholars skated to school on their walks.

The lack of snow may be saving the city money for snow shovelers and snow removal, but farmers of the district are expressed some concern over the lack of snow on fields, reported inadequate, but with a threat of colder weather to come. Hundreds or tons of coal are being saved from the furnaces of offices and homes, the city hall, schools and county buildings using silly keys at high heat at this date, but coal men expressed little satisfaction with the unusual weather.

At the city weigh scales it was clearly indicated this week th., drop in coal orders while local residents bask in spring zephyrs.

SIGNS OF SPRING SEEN IN CITY

Tulips, Hyacinths And Sweet Peas Blushing Forth

Sap flowing from Maple trees in Peterborough, lilac bushes in bud in the same city, crocuses in Havelock; robins in Oshawa; budding trees in other cities and towns have all contributed to the early Spring advent, but the fair young lady in the flowing robes, who is supposed to usher in the glad season, apparently has not as favorably spell over this city. Two days ago maple trees were seen in bud, yesterday a pair of robins were seen in Ann street, but today's report would seem to infer that Spring is really around the corner, for growths are at the present the side of the house of Mrs. A. B. Herman, 326 Dufferin Avenue, were discovered tulips and hyacinths over a foot in size, the first discovery the plants were two inches in height.

In Victoria Avenue, sweet pea shoots nearly four inches in length were found growing in a garden. The shoots were green and full of moisture.

Requesting action on the part of the police department for assistance here, Mrs. Wilkin principal of Queen Victoria School complained that a large collie dog had become a nuisance in the vicinity of the school recently, Mr. Wilkin reported to the matter to the police today, adding the canine was causing a general disturbance and frightening the scholars enroute to and from school. The dog is believed to be owned in the vicinity of the school, but although seemingly harmless does annoy the teachers and students with continual barking and loitering about the school during school hours.

No arrests have been necessary in Belleville thus far this week, activities being merely routine of late. The cell block was free for the accommodation of the night travellers, who applied at the police station for a night's lodging last night.

NEW CIVIC BODY KIWANIS GUESTS

Members of The City Council Lunch With Service Club

To further cement the friendly feeling between the members of the City Council and the Kiwanis Club the members of the Civic Body were luncheon guests of the Service Club on Tuesday at the Queen's Hotel. Incidentally it was the first meeting at which the new president of the club Eddie Logan, presided, and a fine attendance was noted, which it is hoped will continue throughout the year. The luncheon was strictly one of routine, there being no special speaker for the occasion and the members much appreciated the friendly get-together.

Due to a meeting of the newly elected Hydro Commission, Mayor Arnold was unable to be present, but Alderman Armstrong presented his regrets and as Worship ex-pressed the thanks of the Council for the invitation to be present and solicited the hearty co-operation of the Kiwanis Club in the coming year. Alderman Harris Lewis in a happy vein expressed the regret of the Board of Control during the council and told the club that the Civic Body appreciated the invitation and hoped for the time when he would again enter municipal life. Other members of the Council were Aldermen C. R. Clapp, J. W. Harlow, Howard Hubbard, Harold Armstrong, Burton Jennings, A. M. Kennedy, Jas. Thompson, H. W. Greenleaf and Laurie Lewis. Civic members were introduced by Ald. Thomas Frank and Ald. Lewis. Ald. and who retired this year Aldermen Hubbard, Greenleaf and Lewis.

Ross Fitch, the V.O.N. and K. M. Bird thanking the Council for favors, Gordon Bray was appointed as a member of the committee of the V.O.N. Board. An innovation was started by the Service Club when by having all the members state the day of their birth and the one nearest to it, a birthday party throughout the year will be asked for. Ald. Lewis and Harry Forhan will also present two tickets to the Y.M.C.A. dance as a birthday gift. The presentation of the monthly satisfactory to the members. The Kiwanis Band was also present and will be used as General Chairman and he will be assisted by the committee of Bill Anderson, Ivan Phillips, Gordon Bray and Ross Fitch to be named. Mr. Lindsay of the John D. Lindsay Candy Company spoke on a pageant to be sponsored by the Club, but this will be discussed further. Cliff Barnard gave a short talk on Kiwanis Education.

Mrs. Faulkner Top Ranking Bridge Player

Mrs. J. A. Faulkner, outstanding bridge exponent has received word that she has won the top ranking player in duplicate bridge in Canada and the United States. The announcement, in the form of a letter to William E. McKenney, secretary of the Belleville Bridge Club, from Central Hotel, New York, in a letter which said:

Dear Mrs. Faulkner:

"In looking over the American Bridge League Master Point records, I notice with interest that you are the greatest winner of these evidences of superior bridge skill in the year just ended."

Mrs. Faulkner was a member of the Canadian team which secured the United States National Team of Four championship in Chicago, and of the runners-up in the United States National Women's Team of Four championship played in the same city. Other championships she won but not the Master Mrs. Faulkner was a member are: Canadian-American Team of Four Championship, Niagara Falls Out, Canadian-American mixed players championship, Niagara Falls Ont., Eastern Canadian team of four championship, Toronto, Ont., Canadian mixed players championship, Toronto, City of Buffalo open pairs championship, Buffalo.

Mrs. Faulkner is preparing to defend her championship which she obtained in 1937. The mantel at her home, is covered with the handsome trophies which she has won and presented to her, while the large cups are held at the Toronto Whist Club.

Much of her success she attributes to the brilliant play of her partners with whom she hopes to represent Canada in the coming season.

Although undecided to be the top player, Mrs. Faulkner admits that there are a few who are better than men players, but believes they can be just as good.

Engineer Drops Dead While Eating Lunch

Campbellford, Jan. 13 — Harry Neave, 55-year-old Canadian National Railways freight engineer, dropped dead at noon Tuesday while eating dinner in the caboose of his train. Death was due to a heart attack.

The body was carried to Lindsay in his own train, running on schedule. Provost Harry Clemens took over the throttle for the balance of the run, with Brakeman Tom Griffin firing.

Neeve was born in Lindsay. He had a long record of service with the railway. Besides his widow, he is survived by one son, Lloyd, of Toronto, and one daughter, Helen, of Lindsay.

Neeve was in charge of the Belleville-Lindsay way-freight when he died.

KIRMA THANKS YOU—and so does the New Year Baby.

The response to the appeal on behalf of the New Year Baby in Tuesday's paper was prompt and encouraging, proving that the great heart of Belleville still beats with sympathy for the ills of others, and in a spirit of Christian neighborliness inspires the prompt extension of the helping hand to those whose feet are faltering on life's highway through force of circumstances often beyond individual control.

Hence, the appeal of the New Year Baby, born in Belleville soon after the bells rang in the New Year, met prompt and pleasing reception, details of which will be given later.

After the installation ceremony the brethren repaired to the banquet hall where the usual toasts were given.

The Salvation Army Choristers and Mr. Ted Wright gave an excellent program and Mr. F. Wardle gave a talk which was enjoyed by all. Mrs. John Greene acted as accompanist to the choristers and Mr. G. Wardle formed aide.

The toast list was as follows:

"King and Craft"

"Grand Lodge and Grand Lodge Officers"—proposed by Wor. Bro. W. Reid, responded to by W. Bro. A. A. Becker.

"Our Installing Officers"—proposed by Bro. C. C. Crosby, responded to by R. W. Bro. H. J. Clarke.

"Newly Installed Officers"—proposed by W. Bro. J. Noakes, responded to by officers.

"Visitors"—proposed by M. W. Bro. W. N. Ponton, responded to by W. Bro. L. J. Walker, W. Bro. R. D. Adams and W. Bro. R. Yo. Bros. Auld Lang Syne brought to a close a very pleasant evening.

J. R. S.—The crystal shows that your daughter's condition will be improved to a satisfactory degree within the immediate future. It is my suggestion however that you continue the present course of treatment.

J. B.—The money mentioned in your question will eventually be received, however, I see plainly that you will be confronted with some obstacles in the receipt of this money and it will be necessary for you to take this matter into court in order that you obtain that which is rightfully yours.

H. W. A.—There will be no immediate change in your employment, in fact I see you remaining indefinitely in your present situation.

A. W.—Unfortunately there will be a discontinuation of your father's present condition prior to the coming Spring. Your husband's contract will be renewed.

P. B.—It is not advisable for you to dispose of your present holdings at the present time. Retain them for eighteen months and you will then be enabled to dispose of them at a profit.

465—I see disappointment for you. 638. the crystal shows me that the gentleman in question is really in love with the other young lady. You will never marry him.

M. O. G.—The position in question is not worth waiting for. I would suggest that you make application elsewhere.

R. A.—I do see clearly another marriage for you, within a period of three years. By all means keep the children with you.

M. M.—Your husband will retain his position indefinitely and you will continue to reside in Toronto.

W. S.—The party in question will eventually obtain a position. It is not advisable however that you permit yourself to become under obligation regarding the outcome. Understand?

L. H. W.—It is advisable for you to cultivate your son commercially. There are remarkable possibilities in that field.

R. T.—You will under no circumstances marry the ladies in question. I can see no reason why your friendship, of course, should not continue.

L. A. H.—He will be employed no later than the present month.

K. Y. Z.—Forget the young man. You are not in love with him you only imagine you are.

767-X. Y.—You will marry within this year, incidentally I see a successful marriage for you.

J. M.—It is advisable that you place yourself in the hands of some competent physician and undergo treatment for this condition providing you act immediately you will avoid serious complications.

1900.—Yes, indeed, it will be "M" but you won't marry for four years yet.

H. Q. S.—By all means continue in your effort you will not be disappointed.

G. J.—I seriously suggest that you undergo the operation immediately as prolonging the issue will surely lead to the much feared complication and in fact will do so in the near future. Regarding the matter of your husband. There is no other woman in his life at this time and neither has there been in the past. P.S. On behalf of the 1937 Baby I want to personally thank you for your very large donation.

Stirling Community Club Hosts to St. John's-Men's Assoc.

Stirling community club's Stirling community Welfare Club held their first monthly meeting for the year 1937, in the Community Service Building on Tuesday evening, January 12th, when they had as their guests for the evening, the officers and members of St. John's Anglican Men's Association. In addition to the splendid turkey dinner prepared and served by the ladies of the Stirling branch of the Ontario Women's Institute, the members of the St. John's Club were responsible for the presentation of one of the most interesting programs ever given. A careful selection of reported readings and an illustrated lecture given by the guest speaker all had a share in making the evening a most enjoyable one for the large crowd who attended.

As the dinner gong sounded nearly a hundred guests representing the two major clubs of the village took their places at the gaily decorated tables to partake of the fine turkey dinner arranged under the supervision of Mr. Harry Franck, Chairman of the Refreshment Committee, which work in co-operation with the ladies. Rev. J. A. Kofford returned thanks. Dr. E. A. Carleton acting in his official capacity of Sergeant-at-Arms performed his duties in a most capable fashion as did Mr. Murney Hicks, newly appointed song leader, the latter being very ably assisted by Mr. C. A. Wells at the piano.

Mr. C. N. Baker newly appointed president of the organization acted as Master of ceremonies for the opening exercises and after the toast to the King introduced Dr. E. A. Carleton, president of St. John's Men's Association who introduced the various members on each of the most interesting programs given at the club.

After a brief address on behalf of the guests by Mr. Ed. Bird the man expressed their appreciation of the fraternal fellowship which existed between the two organizations. Dr. Carleton outlined the aims and objects of both clubs as being very much in harmony with one another. The first number on the entertainment part of the program was group singing led by Col. Yates popular singer and humorist of Belleville, with Mr. Charles Dickenson of Toronto, as the pianist. The instrumental numbers given by Master Peter Smith, eight-year-old piano student of Trenton, who possesses remarkable talent for his age was very much enjoyed and in response to long and loud applause he graciously offered an encore. Another unusual feature of the program was the presence of Mr. Frank Oldfield, distinguished Canadian baritone, who offered two groups of songs and was loudly acclaimed on his first appearance in Stirling. Mr. Oldfield won the hearts of his audience with his fine rendition of "Soldiers on the Parade" With his first number he was called back and he graciously offered appreciated songs of more and arranged his numbers accordingly. Without the two groups were included stirring marches which would have been tremendously volume to great advantage, he offered: "Marching Through Georgia" "The Guards Are on Parade" "The Flora Dora Girl" "London Town," "The Sergeant Major", "On the Road to Mandalay", "Sailing By The Sea" and then by way of contrast sang "A Perfect Day" "Passed by Your Window". When the exceptionally fine artist who has been featured many times over the Canadian Airways, sings the boisterous army songs his volume rings forth like a great musical instrument and in his interpretation of quiet love songs his subdued tones are equally impressive. Music lovers present were very much thrilled with this unexpected treat. Mr. Charles Dickenson of Toronto, accompanied him in all his numbers.

Mr. Reginald W. Hopper of Toronto is Speaker of the Evening

The guest speaker for the occasion was Mr. Reginald W. Hopper of Toronto, Secretary of the Society for Crippled Children, who was introduced by the Rev. Archdeacon A. S. McConnell, and delivered a splendid address on the activities of the organization in the represented which was fully illustrated by motion pictures. Pictures showing the tremendous advances made by the medical profession in restoring health and happiness to children born infirmity and injured in accidents cruelest much interest. Particularly the films showing Dr. Fred Cochrane, of Toronto (well known, at work in his clinic at the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children. Pictures showing cases before treatment and later entirely cured of such ailments as paralysis, rickets, club feet and injuries sustained in common accidents, very much impressed the interested gathering.

In closing his fine lecture Mr. Hopper emphasized the need for continual care and caution to be exercised by those in control of motor vehicles or any mechanical instrument which could inflict injury to another. The address was both interesting and educational. Mr. Murney Hicks, on behalf of the gratitude of all present to the guest speaker and the visiting artists for their splendid services.

At this point Mr. C. N. Baker resumed the chairmanship to conduct the business part of the meeting which consisted of complete reports which were presented by Mr. H. E. Hulin, Secretary; C. N. Baker, Treasurer and by the Convenors of the various committees. The meeting was then brought to a close in the usual manner.

Inaugural Meeting of Stirling Council

The first meeting of the Stirling Village Council was held in the Council Chambers on Monday morning at eleven o'clock when the following members answered to the declaration of office, Reeve Thos. Cranston, Councillors C. B. Sprinkle, D. A. Burkitt, Joseph Whitehead and Hugh Bogart. Council opened in due form and Councillor D. A. Burkitt gave official notice of his intention to apply for a law to appoint officers for 1937 and fix the salaries of the same, at the first regular meeting. Council then adjourned.

The first regular meeting took place in the same place on the evening of the same day with Reeve Cranston occupying the chair and all the Councillors in attendance. Following is a detailed account of the most important business transacted in the presence of a large number of citizens who attended the meeting.

St. Andrew's Young People's Guild

The regular weekly meeting of St. Andrew's Young People's Society was held in the Church parlours on Monday evening, with Minister Johnson, president of the organization, in the chair and the meeting opened with the usual song service. The Scripture Lesson was read from the 90th Psalm was read by Roy Juby following prayer.

During the business part of the meeting Minister Johnson announced Roy Juby was nominated and elected to office of President for the remainder of the year, Miss Spry gave a detailed report of the activities which transpired at the last regular meeting. Mr. Duncan Monigomery Past President of the organization, who has been absent for several months was the speaker for the evening and delivered an interesting and helpful address. Mrs. F. Hulin offered a pleasing soprano solo "The Little Church on The Hill" the following the singing of several hymns and prayer by Rev. J. A. Kofford the meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

Personals

Rev. W. J. Scott of St. Paul's United Church; Rev. J. A. Kofford of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and Rev. James E. Beckel of Trinity United Church Circuit were in Madoc, on Monday, where they attended the regular meeting of the Federal Hastings Ministerial Association which was held at the home of Rev. J. S. Kennedy of that place.

Mr. Ben McCallum of the bank of Montreal staff in London, Ontario is spending a few days visiting friends in Stirling.

Messrs. Chas. Dickenson, Frank Oldfield, and Reginald Hopper of Toronto, were Stirling visitors on Tuesday of this week and assisted on the program at the Stirling Community Welfare Club dinner.

SKIS IN SICILY

While North America is snowless for a great part, snow has fallen in Sicily, a rare event for that Mediterranean isle. A despatch from Palermo told of the snowfall in the Sicilian hills and added that ski sports are pushing to the hills.

This sport which is sweeping across the world has been helped by the weather so that the Sicilians and any visitors there may enjoy the latest newcomer in the sport world. This may help to spread the idea of the fraternity of nations through the avenue of enjoyment. Skis have conquered northern countries and now have widened their rule to take in the Mediterranean Sea about which so much of a warlike character has been written in the past year.

SO COMPLEX A WORLD

It seemed the other day that the people and press had got into such a gloom regarding the outlook in Europe that the skies could do nothing but grow darker and darker until there was a sudden flare-up in the darkness to tell that the world was aflame. The scene had shifted to interest from Spain to Morocco. Then the tension lightened just after it seemed to be growing most strained if possible.

This should indicate that in a complex society, such as we inhabit today, the world at large cannot grasp the innumerable factors all of their importance which determine events. Factors which make history are not such as can be told in a phrase or an article, for they have their roots deep in the past and spread everywhere, even in almost hidden sources. It may even be that diplomats do not entirely understand every potentiality summed up in the forces at work in this modern world.

Anyway the nations breathe more easily with lightened tension. There is even hope of understanding.

SOME N. Y. PULPIT VIEWS

"Reasonableness is needed in the approach to men with the offer of religion," said the Rev. Averides Demerjian at St. James M. E. Church, New York. He called for a compromise between the extreme viewpoints represented in the take-it-or-leave-it attitude and the attitude which makes religion so easy that there was no longer any joy in reaching for it."

Religion contributes to the individual a security fully as important as social security, the Rev. Dr. Minot Simons, of All Souls Unitarian Church, New York City, declared. "Without some feeling of spiritual security, economic security may be nothing better than a sluggish contentment with material well-being or a prolonged dissatisfaction in a period of foreboding and fears."

"When embittered men say that religion is a spent force and that the church no longer influences the life and thought of men, they do not know that they are talking nonsense and the facts are against them" Rev. John Walter Houck, pastor of Pilgrim Congregational Church, said. "That the old patterns of theological thought have been modified and replaced by psychological and scientific patterns does not mean that religion has been replaced, and that the church is obsolete."

"It is man's duty in the present world situation not to speculate about the imminence of war but to pray and hope for peace," Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, president of Union Theological Seminary, said at Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church. "It is the fashion for the moment to speculate how soon another world war will engulf us. Many are gloomy at the prospects. But if we are believers in God the last word must always be of hope in Him. What does such hope mean? It means that in any situation He has a purpose for us and a purpose in which He wishes us to work. At this hour in the world's affairs it is surely God's will that we hope and pray for peace and do not supinely declare that what is inevitable, that we employ our own science and intelligence to make our land juster and friendlier, more enlightened and more loyal to God. We ought to welcome and work with every movement in this direction.

"Without the delusion that man can usher in a millennium our generation can with God's help make a lasting contribution to mankind . . .

"The shortness of human life is the ghost at the banquet of human thought", said Rev. Dr. Malcolm MacLeod, retired pastor of the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas. "Of course an empty life would seem long enough. If you want to make life slow and that is the devil's work, there are plenty of people who can show you how.

"Belief in man's immortality is incompatible with a life spent in merrymaking. Therefore labor should be regarded as the handmaiden of religion and the human relationship involved should be tempered with kindness. We are born to be launched into great eternity, just as a ship is made on land to be launched into the sea."

THE CRYSTAL WOOD

Now comes a beautiful morning to the world,
Bright on the world, bright on the heart that grieves.
Incredible light has turned the trees to crystal,
Outlined with halo all the little leaves.

Now shall we walk together through the wood
Gathering blossoms delicately made
Of fragile glass, so dazzling in the sun.
O wood of heart's desire, wood without shade!

Here might I keep you always by my side
In a translucent dream before the night.
Alas, I give up your hand. You are going
From me.
Your radiant contours merging into light.

—Betty Richart.

EVIDENCES OF INCREASING CONFIDENCE IN A GROWING PROSPERITY is the fact that Canada merchants are increasing their advertising appropriation for this year, in fact some of them have taken out contracts for double the space contracted for last year. Persistent, consistent publicity wins out every time.

MAYOR AND ALDERMAN FOR 1937 were wined and dined by the Rotary Club on Monday. Wined is not strictly accurate but there was a bottle of cough medicine before each plate, which prompted Alderman Clapp, Chairman of Public Works to say that after they took the medicine if they did not experience the relief expected it might be advisable to call upon the public works department.

"FAT, JUICY, DELECTABLE" is the report from Tilbury, Ontario, from farmers of that vicinity who have been shooting crows and eating them. Crows of Kent County, they say, feed lavishly on corn and other grain, and the prejudice against crow as a food is misplaced. United States sportsmen have been eating crow for some time and liking it, and in the western states crow is served regularly in a number of high class restaurants. Seems though we've been missing something through ignorance or prejudice, but the crow will not appreciate being popular enough to pop into the pot. Yankee politicians may yet be heard promising a crow for every pot, rivalling the Republican slogan of two cars in every garage and a chicken in every pot.

A violinist was very much disappointed with the account of his recital printed in the paper of a small town. "I told you three times," complained the musician to the owner of the paper, "that the instrument I used was a genuine Stradivarious, and in this story there was not a word about it, not a word." "That is as it should be. When the Stradivarius Company advertises their fiddles in my paper, under tan cent a line, you can come round and tell me about it.

BARON MUNCHAUSEN?

"You know when I was timbering in the northwest it snowed so hard that we had to be let down with ropes to reach the tops of the trees. And the fog was so thick that the fish lost themselves in the wood and we had to sleep with mosquito netting over us to keep the pollywogs out of our eyes. We soon remedied that by digging ditches in the fog and draining it back to the river?"

"Well, you know when I was down digging the Panama Canal, it was so hot there one day when my buddy went a-swimming and dived off a 20-foot rock into the stream he forgot to take into account the evaporation, and when he was half way down all the water was gone."

"Was he killed?"

"No; it happened that one of our sudden heavy rains came up and he landed in eight feet of water."

Mr. Percival Templeton and family left for Vancouver, B.C., today where they will reside.

Up to this morning 234 pupils had registered at the Belleville high school. That is from all parts of the county appreciable the raising of the school fee to pupils outside the city is gridding the number who have enrolled at the school.

At the annual congregational meeting of John Street Presbyterian Church which was held last evening the question of singing during congregational singing of hymns was discussed. There are indications in the line of church service that cannot be introduced without the sanction of the Kirk Synod. They were referred to that body for consideration.

G-MEN BEGIN INTENSIVE HUNT AS KIDNAPPED BOY FOUND SLAIN

All the strength of the United States G-man forces was turned loose in a hunt for the kidnapper and slayer of 10-year-old Charles Mattson of Tacoma, Washington, when the boy's battering and lifeless body was found in the snow 50 miles from his home. Held back while the lad's father, Dr. William Mattson, sought to contact the kidnapper and effect safe release of his son, the forces of city, state and federal law swept into the hunt with a grim determination to find and punish the brutal slayer. At the RIGHT is a picture of the slain boy.

MERCY FLIGHT SAVES 32 MINERS FROM STARVATION

Snowbound for nine days in the Panamint range of mountains in California, with food running low, and with six-foot snowdrifts hampering efforts of rescue, 33 miners in an isolated mining camp in Inyou country were saved from possible freezing and starvation when a California National Guard aeroplane dropped more than 60 pounds of supplies and provisions for them. The aeroplane is seen in the upper left, bank corner as it swept over the mining camp and dropped its burden. At the top right are Sergt. National Guardsman pilots packing the machine for its mercy flight.

SIR JOHN AIRD, BANKER, RETIRES

Is Succeeded in Presidency of Bank of Commerce by S. H. Logan

Toronto, Jan. 13.—Sir John Aird dean of Canadian banking, announced his retirement from the presidency of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. He will be succeeded by S. H. Logan, general manager since 1926.

A stenographer when he entered the service of the bank in 1878, Sir John developed the greater part of the bank's branch system on the western prairies and was appointed president in 1926. He had been knighted in 1917 in recognition of services to the Dominion and imperial governments in connection with war-time financing.

A. E. Arnold succeeds Mr. Logan as general manager, and S. M. Wedd and James Stewart are appointed assistant general managers.

Sir John Aird was born in Longueuil, Que., of Scottish parents, but most of his younger days were spent in the west, where he entered business life as a telegrapher on the Northern Railway. After joining the bank staff he held responsible positions in Toronto and Montreal before being made manager at Winnipeg.

In that position and as superintendent of western branches he was largely responsible for development of the bank's branch system in the west. Sir John became closely associated with the late Sir Edmund Walker when the latter was made assistant general manager in 1901. He was appointed general manager in 1915.

Sir John was chairman of the royal commission on radio broadcasting, appointed in 1928 by the Dominion government to study the problem of radio in Canada. As a result of the Aird report, the Canadian Radio Commission was established. Within the next year this was replaced by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

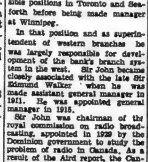
Mr. Logan, new president of the bank, started his career with the Halifax banking company in 1897. In 1905 he opened the first Cobalt branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce with a tent as his office. He developed the branch system in the northern Ontario mining field.

Mr. Logan was appointed manager at St. John, Nfld., in 1913 and came to Toronto head office as assistant manager.

The new general manager, Mr. Arnold, is a native of Walkerton, Ont., and has served at a number of branches in Ontario and Quebec. From 1920 to 1922 he was assistant manager at Ottawa and came to Toronto in 1923 as assistant manager. In 1929 he was appointed an assistant general manager at head office.

HOUSE READY FOR OPENING

Expected Senator Will Be Named For Remaining Seat



Ottawa, Jan. 13 (CP)—The Cabinet will meet today in the Red Chamber to complete the Thursday afternoon's opening of Parliament. It is expected to put the finishing touches on the Throne Speech and announce who will fill the remaining vacant seat in the Senate.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced yesterday appointment to the Red Chamber of Adrian Knaubenbauer, well-established Montreal lawyer and son of the first Premier of Ontario. The 72-year-old barrister will occupy the east left vacant through the death of Richard Hanson, Halifax, Montreal publisher.

The appointment left the Senate party standing at 61 Conservatives and 24 Liberals.

While political observers indulged in the usual pre-session sport of guessing what legislation the Throne Speech will forecast it was learned the Government was being subjected to increasing pressure to lower tariffs against Japan.

Many hints in editorial columns, speeches and elsewhere were recalled in support of which the demands might be made for a new statement of Government policy on the immigration question.

Twenty-Fifth Anniversary Of Wedding is Celebrated

Marmora Couple Guests of Honor at Surprise Party

Marmora—On January 10, twenty five years ago today, saw the late Mr. and Mrs. George Davidson of Marmora Township and Ida, daughter of Fred Holland of Marmora, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. The marriage was performed at St. John's Rectory, Madoc by Rev. C. J. Young. On Monday evening friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Davidson and surprised the couple with a most enjoyable party. The six children of Mr. and Mrs. Davidson are expected to visit their parents.

St. Paul's, A. Y. P. A. held a meeting in the White Hall on Monday evening with members of St. Andrew's Young People's Association as visiting guests, Rev. A. B. Caldwell opened the meeting with prayer and the minutes of the last meeting were then read by the secretary, Myra Smith. The invitation extended by Havelock A. Y. P. A. to a social evening was moved, accepted by Mr. H. Mumby and seconded by Miss Hilda Bonter. Arrangements for the bowling of a Bedminton Club were then discussed and Rev. A. B. Caldwell directed members to carry out the plans. The Club is to be open to the public, with a set membership fee. The committee appointed is as follows:—Mr. H. Mumby, Miss H. Thompson, Mrs. J. Smith, Mr. S. Hicks, Miss G. Lumsden, Mr. W. Bonter.

Preparations were made for the coming ball, and W. J. Reynolds, H. Mumby and J. Reynolds were appointed as members of the committee.

The debate, the event of the evening was then commenced with much enthusiasm manifested on both sides. "The Material Value of Politics Emancipates the Women" was ably started and Miss P. Wilson leader of the affirmative side gave the opposing side much cause for thought. Miss Wilson's excellent speaker of the affirmative, Miss H. Thomson was immediately followed by the second speaker of the negative side, Mr. S. Blake. At this point the debate was opened and each member or guest was permitted to speak. The speakers were as follows:—

Affirmative—Gertrude Lumsden.
Negative—W. J. Colling.
Affirmative—Annie Bailey.
Negative—A. E. Caldwell.
Affirmative—Beatrice Caldwell.
Negative—G. Sahine.

At this point the leader of the affirmative side was allotted five minutes to make her points made by the opposing side. Miss Wilson will utilized the five minutes, but the resulting score was 51 points for the negative and sixteen for the affirmative.

The meeting was then officially closed by the chairman, Mr. H. Mumby and then a delicious lunch was served by the girls of the A. Y. P. A.

The weekly study club of the Holy Name of Mary Separate School Church was held on Monday evening in the Separate School. Because of the condition of the roads in the winter months, each district will hold its weekly study club at the home of one of the members in the future.

Preparations for carrying out this plan were made at the meeting. After the business of the meeting was completed the members and parishioners joined in a game of bingo.

BUCKLEY'S ALKALINE COUGH MIXTURE

Quickly Neutralizes Harmful Acids

Test don't have to wait days or weeks for results with Buckley's. Just one spoonful—You get the effect instantly.

Medical Science has established beyond a doubt that an acid condition almost always accompanies the distressing cough, chest cold or bronchial trouble.

Buckley's meet the condition alkaline in your tissues forces an acid reaction and more or less of a preventive measure.

Don't be misled by what you hear. Buckley's contains a powerful ingredient cough subduer—combined with an active alkaline neutralizer.

And that is why Buckley's is so effective for coughs, chest colds, bronchial asthma, grippe, and whooping cough.

Buckley's Mixture is based on modern fast-findings. It's no ordinary cough mixture. It's not even a syrup. It's a real "acid-alkaline" cough syrup.

Don't suffer needlessly. Relief the scientific way—Buckley's Mixture. Get a bottle today and be days and nights of racking hacking coughing. You must get results with Buckley's or money back.

SHOWER HELD FOR NEWLYWEDS

Surry—On Thursday evening January 7th, 1937 about seventy friends and neighbors met at Sunnyside Farm, the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Fox, to honor their son, Norman and his bride (nee Hazel Brown, Foulthill) and to present them with a miscellaneous shower. After a brief time spent in greeting and good wishes, the assembly was called to order by Mr. J. Moon, who acted as chairman. Then followed a choice program of music, songs, readings etc. after which Hazel and Norman were waited by the dining room table and the following address was read by Mrs. Clifford Hough.

Mountain View, Ont.,
Jan. 7, 1937.

Dear Norman and Hazel:

We your friends, are gathered here tonight to do honor to an occasion which scarcely ever happens once in a life time we refer to your marriage.

To-night we extend the hand of friendship, and trust that nothing but mutual benefits and happiness may result from your sojourn through life.

In travelling along our public highways, we pass many signboards directing our destination to many things, and many miles point telling us where we are. We trust that the signs that have directed you hither may have been most fortunate.

Marriage brings many pleasures. It also brings great opportunities and added responsibilities. We are sure you will assume these with courage.

Now as we think of you marriage, we wish you both a happy and successful life together.

We ask you to accept these gifts as a slight token of our good will.

Signed on behalf of Surry Community—Gladys Marsden, Myrtle Hubbs, Thelma Hough.

Mrs. Tom Marsden and Mrs. Gens Hubbs then entered the hall, which was tastefully and beautiful gifts for the bride were displayed in honor of the occasion. The second speaker of the affirmative, Miss H. Thomson was immediately followed by the second speaker of the negative side, Mr. S. Blake. At this point the debate was opened and each member or guest was permitted to speak. The speakers were as follows:—

Affirmative—Gertrude Lumsden.
Negative—W. J. Colling.
Affirmative—Annie Bailey.
Negative—A. E. Caldwell.
Affirmative—Beatrice Caldwell.
Negative—G. Sahine.

PAINS ALL OVER HIS BODY

Kruschen Made Him Feel a New Man

Who had rheumatism so badly that his illness he was prevented from working.

"About 10 months ago," he writes, "I suffered terribly with rheumatism and neuritis. The pains were all over my body and at times I could not even get up from bed to go to work. A friend visited me and suggested that I should try Kruschen Salts. I did so, the result being that the pain soon ceased to trouble me and appear. I have been going to work ever since without a break, thanks to Kruschen Salts, and I feel a new man."—A.R.

Rheumatic conditions are frequently the result of an excess of uric acid in the body. Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts are notable for their work in dissolving uric acid. These ingredients are six Nature to expel the dissolved acid from the system.

HUGE FOOD STORE PLANNED BY ENG.

London, Jan. 13 (AP)— Plans to build up huge reserves of wheat and other foodstuffs will be submitted to parliament soon after it meets next Tuesday, a minister of the new food defence plans department said today.

They explained buying would not start until the necessary funds had been appropriated, but predicted a reserve sufficient for between six months and a year would be accumulated gradually.

Experts said Great Britain would need to store 3,850,000 tons of wheat annually, approximately 106,250,000 bushels for a full year's reserve, but doubted if this much would be obtained immediately because of the huge cost, as well as storage difficulties.

Besides the danger of loss of food shortage in case of war was the fact that Lord Weiss Monk in a recent address in which he declared Britain averaged seven sufficient only for two to four weeks.

He added: "Storage of air supply of bread and meal, flour or their equivalents, for a population of 46,000,000 is a fundamental necessity."

The scheme for mobilizing food resources for use in case of war was begun late last year with the appointment of Hardy Long, French as director of the new—food defence plans department.

Experts have estimated a year's supply of essential foodstuffs would include 3,850,000 tons of wheat, 4,000 tons of potatoes, 2,250,000 tons of onions, 1,300,000 tons of cheese and 626,000 tons of butter or margarine.

Rawdon and District

Rawdon—Mr. J. Coggins opened Mount Pleasant Y. P. S. on Friday evening with a New Year Reading and the pastor offered prayer. The Missionary convening Miss Eileen McMullen then presided and all sang a hymn. Miss Vera McAdam delighted with solo. Miss Dorothy Moore read the Bible Lesson and Miss James Sharp outlined the topic of the subject of Home, Tyranny, Anarchy or Democracy and in a very able manner dealt with the Training the Children in the Home. The pastor gave "A Story of Home Life". Miss Edna Thrasher sang a solo with guitar accompaniment. Miss Marguerite White gave a splendid reading urging all to make straight paths in their life.

Mrs. Herb David and daughter Phyllis delighted with a piano duet. Messrs. Bert Selby and Orvel Reid and Mullen gathered the offering and the service closed with a missionary hymn and a contest. "Famous Characters."

Mrs. Norman Weese Don and Orla spent a few days recently with her mother Mrs. G. Roberts, Trenton.

Friends here were glad to hear that Mr. Irvin Potts, of Kamloops, B. C. is greatly improved from his recent attack of Mumps.

Mr. Ellis Smith has returned home from a holiday at Bayside.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Potts spent a couple of days with relatives in Prince Edward County.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sine, Salem, spent Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. John Bailey.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald McCall and daughter Carroll of Trenton spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Norman Weese.

Mr. Bert Potts of Saskatoon spent Thursday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thrasher.

Mr. Wesley Farrell opened Bethel Young People's Society with a hymn and prayer on Thursday evening.

The Convener of Christian Pleasure Mrs. S. J. Elliott then took charge and Miss Helen Farrell read the Scripture Lesson. Miss Charles Pascup read an appropriate number and all joined in a hymn of Consecration.

The president outlined the topic of the evening with "Dedication to the Lord's Work".

Rev. J. E. Beckel brought forth several timely New Year's Resolutions. Miss Ida MacMullen gave a selection entitled "Our League",

Mrs. Harry Preston and Miss Doris Farrell staged a scene "I confess" at the close.

Miss McMullen, Springbrook, has returned to Belleville Hospital for treatment.

Rawdon friends were sorry to hear of the sudden death of Mrs. James Dunkley, which occurred last week very suddenly on Saturday January 9th, following an attack of pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Morton and Dorothy were recent guests of Mrs. Thomas Hart.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hay and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hagerman.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Thompson and Mrs. Harlow spent a day recently with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Brady and Marjorie spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McAdam.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb David and family, Mr. and Mrs. James Warren were guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Barrow on Wednesday evening.

Mr. Norman Sharp visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Weese during the first few days last week.

Mrs. Blake Sharp spent a few days with Mrs. E. Sharp at Wellman.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Warren entertained on New Year's Eve Misses Marion Walker, Burnbrae, Norman Dinan, River Valley, Eva Hall, Stirling, Evan Tweed, Trenton, Messrs. Lola Reath, Betty Sine, Mildred Elliott, Hazen Orr, Herb David, Gordon Green, Wesley Farrell, Ray Stuart, Springbrook, Carleton Potts, Mount Pleasant, Glen Heath, Ray Sine, Albert Warren, also Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Thompson.

Folks were delighted with the splendid weather the week-end with plenty of sunshine and mild weather, was in splendid shape for motoring. Hardly seems possible that it is January. This mild spell will certainly help the roads and will be a great boon to those folks who find it necessary to purchase their fuel.

Several Rawdonians are ill with bad colds, attacks of influenza and some have sore throats. No doubt the recent rainy weather has helped the germs spread.

Those who are beginning to feel the scarcity of water for their stock were delighted with heavy rain and now it seems all that is needed to make the farmers happy is a good coating of snow for their fields.

ANNUAL MEETING OF SCOTT'S CHURCH

The congregational meeting of Scott's United Church, Sidney, was held on Wednesday, January 6th, at the home of Mr. Howard Dafoe.

Dinner was served to a large number of people present by the ladies of the W. A. The proceeds were $6.95. Members hope not only to keep up this splendid record, but to excel it during the years of 1937.

The meeting was closed with the singing of the doxology.

ENTERTAINMENT HELD FOR RED CROSS

A very successful entertainment for the benefit of the local Red Cross held at Queen Inn on Friday evening, sponsored by the Rednersville Anglican guild, had a large attendance in spite of the inclement weather. The interior of the Inn was gay indeed, pretty, the new fire place lending a pleasing glow of warmth and colour.

Progressive euchre was played until ten after which Tommy Mason and his orchestra furnished a delightful program including many attractive numbers.

Mr. Laudree was the lucky winner of the fine pretty card table cover. The committee in charge of the evening was very pleased with the success of the affair, and wish to thank all who so kindly helped for its success. Also for their generosity in this way to increase the funds for the relief work in the stricken areas of the Province.

Miss Jones gave in part a letter from Miss Anna M. Hurley dated Belleville January 1st 1937. In which she writes:

Dear Mrs. Jones—

Please accept for the sincere thanks and appreciation of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society for the generous donations received from your Dorcas Branch of the Women's Institute of Rawdon. These articles have been sent to the Toronto Red Cross office and have been forwarded to the west, where those blankets and quilts are so badly needed.

Again thanking you,

Yours sincerely, M. Hurley.

Sec. Treas. Red Cross

Long Tweedsmuir is the letter to the Red Cross appeals to us as Canadian Citizens to fill in with energy and determination in our individual determination to help those in dire need.

"The Governments concerned will undertake the task of organizing the main necessaries of life be states, such as food, fuel and some clothing. But to many the problem remains for families, which are in dire need and real distress for want of some of their supplies of such things as blankets, bedding household utensils, material for repairs of all kinds."

LESS ASH MORE HEAT

Resolutions regarding your winter's fuel are now in order.

Thousands of families are glad that last year they resolved to use only Hamco Coke in their furnaces. They are back again as customers this year because they kept their homes warmer —at less cost.

It's your turn now. Won't you try a ton of the modern fuel—made scientifically every day in the great Hamco ovens at Hamilton?

These are some of the advantages you can count on (1) Lower cost per ton and per season (2) More comfort in every room (3) Quicker heat in the morning (4) Less labour because ashes lighter on the shovel and fewer ashes to carry out (5) No dust, soot or gas.

REMEMBER—Coke will heat your home at a lower cost than other hard fuels.

"WINGS OF LOVE"

(The Love Story of a Sky Pilot and Girl Who Planned on a Fifty-Fifty Financial System that Almost Wrecked Their Happiness)

By Janet Doran

CHAPTER 8

SKY ATTACHES LABELS

"Did he tell you that, Susanne?" Sky's voice cracked like a whip, across the still, living room and Susanne gasped —as if he had struck her.

"Sky," she whispered, "don't be so angry! Don't look at me like that! I thought you had him 'sold on' to!"

"You thought that," Sky's voice cracked with brittle anger, "after our talk last night? Less than 24 hours later, you thought I'd want you to go dining and dancing with another man, after that? Really, Susanne!"

Susanne bit her small, even teeth into her lower lip, and stared miserably at him. How explain, how make him understand that she had thought it his way of apologizing for being jealous of Speed, his best friend? How explain that it had seemed so logical that he send Speed, whom she liked, and her, as a gesture of atonement, a proof of his trust both in her, and in his best friend?

"Sky," she began in a choked, aching voice, "I'm sorry! I'm sorry for something I didn't understand! Speed said you had sent him. He said he would be glad to get me here alone, to eat ruined dinner! I'm sorry! I'm sorry all this wouldn't have happened!"

"Married a matter of weeks," Sky stormed, "and you take the cost of as if it burned him, and then—then—you go out with another man after it, "and the first minute I'm called out of town, you go sliing along and asks you! Then to add insult to injury, you lie about it, didn't understand! How could I make myself clearer, Susanne?" His voice broke with a sob, and he ran distracted fingers through his tumbled hair in a gesture of frantic exasperation.

"You are my first great business," he went on angrily, "you think because you're self-supporting, that you can be independent! I'm keen enough and expect to sell me to you! I'm not a bloodless, cold sheer lack of breath and glazed at her. Then resumed his marching through the room, and stopped at the sofa, to stare down at her, so newly furnished with fresh furnishings, with brave new dreams and honeymoon ideals.

"Well," he concluded grimly, "I won't subscribe to it, see? I won't be made a laughing stock of, like a—like a trained, pet clown, while my wife steps off with one of my friends, when my back is turned!"

"Sky," Susanne choked, fighting back the tears that threatened to lessness, "you're making a frightful mountain out of a molehill! I'm sorry with Speed, tonight! I . . . Sky, don't you know that my working has been a failure? It's no effort that I'm glad to be free, to have a chance paying for me the amount I earn!"

Sky's face, already pale by now bitter, "so you didn't want to go! Then why did you go, Susanne?" His voice was low, but the anger was the last straw. Susanne bowed her head in her folded arms and wept stormily.

Sky stared at her, his face slowly changing from anger to bewilderment, to wonder. He began taking things out of the drawers and putting them on the bureau. His wallet, the little folder containing his pilot's license and other official papers, his watch with the metal bracelet Susanne had given him for his last birthday. A long crisp paper, folded and slipped into, and still very white and fresh.

"There's nothing to cry about," he said gruffly, "after all. It was your doing—not mine!"

Susanne tried to speak. Tried simply, to stem her flood of grief, knowing it would annoy him further.

"this all boils down to a matter of cash. Unless I can put myself in to a position where I make enough to support you as we should live, things won't be any better! All this cock-eyed, modern stuff about women working, holding down jobs, buy their own way, is so much disaster. A man's a supreme idiot to fall for it, without thinking it through to the ultimate end."

Sky's face was white. "I want to work! I don't want you to feel you've to make more money than I! Sky, Susanne's voice was a gad, if slightly muffled, little peace, "please, Susanne understand! It goes much further, you'll have to explain, too!"

Sky glared at her, drained his coffee, and jumped up. He rushed his peaked cap down hard over one of his angry blue eyes, and shrugged into his leather coat.

"You've explained that you went out with my best friend, while I was away," he said grimly, "and that you thought away the time by beating in great noisy thumps, and she married Sky's living, and wonderingly, sure that he must hear the thunderous tumult.

"You are going to be here, Sky? Why?"

You can't vote, but it was so faint, so chilled and frightened and hard that Sky, wounded like a stranger's, coming hear the distance away!

"Understanding of the Cleveland run." He said no more, made no further explanations. Simply the five brief words, in a chill, angry tone, were a brisk yank of the light switch, that left Susanne in darkness. She did not speak again. Hunched himself into a tight ball, pulled the blankets up over his shoulders, and from into motionless silence.

Susanne lay there, the blank clock chime three, and shivered. It seemed to her that she had never felt so cold since she had slipped out of her dance frock, and kicked off her slippers. Cold, and sick, for the fears she had ever dreaded, had come, had shattered life, and come home to haunt her.

She had known, of course, that Susanne's verbal blow, had been a gross exaggeration, but when the mind starts impulse to reach for the stick, before he went into a rage, before he longed to kick the rudder hard, and even out, before he reached up.

He thought, "this is how it will be, years. You can figure things out with your head, you can put poker down on your chart, every bumpy you can anticipate, but you can't do much sleet on your wings, when you hit the bad spot!"

"You are sorry, aren't you, Sky?" Susanne repeated dully, not looking at him any longer, because she was afraid of the ice, the cold, freezing ice there in his blue eyes, blighting her with a brave, foolish defiance.

"Don't be silly, Susanne!" Sky knew it was silly, but he was in a gruff, rough tones, but the words sounded more like chaste thoughts than a pistol shot. He opened the door, in one savage yank, to escape the hot, stifling air, that seemed to be stored down the hall.

"Sky," Susanne's voice, a strangled sob broke across his tense ears, and he stopped, electrified. Without motion, without breath, he waited, as he did when manipulating his ship in high altitudes, he'd feet turned, and he plunged back toward the door he had just closed, just as he burst open, and Susanne's tear-stained face met his.

"Sky," she gasped, sobbing, crying, "Oh, Sky, I can't bear it! I can't bear having you angry with me!"

Sky felt a curious saltiness on his lips, his mouth. Realized, dimly that it was from his own tears. He held Susanne tightly, patted her shoulder roughly, awkwardly, kissed her hair, her soft ear, her eyebrow and cheek, before words came through his stolid, Dutch mind, into articulation.

"Don't, Susanne, Susie, dear," he pleaded slowly, miserably, "don't cry so! Don't . . . I'm sorry. I . . . didn't mean to be so stubborn. I . . . it won't happen again!"

And because Susanne was so young, because she had never been in love before, she believed him, not knowing that the pathway to all misunderstandings is paved with—bread, shining flagpings, labeled, each one, "It won't ever happen again!" Believed that this was the quarrel that ended all quarrels. That proved that no matter how much at outs she and Sky were, they'd always make it up, and love better flying coat, but her eyes were closed to the label of the bottles flying coat, but her eyes were closed to the label of the bottles flying coat, but her eyes were closed to the label of the bottles
